EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: (A) Integrated Water Quality (aka Conservation Effects Assessment Projects CEAP):

National Projects:

Expanding Consumer and Community Water Protection Efforts Through Innovative and Integrated Mobile Technologies. This project will encourage the use of low impact development (LID) techniques by consumers and communities through the development of mobile smartphone and tablet applications (apps). The UConn Center for Land Use Education and Research has developed two tools to address the impacts of storm water runoff on our communities and waterways. The CT Rain Garden app is the first smartphone app focused on how to properly site, size, design, install and maintain a rain garden. The National LID Atlas is an interactive, online map that displays examples of LID throughout the country. Both of these tools will be made into national mobile apps for smartphones and tablets that can be used to support national efforts to reduce storm water pollution. The Rain Garden app will be redesigned with locally specific content that will adjust based on a users location. A National Advisory Team will be convened to help add locally relevant information from various regions of the country. A mobile app version of the LID Atlas will also be developed to allow users to see examples of LID installations near them, as well as add entries to the Atlas. The two apps will be linked such that you can add your rain garden to the Atlas from within the Rain Garden app and identify examples of rain gardens near you. Information about new LID installations will be collected through the apps, so that runoff and pollutant reductions can be quantified.

Smart Phone Apps: Scientific Validation Quantification of Water Conservation. The present and future water supply concerns in the SE US and the regional based research showing irrigation as a potential conservation pathway supports the long-term goal of the NIWQP. Specifically, this proposal supports the Research, Education, and Economics Action Plan goal 3 by providing growers in SE US with decision-support tools to maintain water availability and safety in a changing global environment (Subgoal 3A) and supports the Communities and Networks priority of training extension agents. This proposal considers a regional approach (Florida, Georgia, and Alabama) with the intent that future proposals will expand these efforts throughout the SE region and for other crops. The primary activities will be to validate the simple water balance models for citrus, cotton, and urban lawn originally developed as part of a 2011 NIWQP grant for Florida and Georgia in two year replicated research plots. Project Directors plan to develop an app for peanut irrigation and harvest predictions. A fine resolution grid rainfall map developed as part of a Conservation Innovation Grant will be validated using selected weather station data in three states. The combined water balance and rainfall projection tool will be integrated to generate improved irrigation schedules to balance crop requirements with current weather conditions. The validated apps will be evaluated by stakeholders in three states and in-service training events for county agents and specialists will be conducted leading to stakeholder training events by agents to assist growers in using the apps. Smartphone science-based apps will be further dissemination to professional audiences through publications, conference presentations and teaching modules designed and incorporated into course programs.

Watershed-Scale Projects:

Farms, floods and fluvial geomorphology: making the most of our natural resources. Agricultural and undeveloped rural forested lands play a crucial role in diminishing the destructive power of floodwaters by receiving, spreading, and slowing the flood wave as it moves through a watershed. Climate scientists predict (and have already observed) that in the Northeastern U.S., individual storms may be more intense, and that there will be more precipitation on an annual basis. This project will use LiDAR and fluvial geomorphological assessments to delineate the river corridor for the Deerfield River in Massachusetts and Vermont, where considerable activity and excitement surrounding responsible whole-watershed management is underway, and existing funded projects can be leveraged for maximum benefit. GIS, SWAT, and flood prediction analysis will be paired with the corridor maps to produce educational materials highlighting the role farms play in floodplains. Project directors are integrating their knowledge with the basins agricultural stakeholders in an effort to provide them with needed tools and support, including factsheets and kits for flood preparedness, strategies for riparian land management to maximize overall watershed/river health and minimize damages, sources for relief and post-disaster assistance, and pro-active measures for riverfront property management (and potential for profit). Project directors are developing a Flood-or-Not mobile tool for growers to assess current soil moisture conditions and flood potential on their property, and expand the presence and impact of EDEN in Massachusetts and Vermont. While applied to a single bi-state basin as a test bed, these techniques will be readily transferrable throughout New England, and disaster preparedness kits and strategies will be broadly available.

An Integrative Decision Support System for Managing Water Resources under Increased Climate Variability. Balancing water management to provide supplemental irrigation to assure and enhance crop production during dry conditions while also managing drainage of excess water, is very challenging. Water management strategies at the farm, watershed, and community levels must consider long-term sustainability of the water supply and protection of the ecological functions water supports. Decision Support Systems (DSS) for holistic sustainable water management at appropriate scales are critically needed and must incorporate the impacts of a changing global environment. This project provides an Integrative Decision Support System that processes and incorporates existing water strategies, futuristic planning, agricultural water uses, and support for water managers. A diverse set of modeling and analysis tools are incorporated. Continuing input and dissemination using Extension expertise and enhanced education are integral to this approach. The project has four key components that blend and complement each other. First is the involvement of numerous key individuals broadly representing water users and policy makers. Second is the development of several sets of future climatic data scenarios. Third is use of the scenarios to assess implications to Michigan's legislated Water Withdrawal Assessment Tool (WWAT) process. Fourth is the use of a 3-D hydrologic systems model to aid with developing and assessing more sustainable water management strategies under the possible new climatic regime and to better address present problematic situations. The project will be linked to several broader sustained water management activities.

(B) National Integrated Food Safety Initiative (aka NIFSI):

There were no funded projects in FY 2013.

Several on-going FY 2011 Project titles are listed below.

The role of biofilms as a reservoir for foodborne pathogens in irrigation systems

An Integrated Approach to Enhance the Microbial Safety of Fresh-Cut Fruits and Vegetables during Processing, Packaging, and Distribution

Advancement of a whole-chain, stakeholder driven traceability system for agricultural commodities: beef cattle pilot demonstration

Building Better Food Safety Education Programs: How Optimizing Fidelity of Implementation Can Maximize Desired Outcomes

Bridging the Gap: Integrated Research and Extension in Support of Small Food Processors of Acidified Canned Foods

(C) (Regional) Integrated Pest Management Centers (aka IPM Centers):

Example 1.

Objectives: 1) Establish new and maintain existing information networks; 2) continue to build partnerships to address IPM challenges and opportunities; 3) develop signature global food security programs and foster their sustainability; 4) review and evaluate impacts of IPM implementation and communicate successes; and 5) manage funding resources effectively.

The IPM Center will serve as a catalyst for promoting and reporting IPM accomplishments achieved by our broad-based clientele to increase accountability. Our Center will actively respond to the goals of the National Roadmap for IPM the Global Food Security priority to ensure coordination of efforts and resources to enhance IPM development and adoption for production agriculture, natural resources and recreational environments, and residential and public areas in cooperation with the Federal IPM Coordinating Committee comprised of agency representatives from the Department of Agriculture (ARS, NIFA, NRCS, NASS, ERS, APHIS and the U.S. Forest Service), Department of Interior (National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management and Fish and Wildlife Service), Department of State (Agency for International Development), Department of Health and Human Services (CDC), Department of Housing and Urban Development (Office of Health Homes), Department of Defense, Environmental Protection Agency and the General Services Administration.

Signature programs include Tribal IPM programs, IPM education and outreach, IPM impact assessment, IPM issue-focused working groups and pest management strategic plans. These programs will engage broad representation of our regions stakeholders including our 1994 and 1890 sister institutions, as well as other underserved audiences.

Example 2.

To foster IPM development and adoption, the IPM Center will build on successes and launch new projects. With broad-based stakeholder participation, we will prioritize issues, create a strategic plan, facilitate collaboration across states, disciplines, and regions, and continue our information networks (including a state-of-the-art website, robust listservs, and a grants database). We will build capacity with eXtension and share Pest Alerts and success stories. Our IPM Partnership Grants Program will focus on working groups and critical pests, encouraging project directors to address underserved audiences, food availability, and food accessibility. We will foster sustainability of regional food supplies by strengthening support for small farms and by joining with federal and private partners to sponsor a conference on "IPM, Organic, and Sustainable Ag to Bolster Food Security." We will lead outreach to the region on the invasive brown marmorated stink bug, working with scientists to share new knowledge via the StopBMSB website, curricula, and displays. We will strengthen underserved communities by leading and participating in IPM trainings and workshops for public housing authorities and tribal housing, enhancing the StopPests website, and offering our new "Guide to IPM in Public Housing" in print and online. We will network internationally by attending the OECD workshop and the International IPM Symposium. Overall, our Center will increase coordination of IPM research, education, and extension, and will enhance responsiveness to global food security challenges.

Example 3.

Our mission is to foster development and adoption of IPM, a science-based approach to managing pests in ways that generate economic, environmental and human health benefits. The Advisory Council (AC) comprising diverse stakeholders from across the region will provide guidance and the Steering Committee (SC) will set policy. We will utilize the strategic plan developed in the previous funding cycle. We will maintain a revised version of the Regulatory Information Network to proactively address regulatory issues, respond to queries from EPA and other regulatory agencies, and update at least 12 high-priority Crop Profiles. Stakeholders and partner institutions will be engaged to identify needs and establish priorities through the AC and SC structure, collaboration with regional technical committees, the Small Farms IPM Working Group to engage previously underserved groups, and support of existing working groups including the School IPM Working Group. Global Food Security Programs include the Regulatory Information Network, the Critical and Emerging Issues Grant Program; the Small Farms Working Group; continued financial management and support of ipmPIPE projects; collaboration with eXtension; and our IPM Impacts evaluation Initiative. The Impacts Evaluation Initiative will evaluate IPM projects from across the region to develop and distribute success stories that resonate with the general public. Our communications and outreach will continue the successful methods we have used to date including social networking techniques. We will also continue the Friends of IPM Program to highlight successful IPM professionals and promote IPM.

Example 4.

The Center will advance the National Institute of Food and Agriculture's (NIFA) Global Food Security priority area. Center activities and programs will advance Global Food Security by leading and supporting programs that implement IPM solutions to enhance sustainable food systems and boost U.S. agricultural production. Roadmap goals will be advanced by Center activities that lead to improved economic benefits of IPM adoption and reduced potential risks to human health and the environment caused by pests and the use of pest management practices. The Centers work will address five objectives:

- 1) to develop signature Global Food Security programs and foster their sustainability,
- 2) to establish and maintain multistate information networks,
- 3) to build partnerships and address challenges and opportunities,
- 4) to review and evaluate outcomes and impacts of IPM implementation and communicate the successes and the value added by IPM programs, and 5) to manage funding resources effectively.

All of these objectives will be carried out in the context of two overarching goals:

- 1) to improve the cost benefit analyses of adopting IPM practices and
- 2) to reduce the environmental and human health risks associated with managing pests. In carrying out these objectives and advancing these goals, the Center will provide regional leadership and coordination to facilitate integration of sustainable IPM activities across states, purposes, programs, and pest disciplines and among individuals, institutions, and regions. By offering competitive grants, supporting communication networks, obtaining ongoing stakeholder input about IPM needs, and fostering collaborations and partnerships, the Center will provide a centralized regional platform for addressing critical IPM needs and integrating IPM research, extension, and education in the West. This approach also ensures the Center will be responding to food security challenges on a global scale. The leadership and funding opportunities provided by the Center will bring together the institutional and individual expertise needed to successfully address high-priority pest management issues confronting farmers, pest managers, the non-agricultural public, and others in the West.

(D) Crops at Risk (aka CAR):

There has been no recent funding for this Program.

(E) Risk (Avoidance and) Mitigation Program (aka RAMP):

There has been no recent funding for this Program.

(F) Methyl Bromide Transition (MBT) Program:

A $436,530 project was funded to study the use of fungal biological control agents combined with trap crops to assist in the eradication effort of Pale Cyst Nematode (manage Globodera pallida), which is an USDA APHIS quarantine pest of potato in Idaho.

A $449,946 multi-institutional and multi-disciplinary project was funded to conduct research into integrated pest management (IPM) for southern dry cured hams. New fumigants combined with food-safe ham coatings will be studied if to determine if they can control mites.

A $331,775 project was funded to determine the scalability and feasibility to using steam to manage strawberry pests and weeds and allyl isothiocyanate (AITC), a promising new fumigant

(G) Organic Transition Risk Assessment (aka ORG) Program:

Biodiversity and Natural Pest Suppression. This project is exploring the emergence of natural pest control following the conversion to organic farming by comparing recent adopters to farms that have been organic for decades. Mixed-vegetable farmers have reported that since adopting organic methods, they see fewer aphids and caterpillars on their farm each year. Growers generally attributed this to the gradual buildup of insect-killing predators, parasitoids and pathogens. Improving soil quality, and thus healthier and more insect-resistant plants, could also explain this pattern. Understanding what makes a farm pest-suppressive could ease future farmers organic transition.

Organic management of fire blight in a post-antibiotic era: developing, evaluating, and delivering options for apples grown in humid climate. This project directly addresses the development of alternatives to antibiotics for fire blight control in organic crops. In order to prepare for the removal of antibiotics from the NOSB Approved Materials List, all available NOSB-approved materials to reduce flower infection and improve efficacy are being evaluated.

Principles for Transitioning to Organic Farming: e-Learning Materials and Decision Case Studies for Educators. A project team is creating a series of online, interactive educational modules with a focus on the fundamentals of organic agriculture and how to transition to organic farming. Modules will cover important crop production topics including rotation, soil fertility, crops to grow during transition, weed and pest management, and many other subjects for both agronomic and horticultural producers.

(H) Regional Rural Development Centers:

The NCRCRD announced winners of its annual small grants competition. Each proposal goes through an independent review process involving blind reviewers with expertise in the proposals domain. Referee comments are reviewed by the NCRCRD board, which makes final recommendations for what is to be included in the Centers annual proposal to the USDA. The following were recommended:

- Elevating and Expanding the Traditional Business Retention & Expansion Program
- Evaluating Impacts of Natural Resource Development
- Building community capacity through strategic planning
- Preparing Communities for Shale Development through Sustainable Planning
- Tribal Community Development Projects in the Great Lakes Regions

The RRDCs remain engaged in significant work to develop impact indicators and have been conducting workshops to assist their peers to measure, document, and report the impact of community development work the results from the investment in the RRDC and Extension to Communities. The North Central Regional Center for Rural Development alone documented over $360M of impacts and 25,470 jobs created or saved as a result of 2013 investments. In addition, the following indicators were measured:

North Central States 2013 Impact Indicators	Total	States Reporting
Number of participants reporting new leadership roles & opportunities undertaken	7,594	11
Number of community or organizational plans developed	1,887	11
Number of community & organizational, policies, plans adopted or implemented	1,678	11
Number of businesses created	1,059	8
Number of jobs created	8,116	10
Number of jobs retained	17,354	9
Dollar value of grants and resources leveraged/generated by communities	$58,073,930	10

Fiscal Year 2014: (A) Integrated Water Quality (aka Conservation Effects Assessment Projects CEAP):

The closing date for proposals was July 3, 2014. A total of 20 applications were received in two program areas. A new program code (110.J) focused on farm and watershed scale projects that identified the science behind drought triggers or to aid decision making about the optimal use of water. The second program area soliciting applications for a single synthesis project that will increase the scientific understanding of accomplishments made through NIFAs portfolio of funded water projects. The synthesis project should develop critical science questions that address how NIFA-funded research, education, extension, and integrated projects have increased knowledge of agricultural water issues and how these projects helped move communities closer to solutions for local water problems. Peer-review Panel will be held in the near future. No other data is available.

(B) National Integrated Food Safety Initiative (aka NIFSI):

No funded projects in FY 2014.

(C) (Regional) Integrated Pest Management Centers (aka IPM Centers):

The funded projects listed as examples above in Actual FY 2013 will continue working on the project priorities in FY 2014.

(D) Crops at Risk (aka CAR):

There has been no recent funding for this Program.

(E) Risk (Avoidance and) Mitigation Program (aka RAMP):

There has been no recent funding for this Program.

(F) Methyl Bromide Transition (MBT) Program:

A $443,727 project will be funded to study non-chemical methods for sustainable management of strawberry diseases. This project is using a systems approach to combine the natural crop protection allyl isothiocyanate, crop rotation with broccoli cover crops, and chitin soil amendments. If successful, this approach would be used by both organic and conventional farmers to manage diseases of this important specialty crop.

