DEMOCRACY FELLOWS COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Program Areas 2.1-2.4

DCHA/DG Contact: Sheron Moore (COTR)

IQC	Award Number	Expiration
World Learning	DFD-A-00-05-00230	9/26/2010

PURPOSE:

The Democracy Fellows Program (DFP) develops the talents and the career commitment of junior-, mid-, and senior-level democracy experts by providing them with essential field experiences in international democracy-building. The DFP is intended to help promote democratic institutions in developing countries and transitional or emerging democracies, while also helping to develop a cadre of U.S. professionals and technical experts who will have gained invaluable field experience in international democracy, development, and governance issues.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

Fellows are expected to work in a specific field of democracy and governance, for example, working with evolving democratic institutions or transitional governments; providing policy analysis and advice; developing evaluation indicators and practical, applied (not purely academic) research or methodologies; actively promoting improved democratic practices; providing technical comment on host country, USAID, or other donor organizations' plans and programs; helping to strengthen the capacities of local democratic organizations; providing electoral/constitutional assistance; promoting legal or judicial administration; promoting legislative and electoral reforms; and aiding the development of counterpart institutions and individuals. Each Democracy Fellowship must also include both some technical assistance that directly benefits a host country counterpart, as well as an approved "work product" (e.g., a series of articles, book, etc.) that significantly advances the state of democracy and development.

Matching and Negotiation: Any successful fellowship necessarily requires a high degree of symmetry between the expectations and needs of the fellow and those of the sponsoring organization. This also requires a measure of mutual flexibility, all within the stated fellowship program policies that USAID has established for the DFP. Obviously, pre-award negotiations may occur among the DFP, the identified fellowship candidate, and the Mission which sponsors the fellowship. It is not anticipated that any candidate's proposal will exactly match the needs and priorities of the sponsoring organization, but it is expected that the fellowship selection process will yield specific Democracy Fellows whose proposals will serve as a realistic basis for jointly negotiating with the sponsor the annual fellowship work plan that is required of each fellow.

USAID costs for DFP fellowships come from Mission program budget funding (not OE (Operating Expense) budgets), via an Operating Year Budget (OYB) transfer to DCHA/DG. Missions may sponsor a fellowship for a period of one or two years, or (as most Missions seem to prefer) for a one-year term, with the possibility of a renewal if mutually agreeable. The DFP will also consider the feasibility of somewhat shorter term fellowships (e.g., a nine-month fellowship which may be better suited to a fellow who otherwise works on an academic calendar). In general, however, very short-term Mission needs, e.g., less than six months or so, probably should be pursued through alternative short-term consultant and contractor mechanisms, rather than through the DFP.

MEASURING AND IMPROVING THE EFFECTIVENESS OF DG ASSISTANCE

Program Areas 2.1-2.4

DCHA/DG Contact: Mark Billera
David Black
Margaret Sarles

USAID has spent nearly $10 billion in over 100 countries to support democratization and good governance (DG). Beginning as small programs in human rights, justice, and elections over 20 years ago, annual funding in DG has grown to about $1 billion per year for the last few years, with a median DG program of about $5 million. Given the large investment in this sector of development, and its importance as a pillar of US foreign policy, the DG office in USAID has taken the lead in pressing for better evaluations, developing new methodologies for measuring effectiveness, and working with practitioners to improve democracy and governance programs.

In collaboration with academic experts and experienced practitioners, the DG office has undertaken a comprehensive, long-term plan to measure the impact and effectiveness of various approaches to democratic development and incorporate the findings into USAID programs through training and field support. Some of its products include:

Comparative evaluations in specific areas of democracy such as civil society development, elections, local government, and justice. These early studies in the 1980s and 1990s still provide insights into programming, but our knowledge of how to measure impact and effectiveness has moved the DG Office into new analytic and comparative approaches.

Indicators of change in democracy and governance has been a sustained and evolving program for the last decade, with the development of handbooks, support for research, and expert consultation. The DG office's commitment to good indicators integrates USAID's extensive field experience in measuring for results with advances in the democratic development academic literature.

Cross-national quantitative studies on DG effectiveness: In two highly-regarded studies in 2006 and 2007, a US academic group examined democratic patterns in 165 countries from 1990 to 2005, and found that USAID DG assistance has a significant, positive impact on democratic development. The studies concluded that in any given year an investment of $10 million of USAID DG funding produces a five-fold (500%) increase in the amount of democratic change over what the average country would otherwise be expected to achieve. See <http://www.pitt.edu/~politics/democracy/democracy.html>.

National Academy of Sciences (NAS) study: Under a contract awarded in 2006, the NAS convened an expert commission which produced recommendations for improving evaluations of DG programs, including needed USAID institutional reforms, policy changes, and methodological innovations. This report can be accessed at http://www.nap.edu/catalog.php?record_id=12164.

NEXT STEPS: The Democracy and Governance Office is building on current research and recommendations to continue building its capacity to assess effectiveness and improve democracy programming. The cross-national studies helped identify hypotheses to test and provided critical information on indicators of democratic change. The NAS report outlined new techniques for vastly improving the monitoring and evaluation of new DG programs, better methodologies for retrospective case studies, and other means of collecting and analyzing data that will allow USAID to more reliably gauge impact and improve strategic planning and programming decisions.

Impact evaluation pilots: Based on the recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) 2008 Report, this pilot initiative will help USAID better determine "what democracy assistance works and doesn't work under what circumstances." It aims to systematically incorporate the principles of good impact evaluations into USAID programming. These include project designs that provide for 1) clearly defined and measurable outcomes linked to democratic change; 2) quality baseline data that allow tracking processes of democratic change over time; 3) collection of baseline and outcome data in target and comparison groups; and 4) random assignment of target and comparison units where feasible.

The DG Office now has the capacity, with the addition of new Democracy Fellows and through consultants under a task order with Management Systems International (MSI), to provide evaluation assistance to missions at important stages of the project cycle: project planning and design; solicitation and selection of implementing partners; development of performance monitoring and evaluation plans; consultation on implementation issues related to the impact evaluation; and data analysis.

Other methodological improvements: Following the NAS report and earlier studies, the DG office will continue to improve indicators of democratic change and methods of improving causal analysis, drawing on academic experts and, for the first time, the wider donor community. It will also implement recommendations to more systematically incorporate field experiences, both successes and failures, and use state-of-the-art methodologies for better comparative analyses of past work.

Contributing to Agency change in support of better evaluations: The DG Office closely collaborates with the new Agency Evaluation Unit and will work for agency-wide changes in processes of planning and implementation that promote more effective DG evaluations.

