

Message from Dean Milnes

Dear Friends of CVAD,

This is such a great opening of a semester at our College! Nick Cave, this year's Institute for the Advancement of the Arts Artist-on Residence came to our campus for some truly enticing meetings with the dancers, musicians, designers and artists who will be engaged in creating his giant performance piece in Denton this spring.

We had Tom Huck, the St. Louis-based printmaker, talking to the Core Drawing II class and that was followed by Nick Cave's lecture.

Our own Myra Walker, Director of the Texas Fashion Collection, lectured to 450 women at a standing room only luncheon for the Dallas Women's Club, talking about our collection and Dallas's need for real exhibition space for fashion, while Dr. Denise Baxter, Interim chair of Art Education and Art History, is in Ecuador and Peru visiting universities and archeological sites.

CVAD is truly globally focused, artistically engaged, and challenging our students and community to perform at ever higher levels. We welcome our largest freshman class which, like the University, has significantly higher SAT scores and performance records than previous classes.

You can follow our activities and accomplishments in this month's "Stories" As you read about our students, faculty, and alumni, please consider supporting CVAD to help our students achieve their dreams!

Happenings

JULY 7-OCTOBER 1, 2011 UNT on the Square

Frank Reaugh: Master of the Pastels and the Plains of Texas

Charles Franklin Reaugh was an artist, photographer, inventor, patron of the arts, and teacher, who was called the "Dean of Texas Painters". He devoted his career to the visual documentation in pastel and paint, portraying the vast, still unsettled regions of the Great Plains and the American Southwest.

SEPTEMBER 12-29, 2011 University Union Gallery

Lindsey Ann Wakefield & Jenny Stauss Exhibition

This series is centered around the world of street art. It started with taking photographs of my surroundings and finding graffiti everywhere I looked. It soon became clear how important this street art is to our generation. For these artists, the thrill comes more from the act of making it than the actual finished piece due to the unpredictable space of time between when it is created and when it will inevitably be destroyed, either by man or nature.

National Parks Project: Harlan Butt

Exhibition of vessels and other works by metalsmith Harlan Butt. He has been producing works of art directly motivated by his own personal relationship with nature and the natural world since the 1970's. As an artist working in metals and enamel he has created artworks, primarily vessels, which reflect themes, colors, textures, the beauty, severity and mystery of that world. Several of these pieces are now in the collections of public museums in this country and abroad such as the Victoria & Albert Museum in London, the National Gallery of Australia in Canberra, the Renwick Gallery at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington DC, the Museum of Art & Design in New York and others. One of his vessels is also part of the permanent collection at Denali National Park in Alaska.