A $475,638 project will be funded to study integrated pest management option to manage red flour beetle in rice mills. These insects cause direct losses through damage and consumption of rice and significant losses when contaminating food which leads to rejected shipments and lost sales. This impacts groups in the Rice Millers Association, National American Millers Association, and pet food manufacturers.

A $498,956 project will be funded to study the use of radio-frequency as a methyl bromide alternative for treatment of wood packaging materials. This work would aid in preventing the entrance of invasive insects on wood packing materials, such as Asian Longhorn Beetle was introduced.

(G) Organic Transition Risk Assessment (aka ORG) Program:

Agroecological strategies for balancing tradeoffs in organic corn and soybean production. This project is intended to improve organic crop production by developing practical cover cropping and crop rotation strategies that overcome tradeoffs between short-term profitability and long-term sustainability. Project will establish a new transition-to-organic field experiment at research stations in New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland to test advanced cover crop-based management systems. The project will compare cover crop interseeding and rotational no-till strategies to standard organic crop production practices to quantify differences in profitability and ecosystem services including crop performance, soil health, greenhouse gas emissions, weed seed predation, and nectar provisioning for pollinator conservation. While it has broader implications for addressing problems with greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and water quality, this project is organic farmer-focused and builds on stakeholder interest in diverse cover crop mixtures and interseeding cover crops using aerial applicators and spinner spreaders at layby cultivation.

Promoting Native Bee Health and Pollination Services on Diversified Organic Produce Farms

This proposal will evaluate the effects of transitioning to organic farming on native bee community health and pollination services. The First Component will evaluate farm characteristics that promote healthy native bee communities on long-term organic and transitioning produce farms. The Second Component will determine if habitat augmentation expedites the development of healthy native bee communities on long-term organic and transitioning farms. The Third Component will develop an extension program to provide farmers with the tools to maintain native bee communities in their farming systems and ensure the projects influence endures.

Implementation of non-antibiotic programs for fire blight control in organic apple and pear in the western United States. Recently, the National Organic Program established a sunset date of October 2014 for antibiotics for fire blight suppression in organic pome fruit, requiring a transition to non-antibiotic methods in 2015. This project will help move non-antibiotic fire blight control from development to implementation. It will: a) refine non-antibiotic control programs to maximize fruit finish quality; b) continue evaluation of other non-antibiotic materials with potential for adoption in organic pome fruit; c) adapt non-antibiotic control recommendations to disease risk models; d) monitor commercial organic orchards for establishment of a biocontrol agent, for presence of the pathogen, and for disease severity; and e) teach and extend information on non-antibiotic control to the organic tree fruit community.

A Natural Approach to Human-Pathogen Suppression: Can Biodiversity Fill the Gaps? The goal of this project is to provide organic growers with practical ways to reduce the risk of harboring human pathogens (e.g., E. coli O157:H7) on their farms, by conserving and augmenting beneficial coprophagous insects and microbes. Working on mixed-vegetable farms varying in their levels of livestock integration, the project will: (1) Quantify biodiversity of feces-feeding arthropods (e.g., dung beetles, flies) through intensive field sampling; (2) Assess functional-genetic diversity of soil microbes, focusing on genes likely to be active in feces digestion; and (3) Relate biodiversity among coprophagous arthropods and microbes to rates of feces removal and E. coli suppression.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: For FY 2013:

The purpose of one project is to further integrate and expand Extension's educational role before, during and after a disaster, using the all-hazards approach adopted by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. This project helped EDEN provide strategic guidance and support to NIFA, USDA, and member institutions in disaster education. Specifically, with this project, EDEN continued use of its network and communication tools to distribute educational materials and information aimed at reducing the impacts of disasters. This project made Extension a more effective partner in food and agricultural defense education by continuing maintenance, promotion, and use of previously developed EDEN materials and the development of new materials.

One project addressed the coordination and collection of diagnostic information from land grant universities and state departments of agriculture in a standardized manner insuring the quality of information. The purpose of this project was to enable complex pattern analysis of diagnostic information collected in order to detect anomalies, thus allowing recognition of new outbreaks earlier than is currently possible.

Five different projects enabled regionally diverse institutions to host regional diagnostic centers for the National Plant Diagnostics Network (NPDN). The NPDN, working together with various federal and state agencies, has the overall goal of enhancing national agricultural security from bioterrorist attack through the protection of health and productivity of plants in agricultural and natural ecosystems in the U.S. The specific purpose of this network is to provide a functional nationwide network of public agricultural institutions with a cohesive, distributed system to quickly detect high consequence pests (here defined as arthropods and weeds) and biological pathogens (here defined as plant microbial disease agents and nematodes) that have been introduced intentionally or accidentally into agricultural and natural ecosystems, identify them, and immediately report them to appropriate responders and decision makers.

Twenty eight projects supported National Animal Health Laboratory Network (NAHLN) laboratories. The NAHLN has implemented national surveillance systems for highly pathogenic avian influenza, classical swine fever, bovine spongiform encephalopathy, and other important animal diseases. These surveillance programs have been used, among other things, to demonstrate freedom from disease in support of international trade, resulting in increased trade income. Fiscal Year 2014: For FY 2014:

Thirty award renewals are in process. Fiscal Year 2015: For FY 2015:

Thirty award renewals are projected.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

In Fiscal Year (FY) 2002, a panel of USDA scientists knowledgeable in the Nation's plant and animal disease diagnostic capability, recommended to the Secretary a plan of initiating a comprehensive national network of laboratories for the rapid detection and diagnosis of plant and animal diseases. The institutions selected by the panel for initial inclusion in the network were recommended using the following criteria:

- (1) Existing scientific capacity;
- (2) Existing laboratory capacity which could be modified to meet Biosafety Level 3 requirements;
- (3) Both animal and plant diagnostic capabilities;
- (4) Geographical location meeting one or more of the following requirements: located in an area with a high risk of disease/pest incursions; located in an area with high concentration of vulnerable agricultural activity; complements or supplements regional Federal laboratory activity or is in an area not effectively served by an existing Federal facility;
- (5) State-of-the-art communication and information technology systems. Must be capable of managing secure communications with other laboratories and central reporting unit; and
- (6) An effective outreach/extension system.

These recommendations were utilized to select the original cooperative agreement recipients and are annually evaluated by USDA/NIFA in network planning.

10.305 INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE AND EDUCATION GRANTS

(ISE)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 229 of the Agricultural Research, Extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 (AREERA) amended Section 1459 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) (7 U.S.C. Section 3292b) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to make competitive grants to colleges and universities in order to strengthen United States economic competitiveness and to promote international market development.

Section 7141 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (7 U.S.C. 8701 note) authorized the International Science and Education Competitive Grants Program (ISE).

, 7 U.S.C 3292b.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of ISE is to support the internationalization of food, agriculture and related programs at U.S. universities and colleges. It is intended that ISE will improve the ability of American students, business people, and community members to compete more effectively in the global world of agriculture. ISE projects are to strengthen the global competence and competitiveness of American colleges, universities and businesses in the food, agriculture, and related sectors. In addition, ISE projects must be directed to agricultural research, extension, and/or teaching activities that enhance the capabilities of American colleges and universities to conduct international collaborative research, extension and teaching. Our success in the global arena will increasingly require U.S. colleges and universities to produce graduates who can operate competently in domestic and international settings. Through their outreach efforts, universities and colleges also play a critical role in helping U.S. producers successfully operate in foreign markets.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funded projects will respond to specific needs and strengths of the university or college that will enable it to strengthen the global competence of students, faculty and staff in agriculture and related areas and enhance business performance in international agriculture and related sectors through extension, research and/or teaching programs. Each institution may submit no more than two proposals as the lead institution. No institution acting as the principal or lead institution will receive more than one grant during the current competition.

Therefore, institutions are encouraged to establish on-campus quality control mechanisms to ensure that only the highest quality proposals are submitted for consideration.

Program funds may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities (i.e., greenhouses, laboratories, or other structures).

Section 7132 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, amended the National Agriculture Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), limiting indirect costs to 22 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 22 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

*Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions. Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 22 percent pursuant to section 1462(a) of NARETPA (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), the awardee may request 11 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 22 percent. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applications may be submitted by colleges and universities and defined in section 1404 of NARETPA. The terms college and university mean an educational institution in any State which (1) admits as regular students only persons having a certificate of graduation from a school providing secondary education, or the recognized equivalent of such a certificate; (2) is legally authorized within such State to provide a program of education beyond secondary education; (3) provides an education program for which a bachelor's degree or any other higher degree is awarded; (4) is a public or other nonprofit institution; and (5) is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association.

10.306 BIODIESEL

(Biodiesel Fuel Education Program)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 9006 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-246), amended the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8101 et seq.) to re-establish the Biodiesel Fuel Education Program which requires that the Secretary make competitive grants to eligible entities to educate governmental and private entities that operate vehicle fleets, other interested entities (as determined by the Secretary), and the public about the benefits of biodiesel fuel use. The Secretary delegated this authority to the Chief Economist, who in turn delegated this authority to the Director of the Office of Energy Policy and New Uses (OEPNU). OEPNU has joined with NIFA for assistance in administering Biodiesel Education under the authorities found in the Economy Act (31 U.S.C. 1535) and Section 1472 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3318). Specific Biodiesel Education administrative provisions are found in 7 CFR 2903., 7 U.S.C 3318.

OBJECTIVES:

The goals of the Biodiesel Fuel Education Program as originally established in Section 9004 of the Farm Security Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8104) were to stimulate biodiesel consumption and to stimulate the development of a biodiesel infrastructure. The information and outreach activities to raise awareness of the benefits of biodiesel fuel use complemented the incentives provided by the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (EPA) (Public Law 109-58), and the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 (Public Law 110-140). As a result of increased awareness and consumption of biodiesel over the past 5 years, the FY 2008 Biodiesel Education program will focus on educational programs which will support advances in infrastructure, technology transfer, fuel quality, fuel safety and increasing feedstock production.

10.307 ORGANIC AGRICULTURE RESEARCH AND EXTENSION INITIATIVE

(OREI)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 7206 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (FCEA) amended section 1672B of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade (FACT) Act of 1990 (7 U.S.C. 5925b) amending and re-authorizing the Organic Agriculture Research and Extension Initiative (OREI). The FACT Act, as amended, authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture, in consultation with the National Agricultural Research, Extension, Education, and Economics Advisory Board (NAREEEAB), to make competitive grants to support research and extension activities regarding organically grown and processed agricultural commodities for eight legislatively-defined goals. See RFA Part I.B. for further general information and specific details. , 7 U.S.C 5925b.

OBJECTIVES:

Facilitate the development of organic agriculture production, breeding, and processing methods. Functionally identify soil microbial communities and ways to manage microbial dynamics to enhance nutrient cycling and disease suppression; Develop systemic approaches to weed, insect and disease management; Prevent, control, and treat internal and external parasites in various livestock species; and Breed crops for disease and insect resistance, good yield in a biologically diverse system, compatibility with intercrops, good response to organic fertility sources, horizontal resistance (traits determined by multiple genes). Evaluate the potential economic benefits to producers and processors who use organic methods. Analyze potential economic costs, returns and risks of organic production systems; Use environmental valuation tools to quantify externalities of producing food, and compare externalities of producing organic and conventional food; - Analyze price and market structures, including ability of small, medium-, and large-scale growers to access different markets, in order to frame policies that minimize concentration within the industry; and Analyze marketing channels to document how organic food is distributed, what share of the organic food dollar is returned to the farmer, and the implications of large-scale manufacturers entering the organic market. Explore international trade opportunities for organically grown and processed agricultural commodities. Compare compatibility of certification standards used in different parts of the world, with the ultimate goal of harmonization and reciprocity; Undertake marketing studies of international consumer demand for U.S. produced organic goods; and Perform Welfare analyses (quantified gains and losses for producers and consumers) of trade policies affecting international competitiveness, including implementation of the National Organic Program, domestic support programs such as the Conservation Security Act, country of origin labeling, GMO labeling, etc. Determine desirable traits for organic commodities. Examine relationships between nutrients in the soil and nutrients in the food grown on that soil, including long-term soil nutrient and crop nutrient profiles under conventional and organic management; Perform comparisons of nutrient levels between organic and conventional crops and relationship, if any, between taste and nutrient profile; Investigate the role of post-harvest handling and treatment in the maintenance of quality in fresh market organic products; and Determine the reasons for consumer preferences for organic goods. Identify marketing and policy constraints on the expansion of organic agriculture. Analyze opportunities and constraints to organic agriculture resulting from provisions of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002; Investigate specific barriers to markets, such as scale-based regulations that restrict family farm access to processors and/or markets; Study negative lender perception of organic farming and ways to change this; and Analyze regulatory barriers, such as lack of access to Federal farm programs, and developing solutions to these challenges. Conduct advanced on-farm research and development that emphasizes observation of, experimentation with, and innovation for working organic farms, including research relating to production and marketing and to socioeconomic conditions. (Note: Many topics from other goal areas can be conducted on working farms.) Develop rigorous on-farm systems research designs; and Conduct long-term, interdisciplinary systems research.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Integrated Organic Program is particularly interested in proposed projects that emphasize research and outreach that assist farmers and ranchers with whole farm planning and ecosystem integration. Projects should plan to deliver applied production information to producers. Fieldwork for both program areas must be done on certified organic land or on land in transition to organic certification, as appropriate to project goals and objectives. Refer to the USDA National Organic Program (<http://www.ams.usda.gov/nop>) for organic production standards. NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities. Section 7132 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act amended section 1462 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3310), increasing the limit on recovery of indirect costs from 19 percent to 22 percent of total Federal funds provided under the award. Therefore, the recovery of indirect costs on awards made by NIFA under this program area may not exceed the lesser of the institution's official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 22 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

*Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions. Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardees' indirect costs are capped at 22 percent pursuant to section 1462(a) of NARETPA (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), the awardee may request 11 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 22 percent.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applications may be submitted by State agricultural experiment stations, all colleges and universities, other research institutions and organizations, Federal agencies, national laboratories, private organizations or corporations, and individuals. For both ORG and OREL, all award recipients may subcontract to organizations not eligible to apply provided such organizations are necessary for the conduct of the project.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

10.303 Integrated Programs

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: In FY 2013 award cycle, there were no funded projects. The program was not offered because of the expiration of the 2008 Farm Bill. Fiscal Year 2014: Funded projects seek to solve critical organic agricultural issues, priorities, or problems through the integration of research, Education and extension activities. They include high priority research, Education and extension projects that will enhance the ability of producers and processors who have already adopted organic standards to grow and market high quality organic agricultural products. Priority concerns include biological, physical, and social sciences, including economics.

Farmer Designed Systems to Reduce Tillage in Organic Vegetables This is an integrated research and extension project that will increase the successful adoption of reduced tillage by organic farmers by 1) identifying weed and cover crop management practices to optimize soil health benefits while preventing pest problems; 2) identifying strategies to reduce tillage and labor use in permanent beds used on very small farms; 3) evaluating complementary soil fertility management practices to insure optimum crop performance; 4) adapting equipment and practices to suit the scale and resources of various organic farm sizes; and 5) documenting biological and economic benefits relative to their costs to help growers identify situations where adoption is most beneficial.

Breeding Non-commodity corn for organic production systems. The project will develop inbred lines and open pollinated corn varieties with the following breeding targets: Pollen exclusion systems for non-GMO corn, improved nutritional quality, including high methionine corn for poultry and Quality Protein Maize for livestock feed and Blue corn for novelty food products.

Evaluation of the Milk and Meat Residues of Organic Therapies for Mastitis. Organic dairy farmers must use alternatives to proven antibiotics to treat one of the most costly diseases in dairy production: mastitis. The proposed project will be informed by a regional stakeholder advisory panel and will evaluate 3 organic mastitis treatments with antibacterial potential, and disseminate the results via short courses, web seminars, and fact sheets. Fiscal Year 2015: Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date.

Funds are available for a program of competitive grants, with funds to be awarded to one or more individual, eligible institutions of higher education in Insular Areas (Insular Area Institutions) or consortia of such eligible institutions, to carry out teaching and education programs in the food and agricultural sciences., 7 U.S.C 3363.

