Sexual Assault Awareness Month

Every day, throughout the Navy Reserve we are working to be "Ready Now. Anytime, Anywhere." During drill weekends, on exercises, at naval air stations and at sea, we are all working together to ensure we possess the capabilities to defend our nation and to foster good will around the world.

One of the main reasons we are successful in what we do is we adhere to our core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. We treat each other with professionalism, dignity, and respect. That is why sexual assault has no place in the Navy Reserve and will not be tolerated – at any level. Not in our Navy. Not in YOUR Navy. No one has the right to inflict the life-long wounds of a sexual assault on another.

The problem of sexual assault within our ranks is real. That is why in 2009, the Secretary of the Navy created the Department of the Navy (DoN) Sexual Assault Prevention and Response office (SAPRO), and made it part of his secretarial staff. Since then, members of DoN SAPRO have visited bases and spoken with leadership to understand how widespread sexual assault is in order to better address this problem.

To focus attention on this problem, the Chief of Naval Operations designated April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month. During this month, the Navy is launching a comprehensive, service-wide awareness program. This effort is focused on fostering an environment of professionalism, respect and trust, and promoting a climate in which reporting sexual assault is encouraged so victims receive care and perpetrators are held accountable.

Sexual assault is not only reprehensible, it is a criminal act. Preventing sexual assault is everyone's responsibility. When one person is hurt we are all hurt. Let us work together to end sexual assault everywhere. Know that leadership will respond to victims and hold offenders accountable.

Your personal responsibility is to intervene when you observe a situation that looks dangerous to a Shipmate. Our ultimate goal is a Navy culture of gender respect where sexual assault is never tolerated and completely eliminated.