RULE OF LAW

Strengthening rule of law and respect for human rights (Program Area 2.1)

The rule of law (RoL) sector is viewed through the prism of the DCHA/DG analytic framework: The Rule of Law Strategic Framework. Using this framework helps in systematically identifying the problems and weaknesses with rule of law in a country and suggests a range of potential programmatic approaches to problems in the rule of law.

The DG Office helps Missions undertake strategic analyses that link building rule of law with strengthening democracy. It supports efforts to strengthen five elements comprising the rule of law:

- Order and security;
- Legitimacy;
- Checks and balances;
- Fairness:
 - Equal application of the law;
 - Procedural fairness;
 - Protection of human rights and civil liberties;
 - Access to justice;
- Effective application.

Priority Areas with these elements:

Order and security: Establishing, rebuilding or expanding justice institutions; crime prevention, community security and civilian policing; disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process; and witness and court personnel protection programs.

Legitimacy: Constitutional drafting processes; legal reform commissions and citizen mobilization; harmonization of non-state customary or religious law with state-based law; and transitional justice mechanisms to address past abuses.

Checks and Balances: Establishing or strengthening independent judicial bodies; upgrading or reforming judicial career processes; improving working conditions for judicial personnel; strengthening judicial administration, management and self-governance; strengthening independent judicial and legal professional associations; enhancing judicial professional development and access to the laws; and stimulating citizen support for judicial independence.

Fairness: Reforming and implementing procedural codes; reforming administrative law; improving transparent and efficient administration of justice system components; expanding access to legal services; improving the quality of private defense; improving the accessibility of the state justice system; supporting or expanding alternative dispute resolution; increasing citizen awareness of human rights standards and issues; strengthening human rights institutions; and working with non-state justice institutions to improve access to justice.

Effective Application: Improving investigative capacity of police and/or prosecutors; enforcing judgments; and strengthening the implementation of administrative law and procedure.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND RULE OF LAW COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Program Elements 2.1.1-2.1.4

DCHA/DG Contact: Keith Crawford (AOTR)

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration
RIGHTS Consortium	DFD-A-A-00-09-00058-00	1/11/2014

PURPOSE:

DCHA/DG has awarded a “leader with associates award” cooperative agreement to Freedom House on behalf of the Rights Consortium. The RIGHTS Consortium brings together the formidable capabilities and geographical and substantive reach of three primary partners, Freedom House, the American Bar Association’s Rule of Law Initiative, and the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs.

Reflective of the need to cover the full range of rule of law challenges, the RIGHTS Consortium also includes associate partners who will also contribute their expertise in specific areas: The Center for the Administration of Justice at Florida International University (in the areas of police and justice sector reform), The Texas Regional Center for Policing Innovation at Sam Houston State University (police training on community policing), Global Rights (for reaching vulnerable populations in conflict and post-conflict environments), The Carter Center (for conflict mitigation and resolution in divided societies), The International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (for promotion and defense of civil society through legal frameworks); The Center for Victims of Torture (on issues of torture and strategic and tactical planning for reform); and The American Center for International Labor Solidarity (for labor laws, practice, and dispute mechanisms in line with international standards).

Together, they will enhance the Agency’s capacity to promote respect for human rights and the rule of law by providing access to NGOs with extensive human rights and rule of law expertise. Activities may aim to reform legal frameworks and/or strengthen actors and institutions within and beyond the justice sector, including but not limited to the judiciary, prosecutors, legal defense, investigators, civilian police, traditional authorities, civil society, and citizens.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

As viewed through the prism of the DCHA/DG Rule of Law Strategic Framework, the Rights Consortium offers programs in the following areas:

- 1. Order and Security: Improving capacity to protect persons, property, and democratic institutions against criminal and other extralegal elements.
- 2. Legitimate Constitutions, Laws and Legal Institutions: Developing constitutions, laws, and institutions derived from democratic processes and consistent with international human rights standards.
- 3. Strengthened Checks and Balances: Strengthening judicial independence and improving transparency in judicial decision-making and administration, ethics and discipline for all actors in the justice system, and public respect for judicial decision-making.
- 4. Fairness: Ensuring equal application of the law, procedural fairness, and the protection of basic human rights and civil liberties, and improving both the quantity and quality of justice available to citizens.
- 5. Effective Application of the Law: Improving the consistent enforcement and application of the law by strengthening administrative systems capacities to carry out core functions and coordination among justice sector actors.

6. Rule of law established in post-conflict environments: Including emergency response to human rights violations, rebuilding core functions within the justice sector, and supporting mechanisms to deal with the legacy of past abuses such as tribunals, truth commissions, and restorative justice mechanisms.

LEADER AWARD:

The leader award consists of two parts: one to support DCHA/DG “Core” program activities including pilot programs and the other to support possible Department of State and other non-presence country activities. The leader agreement has an authorized funding level of $1.5 million over a five-year life (see expiration date at top).

ASSOCIATE AWARDS:

Missions and Bureaus may negotiate and fund an associate award with no further competition, or separate cooperative agreements or grants to the partner organizations for work in rule of law and human rights. Associate award provisions are thereby loosely analogous to those for task orders under an IQC. There is no limit on the value of individual associate awards, nor a ceiling on the total value of associate awards that may be awarded over the effective life of the leader agreement. Associate awards may extend beyond the life of the lead award.

Missions and Bureaus interested in accessing the services of leader with associate award agreement should contact the AOTR for further details and guidance.

* This is a small business.

PURPOSE:

The purpose of these IQCs is to support transition to, and consolidation of the rule of law, and the promotion and protection of human rights throughout the world. Activities under these IQCs will improve and enhance the Agency's performance in facilitating the growth and sustainability of legal and judicial systems that promote a rule of law consistent with respect for human rights and market-based economies, commitment to legal equity, and democratic principles.

The Rule of Law IQC offers the following features:

- One collective ceiling of $300 million to sufficiently accommodate growing demand for rule of law services
- A larger pool of contractors from which Missions can select
- New cost structures and "fair opportunity to be considered" requirements
- Simplified proposal formats for activities under $2 million
- Task order performance may continue through July 15, 2012

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

Activities under these IQCs will involve the following functional areas: (1) legal framework development, (2) justice sector institution reform, (3) access to justice, and (4) building constituencies for sectoral reform.

