What is the Navy LifeSkills Reach-back Application?

The Navy LifeSkills Reach-back Application offers additional support material for a Naval Education and Training Command (NETC) course delivered face-to-face after Recruit Training and prior to the start of a Sailor's technical training. The content is broad in nature and addresses decision-making areas that are pertinent to the process of becoming a Sailor in the U.S. Navy.

The application is identified as "Reach-back" because it is intended to both reinforce classroom delivery and provide additional information in the event a Sailor desires it. The app is available to Sailors, their family members and even newly accessed officers in an effort to promote better decision-making and understanding of Navy policies.

This app is organized into three broad topic areas:

Your Money offers instruction on: Military Pay and Entitlements, Banking and Financial Management Services, Developing a Personal Spending Plan, Essentials of Credit and Debt, Investments and Savings, Financial Planning for Deployment and Government Travel, and General Consumer Awareness.

Your Health offers instruction on: Nutrition, Physical Readiness, Healthy Relationships, Reproductive Health, Stress Management, Suicide Prevention, Responsible Alcohol Use, Tobacco Use, and Drug Abuse.

Your Security offers instruction on: Operational Security (OPSEC), Operational Risk Management (ORM), Sexual Assault Prevention and Response, EEO Grievance and Redress, Bystander Intervention, Hazing, and Fraternization.

A major goal of this training is to help Sailors understand and use the Navy's Core Values as a basis for making important life decisions. The LifeSkills Reach-back app will allow you to develop a level of personal competence and success that supports the Navy's mission and enables you to move forward personally and professionally.

The LifeSkills Reach-back mobile application aggregates DON and publicly-available information from various sources. This information will be checked periodically for accuracy and updated as needed via software updates.
