STATE OPTIONS REPORT

TENTH EDITION

August 2012

Program Development
Division

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the 10th Edition of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) State Options Report. This report summarizes information related to State policy and administrative options.

SNAP's statutes, regulations, and waivers provide State agencies with various policy options. State agencies use this flexibility to adapt their programs to meet the needs of eligible, low-income people in their States. Modernization and technology have provided States with new opportunities and options in administering the program. Certain options may facilitate program design goals, such as removing or reducing barriers to equal opportunity access for low-income families and individuals, providing better support for those working or looking for work. This flexibility helps States better target benefits to those most in need, streamline program administration and field operations, and coordinate SNAP activities with those of other programs.

The Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) intermittently surveys State agencies administering SNAP to determine which options are in use. Information about State agency choices among options is subject to frequent change. This report catalogues options in effect as of August 2012. Several States have reported plans to implement various options at later dates. Those choices will be reflected in future editions of this report.

New options reflected in the 10th Edition include Combined Application Projects, the Standard Medical Deduction, Process Improvement Waivers, Verification of Household Characteristics and Action on Changes. Combined Application Projects (CAPs) streamline the application process for individuals applying for both disability benefits and SNAP, and the Standard Medical Deduction allows States to apply a standard amount for qualifying medical expense deductions instead of using actual expenses. Another new map reflects process improvement waivers that help States better manage caseloads and provide improved customer service. This edition of the State Options Report also tracks two common household characteristics that States may choose to verify, in addition to mandatory verifications: household composition and the identity of household members other than the head of household. The Action on Changes map shows which States have chosen to act on all changes in household circumstances during the simplified reporting certification period. These new option pages are indicated with a star (★) to the right of the heading.

Section One describes each option, providing a list and map of the States that have selected the option. Section Two provides a State by State summary of the options each agency has chosen. Also, as in the 9th Edition, this report includes regulatory citations in the upper right-hand corner of each option profile page. These will help guide the reader to relevant provisions found in Title 7 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Although many individuals contributed to this report, special thanks go to the FNS Office of Research and Analysis for generating the maps included in the report. For any questions, corrections or suggestions about the State Options Report, please contact SNAP's Program Development Division at (703) 305-2437.

Section Two: State Profiles

State Summaries 27 -53

State agencies have the option of requiring SNAP recipients to report their financial circumstances at various intervals and in various ways. Recipients may be required to report changes periodically or within a certain time – typically within 10 days – after certain changes in circumstances occur (known as change reporting). Under periodic reporting, participants report either quarterly, monthly, or using a simplified system with reduced reporting requirements. Under the simplified reporting option, households are required to report changes in income between certification and scheduled reporting periods when total countable income rises above 130 percent of the poverty level or when work hours change for able-bodied adults without dependents. Reporting intervals can be set at 4, 5, or 6 months for 12 month certification periods. Households in which all members are elderly or disabled with no earned income may be given 12 month certification periods (without periodic reporting) or 24 month certification periods (with a 12 month periodic reporting requirement).

Under simplified reporting, State agencies have the option to act on all changes reported during the certification period, or to act only on certain changes. States which have chosen to act on all changes must act to verify any changes reported and take appropriate action, even if this change reduces the client’s benefit. This option allows States that have combined SNAP/TANF programs to more seamlessly integrate. It avoids a situation where the TANF program has acted on a change, but SNAP has not, and decreases caseworker burden by aligning the programs.

Households certified for SNAP for longer than 6 months must submit a periodic report at least once every 6 months but no more than once every 4 months during the certification period. Some State agencies have opted to certify simplified reporting households for 12 months, with a periodic report at 6 months. Others have opted to certify these households for 6 months. Households in which all members are elderly or disabled with no earned income may be given 12 month certification periods without periodic reporting, or 24 month certification periods with a 12 month periodic reporting requirement.

This is an option available to States to help support families as they move off Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) or State-funded cash assistance. Benefits can be continued for up to five months at a level equal to the amount the household received prior to TANF termination with adjustments for the loss of TANF income. Certification periods may be extended so that families receive the full 5 months of benefits. Twenty States have chosen to provide this work support for the full five months allowed in the legislation; all twenty of those States indicated they extend certification periods to complete the transition. Seven extend transitional benefits to households leaving non-TANF State agency funded cash programs. Three States have excluded additional types of TANF households from participation, such as those in which all members are ineligible due to failure to comply with laws related to a means-tested program, failure to cooperate with child support agencies, or being delinquent in court-ordered child support.

