Student academic progress is evaluated at the end of every academic term following the posting of final grades to determine continued eligibility for Title IV student aid. Evaluations of satisfactory academic progress by SFAS are conducted exclusively to consider eligibility for Title IV student aid and neither replace or override other UNT Dallas academic policies related to evaluation of a student’s academic status. The standards of satisfactory academic performance are either the same as or stricter than the UNT Dallas academic standards for students who are not receiving Title IV student assistance.

2. Satisfactory Academic Progress.

Every graduate and undergraduate student who applies for and receives Title IV student aid must make satisfactory academic progress to remain eligible for such aid, regardless of whether the student is a first-time applicant or has received aid in the past, and regardless of whether the student attends UNT Dallas full-time or part-time.
