Dear Sir/Madam:

RE: TTB Notice Number Four

My store revenues are greatly increased by the sale of flavored malt beverages, like Zima. When customers come into buy these beverages they also buy other products, like chips, candy and gum. So you can see, any impediment to the sale of flavored malt beverages will be very detrimental to my small business. I simply cannot survive without the flavored malt beverage customers!

Why is the ATF/TTB trying to implement new regulations that will damage the successful thirty-year history of oversight under the old regulations? Why did they choose now to upset the apple cart?

The people who buy and sell flavored malt beverages need your help in preventing the disastrous change in policy for this industry. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Frank Wolff