OBJECTIVES:

In General. -The Secretary of Agriculture shall make competitive grants to eligible institutions to-

(1) strengthen institutional educational capacities, including libraries, curriculum, faculty, scientific instrumentation, instruction delivery systems, and student recruitment and retention, in order to respond to identified State, regional, national, or international education needs in the food and agricultural sciences; (2) attract and support undergraduate and graduate students in order to educate them in identified areas of national need in the food and agriculture sciences; (3) facilitate cooperative initiatives between two or more insular area eligible institutions, or between those institutions and units of State Government or organizations in the private sector, to maximize the development and use of resources such as faculty, facilities, and equipment to improve food and agricultural sciences teaching programs; and (4) conduct undergraduate scholarship programs to assist in meeting national needs for training food and agricultural scientists.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The purpose of the Resident Instruction Grants Program for Institutions of Higher Education in Insular Areas (RIIA) is to promote and strengthen the ability of Insular Area Institutions to carry out teaching and education programs within the broadly defined food and agricultural sciences-related disciplines.

Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved fundamental and applied research, extension and education objectives to address food and agricultural sciences.

Funds may not be used for any purposes other than those approved in the grant award documents. The use of grant funds to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility is not allowed under this program. With prior approval, and in accordance with the cost principles set forth in OMB Circular No. A-21, some grant funds may be used for minor alterations, renovations, or repairs deemed necessary to retrofit existing teaching or research spaces in order to carry out a funded project. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that the alterations, renovations, or repairs are essential to achieving the major purpose of the project. Grant funds may not be used for endowment investing. Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded. For the FY 2013 award cycle, $610,059 (or $93,750 available for each DEG award) and $849,959 (or $98,750-$106,250 available for each RIIA award) for a total of $1,460,018 for the following Insular Areas: the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Republic of Palau, and the Virgin Islands of the United States.

In FY 2013, the DEG and RIIA applications that received awards were consortia of the eight Insular Areas each. Both DEG and RIIA consortia awards received the ceiling amounts for each program. In May 2013, applications for both programs RIIA and DEG were evaluated by a 5-member combined programs peer review panel comprising Federal Government employees.

Applications submitted to this grants program must state how the funded project will address the DEG/RIIA Programs Goals:

1. To increase the number and diversity of students who will pursue and complete a 2- or 4-year postsecondary degree in the food and agricultural sciences, or other STEM fields closely related to the food and agricultural sciences, and for FY 2012, encourage study in areas that contribute to any of the five NIFA Priority Areas listed directly above in Part I, A; and
2. To enhance the quality of postsecondary instruction in order to help meet current and future national food and agricultural sciences workplace needs.

Since 2005 when the Resident Instruction in the Insular Areas was first provided through USDA NIFA, students selecting food and agricultural sciences and related sciences majors increased. For example, at the College of Micronesia-FSM, the student enrollment and graduation increased over twenty times. One concern has remained outstanding and that is the preparedness of the agriculture teachers in the public school system. During 2013, an effort has been initiated to address this concern. In January 2014, a project was started in which one teaching intern was attached with agriculture instructors at each of the 4 campuses of the COM-FSM system where agriculture programs are taught. The purpose was the interns assist the instructors, tutor students and provide recruitment in the high schools while being mentored in teaching techniques and encouraged to continue on the University in a program leading to them returning to FSM to teach agriculture in the school system. At least the first two objectives have been accomplished. Initial data indicate that there is again an increase in enrollment for FY 2015 and of the 4 interns all 4 are continuing their studies. Two of the interns have been accepted at the University of Guam agriculture program, one has been accepted to the University of Hawaii, Hilo and the fourth is continuing to his fourth year accreditation under UOG/COM-FSM partnership degree in education a COM-FSM national campus. Four new interns will be starting their training in January 2014.

The Distance Education Grant program serves the same education priority as RIIA except DEG also acquires the necessary equipment, networking capability, hardware and software, digital network technology, and infrastructure necessary to teach and reach students and teachers about technology in the classroom. The capacity of prospective students to access online education continues to grow which will allow students to obtain an education at lower cost and with great convenience. It is incumbent that each of the consortium members invests time and resources in preparing faculty, developing the infrastructure, and creating the external relationships to ensure success in the delivery of distance education. Faculty hired for traditional classroom delivery require assistance in making the paradigm shift to online education and the infrastructure has to be sufficiently robust to reduce technical problems that re discouraging to students and faculty. The aim is to build stronger connections among institutions. Fiscal Year 2014: For Fiscal Year 2014:

(1) Effective FY '13, Appropriations for the Resident Instruction Grants (RIIA CFDA 10.308) and Distance Education Grants (DEG CFDA 10.322) were consolidated under Research & Education Activities, Grants for Insular Areas Program. However, different legislative authorities are applicable and separate Requests for Applications (RFAs) were issued under the respective CFDA numbers.

In FY 2014 award cycle, $767,778 was available for DEG project awards and about $900,000 for RIIA project awards. DEG and RIIA have 6 projects each in the process to be awarded. Fiscal Year 2015: For Fiscal Year 2015:

(1) Effective FY '13, Appropriations for the Resident Instruction Grants (RIIA CFDA 10.308) and Distance Education Grants (DEG CFDA 10.322) were consolidated under Research & Education Activities, Grants for Insular Areas Program. However, different legislative authorities are applicable and separate Requests for Applications (RFAs) were issued under the respective CFDA numbers.

For FY 2015 the proposed budget of $1.8m will consolidate RIIA and DEG program into Grants for Insular Areas Program. Further, in the hope to continue building capacity across two oceans, DEG and RIIA RFAs request regular applications only. This will certainly empower institutional ownership and responsibility since 2005 in managing its own budget in furthering educational needs based on local culture, human and natural resources.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: For the FY 2013 award cycle, there was no funding available for project grant awards. Fiscal Year 2014: For the FY 2014 award cycle, approximately $75 million is available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs. This amount is divided into two programs: approximately $51 million for the traditional SCRI program and approximately $24 million for the Citrus Research and Extension Program.

At the end of July 2014, a peer-review panel will evaluate 75 applications requesting a total of $75,186,130 which were received in this years competition for the traditional SCRI program. The peer panel include faculty from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities, industry scientists, and practitioners from the food and agricultural sciences community.

Funds are available to support approximately a total of 20-30 new awards as Project Types: Standard Research & Extension Projects, Planning Grants, Coordinated Agricultural projects. The funding rate for this program in FY14 will be between 20-40% for new awards.

The SCRI citrus research & extension program peer review panel will be completed in November, 2014, so proposals have not yet been received.

Funded projects address one or more of the following legislatively mandated focus areas: (a) Research in plant breeding, genetics, and genomics to improve crop characteristics; (b) Efforts to identify and address threats from pests and diseases, including threats to specialty crop pollinators (c) Efforts to improve production efficiency, productivity, and profitability over the long term (including specialty crop policy and marketing); (d) New innovations and technology, including improved mechanization and technologies that delay or inhibit ripening; and (e) Methods to prevent, detect, monitor, control, and respond to potential food safety hazards in the production and processing of specialty crops, including fresh produce. EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: COMPREHENSIVE AUTOMATION FOR SPECIALTY CROPS

The specialty crops industry is facing a crisis of increasing labor costs and shortages of available labor; if the trends continue, farms are at risk of economic failure. Increasing labor efficiency is vital to the survival of this important industry. The goal of this project is to work with the specialty crop industry to fulfill its vision of significantly reducing the cost of production of US fruit by developing a comprehensive automation system. The Team developed, tested, and assessed nine individual field improvement technologies, looking at socio-economic utility and conducting public outreach. Of these technologies, the autonomous orchard platform, which compares to a ladder, has been found to increase production efficiency in trials between 30-116%, depending on the fruit. In addition, an automatic counter system showed 89-100% counting accuracy at 3 and 5 mph; a harvest assist system has shown an increase in productivity, safety and reduced fruit bruising (3-6%); and an improvement to the Z-trap, a bug trapping and counting device by eliminating false detection, increasing their operation time, and the ability to read results on the web.

ADVANCED SENSING AND MANAGEMENT TECHNOLOGIES TO OPTIMIZE RESOURCE USE IN SPECIALTY CROPS: CASE STUDIES OF WATER AND NITROGEN IN DECIDUOUS CROPS (2008-51180-19563). Water and nitrogen management in deciduous perennial crops is constrained by a lack of information and an inability to provide targeted management. Rising fertilizer prices, water shortages in the major production regions, market and environmental demands, and the contribution of greenhouse gas production in the form of N₂O, has resulted in great interest among the deciduous tree industries to develop improved management practices. This project addressed this situation by examining nutrient and water use in Almond, Pecan, Grape and Pistachio crops at the field level, by remote sensing from above the canopy and by aerial and satellite imagery, and by modeling to provide growers with the ability to manage water and nitrogen with more efficiency. The team improved the way nutrient status of the trees is assessed with leaf sampling strategies and nutrient budget models to help growers better monitor and manage the nutrient status of their orchards and increase their profitability and environmental stewardship. They also looked at water demand, light canopy, root biology, and how these played into nutrient uptake. Results of this project have played an integral part in informing new regulatory guidelines for nitrogen management in almond and pistachio in California.

PARTICIPATORY MODELING AND DECISION SUPPORT FOR IMPROVING SWEET POTATO PRODUCTION EFFICIENCY, QUALITY AND FOOD SAFETY (2009-51181-06071) Production and marketing trends in the last five years, generated by increasing public awareness of sweet potato's health attributes, point to a marked increase in domestic and international demand. Yet erratic yields and escalating costs of production have left many producers on the edge of profitability and vulnerable to adversity such as drought. In addition, producers must contend with huge variations in storage root yield, quality, disease, and storability. This project has improved sweet potato production efficiencies and contributed to sustainability of these operations. Specific goals met were the: development of a decision support system which optimizes yield under various growing environments; building a new understanding of storage root initiation and end rot infections; predicting vulnerable infection periods and refining application methods; establishing breeding nurseries to select germplasm with superior attributes for skinning resistance, bulk harvest and post harvest losses; and creating Crisis Communication Workbooks and Plans to aid producers in making informed decisions on food safety issues. Through on farm research and demonstrations, stakeholders and growers were included throughout the research process. This project has helped to ensure sweet potato producers can reduce yield variability, capitalize on expanding opportunities and remain profitable.

ENHANCING BIOLOGICAL CONTROL TO STABILIZE WESTERN ORCHARD IPM SYSTEMS (2008-51180-19560) This project will identify solutions to the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA) mandated reductions in organophosphate pesticide use. This change has destabilized IPM systems in use for decades in three high-value tree crops (apple, pear, and walnut) in the western US due to a lack of understanding on how these new chemicals affect natural enemies. The goal of this project is to ensure the sustainability of these crops by developing new biological control recommendations for insect and mite pests and educating growers and pest managers through outreach tools. The impact of this work will be a reduction in pesticide use, a decrease in costs and improved worker safety. The objectives are to study pesticide impacts on natural enemy populations, natural enemy phenology, natural enemy identification and monitoring, as well as to look at economic costs, the risks, and to conduct outreach. The project team successfully characterized the disruptive potential of seven pesticides used for management of codling moth and diseases on a set of natural enemies (NE) that contribute to the management of secondary pests in western apple, pear and walnut orchards; created models for these industries with precise information on when different NEs occur in the season; found the recombination of attractants can make more attractive and selective lures; and identified key predators in apple orchards, allowing the targeting of conservation efforts for these taxa. Economically, for every dollar spent on pesticides toxic to natural enemies in apple and pear an additional $0.52 and $0.47 (respectively) was required for control of secondary pests. Surveys also showed growers are willing to spend more to have ecologically and economically sound IPM programs. The project sponsored multiple educational opportunities, including a short course training classes, and developed educational materials.

AN INVASIVE MEALYBUG PEST AND AN EMERGING VIRAL DISEASE: A DANGEROUS MIX FOR WEST COAST VINEYARDS (2009-51181-06027)

California, Oregon and Washington wine grapes provide billions of dollars in revenue through sales and tourism. In recent years, the rapid expansion of grape industry in the region has increased virus disease problems. Leafroll disease (GLD) lowers crop yield and wine grape quality, jeopardizing the region's wine crop. The disease is caused by a complex group of viruses (GLRaVs) and mealybugs are a vector. This project will address basic questions on GLD epidemiology through studies on the virus(es) and vector(s) and will fill the gaps in our knowledge to mitigate the threat from mealybugs and GLD, including basic studies of biology, ecology and management, vector-pathogen relationships, and control measures for growers.

The team used surveys to document viruses infecting wine and juice grapes throughout the three state region, monitoring the spatial and temporal spread, identifying species and population peaks. In California, it was viewed that GLD should be managed in an area wide program. Study findings include: In California, five mealybug species are present in vineyards, whereas as in Oregon and Washington only the grape mealybug is prevalent; mealybug transmission time is less than one hour to transmit the virus, with a transmission efficiency range between 4-50%; 71% of the GLRaV-3 positive samples from Napa Valley came from 3 of the 7 variants identified; Virginia creeper leaf hopper can transmit GRBaV between grapevines; Grapevines with GRB symptoms show lower yield and lower sugar content in the berries; and spatio-temporal spread of GLD shows clean cuttings are vulnerable to infection if neighboring plants are infested. The team developed a multiplex PCR to test and identify the seven mealybug species found in North American vineyards and tested combinations of mating disruption and insecticides for the best control of two species of mealybugs. Fiscal Year 2014: A DIAGNOSTIC TOOLBOX FOR INTEGRATED MANAGEMENT OF POST HARVEST APPLE NECROTIC DISORDERS (2010-51181-21446)

Physiological disorders in apples during post harvest are often characterized by peeling or browning and can cause significant financial loss to the industry annually. These disorders currently have no controls that are consistent or practices which are accepted throughout the industry. This project will introduce an alternative control strategy which is based on diagnostic biomarkers. This approach will provide storage managers with effective tools, giving predictability and target-ability. This will better guide storage management and marketing decisions, providing quality assurance in the supply chain. Specifically, the team will develop cost effective metabolite and genetic biomarker-based tools that can predict, diagnose, and distinguish post harvest necrotic disorders. This will be a technology shift from treatment based apple storage to a management-based system similar to integrated pest management systems in orchards. The project will assure product implementation through outreach activities. Meeting project goals will reduce economic and environmental impacts while enhancing apple marketability, improving the fruit industry with new integrated storage management tools.

A SYSTEMS APPROACH TO MANAGING MICROBIAL THREATS TO GREENHOUSE TOMATOES (2010-51181-21415)

The goal of this project is to increase the competitiveness, profitability, safety, and sustainability of greenhouse tomato industry by improving food safety and disease management approaches. Nearly 40% of tomatoes sold in U.S. grocery stores are produced in greenhouses, and are valued for high quality and year-round availability. The greenhouse tomato industry identified disease management as its most serious production problem and better, more cost-effective disease management practices as its highest priority need. Priority diseases are bacterial canker, viroids, Pepino mosaic virus and Botrytis gray mold. Further, food borne human pathogens pose a significant risk to the industry at large. This project aims to use a systems approach, adapting elements of the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point system, to design Best Management Practices (BMPs) and develop tools that will improve the efficiency, profitability, safety and economic competitiveness of the greenhouse tomato industry. Large-, medium- and small-scale greenhouse tomato producers will benefit from the outputs of this project through increased awareness, understanding, and new technology to deal with tomato-associated human and plant pathogens. Efforts to prevent illnesses associated with fresh produce benefit society at large by encouraging confidence in produce safety and consumption of healthful products.

