Recomendamos leer

Flynn, Joseph Marie Pre-jean. Rescuing Regina : The Battle to Save a

Friend from Deportation and Death. Chicago Review Press : Chicago, IL, USA, 2011 353 p.

Regina Bakala, a former political activist in the Democratic Republic of Congo who suffered terrible consequences for her activism, narrowly escaped almost certain death in 1995 and made it to the United States—but not to safety. After living in America for a decade—during which time she reunited with her husband and had two children—immigration officials took Bakala one evening in 2005. A victim of poor legal representation and a cruel immigration system, she faced an extraordinarily difficult and complex case with few avenues for legal action. The book makes intensely personal two problems that are, to most Americans, impossibly abstract: the political turmoil in the Congo and the U.S. immigration system. The author explains the situation in a way that makes the plight of all immigrants, refugees and asylum seekers clear and understandable.

Gould, Lewis L. 1968 : The Election That Changed America (2nd Edition).

Ivan R. Dee: Blue Ridge Summit, Philadelphia, 2010, 177 p.

The race for the White House in 1968 was a watershed event in American politics. In this brilliantly succinct narrative analysis, Lewis Gould shows how the events of that tumultuous year changed the way Americans felt about politics and their national leaders; how Republicans used the skills they brought to Richard Nixon's campaign to create a generation-long ascendancy in presidential politics; and how Democrats, divided and torn after 1968, emerged as only crippled challengers for the White House throughout most of the years until the early twenty-first century.

Bitterness over racial issues and the Vietnam War that marked the 1968 election continued to shape national affairs and to rile American society for years afterward. And the election accelerated an erosion of confidence in American institutions that has not yet reached a conclusion. In his lucid account, Mr. Gould emphasizes the importance of race as the campaign's key issue .

Winograd, Morley. Millennial Makeover : How a New Generation Is Remaking America

New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers University Press: New Brunswick, NJ, 2008, 331 p

“Which path the United States ultimately takes will be determined by the Millennial Generation’s willingness to engage in a vast civic endeavor to remake America and its institutions and the willingness of the rest of the country to follow its lead.” This bold statement opens Millennial Momentum, the follow up to Millennial Makeover, which successfully predicted the political potential of the “Me” generation—Americans born between 1982 and 2003—to effect change in the 2008 election. That title was included in the New York Times’ ten favorite books that year.

Due to their accurate prediction of the Millennials to mobilize and affect the election of Barack Obama in 2008, Winograd and Hais have become the leading authorities on predicting the potential of what they call the next “civic generation” in America.

Hais and Winograd’s methodology includes survey data, personal interviews, and popular texts.
