INSTRUCTIONS FOR REQUESTING AUDIOVISUAL REPRODUCTIONS

You will need Adobe Reader (version 8 or later) or Adobe Acrobat to electronically fill out the Reproduction Request Form.

Alternatively, you may print out the form and fill it out by hand.

1. Read the Licensing, Copyright & Privacy Statements on page 2 of this packet and consult the Price List on page 3.
2. Fill out the Reproduction Request on page 4 of this packet, including:
 - Collection ID, File ID# (see below for examples of File IDs), Description of content and Type of Copy Requested
 - Fill in anticipated total cost
 - Include any special instructions and additional notes
3. Complete Shipping and Billing information on page 5 and select Payment Option:
 - Requesting an Invoice – this is strongly recommended for White House Tapes or Beta SP/Digibeta orders (for which program length determines cost), or if you are uncertain as to the number of tapes/reels needed to complete your request
 - Note: Credit Card Purchases require a card holder signature only if the total exceeds $100
4. Save the Reproduction Request Form and email it to the Nixon Library Staff member that has been assisting you or to Project.Nixon@nara.gov. You may also fax it to 714-983-9111

Licensing and Use of Government-created Records

The Nixon Presidential Library and Museum and the National Archives and Records Administration exercise no intellectual property claims on the materials in its holdings and therefore cannot grant exclusive or non-exclusive publication privileges or usage rights for the use of materials in its holdings. Since the U.S. Government exercises no such claims on materials created by or for its offices (17 USC 105), the original work products of Federal Government organizations and its employees or agents have no known copyright restrictions.

Copyright and Other Rights Restrictions

In addition to U.S. Government works, the Nixon Presidential Library and Museum also has material in its holdings not created by the federal government which may be subject to copyright, donor, or other forms of restrictions.

The National Archives does not confirm or guarantee the rights status of media records but will provide any information filed with or accompanying the material. It is the user's responsibility to verify and secure copyright or other underlying rights status permissions before making commercial, broadcast, or other use of items in our holdings.

The Library of Congress Copyright Office constitutes the sole legal authority in the United States on what is or is not subject to copyright.

Privacy and Publicity Rights

While copyright is a federally protected right under copyright law, privacy and publicity rights are the subject of state laws. While many states have privacy and/or publicity laws, others do not recognize such rights or recognize such rights under other state laws or common law legal theories such as misappropriation and false representation. Those desiring to reproduce materials bear the responsibility of making individualized determinations as to whether privacy and publicity rights are implicated by the nature of the materials and how they may wish to use such materials.

Obtaining Reproductions and Fair Use

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specific conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement. Commercially available materials may be accessed on site but may not be reproduced in their entirety.

The National Archives reserves the right to refuse to accept a reproduction request if in its judgment fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.