Determining the Roles and Limiting Factors Facing Native Pollinators in Assuring Quality Apple Production in Pennsylvania; A Model for the Mid-Atlantic Tree Fruit Industry (2010-51181-21346)

To truly address the threats to pollination there should be contingency plans that include the development of alternative pollinators and baseline data to measure future impacts on our native bees. Developing multiple tactics with multiple pollinator species represents the most robust management approach for a future of uncertain climate, environmental disruptions, and invasive species introductions. What is certain is that: a) the supply of honey bees in the U.S. will not be able to meet the demand for pollination services; b) that production costs for honey bees will go up; and c) that the cost to growers to rent honey bee hives will continue to increase. The economic impacts of pollinator shortages on US specialty crops could be considerable and for fruit growers have resulted in a 3 fold increase in the cost of renting hives. Rising costs combined with declining yields would lead to higher prices of US nuts, fruits and vegetables which would reduce exports of major commodities during a record US trade deficit. Another 3,500 non-Apis bee species in the US, however, are also important pollinators. These include bumble bees and many species of solitary bees which are collectively known as pollen bees. The value of pollen bees in US agriculture is conservatively estimated at $3 billion annually. The importance of native bees in the pollination of fruit in the Mid-Atlantic region has been underestimated due to our unique landscape ecology of agricultural and non-agricultural lands and the mosaic of diversified fruit and vegetable farms. These impart unique advantages in pollinator conservation and utilization compared to the monocultures of the Midwest or dry areas of the West. For most bee species, the paucity of long-term population data and our incomplete knowledge of even basic taxonomy, life history and ecology makes assessing their value and possible declines in some regions very difficult. Wild and managed species of pollen bees in many cases can supplement honey bees for pollination, and, in some situations, replace them. The National Research Council's Committee on the Status of Pollinators in North America (2007) issued a report assessing pollinators in North America. Our proposal addresses the NRC recommendations and long-term goals. Innovative Technologies and Process Optimization for Food Safety Risk Reduction Associated with Fresh and Fresh-cut Leafy Green Vegetables (2010-51181-21230)

Currently, no processing technology eliminates human pathogens without compromising quality. Industry critically needs tools to reduce pathogen levels and prevent cross-contamination during fresh-cut processing, and prevent pathogen proliferation in the supply chain. Significant reductions in pathogen contamination will reduce food-borne illness, restore consumer confidence in leafy greens, promote sustained industry growth, and, in the long term, improve public health by increasing fresh produce consumption. This project addresses these needs using a system-based approach to fresh-cut processing and retail display, considering both food safety and quality. The overall goal of this project is to reduce the risk of pathogen contamination on fresh-cut leafy greens.

A SMART TRAP SYSTEM FOR THE INVASIVE AMBROSIA BEETLES IN PRODUCTION NURSERIES (2010-51181-21169)

This project will develop a SMART trap as the cornerstone of an Integrated Pest Management program to combat the invasive Asian ambrosia beetle in commercial nurseries. Less than ten years ago, this destructive beetle was unknown, but currently ambrosia beetles threaten to destroy thousands of acres of existing trees and whole crops of ornamental plants. Most attacks by the beetles are fatal, but because current monitoring tactics do not provide producers with timely and accurate information to make management decisions, insecticides are over-applied with negligible impact on crop damage and loss. A SMART trap will be developed that has integrated sensors for beetle attraction, capture, identification, and confirmation as well as have time sequencing with alarm modes to transmit information wirelessly to SMART phone devices such as an iPhone or Blackberry PDA. Extension/outreach will provide on-site demonstrations and dissemination of research findings at local, regional, and national meetings of nursery growers. The information the SMART trap collects can help nurseries equipped with the traps to reduce crop loss, isolate spray locations, decrease the amount of spray used, reduce crop costs, and improve overall farm management. The SMART trap is still being refined and improved based on field data and will be placed in nurseries in spring 2012. The current version of the SMART trap is conveniently deployed in the field with minimal maintenance required. It possesses solar module supplies, a vertical array of LED lights, volatile attractant dispenser, mesh to filter larger insects, and timer for LED lights. Research and outreach efforts were made to the horticulture industry in Alabama and Ohio through grower meetings. Also, the project website, facebook and twitter accounts have project updates. Fiscal Year 2015: It is projected that approximately $75 million will be available, with approximately $24 million designated for the citrus research and extension program. The remaining funded projects will address one or more of the following legislatively mandated focus areas: (a) Research in plant breeding, genetics, and genomics to improve crop characteristics; (b) Efforts to identify and address threats from pests and diseases, including threats to specialty crop pollinators (c) Efforts to improve production efficiency, productivity, and profitability over the long term (including specialty crop policy and marketing); (d) New innovations and technology, including improved mechanization and technologies that delay or inhibit ripening; and (e) Methods to prevent, detect, monitor, control, and respond to potential food safety hazards in the production and processing of specialty crops, including fresh produce.

To establish a competitive grants program to provide funding for fundamental and applied research, extension, and education to address food and agricultural sciences.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved fundamental and applied research, extension and education objectives to address food and agricultural sciences. The competitive grants program shall address the following areas:

- A) Plant health and production and plant products;
- B) Animal health and production and animal products;
- C) Food safety, nutrition, and health;
- D) Renewable energy, natural resources, and environment;
- E) Agriculture systems and technology; and
- F) Agriculture economics and rural communities.

Funds shall not be used for the construction of a new building or facility or the acquisition, expansion, remodeling, or alteration of an existing building or facility (including site grading and improvement, and architect fees). Funds may not be used for any purposes other than those approved in the grant award documents. Funds shall not be used for the construction of a new building or facility or the acquisition, expansion, remodeling, or alteration of an existing building or facility (including site grading and improvement, and architect fees). Funds may not be used for any purposes other than those approved in the grant award documents. Indirect cost is not allowable if awarded as an equipment, conference, or post-doc fellowship grant. Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions' official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded. Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions: Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 30 percent pursuant to FY 2012 appropriated funds, Section 720 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2012 (Division A of Pub. L. 112-55), the awardee may request 15 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 30 percent. Fully discretionary.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: (A) AGRICULTURAL AND NATURAL RESOURCES SCIENCE FOR CLIMATE VARIABILITY AND CHANGE

For FY 2013, a single program, Climate Change Mitigation and Adaptation in Agriculture was competed for a total program budget of $6 million. In FY 2013 the program considered projects that involve one or more of the three functions; research, education and extension, that focus on adaptive management to weather and climate. Priority issues to be addressed include:

1. Understanding the Biophysical Basis for Adaptation.
2. Develop and Evaluate Tools and Management Practices to Aid Adaptation.
3. Social, Behavioral and Economics Aspects of Adaptive Management.

Funds totaling $28,392,521 were provided by AFRI to fund continuation awards made in 2010-2012.

(B) FOOD SECURITY:

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $22,995,748 was awarded in the Food Security Challenge Area. The Food Security Challenge Area included two programs that received a total of 91 applications. Three diverse peer review panels reviewed the submitted applications, and a total of 12 applications were funded. In addition, 22 continuing supplements were given to awards initially funded as continuation awards in previous years. Five conferences were awarded in one program that dealt exclusively with conferences and had a success rate of 20.8%. Seven integrated awards were funded in the other program with a success rate of 10.4%. The Food Security funds were used to support research, education, and extension efforts in the following areas: Conferences or Workshops on the topic of food security and large, integrated projects that covered topics relating to minimizing losses from the production of crops and livestock.

(C) FOOD SAFETY:

In FY 2013 there was a combined 2012/2013 Food Safety Challenge Area RFA released. Approximately $6 million were available to fund new awards from the combined RFA. In addition, $14,993,174 was available to fund continuation awards.

(D) SUSTAINABLE BIOENERGY:

For FY 2013, a modified RFA was released on January 24, 2013 and proposals were received by April 3, 2013. Seventeen AFRI Regional Bioenergy Feedstock Coordinated Agricultural Project (CAP) integrated proposals, 4 conference proposals, and 9 seed grant proposals were received and are being reviewed. A single CAP award was made to Colorado State University, along with 2 conference and one seed grant totaling $2 M. Funding for continuation awards, including 6 Sustainable Bioenergy, and the Loblolly Pine Genome Sequencing coordinated agricultural projects were made, totaling ~ $30 M. 6 Standard Research grants in the area of water implications of regional bioenergy systems totally $3 M were also made.

The AFRI Sustainable Bioenergy Program funded grants that target vital topical areas related to the development of regional systems for the sustainable production of bioenergy, biopower and biobased products. These programs will, where appropriate, align with existing Regional Bioenergy Coordinated Agricultural Projects (CAP) to promote NIFAs goal and mission of economic, environmental, and rural community sustainability.

Demand for biomass continues to increase as additional targets for heat, transportation fuels, power, and biobased products are realized. Current policies are designed to provide agricultural support, rural enhancement, reduced dependence on foreign sources of energy, climate change mitigation/adaptation, and environmental sustainability. Policy developments often are identified as drivers of production decisions in the biofuels and bioenergy industries. New policies will need to take into full account associated risks/uncertainties and unintended consequences of feedstock production systems on natural resource and ecosystem service sustainability. Research is not well developed around the implications of current and alternative regulatory policies, fuel and portfolio standards, market distorting and other production subsidies, tax credits, and agricultural assistance programs on both bioenergy and agricultural markets and production decisions, which are subject to further evaluations of environmental and other indirect effects.

To meet these identified needs, the long-term outcome for this program is to implement regional systems that materially deliver liquid transportation biofuels to help meet the Energy Independence and Security Act (EISA) of 2007 goal of 36 billion gallons/year of biofuels by 2022 and reduce the National dependence on foreign oil and, as appropriate, produce biopower and biobased products. Projects are expected to employ a systems approach to address the stated Program Area Priorities which collectively contribute to the achievement of the following goals:

1. Deployment of superior genotypes of regionally-appropriate dedicated energy crops.
2. Refinement and implementation of sustainable regional feedstock production practice.
3. Seamless feedstock logistics.
4. Scalable, sustainable conversion technologies that can accept a diverse range of feedstocks.
5. Regional marketing and distribution systems.

6. Regional sustainability analyses, data collection and management, and tools to support decision-making.
7. A well trained workforce with the capacity to fill the cross-disciplinary needs of the biofuels industry.

In FY 2010 and 2012 the NIFA solicitation resulted in the establishment of six Regional Bioenergy CAPs that focus on dedicated energy crops including energy cane, perennial grasses, sorghum, woody biomass, and oil crops (oilseeds and algae). These sustainable crops serve as feedstocks for the production of advanced non-ethanol, infrastructure-compatible fuels and biobased products through a systems-oriented approach that links feedstock development, production, logistics, conversion and markets. NIFA supports programs that are trans-disciplinary and integrate genetic crop development; sustainable agronomic and silvicultural practices; pest and beneficial species management; coordinated energy-efficient logistics; flexible and scaleable sustainable conversion and refining technologies; effective marketing and distribution systems; provide sustainable ecosystem services and rural community prosperity.

(E) NIFA FELLOWSHIP GRANT PROGRAM:

In FY 2013, NIFA received 351 proposals. 56 award recommendations were executed. The success rate for the program was ~14.8%. (D) SUSTAINABLE BIOENERGY:

For FY 2013:

In 2013 a seventh AFRI Regional Bioenergy CAP was awarded ($2M/yr. for five years on a continuation basis) to a consortium led by Colorado State University. This project is at the nexus of biofuel and biobased product production, climate change, ecosystem restoration and wildfire mitigation. Infestations of pine and spruce bark beetles have caused widespread mortality in coniferous forests in the Rocky Mountains over the past 15 years, with ~42 million acres of U.S. forests impacted since 1996, a trend is only likely to intensify with future global climate change. The resulting beetle-killed wood represents a vast, high-density bioenergy resource that requires no cultivation, circumvents food-versus-fuel concerns, and likely has a highly favorable carbon balance compared most other forestry systems due to the underlying disturbance to ecosystem carbon stocks and net productivity. Beetle-killed biomass is typically located far from urban industrial centers, in relatively inaccessible areas with challenging topography; thus harvest and transportation costs have been a key barrier to more widespread utilization of the resource. However, recent advances in mobile thermochemical conversion technologies are enabling the production of advanced liquid biofuel feedstocks and co-products on-site, thus bypassing this fundamental constraint. Cool Planet Energy Systems has been a driving force in this field, and their prototype pyrolysis system can be deployed deep within areas of beetle-killed timber. Their distributed small moveable biorefinery approach is one of few concepts that make the use of insect-damaged trees as feedstock plausible.

However, significant technical and knowledge barriers to the widespread deployment of such systems in beetle-disturbed forests still exist, and environmental footprints, social issues, and local policy constraints remain largely unexplored. This project, Sustainable biofuel feedstocks from beetle-killed wood: Bioenergy Alliance Network of the Rockies (BANR), will develop a comprehensive program to address the major challenges limiting utilization of insect-killed trees in the Rockies. Much of the project revolves around feedstock availability inventory and modeling, sustainable feedstock removal practices, and production, and use of the biochar co-product resulting from the gasification of biomass to ultimately produce drop-in hydrocarbon distillates that will function as advanced liquid transportation fuels. The project will undertake comprehensive economic, environmental, and social/policy assessment, and integrate all research results into a web-based user-friendly decision support system.

(E) NIFA FELLOWSHIP GRANT PROGRAM:

(F) CHILDHOOD OBESITY PREVENTION:

For FY 2013:

Get Fruved: A peer-led, train-the-trainer social marketing intervention to increase fruit and vegetable intake and prevent childhood obesity.

This project is an integrated approach combining research (process, formative, and outcome assessments incorporated into a theory based intervention design), education (the development and instruction of a multi-state, undergraduate health promotion course), and Extension (the development and testing of a 4-H health promotion program for students in college and high school 4-H groups led by Extension and 4-H faculty and staff).

We will develop simple interventions utilizing kids only coupons to encourage children to make healthier choices, and to understand how children consider price when making independent food purchase decisions.

Childhood Health & Obesity Initiative: Communities Engaged for Success.

The project will test the feasibility and effectiveness of an 8-week summer fitness & wellness program designed to address the social and environmental barriers that unique to low income families. Project objectives are to: 1) assess improvements in obesity risk factors (selected nutrition and physical activity behaviors) in intervention children compared to control group; 2) examine the changes in children's body image and self-concept in intervention children compared to control group; and 3) evaluate the long term (6 months) changes in behavior, attitudes and obesity risk factors and their sustainability beyond the timeframe of the program.

(I) PLANT FEEDSTOCK GENOMICS FOR BIOENERGY:

For FY 2013:

This was the seventh year of the joint USDA and DOE funding program. DOE's Office of Science provided $6 million in funding for five projects, while USDA's National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) awarded $2 million to fund two projects. Initial funding will support research projects for up to three years. The USDA and DOE projects are designed to improve crops to be grown for biofuels including selected trees and grasses by increasing their yield, quality and ability to adapt to extreme environments. Researchers will rely on the most advanced techniques of modern genomics to develop breeding and other strategies to improve the crops. The research will be conducted on switchgrass, poplar and pine, among other plants. The potential benefits of this research range from decreasing oil imports to increasing options for American farmers. Because these crops will be optimized to tolerate conditions such as drought and poor soils, they can be grown on marginal lands unsuitable for food crops, thereby avoiding competition with food production.

(H) ECOLOGY AND EVOLUTION OF INFECTIOUS DISEASES:

For FY 2014:

Final award recommendations are not finalized for FY 2014 and will be announced with a joint NSF, NIH, USDA, BBSRC press release in September 2014. USDA anticipates supporting one award in FY 2014 studying two Mycobacterial diseases. The USDA award is a joint US-UK Collaborative project with the USDA supporting the US research team and the UK-BBSRC funding the UK research team.

Approximately five (5) other awards are anticipated that will be funded by the other partners.

(I) PLANT FEEDSTOCK GENOMICS FOR BIOENERGY:

For FY 2014:

This was the eighth year of the joint USDA and DOE funding program. DOE's Office of Science provided $10.62 million in funding for eight projects, while USDA's National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) awarded $2 million to fund two projects. Initial funding will support research projects for up to three years. The USDA and DOE projects are designed to improve crops to be grown for biofuels including selected trees and grasses by increasing their yield, quality and ability to adapt to extreme environments. Researchers will rely on the most advanced techniques of modern genomics to develop breeding and other strategies to improve the crops. The research will be conducted on switchgrass, poplar, sorghum, Miscanthus, Camelina, and pennycress. The potential benefits of this research range from decreasing oil imports to increasing options for American farmers. Because these crops will be optimized to tolerate conditions such as drought and poor soils, they can be grown on marginal lands unsuitable for food crops, thereby avoiding competition with food production.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: Although there were no new awards in FY2013, 100 projects funded in prior years were still underway and producing results, for example:

A project in Pennsylvania is developing and deploying innovative educational programs and networking opportunities for new and beginning farmers, specifically targeting women farmers, but open to all.

