CHAPTER 3

TASK ORDER AWARD

3.1 OVERVIEW

After the negotiations are completed and the Negotiation Memorandum is approved, a contract document is prepared and sent to the A/E consultant for signature. After the A/E firm signs and returns the document, the CO signs the contract and forwards copies to the A/E, Finance, the COTR and the Contracting Specialist for the project. This chapter provides examples of task order forms used to issue the contract and reiterates some of the roles and responsibilities of the COTR described in Chapter 1.

3.2 TASK ORDER ISSUANCE

Upon completion of the PNM, Acquisitions creates the draft task order and obtains the required contractor's signature. Acquisitions initiates the review process. After the review is completed, Acquisitions creates the task order transmittal letter and the COTR appointment letters. The CO then signs the documents. Once signed, the documents are distributed as required. (See Exhibit 3.2-A and Exhibit 3.2-B.)

If the A/E contractor is a large business, it will be provided with a Subcontracting Report document that reports the category of small business subcontractors that will be used for the task. (See Exhibit 3.2-C.) Note that the subcontractor reporting is transitioning to the Electronic Subcontract Reporting System (E-SRS), and Acquisitions personnel will be coordinating this transition with contractors and COTRs as appropriate.

Acquisitions then provides the COTR, Finance and the A/E contractor with copies of the executed task order.

3.3 COTR ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

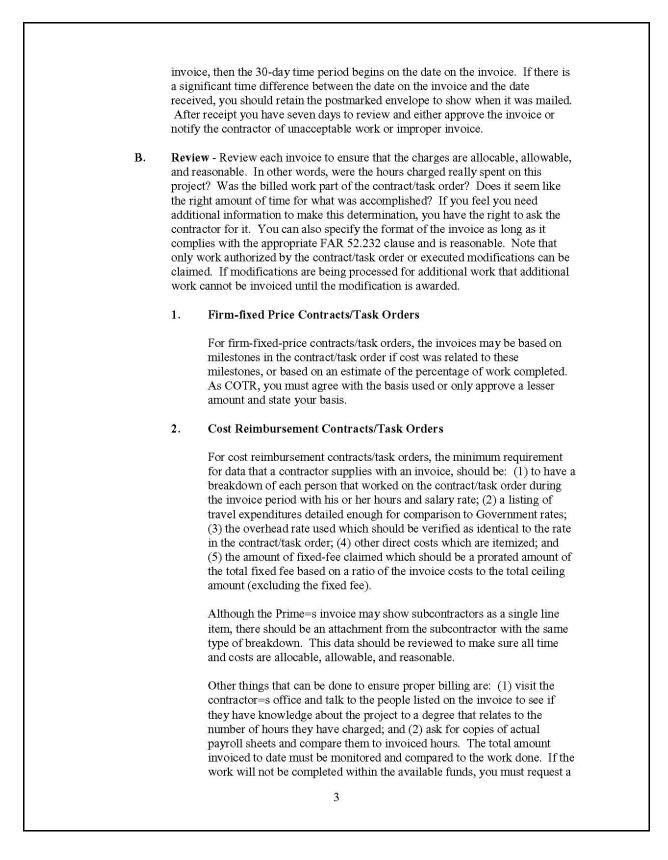

The COTR appointment letter will identify the authority the COTR has for the administration of the task order. The COTR should review this document and become familiar with what the COTR can and cannot do. (See Exhibit 3.3-A.) The COTR's authority is also provided to the contractor. A violation of assigned authority has the potential to create serious problems for all parties, and assigned authority must be adhered to during administration. If the COTR is unsure of an action/request being within his/her authority, the COTR should always request the assistance of Acquisitions. For detailed COTR information, including forms and templates, see Section 1.7.

COTR's are restricted in the type of communication they may engage in with consultants seeking work. See Guidance on Meeting with Consultants in Exhibit 3.3-B.

