Labor Market Areas, 2011

This directory presents a comprehensive listing of the labor market areas of the United States and Puerto Rico. Every 10 years, the Nation's system of labor market areas is reevaluated and redefined, using the latest decennial census information on the population and commutation. Labor market areas are identified in order to standardize and promote comparability for the collection and use of labor force information in administering various government programs. A general definition for a labor market area is an economically integrated geographic area within which individuals can reside and find employment within a reasonable distance or can readily change employment without changing their place of residence.

Labor market areas are metropolitan areas, micropolitan areas, or small labor market areas. They exhaust the geography of all States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico, with the exceptions of Kalawao County, Hawaii, and 18 isolated minor civil divisions (MCDs) in New England. (See Appendix I.) The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is responsible for defining the metropolitan and micropolitan areas, while the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Division of Local Area Unemployment Statistics (LAUS) performs this function for small labor market areas. The metropolitan, micropolitan, and small labor market area definitions contained in this directory were introduced with labor force estimates for January 2005. The previous major revision of labor market area definitions was implemented in 1994.

Labor market area definitions are updated on an annual basis, and changes to area definitions and titles are introduced with the labor force estimates for the following January. In order to maintain a consistent time series, data for labor market areas generally are reconstructed back to January 1990 or as far back as practicable.

This directory lists all labor market areas alphabetically by State and area title. Since the areas are listed by State, to find all counties or MCDs of an interstate area, one should look for the area under each of the States as identified in the area's title. Also included with each area title are the type of area, the LAUS area code, and the definition of the area. The type of labor market area is metropolitan (Metro), micropolitan (Micro), or small (SLMA). The LAUS area code is a unique area-specific alphanumeric code used for LAUS programmatic purposes. Definitions are in terms of full counties or county equivalents in all areas except New England, where MCDs are used. (For New England, the city- and town-based areas, or NECTAs, that OMB defined as an alternative to the county-based areas for those States are used.)

The areas listed in the directory comprise 380 metropolitan areas, of which 50 are interstate; 590 micropolitan areas, of which 16 are interstate; and 1,365 small areas, of which 5 are interstate.

Under the current standards, 11 of the most populous metropolitan areas are composed of 34 metropolitan divisions, which are essentially separately identifiable employment centers within these metropolitan areas. Metropolitan divisions are listed by State and metropolitan area after the labor market area listing. Nine of the metropolitan divisions are interstate.

Labor force estimates for all of the areas listed in this directory are available from the LAUS Division of BLS, telephone number—202-691-6392.

Appendix I lists the 18 isolated MCDs in New England that are not defined within any labor market area. Most of these are residual areas not included by OMB in metropolitan or micropolitan areas, but often totally surrounded by them. Appendix II contains the concepts and criteria developed and used by BLS in defining small labor market areas. The standards used by OMB to define metropolitan and micropolitan areas are contained in the Federal Register, December 27, 2000, pages 82228-82238. Complete listings of the metropolitan and micropolitan areas, effective December 1, 2009, are contained in OMB Bulletin No. 10-02, Update of Statistical Area Definitions and Guidance on Their Uses.

This directory was prepared in the Office of Employment and Unemployment Statistics, Division of Local Area Unemployment Statistics.

Appendix II. Criteria for Designating Small Labor Market Areas

While metropolitan and micropolitan areas are designated on the basis of population, urban area, and commutation data, population and urban area data are inappropriate for defining the generally less populous small labor market areas (LMAs). Therefore, commutation data are used in the definition of small LMAs, i.e., in determining which counties are deemed single-county areas and which are combined into multi-county areas. Regardless of population size, commuting flows are an indication of the degree of integration of labor markets among counties; commutation data show the extent that workers have been willing and able to commute to other counties.

Labor market areas are defined in terms of full counties in all areas except New England, where minor civil divisions (MCDs) are used instead. In the criteria below, the term "county" includes county equivalents and, in New England, refers to MCDs. All parts of the U.S., except for Kalawao County, Hawaii, and the 18 isolated MCDs listed in Appendix I, are defined within a labor market area.

The following criteria were applied in identifying small labor market areas:

- (1) Worker flows were examined, and counties combined into one small LMA if either or both of the following conditions were met:
 - (a) At least 25 percent of the employed residents of one county commuted to work in another county
 - (b) At least 25 percent of the employment (persons working) in one county were accounted for by workers commuting from another county.
- (2) Small LMAs, as is the case with metropolitan and micropolitan areas, are required to be contiguous. First, counties were combined based on the commutation criteria. Then, potential multi-county small LMAs were checked for contiguity. Noncontiguous portions of potential small LMAs were considered separately. If the noncontiguous area contained more than one county, it was reevaluated using (1)(a) and (1)(b) above. If the noncontiguous area consisted of a single county, it was designated as a separate small LMA.

- (3) Subsequent to the verification of contiguity described in (2) above, commuting flows between adjacent small LMAs were evaluated. Those areas for which the measures and thresholds specified in (1)(a) and (1)(b) above were met merged to form one small LMA. This procedure was limited to one iteration, as was the case for metropolitan and micropolitan areas.
- (4) For the New England MCD-based small LMAs, due to the very large number of small MCDs, residual MCDs were added to contiguous small LMAs based on commuting flows and/or other economic ties. If, after applying the commutation criteria, an MCD had been identified as an individual small LMA, the MCD may have been added to a contiguous small LMA, especially if the MCD was extremely small. The 18 MCDs that were isolated between the metropolitan and/or micropolitan areas defined by the Office of Management and Budget were not defined within labor market areas. (See Appendix I.)

Naming Conventions: Single-county small LMA names typically include the full county name, followed by the State abbreviation, such as "Eastland County, TX." Multi-county small LMA names consist of not more than three county names, in descending order of population, followed by the State abbreviation and the term "LMA," as in "Wise-Dickenson-Norton, VA LMA." Small LMAs with strong commuting ties to neighboring metropolitan or micropolitan areas were labeled "Adjacent LMAs."

In the case of interstate small LMAs, State abbreviations were sequenced according to the population sizes of the intrastate parts. That is, the State with the largest population share among the parts of the area was listed first, and so on, as in "Gogebic-Iron, MI-WI LMA."