A community-based organization in New Hampshire is assisting refugees and immigrants to build sustainable farm enterprises that are consistent with their culture and lifestyle aspirations, through outreach, training, and assistance.

A project in Texas is helping limited-resource Hispanic producers to successfully direct market their agricultural produce and products.

A non-profit organization is helping farm and ranch enterprises in Nebraska and South Dakota by providing land, skills, and education to beginning farmers and ranchers; estate and transition planning to retiring landowners; and by matching beginning producers who need land with retiring landowners who need a successor.

A project in the Western states providing classroom training and experiential learning for smaller-scale specialty crop and livestock producers, and for the non-profit partners who frequently support the production, marketing and networking that are so critical to the development of new or transitioning farm or ranch enterprises. Fiscal Year 2014: 64 projects funded in prior years are still underway and producing results, including those described above under FY 2013, plus a comprehensive clearinghouse at www.start2farm.gov, which includes projects, organizations, curriculum and other resources for beginning farmers and ranchers and for organizations and programs that serve them. Fiscal Year 2015: Similar projects serving beginning farmers and ranchers in a range of farming and ranching systems are expected in FY2015. By statute, at least 5% of funding will be used for projects that serve military veterans, and at least 5% for projects that serve limited-resource, socially-disadvantaged, or farm worker audiences.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The Ohio State University Agricultural Technical Institute (OSU ATI) developed an associate degree and certificate which emphasized education in a bioenergy process for 40 individuals (traditional and non-traditional students) thus having an impact on local and state economies across the country. Supplemented through another grant from NSF, the project met its goals successfully by: launching a high quality bioenergy workforce education program by developing 4 new courses and 2 of which were taught in 2012-2013 and another 2 were offered in Fall 2013 and Spring 2014. To date, 9 bioenergy students have fulfilled the internship and practicum requirements. These students worked in digester operation and construction to EPA report preparation to algae cultivation and oil extraction. The first cohort of students is expected to graduate from the program in Spring 2014 with practical experience to prepare them for the workforce. All students have access to ATIs growing network of industry professionals for potential employment placement at local energy companies, wastewater treatment plants, and research laboratories. Further, this project has made it possible for 6 Ohio State University faculty and providing 7 different professional development experiences that reached 77 high school educators, including a professional development workshop. OSU ATI also hosted a state-wide program for agri-science educators in which 13 participants participated in bioenergy tours, lectures, and laboratory sessions. As supplemented and enhanced through a companion NS Advanced Technological Education bioenergy grant, this project has published articles, created videos, attended conferences, and posted links to OSU ATIs Web site and other industry Web sites. Fiscal Year 2014: This program has not been funded since FY 2011. However, the award(s) have not

10.217 Higher Education Challenge Grants

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The consortium continues (e.g. First Quality of Anderson, SC, and Abitibi Bowater of Catawba, SC) producing skilled workers, specifically in the pulp and paper industry, in their respective rural service areas. The consortium has developed innovative programs to meet the new technological requirements of a paper manufacturing workforce which contributes to global competitiveness of these two rural-based companies, economic development of the distressed region, and advance the quality of applied research in this area. The customized pulp and paper manufacturing technology hybrid curriculum has created a highly skilled workforce for pulp and paper manufacturing and bio-energy and improved information-sharing capacity in this subject area, a NIFA priority for these rural communities; thus, advancing both the industry and the economy simultaneously.

In June 2012, 31 attendees participated in a conference co-sponsored by the partners in pulp and paper industries. Associate degree and certificate programs have been offered and are replicated by businesses and organizations across the country. Eight students participated in the Phase I Certificate program; 20 students and employees gained employment with Resolute Forest Products. There were 149 training topics for over 36,000 hrs to the industry client. Nine Pulp and Paper industry client employees are now enrolled in related courses. About 300 new hires at the pulp and paper industry. Furthermore, the Apprenticeship Program is enhanced and principal curriculum has been developed at both colleges of YTC and TCTC. Equipment has been ordered for upgrade to relevant industry laboratory training equipment.

In another funded project, American regulatory structures and innovative U.S. companies are developing and advancing biogas plants and infrastructure. The institution collaborating with the companies has produced high school appropriate labs, a demonstration video and supporting power point lectures to reach out to high school students and educators. The project is bringing greater public, educator, and student attention to and knowledge of bio-energy production as a sustainable energy source and waste management strategy with multiple industry applications.

The conference on bio-energy stimulated interest and increased networking in disseminating current information and knowledge about the field of bio-energy opportunities even in upstate NY region. This region anticipates creating a bio-energy consortium for students, employees and the community. Fiscal Year 2014: This program has not been funded since FY 2011. However, the award(s) have not yet reached Statutory Time Limit. Hence, NIFA does not wish to archive this CFDA Program. Fiscal Year 2015: This program has not been funded since FY 2011. However, the award(s) have not yet reached Statutory Time Limit. Hence, NIFA does not wish to archive this CFDA Program.

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Subtitle C of Title 1 of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act of 2002 (Public Law 107-210), amended the Trade Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-618) establishing the Trade Adjustment Assistance for Farmers (TAAF) program. The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA) (Public Law 111-5) reauthorizes and amends the TAAF Program to provide both technical assistance and cash benefits to eligible producers of raw agricultural commodities and fishermen impacted by increased imports contributing to a specific decrease in the national average price, or quantity of production, or value of production of, or cash receipts for the agricultural commodity or fishery products compared to the average of the three (3) preceding marketing years. ARRA amendments to the TAAF program add certain classes of fisherman, increase the reporting requirements and overall transparency of the program, clarify eligibility determinations and associated processes, and clarify the roles and responsibilities of the applicants and the Federal partners., Public Law 107-210, 19 U.S.C 2401-2401g.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the TAAF program is to provide U.S. agricultural producers whose commodities have been certified as affected by imports, and who have been approved through individual application, with the knowledge, skills and tools needed to make adjustments to their operations, business plans, marketing plans for their operations, with the goal of enhancing farm profitability and ability to adjust to imports. Producers of commodities certified by the USDA Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) and who meet the eligibility requirements by USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) are eligible for TAAF program participation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

General Uses:

Through this RFA NIFA requests applications for the TAAF Training Coordination Program to establish a National TAAF Training Coordination Center responsible for the development and delivery of training and technical assistance to TAAF-eligible producers for business planning, diversification of enterprises, marketing, and other beneficial subjects as needed to aid producers in adjusting to the impact of imported commodities. The National TAAF Training Coordination Center will design and administer the training requirements of TAAF, develop communications regarding TAAF training and technical assistance, and comply with reporting requirements as described under Part I(B) and in Part VI(D). The successful National TAAF Training Coordination Program applicant will enter into a cooperative agreement with NIFA for establishment of the National TAAF Training Coordination Center to coordinate and implement the training and technical assistance component of the TAAF program under section 296(b) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2401e). Please be advised that the following components of the TAAF program will be administered by FAS/FSA: certification of agricultural commodities eligibility certifications, approval of applications for cash benefits, and payments to implement business plans.

FAS, NIFA, FSA, and the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) will all be involved in the TAAF outreach effort. FAS has established a website for TAAF which is now linked to USDA, FSA, NIFA, AMS websites and can be found at: <http://www.fas.usda.gov/ITP/TAA/taa.asp>. Implementing regulations governing the TAAF program (including specific requirements for the provision of training and technical assistance) are expected to be published shortly in the Federal Register (as a Final Rule).

TAFS Codes:

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: As of May 2013, additional 596 producers of catfish, asparagus, shrimp, lobster, and blueberries had completed the required 12 or more hours of intensive training; 668 more had completed their initial business plans, and 1,410 had completed their long-term business adjustment plan and are implementing those plans. This represents 8,987 intensive training, 8922 initial business plans, and 8076 long-term business adjustment plans completions. Fiscal Year 2014: NIFA anticipated a total of 1,373 producers of catfish, asparagus, shrimp, lobster, and blueberry producers who have remained in the Trade Adjustment Assistance for Farmers program since their eligibility was confirmed would complete all four phases of the training and technical assistance on schedule in the remainder of FY2013 and in FY2014.

Of the 10,983 eligible producers, 90% completed the initial orientation and 93% completed intensive training. Of these, almost all (100%) submitted an acceptable initial business plan. Then 95% of participating producers worked with business planning consultants to complete a business adjustment plan. Overall, 88% of the producers initially approved for TAAF completed all program requirements. This is a prodigious completion rate considering the large number of eligible producers, their diverse demographics, and the big difference in financial incentives between 2010 and 2011.

In the one-year follow up evaluation, about 90% of the producers reported they still participate in producing their commodity. About 74% of the producers indicated that their satisfaction with their business had improved, and 78% made their business more efficient as a result of participating in TAAF. While 64% of TAAF participants rated their experience as favorable or extremely favorable in initial evaluations, in the one-year follow up, 95% rated the program worth their time and 75% would participate in the program again if offered in the future.

The economic stimulus objectives of TAAF were unique for an Extension program. TAAF financial assistance payments had multiple objectives: to entice producer participation, to offset producer surplus loss, to provide financial assistance for producers to invest in their business, and to use TAAF as an economic stimulus program to meet ARRA objectives. The majority of the TAAF participants indicated that they used the financial assistance to invest in needed changes in business operations, purchase equipment to make their business more efficient, or expand their business operations. For 3,339 reporting producers, the average estimated financial impact was $17,151 with a standard deviation of $20,531.

The ARRA also had the objective to increase employment. Not all TAAF participants hire workers, but 1,448 producers were able to retain workers they might have had to furlough, and 424 producers hired additional workers as a result of the TAAF program. These participants were able to retain 3,430 workers and hire 1,085 additional workers. Furthermore, TAAF supported the retention and hiring of Extension educators and business planning consultants.

Extension programs are increasingly being challenged to deliver high impact programs across ethnically and socially diverse audiences using a multitude of education technologies with competitive grant funding. The TAAF program presents a model for future Extension program delivery. Not only did it successfully achieve typical Extension outcomes at a national scale, it also provided a positive example that linking program payments to education is more economically efficient than direct payments alone. TAAF may be the first Extension program that directly linked education achievement to government program payments. TAAF provided over $65 million in financial assistance to help producers adjust to import competition. This financial assistance was tied to business education that targeted improved production efficiency and profitability and was used by participants primarily to invest in their businesses. By using the Extension education system as a policy tool tied to producer financial assistance, we anticipate the gains from this economic stimulus will have greater longer-term impacts compared to a simple spending transfer payment. Overall TAAF was highly effective in meeting its legislative objectives of educating producers to adjust to import competition and to provide economic and employment stimulus. TAAF demonstrates that the Extension system can have major impacts in a rapidly changing economy and can deliver a major outreach program at a national level.

The TAAF program as designed was dependent on the Extension system of Risk Management Education Centers and Extension specialists across the nation to provide curriculum development and delivery. During the planning phase there was great uncertainty which commodities would be TAAF eligible. The Extension system was essential to design and deliver commodity-specific curriculum within the legislatively mandated time constraints. TAAF provided a unique opportunity to evaluate Extension delivery methods. The effectiveness of online program delivery was a major unknown, but the program demonstrated a 58% online completion rate, with 54% highly rating AgPlan, and an increase from 37% to 55% in preference for receiving training online. Despite the relatively older age, lower educational attainment, and potential language barriers of participants, online delivery was highly effective. Fiscal Year 2015: Trade Adjustment Assistance for Farmers sunsets September 30, 2014. There are no projected FY2015 expenses, however additional accomplishment reports may be forthcoming as a result of extensive program evaluation efforts that continue.

10.318 WOMEN AND MINORITIES IN SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, ENGINEERING, AND MATHEMATICS FIELDS

WAMS; Women and Minorities in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics Fields (STEM) program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 7204 of the Food Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (FCEA) (Public Law 110-246) amends section 1672 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 (FACT) (7 U.S.C. 5925) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to make competitive grants to support research and extension activities. The Secretary shall make these grants in consultation with the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education, and Economics Advisory Board.

OBJECTIVES:

The Women and Minorities (WAMS) in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) Fields program was authorized to increase participation by women and underrepresented minorities from rural areas in the fields of science, technology, engineering and mathematics, with priority given to eligible institutions that carry out continuing programs funded by the Secretary. The goal of the WAMS program is to develop and implement robust partnerships to increase the representation, participation, and entrepreneurship of women in STEM careers, thereby contributing to national economic prosperity. The purpose of the grant program is to support projects that: Provide STEM knowledge, skills and competency to Women and Minorities from Rural Areas with successful placement (a) in the workforce in STEM fields, or (b) as innovators and entrepreneurs adding value to the STEM fields in areas that have relevancy to the USDA Secretarys priorities.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved fundamental and applied research and extension grants to increase participation by women and underrepresented minorities from rural areas in the fields of science, technology, engineering and mathematics, with priority given to eligible institutions that carry out continuing programs funded by the Secretary. Program funds may only be used for research and extension activities in the training, outreach and mentoring of rural women and underrepresented minorities from rural areas in STEM fields relevant to USDA mission.

Funds may not be used for any purposes other than those approved in the grant award documents.

Funds made available for grants in this program shall not be used for scholarship or fellowship purposes, the construction of a new building or facility or the acquisition, expansion, remodeling, or alteration of an existing building or facility (including site grading and improvement, and architect fees).

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (P.L. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions:

Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardees' indirect costs are capped at 30 percent pursuant to FY 2012 appropriated funds, Section 720 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2012 (Division A of Pub. L. 112-55), the awardee may request 15 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 30 percent. Fully discretionary.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: For the FY 2013 award cycle, $353,074 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

The WAMS Grant Program provides funding that may be used for research and extension activities in the training, outreach and mentoring of women and underrepresented minorities from rural areas in STEM fields relevant to USDA mission. It is an expectation that investment of public funds through the WAMS Grant Program will lead to:

- gains in STEM knowledge, skills and capabilities, as well as new participants in USDA science mission through outreach activities, new careers or entrepreneurial enterprise;
- increased documentation of outputs, significant activities, including dissemination activities, events, services or products that contribute toward achieving the goals and objectives of WAMS;
- increased change in knowledge, actions or conditions; and,

Increased capacity for carrying out the USDA mission by rural women and underrepresented minorities.

Eleven (11) out of twenty-four (24) applications submitted met the WAMS RFA requirements satisfactorily to be panel reviewed. The total amount requested was $2,149,234.00. Based on the availability of funding, only the top two applications were funded.

The SELF (Sustainable Energy Leaders of the Future) Summer Institute was a great success and is planned to resume in Summer 2015. The 10 female high school sophomores from predominantly rural Maine attended the 3-day experience with the following highlights: successful recruitment, retention and ongoing relationships and contact with this group into the next school year; students broadened understanding of engineering and forest bio-product research as possible education and career paths; a 3-day experience would turn into a week-long experience strengthening connections with each other and with the counselors; student presentations demonstrated synthesis of key program concepts and applied research experience during the SELF Summer Institute. Conclusions: SELF program demonstrated early success in recruiting girls from rural areas and increasing their self-reported interest in STEM education and careers. SELF program increased student understanding of the elements in the applied research and its relationship to solving real-world problems. Further, this program demonstrated early success in increasing student understanding of the forest as a source for research and development of new products. And, the parents comments were very complimentary about this program for their daughters. Fiscal Year 2014: In FY 2014 award cycle, $383,550.00 was available for project awards. Three projects are on the process to be awarded. Fiscal Year 2015: There are no funds available for this program on 2015 budget proposal for NIFA. Pertinent data will be provided by Program at a future date.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The purpose of this project is to engage, mentor and prepare female high school students from rural communities in cutting-edge Forest BioProducts (FBP) research programs at the University of Maine (UMaine). This project will pair each high school sophomore participant in a mentorship relationship with a female undergraduate enrolled in a STEM degree program at UMaine. Starting in their sophomore year, high school students from active 4-H programs in rural Maine Counties will create their own research projects in sustainable Forest Management and the highly interdisciplinary and emerging field of Forest BioProducts. The sophomores will attend an intensive 3 day SELF institute at UMaine in the Spring, followed by regular meetings during each semester in the field with their 4-H leaders, at UMaine, or connecting with their undergrad mentors online. Fiscal Year 2014: For FY 2014: Potentially three (3) awards will be made, total amount is $383,550. Fiscal Year 2015: There are no funds available for this program on 2015 budget proposal

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: This project will maintain and expand the national, publicly available online farm financial database that any U.S. producer can use for benchmarking and improving their farm management. It will improve the profitability and competitiveness of small and mid-sized U.S. farms and ranches by developing and providing benchmarking resources using high-quality farm financial management data. To develop and expand this database, increased collaboration between existing state-level farm management associations and farm and ranch business management education programs will be facilitated. Benchmarking is an important and growing tool used to improve producer's abilities to successfully manage the high risk and price volatility currently being experienced by farmers and ranchers throughout the U.S. This project will provide benchmarking capabilities to help producers manage risk, volatility and financial stress. Numerous researchers have indicated a desire to use the national farm financial benchmarking database to conduct research on cost of production, key determinants of farm profitability, and analyses of farm policy proposals. In conjunction with the national database, this project will develop a statistical tool that will allow researchers to conduct research without compromising the confidentiality of individual producer data. Benchmarking allows producers to compare their performance to farms and ranches of similar size that produce the same products. The benchmarking database helps producers identify their businesses strengths and weaknesses. The national database will be publicly available to all U.S. producers. Use of the database for benchmarking will improve producers' abilities to successfully manage risk and financial challenges and to become more globally competitive.