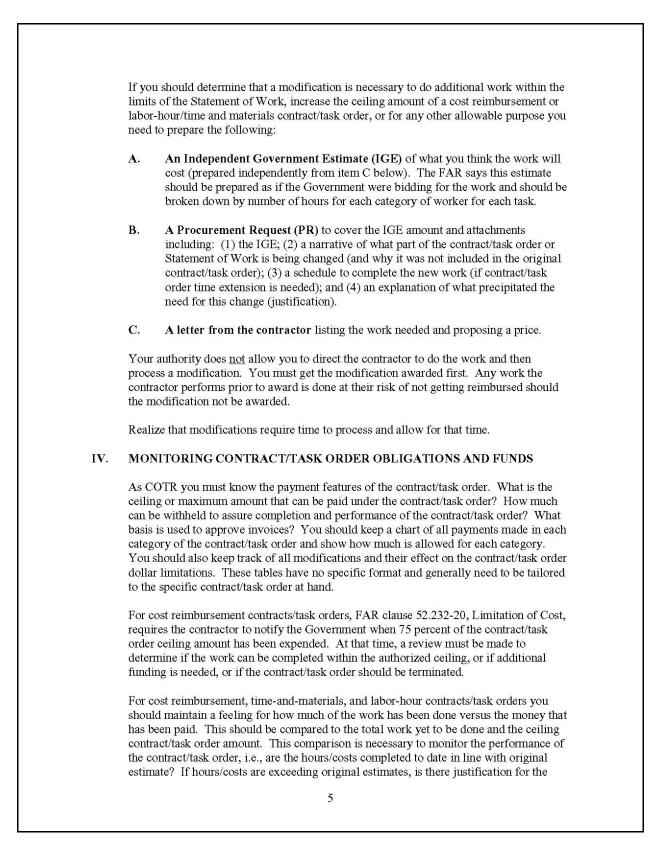

Exhibit 3.3-A STATEMENT OF RESPONSIBILITIES

| | STATEMENT OF RESPONSIBILITIES Contracting Officer's Technical Representative (COTR) |
|-----------------------|--|
| admi | technical representative of the Contracting Officer (CO), the COTR is responsible for nistration of the contract/task order and for assuring compliance by the contractor with the rements of the contract/task order. |
| | PROHIBITED ACTIONS |
| modi defai Disp | COTR is not authorized to: enter into formal contracts/task orders and contract/task order fications; make contractual commitments; terminate, partially or fully, for convenience or ult; issue a Contracting Officer's Decision on a claim in accordance with the Contract utes Act; or otherwise bind, commit, or obligate the Government contractually. COTR's are ly prohibited from making informal commitments such as the following: |
| Х | Encouraging a contractor to incur costs prior to receiving a contract/task order or an executed contract/task order modification for additional work; |
| Х | Encouraging, requesting, or requiring a contractor to make changes or take any action beyond the requirements of the contract/task order without an executed contract/task order modification; |
| Х | Encouraging a contractor to incur costs under a cost reimbursable contract/task order in excess of those costs contractually allowable; and |
| Х | Committing the Government to a course of action with regard to a potential contract/task order change, claim, or dispute. |
| | COTR RESPONSIBILITIES (GENERAL) |
| The | COTR=s responsibilities shall include the following: |
| Х | Monitoring contractor performance (see Part I below). |
| Х | Ensuring that the contractor receives all items required in the contract/task order to be furnished by the Government. |
| Х | Approving replacement of key personnel in accordance with the contract/task order. |
| Х | Understanding the FAR and TAR clauses that relate to your contract/task order. |
| Х | Notifying the CO when you are unable to perform the functions of the COTR. |
| | Providing recommendations to the CO for disposition of all property generated under the |

| | contract/task order. |
|-----|--|
| Х | Receiving all deliverables required by the contract/task order. These should be reviewed by you and a recommendation made to the CO to either approve or disapprove them. Note that the CO must sign any documents that approve or reject deliverables. |
| Х | Initiating modifications for changes in time, money, or work (see part III below). |
| Х | Processing invoices (see part II below). |
| Х | Furnishing to the CO copies of trip reports, conference reports, and correspondence sent to the contractor (see part VI below). |
| Х | Monitoring funding and costs (see part IV below). |
| Х | Notifying the CO in writing upon satisfactory completion of the work under the contract/task order and make appropriate recommendations as to acceptance. |
| | COTR RESPONSIBILITIES (SPECIFIC) |
| 1. | MONITORING CONTRACTOR PERFORMANCE |
| | A. Make sure contractor complies with technical aspects of the contract. |
| | B. Maintain close surveillance of contract progress and notify the CO promptly when technical difficulties arise which may impede satisfactory completion of the contract. Surveillance includes receiving and reviewing progress reports from the contractor (if required by the contract/task order) and conducting periodic reviews to determine compliance with contract/task order requirements. |
| | C. Hold any necessary discussions with the contractor to ensure that the work is being carried out in accordance with the contract/task order requirements. Assist the contractor in interpreting technical phases of the contract/task order, including applicable specifications, within the limitations of the COTR=s written authority. Differences of opinion shall be referred to the CO for resolution. |
| | D. Receive, review, and approve or disapprove contractor=s work plans and schedules in accordance with the terms of the contract/task order. |
| II. | APPROVING INVOICES/PROGRESS PAYMENTS |
| | A. Receipt - Invoices should be marked with the date they are received in FHWA. The prompt payment clauses require the Government to make payment on firm- fixed-price invoices within 30 days. This time period is measured from the day the invoice is received at FHWA. If the receiving date is not noted on the |
| | 2 |