Legal Frameworks: Work in this area addresses a nation's legal framework: its constitution, organizational, procedural and substantive laws, and regulations. If these are inadequate, promoting the rule of law can become a futile endeavor. For example, many developing countries inherited legal structures from colonial powers. These structures are usually antiquated or inconsistent with contemporary social and economic realities. Often, constitutionally recognized human rights guarantees are not supported in the secondary laws that effectively govern sectoral operations. These operations are also impeded by laws defining basic organization in ways that entrench inefficiencies, facilitate or encourage corruption, and undermine institutional mandates. Outdated laws often inhibit commercial transactions, and prohibit the adoption of modern technologies and practices.

Justice Sector Institutions: In most countries, the justice sector is comprised of several interdependent institutions: the judiciary, prosecutors, investigators and the police, public defenders, and the private bar. In most developing and transition countries, justice sector institutions suffer from a lack of integration, uneven development, and often incompatible institutional mandates and traditions. In addition, lack of skills and knowledge to make new systems work as intended, along with informal practices, may further distort performance. The objective for work in this area is to assist institutions to make them more efficient and effective.

Access to Justice: In many countries, years of colonialism, authoritarianism, or brutal dictatorship have robbed individuals of any expectation of fair treatment by governmental institutions. Often there is little understanding or information about rights and how to use the justice system to defend them. Inadequate capacity of the courts and resulting case backlogs frequently mean that justice is both delayed and denied. Work in this area focuses on promoting equal access to justice to ensure that all individuals are able to seek and obtain redress for their grievances—be they with other private parties or with state officials or organizations.

Building Constituencies for Reform: Reform of the justice sector is a political process and requires political support to succeed. Despite the many complaints about justice systems, and the often very clear picture of what needs to be fixed, reform programs are often stymied by a lack of effective local backing. Vested interests, powerful opposition, or the sheer weight of inertia and fear of the unknown frequently prevent any but the most minimal advances. Like the particular problems, the political obstacles vary from country to country, but in all cases, the common challenge is to generate broader interest, coordinate the actions and concerns of a variety of political actors, reach consensus on a common plan of action, and maintain support through its implementation. Work in this area is focused on developing the political will necessary to carrying through with reforms. Specific tasks under these IQCs may include, but are not limited to the following:

- Justice sector assessments
- Justice sector strategy development
- Justice sector activity design
- Justice sector institutional analysis
- Justice sector planning
- Justice sector technical assistance
- Analysis of linkages between rule of law and economic growth objectives
- Judicial training
- Human rights training
- Other justice sector training
- Managing for results planning
- Financial analysis
- Legal analysis and research (in common and civil law systems, comparative legal systems, international law, labor law, constitutional law, business law, commercial law, law of associations, and general law)
- Auditing of justice-sector institutions
- Workshop and conference planning
- Publishing (e.g., monographs, studies)
- Procurement/logistics (e.g., computers and office supplies for courts)

Missions with an interest in using the IQCs should submit their scopes of work to the COTR for clearance to access the mechanism. The role of the IQC is to ensure that proposed task orders fall under the scope of work of the overall IQCs. The Mission's procurement office is responsible for issuing task orders upon obtaining such clearance.

Under the RoL IQC's, several fair opportunity (competition) exceptions are included in the contracts. One allows for a task order to be placed directly with any category of small or small disadvantaged business that received one of the IQC's. Among the RoL IQC contractors, Management Sciences for Development, Inc. (MSD) is in the small business category. Please contact the COTR or your contracts officer for more information.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

At the invitation and with the financial support of the U.S. government, foreign judiciaries, or international development organizations, Center staff has visited foreign courts and judicial training centers to participate in conferences and technical assistance projects. This outreach has included judicial and court education programs with the Russian Academy of Justice; a caseload tracking and reporting assessment for the High Court in Lusaka, Zambia; a U.S./Council of Europe judicial reform assessment in Kosovo; and assistance with the implementation of a new case calendaring initiative in Trinidad and Tobago. The International Judicial Relations Office also can identify U.S. Judges, court managers, and public defenders with expertise relevant for a particular international rule of law program or court reform project.

Additionally, each year the Center hosts delegations of judges, attorneys, court officials, and scholars from around the world at its offices in the Thurgood Marshall Federal Judiciary Building in Washington, D.C. These sessions provide information about the United States legal and judicial systems as well as an overview of the Center's education and research activities.

GOVERNANCE

More transparent and accountable government institutions (Program Area 2.2)

Many citizens of developing countries recognize the intrinsic value of democracy (e.g., elections, human rights, and representation). However, they are also concerned with a government's ability to function. In general, governance issues pertain to the ability of government to develop an efficient and effective public management process. Because citizens lose confidence in a government that is unable to meet their basic security and service needs, the degree to which a government is able to carry out its responsibilities at any level is often a key determinant of a country's ability to sustain democratic reform.

Priority Areas: Legislative strengthening, public policy development and implementation, decentralization and local capacity-- anticorruption initiatives and security sector reform.

PURPOSE

The connections between public sector corruption and development run deep. Some of them are clear and direct, for instance when political officials divert aid and investment capital to offshore bank accounts, poor nations become poorer. When political, bureaucratic, and judicial processes are put up for rent, it endangers civil liberties and property rights. Corruption erodes the quality of public services and access to those services. Political and economic benefits flow to a limited number of individuals, while the costs are extracted from society at large -- often from the poor and powerless. While the tangible and immediate damage can be significant, other detrimental impacts are intangible, collective, and long-term in nature. Corruption can erode the legitimacy of government and undermine democratic values like trust, tolerance, accountability, and participation. Corruption can increase the time, cost, and uncertainty of doing business and thereby deter investment, or skew investment toward high-return sectors or white elephant projects whose main beneficiaries are contract winners and those who receive kickbacks, not the public as a whole. Corruption can also reduce competition, lower compliance with construction, environmental, or other regulations, increase budgetary pressures on government, and nourish organized crime networks.

The objective of ENGAGE is to provide USAID and its partner countries with the broad range of technical assistance, assessments and other resources necessary to develop and implement appropriate and meaningful strategies to curb corruption in economic, political and social service sectors. USAID defines corruption as “the abuse of entrusted authority for private gain.” Thus, the activities under ENGAGE address unilateral abuses by governmental officials such as embezzlement and nepotism, as well as abuses linking public and private actors such as bribery, extortion, influence peddling, and fraud at both lower and higher levels of government and the public sector (i.e., “administrative” and “grand” corruption). The activities under this IQC address three broad areas: 1) public financial, administrative and regulatory measures that promote transparency, accountability and effective governance; 2) civil society advocacy on behalf of governmental integrity, implementation of anticorruption programs and/or oversight of public functions and authorities; and 3) incorporation of anticorruption promotion into other sectoral/sub-sectoral areas, such as health and education, natural resource management, corporate governance, or into key aspects of democracy promotion, such as rule of law, legislative oversight or local government strengthening.