State agencies have the option to exclude some types of income and resources by aligning SNAP policy with TANF or Medicaid policy. Any income not counted under Section 1931 of Medicaid or TANF can be excluded with some exceptions. The exceptions are wages, salaries, benefits from major assistance programs, regular payments from a government source, worker’s compensation, child support payments, and other types determined countable to insure fairness in eligibility determinations. The same option exists for the treatment of resources. A number of resources cannot be excluded when using this option, including cash, licensed vehicles, and readily available amounts in financial institutions.

In addition to mandatory verification items, State agencies have the option to mandate verification of any other factor which affects household eligibility or allotment level. Additional mandatory verification can be applied throughout the State or limited to certain areas within the State, as long as it is not imposed on a selective, case by case basis on particular households. Some common SNAP household expenses that are selected for mandatory verification are housing and child care costs.

States have the option of substituting the vehicle rules used in their TANF programs for SNAP vehicle rules when it results in a lower attribution of household assets. The alternative rules used have allowed 37 States to exclude the value of all vehicles entirely. The remaining 16 States exclude the value of at least one vehicle per household. Of those, 4 have raised the standard auto exemption (currently set at $4,650) to the fair market value to determine the countable resource value of a vehicle.

BBCE is a policy that makes most households categorically eligible for SNAP because they qualify for a non-cash Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) or State maintenance of effort (MOE) funded benefit. States have flexibility in designing their TANF programs used to confer BBCE. They can tailor their eligibility standards to best meet the needs of their low-income population while ensuring access to and integrity in SNAP. In some States all households are eligible for the non-cash TANF/MOE benefit that confers categorical eligibility, while some States limit eligibility to only certain households. For example, a State may provide the benefit that confers BBCE only to households with dependent children.

State agencies electing to use the SUA for all households in place of actual utility costs can adopt the mandatory simplified SUA. By taking this option, the State opts out of the requirement to prorate the SUA for households that share living space. In addition, this option allows States to apply the SUA to public housing residents with shared meters who are charged only for excess utility costs. All State agencies except the Virgin Islands use a Standard Utility Allowance.

States have the option to treat legally obligated child support payments made to non-household members as an income exclusion rather than a deduction. This option helps to encourage payment of child support by excluding the amount paid from being considered part of the payer’s gross income.

States have the option to adopt a simplified method for determining the cost of doing business in cases where an applicant is self-employed. Should a State decide to adopt a simplified method, the State agency has flexibility to develop a method to calculate this cost – a flat percentage, a figure based on average costs, or some other method. Some States use different figures/methods for different types of self-employment. At present, 18 States have adopted a simplified method for determining the costs of doing business for self employed applicant income. Of these, 16 use a flat percentage of gross income applied to all types of self-employment. One State (Michigan) uses different percentages depending on the type of self-employment. One State (Washington) uses a flat $100 or actual expenses, whichever is greater.

Ineligible non-citizens fall into two general categories: 1) those who are unable or unwilling to provide documentation of immigration status, and 2) those classes of noncitizens listed in 7 CFR 273.11(c)(3)(i)(A) through (G). The second category generally includes persons who were lawfully admitted to the United States and have provided documentation of their immigration status. For each of these categories, State agencies have two options. For the first category they may count all income and deductions, or a prorated share. For the second category they may count none of the income and deductions (with the allotment capped at the level that an all-eligible household would get), or a prorated share.

Following SNAP rules, students over age 17 and under age 50 who are enrolled at least half time at an institution of higher education are ineligible for SNAP benefits unless they work at least 20 hours per week or meet other criteria like caring for a young child or participating in an on the job training program. States can request a waiver to allow them to average student work hours monthly. This waiver assists students whose hours may vary each week but who work at least 80 hours per month.

SNAP regulations require all non-exempt household members to comply with work requirements. Work requirements include registering for work, participating in an employment and training (E&T) or workfare program if assigned to one by the State agency, not voluntarily quitting a job 30 or more hours per week and accepting a suitable employment offer. Individuals who fail to comply with SNAP work requirements without good cause are ineligible for program benefits and disqualified from SNAP for certain periods of time, depending on how many prior instances of non-compliance there have been. The minimum periods set by law are one month for the first instance, three months for the second, and six months for the third. SNAP policy gives States the options to 1) set disqualification periods longer than these minimum mandatory periods, 2) make the disqualification permanent upon the third occurrence, and 3) sanction the entire household whenever the head of household fails to comply with work requirements.

