Appalachian Regional Commission
Project Grants	23.001 Appalachian Regional Development (see programs below)		The Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) uses an index-based county economic classification system to identify and monitor the economic status of Appalachian counties. The system involves the creation of a national index of county economic status through a comparison of each county's averages for three economic indicators—three-year average unemployment rate, per capita market income, and poverty rate—with national averages. The resulting values are summed and averaged to create a composite index value for each county. Per capita market income is calculated by dividing total personal income, less transfer payments, by population.
