Wounded Warrior Career Fair Scheduled

WASHINGTON – Naval Sea Systems Command’s Wounded Warrior hiring office will hold its first career fair for service-disabled veterans, July 26, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at its headquarters located at the Washington Navy Yard, Washington D.C.

Hiring managers from all government and civilian organizations are highly encouraged to attend and meet service-disabled veterans, whose unique skills, training, and leadership experience make them an asset to the American workforce. All veterans are welcome to attend. Hiring managers will be particularly interested in veterans with experience in program management, engineering, equipment maintenance, security, logistics, and administration.

Representatives from NAVSEA headquarters and several area commands such as Naval Facilities Command, Commander, Naval Installations Command, Naval Facilities Command, and Naval Air Systems Command will attend.

“This event will give hiring managers from federal and civilian agencies a first-hand look on how committed these service-disabled personnel really are, while enabling the veteran to see how they can continue to serve,” said Cmdr. David McAfee, NAVSEA enterprise program manager.

For more information on hiring Wounded Warriors, details of the career fair, or on how service-disabled veterans and hiring managers can attend the fair, contact NAVSEA’s Wounded Warrior hiring office at (202) 781-1019 or -1431 or email: jason.araujo@navy.mil.
