

Transforming the ROBERT M. WARNER RESEARCH CENTER

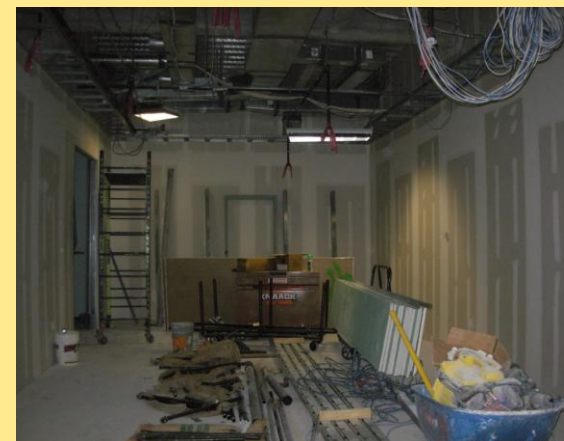

National Archives Building ■ Washington, DC

Weeks of January 16 and 23, 2012

The work to construct the wall on the south side of the existing Microfilm Research Room is currently scheduled to take place during the week of February 20, 2012, rather than within the month of January as mentioned in the previous update. Work taking place in the southwest corner of the Research Center continues. Here are pictures taken on January 9 of the Consultation / Finding Aids room and the new Classroom. Ceiling installation began the week of January 16. We're on track to open the Consultation / Finding Aids room around February 22 or so.

Consultation room looking back to the original door opening and a finding aids bookcase alcove.

Classroom is same size as existing; no columns.

Watch this space for updates on the transformation of the Robert M. Warner Research Center. For more information, see the Researcher Forum at the National Archives in the Washington, DC Area webpage at <http://www.archives.gov/dc-metro/researcher-forum/>