

Junius Nottingham Jr.

Junius Nottingham Jr. is the Assistant Special Agent in Charge for the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Office of Inspector General. He is responsible for supervising agents and investigations in the District of Columbia and the entire state of Virginia to include Richmond, Norfolk, and Roanoke.

Mr. Nottingham worked as a special agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration. He held assignments in Philadelphia, New York, Nassau Bahamas, and the FBI Academy located in Quantico, Virginia.

Mr. Nottingham has also worked as a special agent with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration Office of Criminal Investigations. He worked a number of complex health care, grant fraud, and drug diversion cases.

Mr. Nottingham holds a Bachelor of Science in Education and Psychology from Temple University. He has also taken graduate courses at Marymount University. Additionally, he has attended and completed the leadership program held at the Federal Executive Institute located at the University of Virginia.

Junius Nottingham Jr. has over 28 years experience as a federal agent. During his career he has held many positions to include recruiter, cooperative education law enforcement coordinator, and critical incident responder. He also instructs other law enforcement agents in the areas of stress management, undercover, and interviewing techniques.

He has used his varied law enforcement experiences to become a community advocate to help mentor, coach and teach youth athletes.