2012 NY National Guard Volunteer & Youth Workshop

SARATOGA SPRINGS, NY -- Nearly 100 volunteers learned how to help families "stay in focus" as the demands on New York National Guard families change.

With the end of military actions in Iraq in 2011 and the drawdown of troops in Afghanistan, it's expected the New York National Guard will see fewer deployments," said Andrew DePalo, the director of the New York National Guard Family Programs, April 14.

"Just because there is a drawdown in troops, doesn't mean we can draw down on taking care of our service members and their families," DePalo said. "The stresses of combat and reintegration affect the family as well, and we need to stay focused on providing tools to facilitate ongoing communication and resources to help families work through these issues."

The 2012 workshop highlighted the vast network of agencies; employers, veteran and volunteer service organizations, and private businesses available to support New York military service members and their families and provided a venue to share knowledge and experience volunteers have developed over the years.

"We continually emphasize education, training and using outreach services and partnerships to leverage resources to help service members and their families," DePalo added.

In addition to the day long training, several regional workshops will be held around the state throughout the year. These sessions include information briefings and discussions on family program and readiness group roles and responsibilities, communication techniques, fundraising, event planning and identifying and using available resources.

While the adult leaders focused on volunteer efforts, more than 50 children, ages 6-18, experienced their own 'stay on focus' activities while sharing a full day of leadership, team and confidence building at The Edge -- Halfmoon, a nearby climbing gym.

positive role models for other youth," said Keri O'Neil, a New York National Guard Child & Youth Coordinator. "They learn to work together, develop relationships and communicate with each other in an environment that encourages them to motivate and inspire each other."

"The timing for this workshop was perfect, since April is the Month of the Military Child and was established to underscore the important role children play in the Armed Forces community, said Colleen Casey, a New York National Guard Child & Youth Coordinator. "It's vital that we recognize and applaud Families and their children for the daily sacrifices they make in supporting their service member.

The Edge offers activities to enhance the physical, mental, social and spiritual lives of children. Through physical activity, youth learn teambuilding skills and achieve personal rewards that include acquiring self worth, competence, judgment and effective decision making and communication skills.

"This was a great opportunity for our kids to challenge themselves and become Local Life Scout Matt Murray from Troop 537 in Brunswick volunteered as a youth mentor.

"I believe it's our responsibility to take care of those who put their personal lives aside and go overseas to fight for our freedom, this is my way of saying thank you," Murray said.

Murray also talked to teens about his Eagle Scout project, Operation P.A.T.H. which stands for Parents and Teens Hanging. The event will bring over 50 veterans and their teenage children to Lake Placid, N.Y. to spend a day enjoying Olympic venues on July 25, 2012. The day includes bobsled and gondola rides, shooting on the biathlon range, a "Wet and Wild" show and passes to the top of the Olympic Jumping Complex and museum as well as meals.

Murray has raised over $4,000 through raffles, pancake breakfasts, a local bowl-a-thon and donations to cover all expenses for participants.

"I want to give returning veterans an opportunity for a positive experience with their kids where they can get away and simply have fun," Murray said.

NATIONAL CENTER FOR TELEHEALTH & TECHNOLOGY

Since 2001, an estimated two million children have experienced a parent's deployment to Iraq or Afghanistan. An often overlooked consequence of deployment is the anxiety kids feel before, during, and after the parent's absence. MilitaryKidsConnect.org is a website specifically designed to enhance the resilience of military children of all ages throughout the deployment cycle.

Military families: A national priority.

On January 24, 2011, President Obama released the final report of Presidential Study Directive-9 (PSD-9), Strengthening Our Military Families: Meeting America's Commitment, which enlisted the support of his Cabinet Secretaries and other agency heads to define new ways to improve support for military families.

The report detailed key strategic priorities to be addressed, the first one being: Enhance the well-being and psychological health of the military family.

As the Defense Department's primary agency for applying innovative technology to issues of psychological health and traumatic brain injury, the National Center for Telehealth & technology (T2) developed MilitaryKidsConnect.org to directly address that priority by providing empirically-based content developed by psychologists to improve child and family readiness.

Support that speaks their language.

MilitaryKidsConnect.org features customized content for three age groups: children, tweens, and teens. Users visit an age-appropriate homepage where they find interactive maps; a personal scrapbook application; age-appropriate games; videos of military kids describing how they cope with deployment; instructional vignettes; a virtual personal space where kids navigate using a customizable avatar; and a moderated social networking message board (parent approval required for registration).

Together, these features create a safe, secure, and comfortable place for young people to play, gather, share, and learn how to handle the pressures of being a military kid.

While MilitaryKidsConnect.org is a place for kids to connect online, we don't kid around when it comes to online safety and privacy. MilitaryKidsConnect.org strictly adheres to COPPA, the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act, regarding parental consent and the use and disclosure of personally identifiable information.

Helping parents, caregivers, and teachers to help kids.

MilitaryKidsConnect.org also provides content for parents and educators of military kids. Adults can find information about the site's safeguards and parental controls, site content, and ways adults can use its content to encourage positive conversations about deployment. The parent section also includes information on common, age-specific behavioral responses to deployment, as well as methods of coping with them.

Our newest feature for the Guard En of Youth – “From Heather’s Desk.” Heather, Family Programs Intern and Volunteer for the past 3 years, wants to share some fun NYS facts with everyone for each issue. We Hope You Enjoy!

NYS Fact #1 – In 1980, Lake Placid became the first site to host two Winter Olympic Games (the village’s first hosting was in 1932 for the 3rd Winter Olympics

NYS Fact #2 – The Adirondack Park is larger than any of the seven smallest states in the United States: Hawaii, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Delaware, Rhode Island, and New Jersey. And it would take these five National parks, Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, Yosemite, Everglades and Great Smoky National Park, added together to equal the size of the Adirondack Park.
