Geologic Data on Mine Maps

◆ Point source

- Posted elevations
- Posted thicknesses

◆ Non-point source

- Structural contours
- Geologic features
 - Paleochannels (miner's 'faults')
 - Geologic faults
 - Bad roof or floor
 - Split bed or excessive parting

Handling Data

- ◆ Inventory presence/absence in the mine map database
- ◆ Capture the data in a geologic database
- ◆ Do both

- ◆ Rock chemistry

Capturing Elevations and Thicknesses from Mine Maps

- ◆ From postings within the mine workings
- ◆ From posted core hole locations
- ◆ From structural contours

New Database System Components

- ◆ Oracle RDBMS – Linux server
- ◆ Java-based Oracle database forms
- ◆ Spatial Database Engine (SDE) (Java interface)
 - For storage and management of point locations
- ◆ ESRI Map objects
 - Map display of data
- ◆ Java-based graphics applications
 - Interactive on-screen stratigraphic cross sections
 - Plotted output
 - Cross sections
 - Strip logs
 - Data locations