Services through this IQC will assist in establishing structures, policies, functions, and decision processes that are perceived as necessary and just by citizens.
- Public management: This IQC will assist governments to operate more efficiently and effectively and will assist governments and their citizens to incorporate democratic structures and principles into their systems of governance. Services will assist with policies and procedures to guide operations, including for ministries and executive offices, linkages between and among branches and levels of government, budget formulation, revenue flows, distribution and use of resources, civil service reforms, public/private partnerships, and working with citizens as customers of government.
- Strategic planning, policy, and institutional reform: Reforms often entail changed rules, roles, altered incentive structures, and unfamiliar ways of doing business. Reformers are commonly confronted by powerful interest groups with stakes in the status quo and yet they are frequently inexperienced at building coalitions of support and lack skills in negotiation and advocacy. Services will be provided to help designated policy planners and implementing managers develop and integrate analytical, technical, and political skills sets to build capacity to strategically manage policy reform processes (policy making, implementation, and enforcement). Services will support the reform of institutions (i.e., systems of rules), of policies, and of organizations. Services may improve processes of decision making and follow through requirements for effective implementation after laws have been passed or policies established.

* BRDG applies primarily to Program Elements 2.2.2 and 2.2.5 and secondarily to the other governance elements. It can be provide services across all of the good governance elements and other sectors' elements when governance reform is a key objective of the program.

ELECTIONS AND POLITICAL PROCESSES

More genuine and competitive political processes (Program Area 2.3)

Elections can be a primary tool to help force political openings and expand political participation. In recent years, elections have been a principal vehicle for democratization, as authoritarian governments have frequently fallen to democratic forces. Electoral campaigns also tend to foster political liberalization. For an election to be free and fair, certain civil liberties, such as the freedoms of speech, association, and assembly are required. Elections offer political parties and civic groups an opportunity to mobilize and organize supporters and share alternative platforms with the public. They also serve to encourage political debate.

Priority Areas: Impartial electoral frameworks, credible electoral administration, effective over-sight of electoral processes, informed and active citizenries, representative and competitive multi-party systems, inclusion of women and other disadvantaged groups, effective governance by elected leaders and bodies, election monitoring, voter education and effective transfers of political power.

CONSORTIUM FOR ELECTIONS AND POLITICAL PROCESSES STRENGTHENING III

Program Elements 2.3.1-2.3.3

DCHA/DG Contact: Shally Prasad (AOTR)

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration
CEPPS III	DFD-A-00-08-00350-00	9/30/2013

PURPOSE:

In 2008, DCHA/DG awarded a leader with associates cooperative agreement to the Consortium for Elections and Political Process Strengthening (CEPPS), a joint venture between IFES, the International Republican Institute (IRI), and the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs (NDI). All three organizations are leaders in the field of elections and political processes and possess a vast amount of experience and expertise. CEPPS III programs may be implemented by one member of the consortium, by two or more working on activities separately, or by two or more members working jointly.

The purpose of this agreement is to strengthen and support democratic electoral and political processes by providing access to a full array of activities in the field of elections and political processes. The emphasis is on long-term planning and sustainable development of electoral and political processes rather than event-driven, crisis-oriented activities centered on a single election. The award was designed to allow for the initiation and implementation of short- and long-term activities without requiring a time-consuming competitive application process.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

The CEPPS III Leader with Associates Cooperative Agreement is designed to respond to immediate and long-term Mission and bureau needs related to assessments, strategy formulation, activity design, evaluation, and program implementation. Activities initiated under this award may promote any of the following ten objectives:

Objective 1: Impartial Legal Framework for Elections and Political Parties

Although not a sufficient condition, an impartial framework (i.e. constitutional provisions, laws, rules, regulations, and institutions which govern electoral and political processes) is a necessary condition for sustainable, credible electoral processes and representative, democratic political parties.

Objective 2: Credible Electoral Administration

Credible electoral administration requires an impartial, transparent, and competent electoral authority managing the elections, and sufficient resources to permit neutral administration. It also requires professional staff who are competent in key areas of electoral administration including registration, designating polling sites, drawing up voters' lists, tabulating votes, providing security, enforcing political finance rules, using computer hardware and software effectively, educating voters and adjudicating complaints if within the electoral authority's mandate.

Objective 3: An Informed and Active Citizenry

An informed and active citizenry is the driving force behind a genuine and competitive political process. It also helps build confidence in the system, and public acceptance of results. Free and fair elections require that all citizens understand the electoral system and political choices, and participate in political processes through party membership, voting, volunteer service, and membership in NGOs.

Objective 4: Effective Oversight of Electoral Processes

Monitoring electoral processes can reduce the opportunities and incentives for electoral fraud, identify shortcomings of the electoral process with the intention of facilitating genuine and competitive elections, and legitimize a peaceful transfer of power. Recognizing that election day comprises only one component of the electoral process, effective oversight of electoral processes includes sufficient pre/post-election monitoring. Election monitors may include: political contestants who monitor violations of their supporters' political rights; nonpartisan citizen organizations; and international organizations which evaluate a country's electoral framework and administration compared to international standards and practices. The media can also serve a useful watchdog function during an electoral process if it has the capacity to produce credible and accurate reports about the preparations for, and the conduct of, elections. Monitoring of the electoral process -- by international organizations, domestic monitors, political party poll watchers or local media -- can lend confidence in the outcome of an election.

Objective 5: Increased Political Participation of Women & Historically Disenfranchised Groups

This objective promotes increased political participation of groups that have historically been excluded from fair participation. Illustrative examples of these groups include (but are not limited to) women, minorities, internally displaced persons (IDPs), and persons with disabilities. To ensure the inclusion of these groups, and others, in electoral activities, it is critical that electoral laws, administration and oversight are non-discriminatory and non-exclusionary, and that civil and political rights of politically marginalized groups are protected through effective enforcement. This objective aims not only to remove barriers to participation, but also to improve political participation and representation through targeted training, skills development and effective voter education. The goal is to strengthen the capacity of historically disenfranchised groups to participate in and influence decision-making bodies within political parties and government.

Objective 6: Consensus-building to promote peaceful agreement on democratic reform

This objective aims to develop processes for promoting peaceful agreement for democratic reform through broad-based participation in determining and negotiating changes to governing structures.

