- EM –Hanford Site (Significance Category 2). On March 30, an insulator, who was hanging glovebags for asbestos abatement above the change room ceiling in the 284 West Powerhouse, accidentally stepped off the designated wood planking walking area and stepped through the transite ceiling. The insulator's body went through the ceiling and up to his arm pits, where he caught himself on the ceiling joists. He was immediately assisted by his coworkers who pulled him out. The insulator was transported to AdvanceMed Hanford for evaluation and was determined to have experienced no injuries to his body other than minor scrapes on his right elbow, right ribs, and right thigh. The facility remains in a safe condition with work suspended pending further investigation. A critique was scheduled.
