LGBTI Populations Their Safety, Your Responsibility

Correctional agencies face many challenges surrounding the safe management of the populations they house and supervise. Due in part to changes in federal and state laws and the outcome of successful offender litigation, care and management of the LGBTI population has been identified as an emerging correctional issue that deserves special attention. While gender non-conforming offenders have always been present in facilities and on caseloads, we now have the opportunity to share information about this issue with a broader number of stakeholders and identify responsible and safe practices that are respectful of differences and reduce agencies' susceptibility to liability and litigation.

This broadcast is meant to inform and increase awareness of strategies for developing policies and procedures for LGBTI populations. The broadcast will highlight promising practices by providing resources and examples of agencies who are responding to the needs of the LGBTI population in their setting. During this national discussion sponsored and broadcast by the National Institute of Corrections, presenters will:

- Define a framework for developing strategies for ensuring the safety, dignity, and respect of LGBTI individuals in corrections settings.
- Identify typical concerns and challenges that arise as agencies address the needs and requirements of LGBTI offenders in corrections settings.
- Identify operational practices that can increase effectiveness of working with LGBTI offenders.
- Review and discuss effective policy and program development strategies that address LGBTI populations in corrections.

Is your organization looking for answers to the following questions?

Is the LGBTI population in corrections more likely to be victimized?

Should genital status determine where agencies house transgender offenders?

Are there legally mandated requirements for accommodating LGBTI persons?

Is my agency fostering an atmosphere of respect in its treatment of LGBTI persons?

Does providing respect for LGBTI offenders conflict with safety and security mandates?