Examples of funded projects are:

1. Expand Land-grant Universities and Cooperative Extension collaborative partnerships with farm management associations and farm business management education programs. To date, over 3,100 farms for the 2013 analysis year have been added to FINBIN from 5 participating states. Piloted sites include analysis data contributed by private groups.
2. Cooperative Extension and Land-grant Universities provide training, assistance, and software to states with farm management associations to facilitate uniform financial procedures and software with collaborators in five states. Continue to develop and support methods to streamline data entry from accounting systems
3. Develop a 15 state collaboration and submitted 3,239 farm financial analyses to the National Farm Benchmarking Database. Each of the farms that submitted their financial summaries also received individualized review and analysis of their farm/ranch operations. In addition, the regional and/or state summary data has been presented at multiple local, regional and state meetings where additional producers, agricultural lenders and agribusiness leaders can access and utilize the summary reports.

4. Detailed survey of existing strategic management tools available from private and public sources or authors and accessible on various platforms. Particular focus was placed on assessing the types of performance indicators produced and the type of data required. Tools focusing on supporting dairy herd management were reviewed. Project staff met with a small set of small and medium scale dairy farm managers to establish their current practices in monitoring performance. The project has benefited from insights drawn from these interviews and meetings by establishing a firm foundation for design of a decision support tool. An initial linear programming model was developed to provide support for feed management decisions. The model was designed to be light on data requirements and to provide indicators of both herd level profits and environmental effects of decisions. The project is continuing summer and fall of 2013 to develop this model and provide access to it to a set of cooperating farm managers.

5. This project will work with organic producers to further develop organic benchmarking and production cost reports, and work with organic producer organizations to help organic producers understand how to benchmark their farms with the organic farms in the national FINBIN farm financial database. Fiscal Year 2014: FBMB Review Panel recommended four awards; these will not be announced until the USDA/NIFA Awards Management Division makes awards. Fiscal Year 2015: Not available until awards are made. Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: For the FY 2013 award cycle: $610,059 (or $93,750 available for each DEG award) and $849,959 (or $98,750-$106,250 available for each RIIA award) for a total of $1,460,018 for the following Insular Areas: the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Republic of Palau, and the Virgin Islands of the United States.

In FY 2013, the DEG and RIIA applications that received awards were consortia of the eight Insular Areas each. Both DEG and RIIA consortia awards received the ceiling amounts for each program. In May 2013, applications for both programs RIIA and DEG were evaluated by a 5-member combined programs peer review panel comprising Federal Government employees.

Applications submitted to this grants program must state how the funded project will address the DEG/RIIA Programs Goals:

1. To increase the number and diversity of students who will pursue and complete a 2- or 4-year postsecondary degree in the food and agricultural sciences, or other STEM fields closely related to the food and agricultural sciences, and for FY 2012, encourage study in areas that contribute to any of the five NIFA Priority Areas listed directly above in Part I, A; and
2. To enhance the quality of postsecondary instruction in order to help meet current and future national food and agricultural sciences workplace needs.

Since 2005 when the Resident Instruction in the Insular Areas was first provided through USDA NIFA, students selecting food and agricultural sciences and related sciences majors increased. For example, at the College of Micronesia-FSM, the student enrollment and graduation increased over twenty times. One concern has remained outstanding and that is the preparedness of the agriculture teachers in the public school system. During 2013, an effort has been initiated to address this concern. In January 2014, a project was started in which one teaching intern was attached with agriculture instructors at each of the 4 campuses of the COM-FSM system where agriculture programs are taught. The purpose was the interns assist the instructors, tutor students and provide recruitment in the high schools while being mentored in teaching techniques and encouraged to continue on the University in a program leading to them returning to FSM to teach agriculture in the school system. At least the first two objectives have been accomplished. Initial data indicate that there is again an increase in enrollment for FY 2015 and of the 4 interns all 4 are continuing their studies. Two of the interns have been accepted at the University of Guam agriculture program, one has been accepted to the University of Hawaii, Hilo and the fourth is continuing to his fourth year accreditation under UOG/COM-FSM partnership degree in education a COM-FSM national campus. Four new interns will be starting their training in January 2014.

The Distance Education Grant program serves the same education priority as RIIA except DEG also acquires the necessary equipment, networking capability, hardware and software, digital network technology, and infrastructure necessary to teach and reach students and teachers about technology in the classroom. The capacity of prospective students to access online education continues to grow which will allow students to obtain an education at lower cost and with great convenience. It is incumbent that each of the consortium members invests time and resources in preparing faculty, developing the infrastructure, and creating the external relationships to ensure success in the delivery of distance education. Faculty hired for traditional classroom delivery require assistance in making the paradigm shift to online education and the infrastructure has to be sufficiently robust to reduce technical problems that re discouraging to students and faculty. The aim is to build stronger connections among institutions. Fiscal Year 2014: For the Fiscal Year 2014 award cycle: $767,778 was available for DEG project awards and about $900,000 for RIIA project awards. DEG and RIIA have 6 projects each in the process to be awarded. Fiscal Year 2015: For FY 2015 the proposed budget of $1.8m will consolidate RIIA and DEG program into Grants for Insular Areas Program. Further, in the hope to continue building capacity across two oceans, DEG and RIIA RFAs request regular applications only. This will certainly empower institutional ownership and responsibility since 2005 in managing its own budget in furthering educational needs based on local culture, human and natural resources.

10.308 Resident Instruction Grants for Insular Area Activities

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The overall purpose of this project is to provide excellent higher education in Agriculture and Food Science, within the Insular Areas, to meet the evolving needs of a global society through these program goals: (1) to increase the number of graduates with a degree in the food and agricultural sciences and (2) helps students achieve their career goals and help meet workplace needs by increasing the quality of undergraduate instruction and (3) acquire the equipment, networking capability, hardware and software, digital network technology, and infrastructure necessary to teach students and teachers about technology in the classroom. We develop activities that are mutually beneficial to members of the group. Distance education for the Consortium institutions is a key strategy for fulfilling our mission. The capacity of prospective students to access online education continues to grow which will allow students to obtain an education at lower cost and with greater convenience. It is incumbent that each of the consortium members invests time and resources in preparing faculty, developing the infrastructure, and creating the external relationships to ensure success in the delivery of distance education. Faculty hired for traditional classroom delivery require assistance in making the paradigm shift to online education and the infrastructure has to be sufficiently robust to reduce technical problems that are discouraging to students and faculty. In conclusion, we aim to build stronger connections among institutions.. Fiscal Year 2014: This project will be the first step in bringing an online degree program in agriculture to the University of the Virgin Islands and the local community by establishing the feasibility of the proof of concept. An online degree program in agriculture would provide the bridge needed between the experiential components of the Universitys Agriculture Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service and the academic component of the University. The proof of concept has the potential to extend to a target audience far beyond just students of the University of the Virgin Island and the Caribbean but to students at other insular area institutions as well. The end product of this project will be a document that provides the necessary data to establish that a demand exists and it is feasible for the University to offer an online degree program in agriculture. The intended outcome is to have a document that enables data driven decisions with regard to the pursuit of developing and implementing an online degree program. It is also anticipated this project will establish base line data for the online degree program in agriculture. Anecdotal evidence suggests student demand exists and there is a need within the community for such a program. Fiscal Year 2015: The proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2015 is $1.8 million for the consolidated RIIA and DEG Grants for Insular Areas Program. Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: In FY 2013, AAEP developed Model Training Farms in all four provinces where it is working (Kabul, Herat, Balkh, and Nangarhar). These have been used for hands-on trainings, field days, and a means to demonstrate new technologies. Farmer Field Schools have been expanded in each province. The Women In Agriculture component has 18 of these in the Kabul area. Work groups have been established around cereals, fruits, vegetables, livestock, postharvest, and other topics to share expertise within and between provinces. A storage bag technology has been introduced and more than 10,000 bags have been produced and distributed in-country to more effectively store grains, seeds and other products. Other trainings carried out focused on such topics as soil sampling, conservation agriculture, transplanting of vegetable seedlings, Integrated Pest Management, greenhouse production, pruning fruit trees, wheat cultivation, composting, and others. In addition to such technical areas, considerable effort has been made to build agents effectiveness with trainings in leadership, communication, grant writing, etc. Fiscal Year 2014: Training workshops related to priority needs will continue in the initial four provinces where AAEP is working. Due to demand from neighboring provinces, AAEP is expanding into an additional 13 provinces in FY 2014. The development of inter-provincial working groups will be strengthened so that Afghanistan can build a network of expertise within their own country. As USDA and NIFA transition out of this project, AAEP will continue to work closely with USAID as there are plans for the universities to continue their activities for an additional three years. USDA's participation in this project, however, will end September 30, 2014. To date in FY 2014, the following accomplishments have already been achieved: more than 600 Farmer Field Schools and 900 Farmer Field Demos at the district and village levels have been developed; 37 work groups around such areas as vegetables, wheat, livestock health, etc., were established, bringing together extension staff with university faculty, NGOs and the private sector; extension personnel trained through the project have gone on to train more than 6,000 farmers; 290 women have been trained in such areas as vegetable production, food processing, nutrition, and food safety... Fiscal Year 2015: This phase of the project, and NIFA's involvement in it, will end on September 30, 2014. Therefore, there are no projected activities/accomplishments in FY 2015.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The Afghanistan Agricultural Extension Project (AAEP) is not a typical NIFA grants program that receives applications and makes awards to other institutions or organizations. There are many project activities implemented in Afghanistan, but they are all carried out by the university consortium using the initial funding.

Actual FY 2013 Activities:

Funding was provided to Afghan extension personnel, farmer associations and other organizations to establish working groups in several provinces. Small grants (up to $5,000) were awarded to establish 15 working groups around such subject areas as fruits & vegetables, cereal crops, livestock, women in agriculture, etc.

Project resources were devoted to developing Provincial Model Training Farms (PMTF) in four Afghan provinces (funding went for cost of labor, hoop houses, irrigation, tools, small farm machinery, etc.). 184 technical trainings were carried out by U.S. and Afghan extension staff at these PMTFs (funding was primarily for travel and salary for trainers and per diem for trainees).

AAEP supported the establishment of 38 Farmer Field Schools. Fiscal Year 2014: Estimated FY 2014 Activities:

AAEP supported an additional Provincial Model Training Farm (PMTF) in Badam Bagh province and three smaller PMTFs in Badakshan, Jowzjijan, and Kunar provinces.

AAEP provided funding to establish an additional 43 Farmer Field Schools for a total of 81 since the project began.

The project carried out an additional 135 trainings at PMTFs (for a total of 319 to date).

Thirteen additional work groups were established with support from small grants awarded to Afghan entities by AAEP, bringing the total to 28. Fiscal Year 2015: Projected FY 2015

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: For FY 2013, produced a replicable academic model between career/technical centers and four year higher education institutions that creates seamless matriculation through collaborative instruction, peer mentoring, and articulation agreements. The project also leverages on-going economic initiatives toward agricultural science business and development opportunities, expanding the growing need for employees with this knowledge base. Further, the project will increase the availability of business coaching, education, networking, technical resources and community economic development in the agricultural sciences industries. The outcome of the project will be increased rates of high school graduation, college application and enrollments in Natural Resource Management programs, college retention, and science proficiency of career/technical center students. The outreach outcome will include an increased number of business starts and economic developments in the agricultural sciences, combined with increased knowledge of the industry, resources and opportunities. The economic outreach will lead to increased jobs in the agriculture sciences industry.

Create an online masters degree in alternative agriculture systems while providing outreach focused on topics needed by non-traditional farm operators, and discovery of research questions that apply to problem solving for this same group. Eight, new, online, masters-level courses will be created, complimenting some existing courses for this degree, to provide holistic coverage of topics in demand by non-traditional farm operators. The online format will ensure delivery to a diverse range of student populations. This project will impact hundreds of non-traditional farm operators through the masters program, and several thousand farm operators through outreach activity. The research activity stemming from this project has potential to impact agricultural production and contribute to agricultural science.

Increase the number and diversity of students entering agricultural-related science, technology, engineering, and mathematics disciplines and to address the USDA-documented expertise shortage in "Integrative Biosciences for Sustainable Food and Agricultural Systems" and "Sciences for Agricultural Biosecurity and Climate Change". To address this need, we propose to enhance our newly established graduate training Program in Agricultural Sustainability and Biosecurity (PASB) and to establish a undergraduate analog. The Guiding Principles and Specific Objectives of the PASB are to: 1) Recruit 30 top-notch students, at least a third of which are from under-represented groups, to meet the challenges of agricultural sustainability and biosecurity in the 21st century. 2) Implement an innovative, interdisciplinary, interdepartmental, and interinstitutional research and academic program that offers significant elective flexibility to meet the career needs of students. 3) Enhance the knowledge and pedagogical skills of faculty and advisors to better carry out teaching, research and outreach activities in the agricultural sciences. 4) Provide students with the analytical, problem-solving, communication, and leadership skills necessary to be successful in a globally-interconnected, technologically-advanced, and rapidly diversifying and changing work environment. 5) Provide a scholarly atmosphere in which students address interdisciplinary questions and work in teams toward the development of sustainable and safe agroecosystem practices. 6) Provide students with internship, research, teaching, and outreach opportunities that will enhance their leadership, problem-solving, and communication skills. 7) Provide an increased number of workforce-ready and globally-competitive graduates in the food and agricultural sciences, which is the measurable impact of this proposal.

1) Acquire a TruMac N Macro Determinator that measures total nitrogen (N) in both tissue and liquid samples for NUE evaluation, 2) Evaluate 242 sorghum landraces for nitrogen use efficiency (NUE) based on total biomass yield (NUE1) and grain yield (NUE2) with participation by graduate, undergraduate and high school students, 3) Cross selected varieties to produce germplasm materials that are even more N-efficient than the parents. The final goal is to generate N-efficient sorghum germplasm materials which will be made available to plant breeders and other researchers. Fiscal Year 2014: Due to Farm Bill implementation, this program was announced late and has a closing date of September 5, 2014. It is anticipated that new awards will be made in the Spring of 2015. Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date. Fiscal Year 2015: Funding is not anticipated for FY 2014. No Projected Data Available. Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date.

10.327 COMMON BEAN PRODUCTIVITY RESEARCH FOR GLOBAL FOOD SECURITY COMPETITIVE PROGRAM

Bean Productivity Research

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Economy Act, 31 U.S.C 1535; Consolidated Appropriations Act 2010, Public Law 111-117; Section 632(a) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, 22 U.S.C 2151.

