

The Defense Logistics Agency participated in the Ohio State University Career and Internship Fair on Sept. 15 and 16. Students inquired about the DLA mission, locations and job opportunities available. Recruiters shared information on how to apply for government jobs, how to search for positions, and the benefits DLA has to offer. Students visiting the DLA booth had various backgrounds, to include: data analytics, information intelligence, international studies, mathematics, engineering, security and intelligence, human resources, linguistics, economics, business management, public affairs, communications, and political science.
