McKinley: National Guard is a national treasure

by Sgt. Darron Salzer

National Guard Bureau

9/16/2010 - OXON HILL, Md., (AFNS) -- The National Guard is a national treasure that we need to preserve and protect, the guard's senior officer told attendees at the 2010 Air Force Association Air and Space Conference here Sept. 14.

"The dual mission of the National Guard, and its ability to combine and work with local, state and federal governments, makes us a force that I think is arguably a force that this nation cannot do without," said Gen. Craig R. McKinley, the chief of the National Guard Bureau.

The National Guard has always had a dual mission at home and abroad, but it is now also considered an operational reserve providing forces for missions in Iraq, Afghanistan, the Sinai, Haiti, the Horn of Africa and Kosovo.

"The citizens of the United States expect the full might of the armed forces to come to their aid in the event of a natural disaster, and the National Guard has been there every time," General McKinley said. Since Hurricane Andrew in 1992 and Hurricane Katrina in 2005, the guard has made rapid improvements to its response with local, state and federal governments. "Our domestic mission is a piece of our fabric, it's a piece of our culture," he said. General McKinley also described the overseas missions the guard has been a part of since the attacks in New York City on Sept. 11, 2001.

"The Army Guard has been involved in operations for the last nine years, while the Air Guard is going on nearly two decades," he said. "The Air Guard has been supporting the Air Force, and has been fully integrated into operations, such as Northern Watch and Southern Watch. "Under great leadership, the Air Guard has been able to achieve this full integration with the active force and perform its missions in a very professional manner," the general said.

Currently, about 44,000 Soldiers and 10,000 Airmen are deployed in support of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. "Over the last 20 years, we've made some dramatic changes in the National Guard, changing from what the guard used to be, to what it is today," General McKinley said.

The 2011 OAY Banquet is fast approaching!

Volunteers needed!

Come one come all. Airman Basic to Chief Master Sergeant, Second Lieutenant to General. The First Sergeants Council is looking for volunteers to help us make the 2011 Outstanding Airmen of the Year banquet our best banquet ever. We will be holding “auditions” during December’s UTA for a national anthem singer, two narrators and one proffer. The proffer will need to have skills in standing, grace and confidence, coupled with excellent hand-to-eye coordination. Narrators will be reading from a script and will be judged on voice clarity, projection, speaking skills and pronunciation. Singers will need to perform the national anthem and possess clear and precise note skills. We are looking for outgoing and energetic personalities who will add energy and excitement to the banquet. The OAY Banquet is a great opportunity to support all of the exceptional Airmen who have been selected as quarterly winners. Dress requirements are Semi-Formal or Mess Dress. All selected volunteers will have their dinner ticket provided to them free for the OAY Banquet. Please send requests for auditions to Master Sgt. Cary Lambert at james.lambert@ang.af.mil, by Nov. 7, or call him at 307-256-2587. Please help us make this a great and enjoyable evening.

Man on the street...
“What special traditions does your family have for Thanksgiving?”

1st Lt. Matthew Norris
 “This year I’m starting a new tradition of Thanksgiving snowboarding.”

Tech. Sgt. Jennifer Yack
 “My husband and I have to have at least a 25 pound turkey or better no matter how many people we’re having to dinner. Usually there’s only four or five so we end up with plenty of leftovers.”

Airman 1st Class Angie Murray
 “My family is Norwegian so all the women get together the day before at my aunt’s house to make lefse, which is a traditional dish that takes around 8 hours to prepare. Thanksgiving day we have around 50 people at the house; it’s a really good time.”

Chief Master Sgt. Wayne Welsh
 “I smoke a turkey and have all the family over. Also our neighbors who have been married for 60 years join us. I like to invite people who don’t have family so they’re not alone. Thanksgiving gives us a time to enjoy friends and family and be thankful for what we have.”

153rd Security Forces Get Physical With Their Training

by Staff Sgt. Natalie Stanley

Wing Public Affairs

Military training doesn't always consist of hours of computer based training in a stuffy classroom. For members of the 153rd Security Forces Squadron, October's training was more hands on and fun.

Security Forces members are qualified on many means in which to protect the base and its assets, one of these is the police baton. In order to carry this defensive weapon, all members must go through initial training, followed by yearly recertification. Starting in 2000, Senior Master Sgt. Doug Rhodes, 153 SFS superintendent, after becoming a certified baton instructor, took over the training and started teaching the unit's members on use of the baton. Prior to this, members were trained by the local police department. Staff Sgt. Gregory Wardle, a certified instructor, heads up the training.

This past drill consisted of members getting hands on training techniques with the weapon, culminating with a more realistic simulation of real world scenarios. Along with Wardle, Master Sgt. Troy Woolhether geared up in the "red man suit", which is a full body padded suit, so course members could implement techniques taught earlier in the class. During two- to five- minute drills, members using padded batons were given scenarios in which they had to decide when, if, and how to use the baton to "control" the suspect.