OBJECTIVES:

To develop approaches and/or methods that can address challenges to common bean production among small holder producers in food insecure countries.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

In collaboration with and using funding provided by the U.S. Agency for International Development, NIFA is seeking research proposals to develop approaches and/or methods to address challenges to common bean production among smallholder producers. Applications are being solicited for the BPR under the following areas:

- (1) Reducing Production Constraints from Soil Borne Pathogens: Soil borne pathogen pressure on common bean is a significant constraint to production. Such pathogens and associated root rots already reduce production in areas with high rainfall. As rainfall increases, as is expected around the equatorial zone in Africa, in particular East Africa, pathogen-related production constraints may become even more limiting.
- (2) Improving Transformation Technologies in Common Bean: Although success in transforming common bean has been limited to date, it is a promising strategy to address key production constraints. Developing and/or improving the methodologies and approaches necessary to efficiently transform this recalcitrant species is necessary to removing roadblocks to transformation. Grant funds may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

The applicant should use the current negotiated indirect cost rate established (i.e., approved) by its cognizant Federal agency. If the applicant does not have a current negotiated rate, the applicant should request a rate from the Federal agency from which the applicant receives the most funding. Fully discretionary.

Fiscal Year 2013: NOTE:
This program represents a Reimbursable Agreement with one (1) year funding. Some projects have FY 2016 expiration dates.

There were no newly funded projects. However, the following represents on-going activities for FY 2013:

Development of transgenic beans for broad-spectrum resistance against fungal diseases is to establish a reproducible and efficient common bean transformation protocol using A. tumefaciens. Regeneration potential of thirty elite bean cultivars has been screened, representing the pinto, great northern, and light red kidney beans that are commercially used for grain production. This screen has identified several elite lines as candidates for Agrobacterium based transformation. Bean cultivars Shadow, Frigate, Matterhorn, Marquis,

Beryl-R, Coyne, Weihing, Harris, Merlot, Viva, Ensign, Othello and Cal Early were selected for the screening of infection potential of three Agrobacterium strains. Preliminary infection data indicate that six cultivars are suitable for transformation experiments. A reliable common bean transformation system offers avenues for quick and targeted development of the next generation of improved genotypes able to mitigate negative effects of diseases, drought and other adverse growing conditions. Fiscal Year 2014: NOTE:

This program represents a Reimbursable Agreement with one (1) year funding, some projects have FY 2016 expiration dates .

There were no newly funded projects. However, the following represents on-going activities for FY 2014:

The genetic and phenotypic characterization of pathogen isolates collected in bean producing regions of Uganda and Rwanda will elucidate the population diversity of major pathogenic forms, and identify specific isolates for screening breeding populations derived from interspecific crosses between P. vulgaris x coccineus, P. acutifolius, and P. dumosus under controlled conditions at CIAT; Promising materials will be tested under field conditions in natural hot spots in Uganda and Rwanda; RNA seq. of root and hypocotyl tissue of resistant and susceptible genotypes inoculated with individual and multiple pathogens would be conducted in combination with QTL studies on recombinant inbred line populations to identify genomic regions contributing to resistance. The wider impact strategy of the CIAT/Pan-Africa Bean Research Alliance (PABRA) will also be used to deliver integrated root rot management options to farmers in Rwanda and Uganda.

Additionally small rural farm households in the East African highlands are being targeted for Biochar development and use. These households are generally not self sufficient in the staple crops of maize and beans, because of their inability to afford fertilizer inputs, continuous cropping on shrinking landholdings, degraded and infertile soils and a concomitant decline in overall system productivity. Students and farmers are being brought on board. Fiscal Year 2015: NOTE:

This program represents a Reimbursable Agreement with one (1) year funding. Some projects have FY 2016 expiration dates.

There were no newly funded projects. However, the following represents projected on-going activities for FY 2015:

On-going developments in Common Bean resistance to pathogens in the East Africa context. Improvements in Common Bean cropping systems and germplasm are projected.

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2014 (H.R. 3547) provided NIFA with funding for competitive grants programs authorized under section 406 of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7626), including the Crop Protection and Pest Management Program. These funds are available to support integrated, multifunctional agricultural research, extension, and education activities. Subject to the availability of appropriations to carry out this program, the Secretary may award grants to colleges and universities (as defined by section 1404 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) (7 U.S.C. 3103)), as amended, on a competitive basis for projects that address priorities in United States agriculture and involve integrated research, education, and extension activities, as determined by the Secretary in consultation with the National Agricultural Research, Extension, Education, and Economics Advisory Board. , 7 U.S.C 7626.

OBJECTIVES:

CPPM was created to consolidate five previous NIFA programs with related purposes. CPPM will provide funding to address critical state, regional and national integrated pest management (IPM) needs to ensure food security and effectively respond to other major societal challenges. The CPPM program supports projects that address high priority IPM challenges with coordinated state, regional, and national research and extension efforts. The impact of these research and extension efforts will be increased by the establishment of communication networks and stakeholder participation in setting priorities. In FY 2014, the CPPM program will provide support for projects to conduct applied research and development, extension implementation, and regional coordination.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants (Discretionary)

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The new CPPM program provides support for three linked programs that emphasize research (discovery), extension (translation) of that knowledge, and enhanced coordination, collaboration and communications among related CPPM programs and grantees. The three program areas are:

Applied Research and Development Program Area (ARDP)

To enhance the development and implementation of innovative, ecologically-based, sustainable IPM tactics and strategies that address regional and/or national IPM priorities.

Extension Implementation Program Area (EIP)

To assure the implementation of IPM through extension activities and coordination with other EIP grantees and other CPPM program areas based on defined state, multi-state, regional, national, or international needs.

Regional Coordination Program Area (RCP)

To increase coordination and improve efficiency of IPM research and extension efforts; facilitate collaboration across states and disciplines; and promote further development and adoption of IPM through regional pest management information networks, collaborative team building and broad-based stakeholder participation. Section 716 of the Consolidated Appropriation Act, 2014, limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, you should limit your request for the recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of your institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

When NIFA is not the cognizant Federal agency. The applicant should use the current negotiated indirect cost rate established by its cognizant Federal agency (the agency that provides the most funds). If awarded, the applicant will be required to produce a negotiated indirect cost rate agreement from the cognizant agency in order to recover indirect costs. Applicants may request (i.e., budget) indirect costs using the lesser of: (a) the negotiated rate; or (b) the maximum statutory rate stated in the Request for Application, if any. If unable to obtain a negotiated rate from its cognizant agency, the applicant is not permitted indirect cost reimbursement. Rather, the applicant may only be reimbursed for allowable direct costs. Violation of Cost Accounting Standards is not permitted when re-budgeting or charging costs to awards.

When NIFA is the cognizant Federal agency. If the applicant does not have a negotiated rate, and NIFA is the cognizant agency, the applicant must calculate an indirect cost rate in order to request indirect costs. NIFAs indirect cost website provides several sample indirect cost rate calculations. NIFAs website is found at: http://nifa.usda.gov/business/indirect_cost_process.html.

During the application process, the applicant is not required to complete the entire indirect cost package identified on NIFAs website. Rather, the applicant need only calculate an indirect cost rate to serve as a basis for requesting indirect costs. If awarded, the applicant will be required to submit a complete Indirect Cost Proposal (ICP) package as explained on NIFAs indirect cost website.

Grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used to renovate or refurbish research, education, or extension space; purchase or install fixed equipment in such space; or the plan, repair, rehabilitate, acquire, or construction of buildings or facilities. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Colleges and universities (as defined in section 1404 of NARETPA) (7 U.S.C. 3103) are eligible to submit applications for the CPPM program. Section 1404 of NARETPA was amended by section 7101 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (FCEA) to define Hispanic-serving Agricultural Colleges and Universities (HSACUs), and to include research foundations maintained by eligible colleges or universities.

For the purposes of this program, the terms college and university mean an educational institution in any state which (1) admits as regular students only persons having a certificate of graduation from a school providing secondary education, or the recognized equivalent of such a certificate; (2) is legally authorized within such state to provide a program of education beyond secondary education; (3) provides an educational program for which a bachelors degree or any other higher degree is awarded; (4) is a public or other nonprofit institution; and (5) is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association. Applications also may be submitted by 1994 Land-Grant Institutions (see Part VIII, E), HSACUs, and research foundations maintained by eligible colleges or universities.

Section 7206 of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 amended section 406(b) of AREERA to add the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions as eligible to apply for grants under this authority.

Credentials/Documentation:

A Data Universal Number System (DUNS) number must be obtained - a DUNS number is a unique number that identifies an organization. If your organization does not have a DUNS number, call the special Dun & Bradstreet hotline at 1-866-705-5711 to receive one free of charge. Please note, individual proprietorships (i.e. farmers, ranchers) can request and receive a DUNS number, but must register with Grants.gov as an organization, not as an individual.

Registration with Central Contractor Registry (CCR) is required - if your organization is not already registered, identify the primary contact who should register your organization. When your organization registers with CCR, your organization will be required to designate an e-Business Point of Contact (e-Business POC). The e-Business POC authorizes individuals to submit grant applications on behalf of the organization and creates a special password called a Marketing Partner ID Number (M-PIN) to verify individuals authorized to submit grant applications for the organization. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

All RFAs are published on the Agency's website and Grants.gov. Applicants must complete the Grants.gov registration process. Please see the following Grants.gov link for more information: http://www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Formal applications are solicited and should be submitted to USDA, NIFA, as outlined in the guidelines and/or request for applications. Application procedures are contained in the guidelines or request for applications.

Applications should be submitted as outlined in the RFA. Applications must follow the instructions provided per Grants.gov and in the Agency guide to submitting applications via Grants.gov.

Award Procedure:

Applications are subjected to a system of peer and merit review in accordance with section 103 of the Agricultural Research, Extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 1613) by a panel of qualified scientists and other appropriate persons who are specialists in the field covered by the proposal. Within the limit of funds available for such purpose, the NIFA Authorized Departmental Officer (ADO) shall make grants to those responsible, eligible applicants whose applications are judged most meritorious under the procedures set forth in the RFA.

Reviewers will be selected based upon training and experience in relevant scientific, extension, or education fields, taking into account the following factors:

- (a) The level of relevant formal scientific, technical education, or extension experience of the individual, as well as the extent to which an individual is engaged in relevant research, education, or extension activities;
- (b) the need to include as reviewers experts from various areas of specialization within relevant scientific, education, or extension fields;
- (c) the need to include as reviewers other experts (e.g., producers, range or forest managers/operators, and consumers) who can assess relevance of the applications to targeted audiences and to program needs;
- (d) the need to include as reviewers experts from a variety of organizational types (e.g., colleges, universities, industry, state and Federal agencies, private profit and non-profit organizations) and geographic locations;
- (e) the need to maintain a balanced composition of reviewers with regard to minority and female representation and an equitable age distribution; and
- (f) the need to include reviewers who can judge the effective usefulness to producers and the general public of each application.

Evaluation Criteria will be delineated in the RFA.

NIFA may waive the matching funds requirement for a grant if we determine that:

(a) the results of the project, while of particular benefit to a specific agricultural commodity, are likely to be applicable to agricultural commodities generally; or

(b) the project involves a minor commodity, the project deals with scientifically important research, and the grant recipient is unable to satisfy the matching funds requirement.

This program does not have MOE requirements.

10.331 FOOD INSECURITY NUTRITION INCENTIVE GRANTS PROGRAM

Food Insecurity Nutrition Incentive Program (FINI)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Agricultural Act of 2014 (Pub. L. 113-79) amended Section 4405 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (7 U.S.C. 7517) and established the competitive grant program, the Food Insecurity Nutrition Incentive program (FINI).

OBJECTIVES:

The Food Insecurity Nutrition Incentive (FINI) grant program is a competitive program. Projects funded under this program provide incentives to low-income consumers participating in the supplemental nutrition assistance program (SNAP) to purchase fruits and vegetables at the point of sale. The projects supported by this program have the support of State agencies and include use of effective and efficient benefit redemption technologies that can serve as a replicable model for benefit redemption.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The FINI grant program projects will provide incentives to low-income consumers participating in SNAP to increase their purchase of fruits and vegetables. These projects will be evaluated for their success in increasing the purchase of fruits and vegetables and improving nutrition and health outcomes. Proposals must have the support of the State agency, provide incentives at the point of sale, and include effective and efficient technologies for benefit redemption systems that could be replicated. All FINI grant program recipients will be required to participate in a comprehensive FINI program evaluation conducted by an independent evaluator and conduct a self-evaluation of their own project. The applicant shall perform a substantive portion of the project and no more than 50 percent of FINI Projects (FP), FINI Pilot Projects (FPP), and FINI Large Scale Projects (FLSP) as determined by budget expenditures, may be subawarded. NIFA will allow applicants to indicate in their proposal if they intend to subgrant more than 50% of the award. This deviation will require NIFA approval. Projects may divide their budget allocations between partners as it fits their work plan. (For additional knowledge or expertise that is not available within the applicant organization, funds for expert consultation may be included in the All Other Direct Costs section of the proposed budget.)

When preparing budgets, applicants should limit their request for the recovery of indirect costs to the official negotiated indirect cost rate or the de minimis rate of 10% of modified total direct costs (MTDC). Any non-Federal entity that has never received a negotiated indirect cost rate may elect to charge a de minimis rate of 10% of modified total direct costs (MTDC). (2 C.F.R. 200.414(f)).

When NIFA is not the cognizant Federal agency. The applicant should use the current negotiated indirect cost rate established by its cognizant Federal agency (the agency that provides the most funds). If awarded, the applicant will be required to produce a negotiated indirect cost rate agreement from the cognizant agency in order to recover indirect costs. Applicants may request (i.e., budget) indirect costs using the lesser of: (a) the negotiated rate; or (b) the maximum statutory rate stated in the RFA, if any. If unable to obtain a negotiated rate from its cognizant agency, the applicant is not permitted indirect cost reimbursement. Rather, the applicant may only be reimbursed for allowable direct costs. Violation of Cost Accounting Standards is not permitted when re-budgeting or charging costs to awards.

When NIFA is the cognizant Federal agency. If the applicant does not have a negotiated rate, and NIFA is the cognizant agency, the applicant must calculate an indirect cost rate in order to request indirect costs. NIFAs indirect cost website provides several sample indirect cost rate calculations. NIFAs website is found at: http://nifa.usda.gov/business/indirect_cost_process.html.

During the application process, the applicant is not required to complete the entire indirect cost package identified on NIFAs website. Rather, the applicant need only calculate an indirect cost rate to serve as a basis for requesting indirect costs. If awarded, the applicant will be required to submit a complete Indirect Cost Proposal (ICP) package, as explained on NIFAs indirect cost website

In the case of a for-profit entity, the non-Federal share of the award cannot include services of an employee, including salaries paid or expenses covered by the employer.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible entities include governmental agencies and nonprofit organizations.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Eligible entities include governmental agencies and nonprofit organizations.

Credentials/Documentation:

A Data Universal Number System (DUNS) number must be obtained. A DUNS number is a unique number that identifies an organization. If the grantees organization does not have a DUNS number, the grantee should call the special Dun & Bradstreet hotline at 1-866-705-5711 to receive one free of charge. Please note, individual proprietorships (i.e. farmers, ranchers) can request and receive a DUNS number, but must register with Grants.gov as an organization, not as an individual.

Registration with Central Contractor Registry (CCR) is required - if the grantees organization is not already registered, identify the primary contact who should register for the organization. When the grantee registers with CCR, the grantees organization will be required to designate an e-Business Point of Contact (e-Business POC). The e-Business POC authorizes individuals to submit grant applications on behalf of the organization and creates a special password called a Marketing Partner ID Number (M-PIN) to verify individuals authorized to submit grant applications for the organization. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

All Requests for Applications (RFAs) are published on the Agency's website and Grants.gov. Applicants must complete the Grants.gov registration process. Please see the following Grants.gov link for more information: http://www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp.

Award Procedure:

Applications are subjected to a system of peer and merit review in accordance with section 103 of the Agricultural Research, Extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 1613) by a panel of qualified scientists and other appropriate persons who are specialists in the field covered by the proposal. Within the limit of funds available for such purpose, the NIFA Authorized Departmental Officer (ADO) shall make grants to those responsible, eligible applicants whose applications are judged most meritorious under the procedures set forth in the RFA.