Objective 7: Representative and Competitive Multiparty System

A representative and competitive multiparty system consists of political parties which have internal democratic procedures, and broader institutional structures that are accountable, transparent, inclusive of sub-populations, and accepted by party members. Representative political parties serve many functions such as acting as an intermediary between the electorate and the elected; involving members of different ethnicities, religious beliefs or genders; developing platforms based citizen input; and ensuring effective communications between political party structures and constituencies.

Objective 8: Effective Transfer of Political Power

Genuine and competitive political processes require: the peaceful transfer of power between different individuals, groups, or political parties through established procedures; losing parties accepting the outcome of the election and the authority of newly elected officials; and public recognition of the legitimacy of the process. Newly elected officials must be prepared to fulfill their responsibilities and political parties must be prepared to assume a proper governance role.

Objective 9: Effective Governance by Elected Leaders and Bodies

Elected leaders must be able to govern effectively once they take office. Parties and their leaders at the national, regional and local level need to serve the public, rather than private interests. Legislative bodies need to develop technical skills, as well as rules of procedure and ways of operating which enhance their ability to develop legislation and to provide oversight of the executive branch. At the local level, mayors and councils need to be able to work together as well as perform their specific functions such that the local community benefits from democratically elected government.

Objective 10: Promoting Sustainable Local/Regional Organizations Engaged in Election Assistance

USAID aims to strengthen the capacity of indigenous local/regional organizations in developing countries to: 1) conduct elections related activities; and 2) provide technical assistance and training to other local organizations on elections and political processes. The rationale is that strengthened election-oriented organizations in developing countries will: 1) broaden the community of democracy promoters and advocates abroad; 2) demonstrate that USAID assistance leads directly to sustainable change among local organizations, without dependence on intermediary organizations; and 3) promote replication.

The Consortium for Elections and Political Processes Strengthening is a joint venture of the following three organizations: International Foundation for Electoral Systems (IFES), International Republican Institute (IRI), and National Democratic Institute for International Affairs (NDI). IRI is the administrative manager for CEPPS and as such, all communication regarding CEPPS should be sent to the office of CEPPS Director, Ms. Colleen House.

PURPOSE:

To support the transition to, and consolidation of, democratic governments through which citizens choose their leaders and participate in all levels of political decision-making, particularly in transition and sustainable development countries.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

- Pre-election assessments: Country-specific assessments which identify the needs and constraints of conducting free and fair elections.
- Election administration: Technical assistance to: a) election management bodies and other institutions that conduct elections and/or adjudicate electoral disputes; b) develop and strengthen election laws or the constitution; c) address problems identified in pre-election assessments. This includes providing commodities, poll-worker training, and voter and civic education.
- Election monitoring: Support for election monitoring may be provided prior to and/or during national or local elections. Training or technical assistance can be provided for domestic and international observation; indigenous civil society and political party poll-watching; “quick-counts” or other methods for monitoring the election process; information dissemination on electoral results, and monitoring and mitigating of election-related violence.
- Political party development: Support is provided to strengthen pluralism through political parties. Political party development activities provided through IQCs are governed by specific federal statutory language, as well as by USAID policy guidance regarding political party activities. Section 116e of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, while clearly allowing political party development activities to be funded as part of development assistance that “will encourage or promote increased adherence to civil and political rights,” concludes with the following caveat: “none of these funds may be used, directly or indirectly, to influence the outcome of any election in any country.” USAID’s political party assistance policy set forth in ADS 200-203, as reissued in 2003, states that the goals of USAID’s political party assistance are to: Develop and consolidate representative democracies; develop transparent political environments; establish viable democratic parties; and ensure conduct of free and fair elections. Two core principles govern USAID’s political party assistance policy: 1) USAID programs support representative, multiparty systems; and 2) USAID programs do not seek to determine election outcomes. (Note: additional guidelines for political party assistance program, based on these core principles, are found in the policy at the following site: www.usaid.gov/policy/ads/200/200.pdf.)
- Pre-and post-election institution building: Support may be provided to legislatures as well as legislators, regional and/ or local government representatives to strengthen political processes and support new governments or coalitions. Training and/or technical assistance may be provided to support the facilitation of national dialogues and fora for consensus-building.
- Voter and civic education: Support for long and short-term programs covering the entire range of pre, post and interim-voter and civic education, including support for message development and various media transmissions, as well as research and evaluation. Support may also be provided to empower historically marginalized groups (such as women, youth, racial, ethnic, religious minorities, and IDPs) to participate and exercise their rights in electoral and political processes.
- Technical leadership support: Support for a range of activities that contribute to furthering state-of-the-art elections and political process programming.

CIVIL SOCIETY

Increased development of a politically active civil society (Program Area 2.4)

It is through the advocacy efforts of civil society organizations and civic education that people are empowered to exercise their rights and gain a voice in the process of formulating public policy and political processes.

Organizations such as human rights groups, professional associations, religious institutions, pro-democracy groups, environmental activist organizations, business associations, labor unions, media organizations, and think tanks play a vital role in educating and engaging with the public and the government on important local and national issues.

Many Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) supported by USAID champion women's rights, ferret out government corruption and impunity, and spot light business practices that are exploitative of labor and the environment. Their presence and activities help assure that government and citizens comply with the rule of law.

To assist the independent media, the Division provides technical leadership in such areas as: training of journalists and other media practitioners, financial management and business development, the enabling legal environment for media, and support for media sector CSOs. USAID, along with the State Department and other donors, supports the Media Sustainability Index (MSI), a comprehensive, annual analysis of the media sectors, in 77 countries in the Middle East, North Africa, sub-Saharan Africa, and Europe and Eurasia.

Priority Areas: Strengthening the mediums through which citizens can freely organize and communicate with their government and with each other, particularly via support for independent media, democratic labor movements, and the enabling environment for civil society organizations, strengthening a democratic political culture through support for civic engagement and civic education. Through these avenues of support, USAID helps to mobilize constituencies for democratic reform.

GLOBAL CIVIL SOCIETY STRENGTHENING (GCSS) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Program Area 2.4

DCHA/DG Contact: Asta Zinbo (AOTR)

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration	Performance Period
Counterpart International	DFD-A-00-09-00141-00	05/07/2014	5/07/2019

PURPOSE: The Leader with Associates consortium will provide technical assistance, design, implementation and evaluation services in support of civil society programming in presence and non-presence countries as identified by USAID Missions and USAID/Washington. USAID-funded assistance mechanisms are frequently called upon in times of crisis, conflict or post-conflict, or when unforeseen challenges or opportunities arise. Such programming is expected to include similar types of activities as those required for the DCHA/DG core program in the Leader Award.