Even though the instructors' play acting caused some laughter and the members' batons cause some bruises, the overall goal of preparing the troops for actual and proper use of a deadly weapon was accomplished. The baton, along with many other weapons at security forces disposal, prepares the men and women of the 153 SFS to defend us when called upon.

Are you ready for a Yellow Ribbon homecoming?

by Roxie Arnold

*Yellow Ribbon Support Specialist/
MPSC Contractor*

The Wyoming Air National Guard Yellow Ribbon Program will host a day of fun and learning Nov. 13, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., for parents and children as we prepare to welcome home those that have been deployed.

Parents will have an opportunity to experience an interactive session on de-stressing, planning a successful homecoming and relaxation with Mrs. Marianne Fisher, professional relaxation specialist, who will provide helpful tips on how to relax and feel more refreshed.

Children ages 5- 11 will enjoy special crafts and activities instructed by Mrs. Paula Johnson and Mrs. Kathleen Edick, renown authors of the children's deployment and reintegration books "We Serve Too" and "We Serve too! 2". Children will discuss the stories and make a special homecoming box to share with their deployed Mom or Dad upon their return.

Tweens and teens ages 12-18 will participate in special activities at the Fall Hall Community Center located at F.E. Warren Air Force Base. The morning will include such favorites as laser tag, pool, video games, ping pong, air hockey and more. The group will then return to the 153rd Airlift Wing Dining Facility for lunch and an afternoon session featuring the "Ultimate Career Guide for Young People" instructed by Ms. Robin Gorsuch, Wyoming state youth coordinator. This curriculum is a wonderful starting point for students of all ages to begin their plans for a successful career path. Materials to be provided will inspire great ideas that last long after the class is over.

Childcare is provided for children ages infant to 4. Childcare will be at the state-licensed day care, Hope Development Center, 611 E. Carlson. Each parent/guardian will be required to complete a permission agreement with Hope Development Center prior to leaving a child. Children can be dropped off at 8 a.m., and picked up no later than 5 p.m.

Are You Ready? Please email, Roxie.arnold.ctr@ang.af.mil, or call Roxie Arnold at (307) 772-6349 to register for the "Are You Ready Yellow Ribbon Activity" on Nov. 13.

Airman and Family Readiness Information and Programs for service members and their families

2010 Operation Guardian Angel

The Wyoming National Guard Family Readiness Program would like to help make the holiday season brighter for children of Wyoming National Guard members and our active duty personnel who might need some extra assistance during the holiday season due to financial hardship, deployment and other unforeseen circumstances. The OPERATION GUARDIAN ANGEL program provides for anonymous gift giving, allowing children the opportunity to enjoy a gift they would otherwise not see.

Individual/units/organizations are also needed to sponsor our angels in need. Angles may be picked up from the 153 AW Airmen and Family Readiness Program Office at 217 Dell Range Blvd. Please contact Mrs. Rampolla for details.

Fifth annual Children's Holiday Party and Lunch with Santa

The annual Children's Holiday Party and Lunch with Santa will take place on Dec. 11, at the 153 AW dining facility, from 1100-1400. Tickets go on sale starting Oct. 1. Tickets will be available for $5 a person (both parent and child). Tickets can be purchased from the 153 AW Family Readiness Office 307-772-6063 or through Master Sgt. Dawn McDonnell, in the wing commander's office. Special complimentary tickets will be available for immediate family members of those deployed from Dec. 1-25. Please contact Denise Rampolla, at 307-214-2625, or contact your unit key spouse/s if you qualify to obtain the complimentary tickets.

Wyo. Air National Guard Family Readiness volunteers receive awards

Several Wyoming Air National Guard Family Readiness Program volunteers were honored at a luncheon Oct. 2, 2010 at the Wyoming Air National Guard Dining Facility.

Meagan Anderson, key spouse for the 187th Airlift Squadron, was named the 2010 Wyoming Air National Guard Volunteer of the Year. She is the wife of Capt. Kurt Anderson. Paula Simpson, wife of Lt. Col. Rodney Simpson, and Melinda Cummings, wife of Maj. Richard Cummings, were selected for the Exceptional Volunteer Awards.

The 153rd Airlift Wing Minuteman Award was presented to Marj Highland, 153rd Airlift Wing crash fire rescue; Anita Benton, 153rd Airlift Wing Maintenance Squadron, and Celeste Simmons; 187th Airlift Squadron, all of whom are key spouse or lead volunteers who have proven to be a dedicated member of the volunteer team.

The Six Pillars of Character

Summary from “Making Ethical Decisions” by Michael Josephson

Trustworthiness. Respect. Responsibility. Fairness. Caring. Citizenship. The Six Pillars of Character are ethical values to guide our choices. The standards of conduct that arise out of those values constitute the ground rules of ethics, and therefore of ethical decision-making.