State agencies may disqualify SNAP applicants or recipients who fail to perform actions required by other means-tested programs, primarily TANF. A State agency has the option to select the types of disqualifications within a program that it wants to impose on SNAP recipients. Only the individual who committed the violation may be disqualified from SNAP, even if the entire household was disqualified under the rules of the other means-tested program.

Welfare reform legislation permanently disqualifies people from SNAP participation if they have been convicted of a state or federal felony offense involving the possession, use or distribution of a controlled substance. State legislatures can opt out of the penalty entirely or choose to impose less severe restrictions. Examples of these modified approaches are 1) limiting the circumstances in which the permanent disqualification applies (such as only when convictions involve the sale of drugs); 2) requiring the person convicted to submit to drug testing; 3) requiring participation in a drug treatment program; and/or 4) imposing a temporary disqualification period. For more information about the drug felon eligibility in States that have passed legislation to modify the ban, see the State Profiles section of this report.

Thirty States provide applicants for SNAP with the opportunity to apply for benefits on-line. This option has been fully implemented statewide in 35 States, and is limited to certain counties or project areas in the remaining three States. CALL CENTERS

Call centers provide support to the certification process in local offices by reducing the time local certification offices spend answering phone calls concerning general SNAP information, application and benefit status information, application and recertification interviews, customer complaints, and processing changes. In some States, call centers go beyond these functions to directly certify and re-certify households. Call centers can help reduce errors caused by unreported changes, high workloads, and unanswered phone/voice mail messages. Benefits include task specialization, prompt customer service, measurable work performance, dedicated phone lines, and the ability to reinforce change reporting with one phone number for participants to remember.

DOCUMENT IMAGING

Document imaging is the process of scanning paper documents and converting them to digital images that are then stored in an electronic format. This technology allows State agencies to create paperless or less paper intensive certification systems, cutting the expenses and space requirements associated with the storage and maintenance of certification record documentation and increasing the efficiency of the certification process. This technology may be used to scan permanent verification documents (such as birth certificates or alien registration), temporary verification (such as wage stubs, rent receipts, or bank statements), or entire case records (including signed applications, monthly report forms, or submitted change report forms).

PROGRAM INTEGRATION

Because States agencies are responsible for administering the program, they have the option to integrate the eligibility and intake process for SNAP with Medicaid or to keep these processes completely separate. For the purpose of this survey, eligibility and intake of these programs is considered integrated if an applicant household files a single application and attends a single interview for multiple programs. Currently, 40 States have completely integrated programs. In addition, five States have partially integrated programs, in which eligibility and intake for SNAP and Medicaid are integrated only for certain populations or in certain areas of the State.

PROCESS IMPROVEMENT WAIVERS

Due to limited State budgets, combined with economic conditions which have led to increased need, States are seeking innovative policy and technology solutions to increase efficiency. Four such process improvement waivers are highlighted below. The waiver of the interview for the elderly and disabled at recertification allows a State to waive the recertification interview for households in which all adult members are elderly or disabled with no earned income. The expedited service interview postponement waiver allows a State to postpone the interview for an expedited service household for up to two months in certain cases when the identity can be verified. The on-demand interview waiver allows a State to have clients to call-in for an interview during certain hours and within a certain time period, rather than scheduling an appointment for a specific date and time. The electronic notices waiver allows a State to issue electronic notices to clients who elect to receive email communication, rather than receiving paper notifications.

COMBINED APPLICATION PROJECTS AND STANDARD MEDICAL DEDUCTION

Combined Application Projects (CAPs) are a partnership between the Social Security Administration (SSA), the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) and State and local agencies to streamline application procedures for individuals receiving disability benefits. The projects strengthen access to nutrition benefits for the elderly and disabled while improving SNAP administration. The combination of standardized benefits, reduced recertification requirements and eliminating the need for SSI recipients to visit the local SNAP office has significantly increased participation among the elderly and disabled.

SNAP households with individuals who are disabled or over 60 years in age are entitled to deduct allowable, out-of-pocket medical expenses for that household member that are in excess of $35/month. State agencies may request a demonstration waiver to establish a Standard Medical Deduction in lieu of calculating actual expenses. This streamlines case handling procedures while still requiring qualifying households to verify that their medical expenses exceed $35/month.

As of Oct. 1, 2008, SNAP is the name for the Federal Food Stamp Program. It stands for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, and reflects the changes that have been made to meet the needs of clients, including a focus on nutrition. The name change was mandated by the Food, Conservation and Energy Act of 2008. At the State level, State agencies may adopt the new program name, continue to refer to their program as the Food Stamp Program or choose an alternate name. For more information on States that have chosen alternate names, see the State Profiles section of this report.