GCSS LEADER: The Media Assistance utilizing Technological Advancements And Direct Online Response (MATADOR) program funded and implemented through the DCHA/DG GCSS Leader Award will provide short-term consultative assistance to indigenous DG organizations on the use of new media (digital interactive media) technologies to enhance communication and/or coordination efforts for purposes supporting DG objectives. The MATADOR activity will fund up to 20 days of in-country assistance and 5 days (40 hours) of online follow-up assistance remotely. MATADOR interventions will be considered pilot activities aimed at gathering a wealth of information concerning the most effective programmatic approaches which emphasize the use of technology and will be explicitly tailored to gather lessons learned for use in future programmatic interventions. Missions interested in receiving MATADOR assistance should contact the GCSS AOTR and Troy Etulain (tetulain@usaid.gov), the MATADOR Activity Manager.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

ENHANCING CIVIC PARTICIPATION through:

- Establishing legal and regulatory frameworks that protect and promote civil society and civic participation;
- Strengthening the capacity of Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) for policy analysis, advocacy, coalition-building, internal governance, membership representation and services, and engaging in other activities aimed at fostering more peaceful and democratic societies.
- Increasing citizen participation in policy and decision-making processes, service delivery, resource allocation, oversight of public institutions and in broader initiatives to create more peaceful, democratic, and pluralistic societies.
- Strengthening political and civic culture that is supportive of democratic institutions and processes, active citizen participation, civic virtues (tolerance and gender equality), and other civic skills, attitudes, and behaviors.
- Developing and strengthening independent and democratic trade/labor unions and federations to promote international core labor standards.

STRENGTHENING INDEPENDENT MEDIA through:

- Enhancing the technical and theoretical professional capacity of the media sector through hands-on training, consulting, and mentoring.
- Strengthening media legal and regulatory frameworks to enable the growth of independent media.

- Building financially sustainable media sectors through activities that enhance both the economic viability of media enterprises and an overall environment that supports the development of sustainable media.
- Supporting independent media by strengthening media sector CSOs and related groups/activities—including but not limited to internet-based networking initiatives and regional initiatives.

USAID PROGRAM DESIGN and LEARNING through:

- Developing and conducting needs assessments, baseline studies, targeted evaluations, special studies and other information-gathering activities specifically for the design, monitoring and evaluation of USG-funded programs.
- Developing and disseminating best practices and lessons learned, testing demonstration and pilot models, and preparing strategic plans and other short-term programming activities.
- Disseminating technical materials through publications, internet, public forums and other related events to improve civil society and the media’s understanding of the program area.
- Augmenting CSO capacities to share information for better learning, especially through the internet and other electronic mediums; and developing analysis-based training materials and modules for stakeholder and development practitioners.

And integrating CROSS CUTTING THEMES, such as:

Community Mobilization: Strengthening the capacity of civic groups, community based organizations, professional associations and advocacy groups to contribute to an active civil society.

Youth: Implementing programs, partnerships and policies that actively and constructively involve young people, while helping them to develop the knowledge, skills, and attitudes they need to be active and constructive members of society.

Conflict Mitigation and Transformation: Working to avert imminent violence or the escalation of a dispute into a violent encounter by identifying and addressing the root causes and triggers of conflict. Mitigating ongoing violence and addressing its immediate aftermath.

Labor: Serving as a watchdog for labor rights, labor markets, and labor governance, including worker rights; labor migration and trafficking; labor organizations and trade unions, among others.

Media Outreach: Using mass media (newspapers, magazines, radio, television, internet, text messaging and/or other media) to disseminate information about any aspect of civil society development or citizen empowerment.

GLOBAL LABOR PROGRAM COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Program Element 2.4.1

DCHA/DG Contact: Kimberly Ludwig (AOTR)

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration
Solidarity Center	DGC-A-00-02-00002-00	12/31/2009

Note: In 2002, USAID/DCHA/DG awarded the cooperative agreement “Global Trade Union and NGO Strengthening” to the Solidarity Center (also known as the American Center for International Labor Solidarity, or ACILS). In the past, these programs were administered by the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO) regional institutes. The institutes were then consolidated into the Solidarity Center, which now operates programs worldwide.

PURPOSE:

The Solidarity Center provides technical assistance to (1) promote the adoption and effective enforcement of core labor standards; (2) establish legal frameworks to protect and promote civil society; (3) increase citizen participation in policy processes, implementation, and oversight of public institutions; (4) increase institutional and financial viability of labor unions and labor NGOs; (5) enhance free flow of information; (6) strengthen democratic culture and gender equity; (7) support anti-sweatshop activities; (8) promote broad-based, equitable economic growth; (9) build human capacity through education and training; and (10) improve health through workplace and peer-to-peer health education and prevention. The center’s work is based on three fundamental issues: adherence to core labor standards, gender integration, and the use of partnerships and communications technology to promote coalitions across civil society and national borders.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

USAID and the Solidarity Center continue to focus their work on the role and participation of unions in promoting democratic governance, free and transparent elections, the rule of law, and broad-based economic growth strategies. Additional areas of focus include health issues (like HIV/AIDS), democratic-industrial relations, and human resource development.

The Solidarity Center is the lead organization of the cooperative agreement. DCHA/DG developed this leader-associate award mechanism to provide Missions and other U.S. government agencies with a pre-approved grant vehicle that allows for timely procurement of labor-related awards that fall within the scope of the leader award objectives. After the DCHA/DG AOTR determines whether a proposed activity fits within the award objectives, the Mission may develop and implement its own independent grant or cooperative agreement with the Solidarity Center. These associate awards are managed by the Mission or Bureau. Awards can be extended for up to five years beyond the life of the leader award.

