What is a telephone seminar?

This 90-minute web and telephone seminar allows an unlimited number of people to listen to OCC experts and to discuss with them their experiences and policy imperatives over individual telephones or with colleagues on speaker-phones. The experts' interaction with you, the listener, will make the program a valuable learning experience and enjoyable to listen to. And you can ask questions from wherever you are.

There is no rush-hour traffic, no parking, no travel time or expenses. You can remain in the office and share information with a large group of colleagues for one price per site. A moderator guides the presentation and the open forum, much like participating in a talk-radio program.

Welcome by
John D. Hawke, Jr.,
Comptroller of the Currency

Participants will learn the following:

- The importance of information security.
- The components of an effective information security program:
 - Regulatory expectations.
 - Strategy – matching needs with resources to mitigate risk.
 - Roles and responsibilities – everyone has a role.
 - Risk assessment – basic steps and good practices.
 - Key controls – the tools and the people.
 - Testing, monitoring, and updating.
- How you can implement an effective information security program.
- What resources are available to assist you in developing an effective information security program.

This web and telephone seminar will feature:

- An overview of the regulatory issuances on information security.
- A discussion of the primary features of each element of the information security process.
- Management's role in defining and implementing an information security program.
- How management can identify control areas that need additional attention.
- Current regulatory concerns about bank information security programs.