| | modification and explain why the cost is overrunning and if the fixed fee should be adjusted. This must be done in sufficient time to acquire additional funding and processing of the modification. |
|---------|--|
| | 3. Time-and-Materials or Labor-Hour Contracts/Task Orders |
| | For time-and-materials or labor-hour contracts/task orders you should be familiar with FAR clause 52.232-7 which requires the contractor to substantiate his vouchers with copies of payroll sheets and other documentation as you determine necessary. You should verify that the labor categories and rates and hours charged are correct. The last item must be verified by some formal process that you initiate. One option is to require the personnel to fill out weekly time sheets. You would initial the original and receive a copy which you would compare against the invoice. |
| D. | Approval - After review, invoices should be marked AApproved for payment by COTR, @ signed, and dated. You can only approve firm-fixed price, labor-hour, and time-and-materials contract/task order invoices. On cost reimbursement type contracts/task orders the invoice should be marked ARecommended for payment,@ signed, dated, and sent to the CO for approval (TAM 1242.7004-1(5)). |
| | If the amount approved is different from the invoiced amount, the difference must be discussed with the contractor and documented by writing a letter to the contractor or obtaining a revised invoice. The contractor must be informed of the difference prior to the invoice being sent to Finance for payment. When you are authorized to approve an invoice, send the original to Finance with a copy to the Contract/task order File. |
| E. | Final Invoices - Final invoices must be approved by the CO after COTR review and recommendation for approval. Before, or coinciding with, submission of a final invoice, you must prepare a letter to the contractor requiring them to complete a final voucher, the SF 1034, Public Voucher for Purchases and Services Other Than Personal , and a release of claims. The signed final invoice and release should be forwarded to the CO for approval. |
| III. PR | EPARING BACK-UP FOR MODIFICATIONS 4 |

additional effort? If so, the final cost should be reevaluated and if an increase is necessary a modification should be requested. If there is no justification, you should notify the CO and schedule a meeting with the contractor to discuss progress of the contract/task order.

If your contract/task order has a small business subcontracting plan or, if during negotiations it was agreed that a certain amount of the work to be subcontracted to small, small disadvantaged, HUBZone small, or women-owned small businesses, you must ensure this is carried out. If the SF 294 and SF 295 are required, you should make sure the contractor submits them, review them to assure that the contractor is following the small business subcontracting plan, and then forward a copy to Headquarters (HFL-1), Director of Acquisition and Operations. The original should be sent to the CO.

V. STANDARDS OF CONDUCT AND CONFLICT OF INTEREST

It is very important to avoid improper business practices and personal conflicts of interest or even the appearance of them. (FAR) 48 CFR Part 3 and (TAR) 48 CFR Part 1203/TAM Chapter 1203, Improper Business Practices and Personal Conflict of Interest, provides guidance to avoid improper business practices, personal conflicts of interest and to deal with their apparent or actual occurrences. The Contracts Section provided copies of these Parts to all COTRs. Please be sure you are familiar with the content and should you have any questions about this matter, it is imperative that you contact the CO or WFLHD Legal Counsel at once.

VI. CONTRACT/TASK ORDER FILE CONTENT AND MAINTENANCE

The COTR=s file is of particular importance, for the documentation of your interaction with the contractor may be used in the event of litigation. In addition, an organized file facilitates an easy transition from one COTR to another if reassignment becomes necessary. The file should contain separate folders or tabbed sections and organized similar to the following:

- File folder/tab 1 The Contract Instrument (i.e., contract modification, task orders, delivery orders, and the contractor=s proposals applicable to these documents.
- $ File folder/tab 2 The COTR=s delegation memorandum, and all correspondence between the contractor and the contracting officer, filed in chronological order.
- $ File folder/tab 3 A copy of the contractor=s invoices/vouchers and any correspondence pertaining to the payments.
- $ File folder/tab 4 The COTR=s trip reports and written memoranda to th file on telephone conversations or other meetings with the contractor.
- File folder/tab 5 A copy of the contractor=s progress reports and other contact deliverables, and all correspondence pertaining to these documents.