NGO LEGAL ENABLING ENVIRONMENT PROGRAM COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Program Element 2.4.1

DCHA/DG Contact: Eric Picard (AOTR)
Maryanne Yerkes

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration
International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL)	DFD-A-00-08-00332-00	09/29/2013

PURPOSE:

In September 2008, DCHA/DG launched the NGO Legal Enabling Environment Program (LEEP), a five-year cooperative agreement implemented by the International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL) through an Associate Award issued under DCHA/DG's Global Civil Society Strengthening Cooperative Agreement with Pact. The purpose is to support the enabling legal and regulatory environment that protects and promotes civil society and civic participation. LEEP offers:

- Technical assistance on legislation or regulations that (1) threaten to restrict the enabling environment, or (2) present an opportunity to advance favorable legal reform;
- Initiatives to strengthen local capacity to advance legal and regulatory reform through research fellowships, study tours, and other activities; and
- Targeted research to advance the analytic basis for reform.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

LEEP offers both in-country and remote technical assistance. Under LEEP, ICNL will work with DCHA/DG, Regional Bureaus and Missions to develop appropriate annual work plans that identify and prioritize countries for technical assistance. Each fiscal year LEEP will be positioned to provide rapid response technical assistance for a small number of urgent, high priority situations not envisioned in the work plan. Illustrative activities include written analysis of NGO-related legislation, one to two trips by ICNL staff to conduct an assessment and/or provide technical assistance, and/or provision of a small grant to local partners to help advance NGO law reform.

LEEP is intended to provide limited technical assistance when Mission resources are unavailable, or when rapidly evolving situations require an immediate response that precludes normal Mission-based procurement, or when the scope and cost of the activity is so limited as to make Mission funding cumbersome and inefficient. In cases in which a Mission, Bureau, or other USG partner requests urgent assistance to undertake an activity more expansive than the limited interventions covered by LEEP or in excess of the DCHA/DG funding available for LEEP activities, DCHA/DG may be able to accommodate the activity when the party requesting the assistance agrees to transfer the funds to the core agreement. In all cases in which more extensive interventions are required, the Mission is encouraged to directly fund that assistance. DCHA/DG is available to offer guidance to Missions as needed.

DISABILITY POLICY INITIATIVE

Program Area 3.3

DCHA/DG Contact: Lloyd Feinberg (COTR)
Agency Disability Coordinator

Technical Support Contract	Award Number	Expiration
Technical Support Contract	DFD-M-00-00-24-00238	09/27/2010

PURPOSE:

USAID is committed integrating people with disabilities into its programs and activities and to building the capacity of disability organizations that advocate for and offer services on behalf of people with disabilities. This commitment is reinforced by the USAID disability policy and extends from the design and implementation of USAID programming to advocacy for and outreach to people with disabilities.

USAID's policy on disability is to avoid discrimination against people with disabilities in programs which USAID funds and to stimulate an engagement of host-country counterparts, governments, implementing organizations and other donors in promoting a climate of nondiscrimination against and equal opportunity for people with disabilities. The USAID policy ensures that people with disabilities are included at every level, as administrators, partners, and beneficiaries.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS

USAID's disability funds are used to support programs and activities to address the needs of people with disabilities, including protecting the rights and increasing the independence and full participation of people with disabilities in programs related to health, education, economic growth, political participation, and humanitarian aid. The Funds' focus is on reducing barriers for people with disabilities in existing USAID programs. The Fund also supports the development and implementation of training for USAID staff and its partners overseas to promote the full inclusion and equal participation of people with disabilities in countries where USAID is present.

This fund is coordinated and supported by the Office of Democracy and Governance, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. The Disability Fund is active in over 30 countries worldwide. As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DCHA/DG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting. This contract provides technical assistance and support for field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

DISPLACED CHILDREN AND ORPHANS FUND

Program Area 3.3

DCHA/DG Contact: Lloyd Feinberg (COTR)

Technical Support Contract	Award Number	Expiration
Technical Support Contract	DFD-M-00-00-24-00238	09/27/2010

PURPOSE

Established in 1988, the Displaced Children and Orphans Fund (DCOF) provides care, support, and protection for the special needs of children at risk, including orphans, unaccompanied minors, children affected by armed conflict, and children with disabilities. Programs center on strengthening the capacity of families and communities to address the physical, social, educational, economic, and emotional needs of children in crisis. The program aims to preserve the family structure; promote the growth and development of vulnerable children; and develop community structures to care, support, and protect vulnerable populations.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS

Most DCOF activities are implemented through USAID Mission-managed grants and agreements. A major portion of these Congressionally-mandated funds are used to support programs and activities that provide direct assistance to vulnerable children. DCOF funds also support the design, implementation, and monitoring of programs that provide evidence-based guidance and replicable models for future expansion or replication. DCOF is currently active in 25 countries, including Afghanistan, Angola, Azerbaijan, Bangladesh, Belarus, Burundi, Brazil, Cambodia, Colombia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Georgia, Guatemala, Kenya, Liberia, Mozambique, Nepal, Philippines, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Tanzania, Thailand, Uganda, Ukraine, and Zambia.

As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DCHA maintains the SPANS technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting, Inc. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

PURPOSE:

The Victims of Torture Fund primarily supports programs that help heal the psychological and physical trauma caused by torture, recognizing that communities, along with survivors, need to heal and recover.

The Fund works through non-governmental organizations overseas that: (1) provide direct services to survivors, their families, and communities; (2) strengthen the capacity of country-based institutions in their delivery of services to survivors; and (3) increase the level of knowledge and understanding about the needs of torture victims. These programs include advocacy, training, technical assistance, and research. WAR VICTIMS FUND

DCHA/DG Contact: Lloyd Feinberg (COTR)

Technical Support Contract	Award Number	Expiration
Technical Support Contract	DFD-M-00-00-24-00238	09/27/2010

PURPOSE:

The Leahy War Victims Fund (LWVF) focuses on the needs of civilian victims of conflict in developing countries with the primary objective of expanding access to affordable and appropriate prosthetic/orthotic services. Established in 1989, the program has slowly expanded beyond the provision of essential orthopedic services and related medical, surgical, and rehabilitation assistance to include programs that work to enable amputees and other people with disabilities to regain accessibility to mainstream educational, recreational, and economic opportunities.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS

The LWVF is concerned with the provision of orthopedic services and devices to ensure unassisted mobility for civilian war victims and other persons with disabilities in post-conflict countries. Assistance may include training and institutional capacity strengthening, facilities upgrading, materials provision, and support for national disabilities policy reform and public advocacy. In addition, programs include support for increasing the social and economic opportunities of these survivors.