There is nothing sacrosanct about the number six. We might reasonably have eight or 10, or more. But most universal virtues fold easily into these six. The number is not unwieldy and the Six Pillars of Character can provide a common lexicon. Why is a common lexicon necessary? So that people can see what unites our diverse and fractured society. So we can communicate more easily about core values. So we can understand ethical decisions better, our own and those of others.

The Six Pillars act as a multi-level filter through which to process decisions. So, being trustworthy is not enough — we must also be caring. Adhering to the letter of the law is not enough — we must accept responsibility for our action or inaction.

The Pillars can help us detect situations where we focus so hard on upholding one moral principle that we sacrifice another — where, intent on holding others accountable, we ignore the duty to be compassionate; where, intent on getting a job done, we ignore how.

In short, the Six Pillars can dramatically improve the ethical quality of our decisions, and thus our character and lives.

1. TRUSTWORTHINESS

When others trust us, they give us greater leeway because they feel we don't need monitoring to assure that we'll meet our obligations. They believe in us and hold us in higher esteem. That's satisfying. At the same time, we must constantly live up to the expectations of others and refrain from even small lies or self-serving behavior that can quickly destroy our relationships.

2. RESPECT

The Golden Rule — do unto others as you would have them do unto you — nicely illustrates the Pillar of respect. Respect prohibits violence, humiliation, manipulation and exploitation. It reflects notions such as civility, courtesy, decency, dignity, autonomy, tolerance and acceptance.

3. RESPONSIBILITY

Life is full of choices. Being responsible means being in charge of our choices and, thus, our lives. It means being accountable for what we do and who we are. It also means recognizing that our actions matter and we are morally on the hook for the consequences. Our capacity to reason and our freedom to choose make us morally autonomous and, therefore, answerable for whether we honor or degrade the ethical principles that give life meaning and purpose.

4. FAIRNESS

What is fairness? Most would agree it involves issues of equality, impartiality, proportionality, openness and due process. Most would agree that it is unfair to handle similar matters inconsistently. Most would agree that it is unfair to impose punishment that is not commensurate with the offense. Essentially fairness implies adherence to a balanced standard of justice without relevance to one's own feelings or inclinations.

5. CARING

If you existed alone in the universe, there would be no need for ethics and your heart could be a cold, hard stone. Caring is the heart of ethics, and ethical decision-making. It is scarcely possible to be truly ethical and yet unconcerned with the welfare of others. That is because ethics is ultimately about good relations with other people.

6. CITIZENSHIP

Citizenship includes civic virtues and duties that prescribe how we ought to behave as part of a community. The good citizen knows the laws and obeys them, yes, but that's not all. She volunteers and stays informed on the issues of the day, the better to execute her duties and privileges as a member of a self-governing democratic society. She does more than her “fair” share to make society work, now and for future generations. Such a commitment to the public sphere can have many expressions, such as conserving resources, recycling, using public transportation and cleaning up litter. The good citizen gives more than she takes.

Wyoming Air National Guard Fire Department Fire Prevention Tip of the Month

All Fired Up!

When winter comes, we tend to think of home as a warm, safe retreat from the cold weather outside. But sources of indoor warmth can put you at significant risk to fire if they're not used carefully.

Fact: According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), heating equipment is the second leading cause of U.S. home fires. An average of 74,400 home heating fires each year results in 480 deaths, 2,290 injuries and $582 million in property damage. In addition, December, January and February are the leading months for fires in the U.S.

Keep warm and safe by using the following heating advice from the NFPA:

All heating systems should be inspected and cleaned, if necessary, by a trained professional before the start of each heating season.

Keep combustibles, including people, pets and furniture, at least three feet (one meter) away from all heat sources, especially space and portable heaters.

Turn off space and portable heaters when leaving home or going to bed.

When using a fireplace, place a fire screen of sturdy metal or heat tempered glass in front of it to trap any sparks. Burn only seasoned wood – never rubbish - in your fireplace.

Keep fireplace mantels and the surrounding area clear of combustibles, such as dried flowers and wreaths.

Inspect electrical heaters for frayed, cracked or damaged cords, and have them replaced by an electrician.

153rd Security Forces Squadron Enforces Driving Rules.

by Chief Master Sgt. Michael Abbott

153rd Security Forces Manager

In an effort to crack down on cell phone use [while driving] and seat belt issues, the 153rd Airlift Wing, with command approval, will be using the same measures as F.E Warren AFB for violations. If you are pulled over while driving on base, and are using your cell phone or do not have a seat belt on, the penalty will be an automatic ten-day no vehicle access to the installation. What does that actually mean? This means that violators will, for ten consecutive days, walk onto base. More information will be added to the wing instruction. Please be safe and call me at 772-6308 if you have any questions.
