

U.S. Geological Survey Information Sources

As the Nation's largest water, earth, and biological science and civilian mapping agency, the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) works in cooperation with more than 2,000 organizations across the country to provide reliable, impartial scientific information to resource managers, planners, and other customers. This information is gathered in every State by USGS scientists to minimize the loss of life and property from natural disasters, to contribute to the conservation and the sound economic and physical development of the Nation's natural resources, and to enhance the quality of life by monitoring water, biological, energy, and mineral resources.

Natural Science Information

The USGS Earth Science Information Centers (ESIC) offer nationwide information and sales services for products about mapping and natural resources. The ESICs provide information about geologic, hydrologic, cartographic, and biologic topics. A full array of digital data and information products is also available in a variety of formats. Visit the USGS World Wide Web home page for an exploration of earth and biological sciences at www.usgs.gov.

The USGS, in cooperation with State agencies and universities, coordinates a national network of State ESICs that provide State and local information about natural science products and services.

Many of the State ESICs sell USGS products. A list of State ESICs can be obtained by calling 1-888-ASK-USGS or by visiting the ASK USGS Web site at ask.usgs.gov.

USGS Business Partners are private retailers of USGS products who sell maps, digital cartographic data, and aerial photographs. You can find lists of Business Partners by going online at geography.usgs.gov/www/partners/bpmain.html under "Find Retailers" or by calling 1-888-ASK-USGS.

ESICs can fill orders for custom products, such as aerial photographs and digital orthophoto quadrangles, digital cartographic data, and geographic names data.

ESICs can also provide information about natural science materials from many public and private producers in the United States by using online information retrieval systems.