This fund is coordinated and supported by the Office of Democracy and Governance, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. The LWVF is active in Cambodia, Colombia, Central America, Sudan, Kenya, Ethiopia, Uganda, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Angola, Nepal, Sri Lanka, Laos, Lebanon, Vietnam, Philippines, and Afghanistan. As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DCHA/DG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

WHEELCHAIR INITIATIVE

Program Area 3.3

DCHA/DG Contact: Lloyd Feinberg (COTR)

Technical Support Contract	Award Number	Expiration
Technical Support Contract	DFD-M-00-00-24-00238	09/27/2010

PURPOSE:

The goal of the Wheelchair Fund is to improve the mobility of people with mobility-related disabilities, which can lead to advances in their overall health. Grantees currently work in many facets of wheelchair provision: in researching better, more durable chairs, in appropriate cushions and seating, in training to prescribe and fit wheelchairs, in testing and developing international standards.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

Funds are used to support programs that improve access to, availability and sustainability of, appropriate wheelchair programs in the developing world. At a broad level, programs contribute to the full and equal participation of people with disabilities in social and economic life. At an implementation level programs aim for, but are not limited to: introducing wheelchairs that are suitable and appropriate for use in developing countries and that are adaptable and fitted to the needs and requirements of each individual; develop and/or increase the capacity of national programs to produce and repair wheelchairs; strengthen human resource capacity to prescribe, fit, and train users; and develop and/or introduce new technologies that are appropriate for local conditions.

This fund is coordinated and supported by the Office of Democracy and Governance, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. Nine new programs are now beginning in Afghanistan, Georgia, Indonesia, Iraq, Kenya, Morocco, Nepal, Romania, and West Africa. As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DCHA/DG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

COMMUNICATION FOR CHANGE (C-CHANGE)

Program Element 2.4.2*

Global Health Contact: Gloria Coe (AOTR)

DCHA/DG Contact: Mark Koenig

EGAT/Environment Contact: Roberta Hilbruner

Cooperative Agreement	Award Number	Expiration
AED Consortium (C-CHANGE)	GPO-A-00-07-00004-00	9/24/2012

PURPOSE: Professional and financially viable local media and communications capacities are essential, in the long run, for bringing about sustained positive change in multiple areas of foreign assistance. Communication for Change (C-CHANGE) operates on two levels: (a) media-as-an-end: developing independent media/communications capacities generally as a DG objective to provide societies with more independent, pluralistic, and professional news and information; plus (b) media/communications-as-a-means: using media and other communications channels to disseminate development-related materials.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS: C-CHANGE represents a cross-sector (and across USAID bureau) mechanism. DCHA/DG particularly encourages the development of independent media (as individual outlets and as a sector) to provide citizens and government officials alike with the news, information, and pluralistic discussions needed to ensure more informed citizen participation, democratic elections, accountable governments, and democratic decision-making. Developing sustainable media outlets and communications sector capacities may include the following illustrative activities:

- Training media professionals (journalists, editors and other specialized production staff);
- Support for developing media/communications business and management capacities;
- Provide and/or develop capacities for audience research and ratings;
- Develop media reporting capacities on d/g, health, education, environment, economic growth, and other development-related issues. (And also develop media financial capacities to support such specialty reporting); and
- Develop new electronic media – and potentially use new media capacities to promote networking on development-related issues.

CROSS SECTORAL APPROACH: AVOID STOVE-PIPING! Virtually any development program can include communications outreach components; but, all too often, diverse USAID activities fail to combine or coordinate their communications activities – reducing the overall sustainability and effectiveness of media development and/or communications outreach -- and even sometimes impeding development of non-state media sectors (e.g., when state-owned media are supported by media buys, while more independent media options also exist).

As a result, Global Health teamed with DCHA/DG and EGAT to create this combined mechanism, C-CHANGE, enabling the design and implementation of programs that develop more professional and self-sustaining local media and development communications capacities across all sectors:

- DG: develop more sustainable and professional news media; improve reporting capacities in such areas as election reporting, anti-corruption, local governance, etc.

- Health communications: develop more sustainable local media and communications capacities to provide information to citizens on how to reduce/treat: HIV/AIDS, malaria, water-borne diseases; improve nutrition and sanitation practices, etc.
- Education: use of community radio networks to spread literacy, general education, civic education, etc.
- Environment: develop local media and communications capacities to report/discuss best environmental conservation practices.
- EGAT/Economic Growth: develop improved economic and business reporting, agricultural extension, vocational training, etc.

*In addition to 2.4.2 Media Freedom and Freedom of Information, C-CHANGE may be used for cross-cutting synergies via health, environment, education, economic growth & other development communications.

LAC REGIONAL MECHANISM: AMERICASBAROMETER

Program Areas 2.1-2.4

LAC Contact: Eric Kite

Cooperative Agreements	Award Number	Expiration
Vanderbilt University	598-A-00-06-00061	3/31/2014

PURPOSE:

Vanderbilt University can conduct AmericasBarometer Democracy and Governance Surveys in Latin America and Caribbean countries and conduct regional analyses. Country reports and, when requested, “oversampling” reports can be prepared that compare results from areas with USAID-programs to the rest of the country.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:

The AmericasBarometer series of surveys are of great interest to political and social scientists, Latin Americanists, government officials and interested citizens. The surveys gather data and analyze citizen views on a broad range of important democracy issues, including social capital, political tolerance, local government, corruption, crime, courts, the legislature and the executive. They also include a wide range of behavior variables, including citizen participation and electoral behavior among others. The effort, which began in a limited way in the 1970s, is directed by Dr. Mitchell Seligson, Vanderbilt University Centennial Professor of Political Science and Fellow of Vanderbilt’s Center for the Americas. The following countries are included in the 2008 AmericasBarometer: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela, Canada and the United States.

Public Access to AmericasBarometer Data, Surveys and Reports

All of the AmericasBarometer reports are available to the public on-line in English and Spanish at www.americasbarometer.org. The survey data can also be analyzed publicly, at no charge through the same website, with the hopes that students and professionals around the world will conduct additional research and statistical analysis. Several major university libraries (e.g., Vanderbilt, Harvard, Princeton and Yale) serve as data repositories for some or all of the Americasbarometer data. Published studies have been deposited in libraries throughout the world.

USAID Cooperation with Vanderbilt University

USAID has supported the AmericasBarometer surveys for over 10 years. While the surveys’ primary goal is giving the hemisphere’s citizens a voice on democracy issues, they also help guide USAID programming, alert policymakers throughout the region to potential problem areas, and inform citizens about democratic values and experiences in their countries relative to regional trends. USAID officers use the AmericasBarometer findings to prioritize funding allocation and guide program design. The surveys are also often employed as an evaluation tool, by comparing results in specialized “oversample” areas with national trends. In March 2006, USAID signed a Cooperative Agreement with Vanderbilt University that supports the surveys through 2012. The Agreement is managed out of USAID’s Bureau for Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC), and contributes about $1 million per year from USAID Missions in the region, LAC Bureau and Democracy Bureau for survey work in USAID-presence countries.