The official contract/task order file shall be maintained by the Acquisition Team, Negotiated procurement Section. As COTR you must provide copies to the file of all invoices, progress reports, correspondence, and any other documentation related to the contract/task order operation and performance. Any duty you officially perform must be documented and the document sent to the official file.

| VII. | EVALUATING CONTRACTOR PERFORMANCE |
|------|--|
| | An evaluation form must accompany or precede the final invoice being sent to the CO for approval. For A/E work, form SF-1421 must be used. For other contracts/task orders, contact the Acquisition Team for the current evaluation form. The appropriate form should also be completed any time there is a new COTR. Interim performance evaluations may be made at the discretion of the COTR. |

GUIDANCE ON MEETING WITH CONSULTANTS ON MATTERS OTHER THAN SPECIFIC CONTRACT ISSUES

PURPOSE:

There is an ongoing desire by some consultants or contractors to visit with office personnel both for public relations purposes and in an effort to focus efforts on obtaining business. Such meetings, while appropriate, must be guided by certain standards and rules:

POLICY:

1. Meeting Location. Don't meet in a place where a consultant/contractor can overhear other office conversation. Close the door to the meeting room or meet at a location where other agency conversations cannot be heard. Inadvertent disclosure of protected information can result from a lack of discretion in meeting locations.

2. Nondiscrimination – Be careful not to discriminate against individuals or companies in granting requested meetings. Such creates an appearance of improper influence adversely impacting one's ethical obligations as a Government employee.

3. Public information – Only publicly available information may be transmitted to the consultant/contractor. Public information is (a) information that would be available to anyone under FOIA, (b) information that has not been designated as confidential by an agency, (c) information relating to legislative or regulatory procedures that has been previously disclosed by the agency to the public, or (d) information that is authorized to be disclosed to the public. Internal proposals that have not yet been adopted, funding levels that have not yet been set, the identification of potentially outsourced projects, long-range plans that are still internal government matters, matters relating to the relative qualifications of potential or actual contractors, the identification or acknowledgment of trade secret information, and the identification or acknowledgment of information relating to personal privacy, shall not be disclosed.

4. Generalities – Stick to generalities when conducting such conversations. Specifics should be avoided where possible. (Thus, one can discuss that generally the program looks like it may be growing. But one should not say that the program will grow by 20% over the next 3 years. Or one can say that it looks like we may have an increasing need for outside help. But one should not say that we will need outside help on the ABC project.) The identification of any specific project as needing outside help should be avoided in all situations, as this would constitute advance notification prior to the official notification available to all potential offerors.

5. Office Overview – You may discuss the work our office does generally and how we fit into the governmental structure, as well as specific projects we have done. You may disclose the names and titles of specific employees and their job duties and the names of contractors (where appropriate) who are presently working in or for the office. You may not disclose personal information about employees.

6. Current Practice – You may discuss current practices of the office, such as the extent of current outsourcing and the areas or projects being outsourced. You may not disclose any confidential trade secret information about the activities of a competitor or personal privacy information such as the fact that the office is seeking to replace an employee because that employee is about to go on extended leave.

7. Future needs – You may discuss in general terms expected program trends. You also may inform consultants/contractors where to look for information on upcoming solicitations. If a solicitation is on the street, that information can be disclosed. If a solicitation has not yet been issued, neither the anticipated issuance nor the expected date of the solicitation should be disclosed. You may inform the consultant/contractor of the procedures of how to submit proposals for future work, but providing tips on how to win the competition must be avoided.

8. Prevent information shopping. Find out if the consultant/contractor has met or will be meeting with other employees in the office. Consultants/contractors may want to information shop. Let the consultant know that if the company wants any more information, (s)he should contact you or someone else whom you designate. [Eastern had one former employee, now consultant, do this to the point that the consultant had to be excluded from consideration for a particular job because too much data had been gathered, giving the Company a benefit over other companies.]

9. Listening – You may listen actively as to any information the consultant/contractor wishes to share. This may include asking questions about the firm, the individual's background, interests, expertise, etc. You may accept any written information provided by the consultant/contractor about the firm.

10. Gifts – You may not solicit or accept a gift, including the gift of food, publications, or books, from the consultant/contractor. While there is an exception allowing you to accept an unsolicited gift if the fair market value of all gifts from the same entity does not exceed $20 on any one occasion or $50 per calendar year, the exception does not apply to cash, bonds, securities, or any gift given for the purpose of influencing you in the performance of your official duties. The exception allowing you to accept certain gifts is not a requirement that you accept them. You may always refuse. [For instance, if you attend a meeting put on by the consultant/contractor and refreshments are served, you are not required to partake of them.] A polite and insistent refusal to accept gifts from a consultant/contractor sends a strong message to the consultant/contractor of your ethical standards. If you pay fair market value for an item from a contractor, such is not treated as a gift.

11. Be prepared – Prepare yourself for how you will deflect questions and inquiries from areas you should not discuss. If the consultant/contractor continues to probe, simply say that you are not prepared to talk about that area but you would be happy to discuss . . .

12. Public Service – Remember that you are the public face of the Government. Always be courteous and professional, even if the consultant/contractor becomes "pushy" or you become uncomfortable. Politeness does not mean that you need to take abuse, but when needed, disengagement must always be managed professionally.