Reviewers will be selected based upon training and experience in relevant scientific, extension, or education fields, taking into account the following factors:

- (a) The level of relevant formal scientific, technical education, or extension experience of the individual, as well as the extent to which an individual is engaged in relevant research, education, or extension activities;
- (b) the need to include as reviewers experts from various areas of specialization within relevant scientific, education, or extension fields;
- (c) the need to include as reviewers other experts (e.g., producers, range or forest managers/operators, and consumers) who can assess relevance of the applications to targeted audiences and to program needs;
- (d) the need to include as reviewers experts from a variety of organizational types (e.g., colleges, universities, industry, state and Federal agencies, private profit and non-profit organizations) and geographic locations;
- (e) the need to maintain a balanced composition of reviewers with regard to minority and female representation and an equitable age distribution; and Under new regulations effective June 1999, preapplications for the off-farm program funds must be submitted in response to a Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA) published in the Federal Register every year. RHS scores the preapplications, using a ranking process to determine which applicants will be invited to submit formal applications. The on-farm program makes loans to eligible farmers (or a group of farmers) to provide Housing, usually for their own laborers. Preapplications for on-farm units, or for repair and rehabilitation of existing off-farm units, may be submitted at any time are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Loans can be used to construct, or to purchase and substantially rehabilitate rental or cooperative housing or to develop manufactured housing projects. Housing as a general rule will consist of multi-units with two or more family units and any appropriately related facilities. Funds may also be used to provide approved recreational and service facilities appropriate for use in connection with the housing and to buy and improve the land on which the buildings are to be located. Loans may not be made for nursing, special care, or institutional-type homes. Grants are in the form of rental assistance for some units within the underwritten property. The term for an initial Section 515 loan is 30 years with a 50-year amortization period. However, the term for subsequent loans and loans for special types of properties, such as manufactured housing, may be made for a shorter term based on the projects expected useful life. Each loan is made at a note rate established by the Agency as prescribed in RD Instruction 440.1. Borrowers approved for initial and/or subsequent loans receive interest credit, which reduces the effective interest rate for the Agency's financing, thereby lowering the property's rents. In return for this below-market rate financing, the borrower agrees to lease the projects rental units to income-eligible households at rents approved by the Agency. Borrowers operate on a nonprofit or limited-profit basis.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applicants may be individuals, cooperatives, nonprofit organizations, State or local public agencies, profit corporations, trusts, partnerships, limited partnerships, and be unable to finance the housing either with their own resources or with credit obtained from private sources. 10.435 STATE MEDIATION GRANTS

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Agricultural Credit Act of 1987.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist States in establishing and administering mediation programs and services for agricultural producers, creditors of producers (as applicable), and persons directly affected by actions of the Department of Agriculture.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants are to be used for the operation and administration of a State's mediation program which has been certified by the Administrator of the Farm Service Agency (FSA) as meeting the requirements of Section 501 (c) of Title V of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (U.S.C. 510), as amended. A grant will not exceed 70 percent of the total fiscal year funds that a qualifying State requires to operate and administer its mediation program, or $500,000, whichever is less. Eligible costs are limited to those that are reasonable and necessary to carry out the mission of the State's mediation program and may include activities related to the intake and scheduling of cases, the provision of background and selected information regarding the mediation process, financial advisory and counseling services, and the mediation session.

Applicant Eligibility:

State governments.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Agricultural producers, creditors of producers (as applicable) and persons directly affected by actions of the Department of Agriculture.

Credentials/Documentation:

Have a mediation program which has been certified by the Administrator of FSA, and for which certification has not been withdrawn; provide evidence to justify the estimated costs of operating and administering the State's mediation program. The Governor of a State or head of an entity designated by the Governor of a State must make a written request to FSA on or before August 1 of each year to receive a matching grant during the fiscal year commencing on October 1, of that same year. Request for certification are accepted after August 1 of each year; however, the State will be considered in order of date received for reserved grant funds. Costs will be determined in accordance with OMB Circular No. A-87 for State and local governments. To be certified as a qualifying State, the mediation program of the State must mediate issues involving agricultural loans (regardless of whether the loans are made or guaranteed by the Secretary of Agriculture or made by third party); and may provide mediation services for disputes involving wetlands determinations, compliance with farm programs including conservation programs, rural water loan programs, grazing on National forest system lands, pesticides, and such other issues, under the jurisdiction of the Secretary meeting the requirements of Section 501 of Title V of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (7 U.S.C. 510), as amended. Grant funds will be distributed on a first come, first served basis to qualifying States. If, however, when funds for a fiscal year become available, there are not sufficient funds to give all qualifying States 70 percent of their justified estimated expenses for the fiscal year, the percentage allocation will be reduced so as to give all States the same percentage of their expenses. FSA views the use of grant funds to provide financial advisory or other services in an advocacy context to be inconsistent with the premise of a mediation program, which is to provide a neutral forum for resolution of disputes.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) is a wholly owned government corporation created February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501.) The program was amended by Public Law (P.L.) 96-365, dated September 26, 1980, to provide for nationwide expansion of a comprehensive crop insurance plan. FCIC is administered by the Risk Management Agency (RMA), and promotes the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a secure system of crop insurance. FCIC provides an actuarially sound risk management program that protects against agricultural production losses due to unavoidable causes such as drought, excessive moisture, hail, wind, hurricane, tornado, lightning, and insects. In addition to these causes, revenue insurance programs are available under which producers of certain crops are protected against loss of revenue stemming from low prices, poor yields, or a combination of both. Federal crop insurance is available to producers through private insurance companies that market and service policies and also share in the risk. Thus, the program delivery is a joint effort between the Federal government and the private insurance industry. Federal government subsidizes insurance premiums at a variety of levels depending on level of insurance coverage.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: Fiscal Year 2013: Over the past seven decades, Federal crop insurance has been the primary product provided by the FCIC (administered by the Risk Management Agency (RMA)) and consists of various alternatives designed to improve the economic stability of agriculture. Recent legislative mandates have prompted significant program growth and the development of many large and complex new programs. RMA continuously strives to provide adequate risk protection for our Nation's agricultural producers and to identify and address concerns about Federal crop insurance. RMA continues to evaluate risk management products, review and approve private sector products to be reinsured by FCIC, and ensure delivery of these products to agricultural producers. Risk management products can help producers protect themselves from yield risks, market risks, or both. Examples of more recent, new and innovative insurance tools are revenue insurance, forage, rangeland, specialty crops, and livestock pilots. For 2013, with approximately 1.21 million policies on 282 million acres, the program provided nearly $122.61 billion in risk protection. Fiscal Year 2014: NA. Fiscal Year

(a) Renewable Resources Extension Act

The Renewable Resources Extension Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-306, 92 Stat. 349, 16 U.S.C. 1671 et seq.) provides for an expanded and comprehensive extension program for forest and rangeland renewable resources. The majority of the appropriated funds are distributed to eligible institutions based on a formula that considers the geographic extent, ecosystem productivity, economic contribution, and population for each state.

Since FY 2002, a small amount of these funds have been used to fund National Focus Fund Projects which have served to expand comprehensive extension programs for forest and rangeland renewable resources on a national, regional, or multi-institutional scale through better program coordination, innovative technologies, and extension models that can be easily duplicated.

(b) Rural Health and Safety

The authority for this program is under Section 502 (i) of Title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972, as amended (7 U.S.C. 2662). The Omnibus Appropriations Act, 2009 (Pub. L. 111-8) appropriates funds under Division A, Title I. The Rural Health and Safety Education Competitive Program addresses the Individual and Family Health Education component of the authorization.

(c) Extension Services at the 1994 Institutions

This program is authorized under Section 534(b) of the Equity in Educational Land-Grant Status Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. 201 note), as amended by the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (AREERA) (7 U.S.C. 7601). This section amends Section 3 of the Act of May 8, 1914 (Smith-Lever Act) (7 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended. Under this authority, appropriated funds are to be awarded to the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions (hereinafter referred to as 1994 institutions) for Extension work and funds are to be distributed on the basis of a competitive application process.

(d) Grants to Youth Serving Institutions

Title IV of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7630) authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to make grants to the Girl Scouts of the United States of America (GSUSA), the Boy Scouts of America (BSA), the National 4-H Council (4-H Council), and the National FFA Organization (FFA). Section 7309 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act (FCEA) of 2008 reauthorized 7 U.S.C. 7630, which was also amended to provide additional flexibility in content delivery to each organization receiving funds and to allow recipients to redistribute all or part of the funds to individual councils or local chapters without further need of approval from the Secretary. In FY 2009, Terms and Conditions of these awards should facilitate the redistribution without further need of approval. The Omnibus Appropriations Act, 2009 (Pub. L. 111-8) appropriates funds under Division A, Title I for grants to youth organizations pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 7630.

(e) Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database Program (FARAD)

Title VI Section 604 of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7642) states that -The Secretary of Agriculture shall continue operation of the Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database program (referred to in this section as the FARAD program) through contracts, grants, or cooperative agreements with appropriate colleges or universities.

OBJECTIVES:

GENERAL: [As reflected in Part I.B. of the Request for Applications (RFA) or Capacity Requests for Applications (Capacity RFA)]

1. Smith-Lever (3b) & (c) Formula Funds

a) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions (aka 3b & c Formula Funds)

These funds are used by institutions eligible to receive funds under the Act of Congress approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled An Act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts (Twelfth Statutes at Large, page five hundred and three) (1862 Land-grant Institutions), for the development of practical applications of research knowledge and giving of instruction and practical demonstrations of existing or improved practices or technologies in agriculture, uses of solar energy with respect to agriculture, home economics, and rural energy, and subjects relating thereto to persons not attending or resident in 1862 Land-grant Institutions in the several communities, and imparting information on those subjects through demonstrations, publications, and otherwise and for the necessary printing and distribution of information in connection with the subjects. The purpose of this funding is to conduct agricultural extension work.

(b) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions (Special Needs) aka ESPN Special Needs

The purpose of this funding is to increase the level of agricultural extension work. These funds are used to support extension activities identified in the eligible institutions approved 5-Year Plan of Work. Special Needs funds are allocated to a State Cooperative Extension Service to fulfill a purpose or overcome a condition peculiar to the State, as compared to the country as a whole, or for a purpose not normally a part of the continuing extension program.

(c) Smith-Lever Special Needs Program (aka ESPN Special Needs Projects) Funds support innovative extension education approaches to addressing risks, hazards and disasters. The Cooperative Extension Service (CES) has an important role in reducing the impact of disasters through extension education. The Extension Special Needs program sponsors targeted projects that enable CES to assist in preparing for, providing an educational response to, and recovering from disasters. Education programming funded by this program will help communities, families and individuals become more self-sustaining by strengthening and increasing their resiliency to disaster. Some types of hazards and disaster related events funded in previous years include uncertainties caused by losses of economic infrastructure, severe weather or other natural disasters, security breaches, human disease, or high consequence animal diseases and plant pests.

There has been an increase in public awareness regarding the number and severity of disaster type critical incidents involving earthquakes, tsunamis, tornadoes, wildfire, drought, contagious disease, and terrorist events. The National Academy of Sciences Committee on Environment and Natural Resources and the Subcommittee on Disaster Reduction of the National Science and Technology Council have acknowledged the many effective roles that the Cooperative Extension System (CES) has played in disaster preparedness, response and remediation.

Within the states and territories, the CES has repeatedly served as the trusted community organization that has helped to enable families, communities, and businesses to successfully prepare for, respond to and cope with disaster losses and critical incidents. Once a disaster has occurred, the local extension outreach includes: 1) Communicating practical science-based risk information, 2) Developing relevant educational experiences and programs, 3) Working with individuals and communities to open new communication channels, and 4) Mitigating losses and facilitating recovery. Never was this more evident than after hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma in 2005 and during the 2008 Midwestern Summer flooding. During and after these incidents, local Extension agents served as a critical communication node throughout affected urban and rural areas, particularly when traditional communication systems were temporarily overwhelmed or destroyed.

The Extension Special Needs RFA encourages proposals that specifically address one or more of the following six key target areas:

1. Education and Technical assistance through inter-disciplinary and multi-state disaster training programs and demonstration projects for problem solving, especially those which build upon already existing strengths, contribute to or expand the EDEN and/or eXtension educational materials related to disaster preparation, mitigation, response and recovery;
2. Collaboration with Federal, state and local agencies and other disaster relief organizations to support education and service activities that enhance recovery of impacted rural communities, schools, businesses and agricultural-based activities;
3. Long range family, community and regional planning projects that will enhance implementation of programs that serve public needs in preparation for, during and after emergency situations within impacted States and across impacted regions;
4. Communication delivery of key information that meets end-users needs in a timely fashion with consideration of potentially limited communication channels due to disaster situations;
5. Dissemination of credible, science-based information that is reliable and easily accessible even if electronic access is compromised; and
6. Integrated Research and Extension Planning Projects (up to $15,000) are intended to provide assistance to applicants in bringing together teams for the development of highly competitive grant proposals where extension personnel would apply for large grants (in excess of $250,000) from other grant programs (e.g., the Agriculture and Food Research Initiative and etc) and lead nationally important disaster prevention, protection and mitigation projects.

Fundable projects should support education and extension activities which:

1. Reduce risk through planning, disaster preparedness and emergency response by improving communication between the public, community leaders, state and Federal agencies;
2. Develop strategies and educational materials and/or programming in the area of emergency planning, infrastructure design and disaster recovery operation;
3. Develop community networks that provide real-time disaster education information; and/or
4. Develop or expand educational materials regarding disaster issues suitable for use and distribution by the Extension Disaster Education Network (EDEN) or the eXtension Community of Practice working with disaster planning.

(d) CSRS Retirement Contributions Program (aka ERET CSRS Retirement) Formula grants authorized under the CSRS Retirement Contributions Program. These grants are used to defray the CSRS Retirement costs to the 1862 land-grant institutions for the former Schedule A Appointments who conduct agricultural extension work.

(e) FERS Retirement Contributions Program (aka ERET FERS Retirement) These grants are used to defray the FERS Retirement costs to the 1862 land-grant institutions for the former Schedule A Appointments who conduct agricultural extension work.

(f) District of Columbia Public Postsecondary Education Reorganization Act

Program (Cooperative Extension Programs) aka EUDC

These funds are used by the University of the District of Columbia for the development of practical applications of research knowledge and giving of instruction and practical demonstrations of existing or improved practices or technologies in agriculture, uses of solar energy with respect to agriculture, home economics, and rural energy, and subjects relating thereto to persons not attending the University of the District of Columbia, and imparting information on those subjects through demonstrations, publications, and otherwise and for the necessary printing and distribution of information in connection with the subjects.

GENERAL STATEMENTS REGARDING USES:

Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved integrated research, extension and education objectives to address food and agricultural sciences, in the broadest sense.

NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

For most of the Cooperative Extension Service (CES) programs, Indirect Costs are not allowable. (Pertinent details are provided for the few exceptions to the rule.)

DETAILED INFORMATION USES ONLY

1. SMITH-LEVER 3(b) & (c):

(a) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions (aka 3b & c Formula Funds):

Sections 3(b) and 3(c) of the Smith-Lever Act provide funding for agricultural extension programs at 1862 Land-grant universities.

These funds are used by institutions eligible to receive funds under the Act of Congress approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled An Act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts (Twelfth Statutes at Large, page five hundred and three) (1862 Land-grant Institutions), for the development of practical applications of research knowledge and giving of instruction and practical demonstrations of existing or improved practices or technologies in agriculture, uses of solar energy with respect to agriculture, home economics, and rural energy, and subjects relating thereto to persons not attending or resident in 1862 Land-grant Institutions in the several communities, and imparting information on those subjects through demonstrations, publications, and otherwise and for the necessary printing and distribution of information in connection with the subjects.

(b) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions (Special Needs) aka ESPN Special Needs:

These funds are used to support extension activities identified in the eligible institutions approved 5-Year Plan of Work. Special Needs funds are allocated to a State Cooperative Extension Service to fulfill a purpose or overcome a condition peculiar to the State, as compared to the country as a whole, or for a purpose not normally a part of the continuing extension program.

Funds are allocated under this program to a State Cooperative Extension Service to fulfill a purpose or overcome a condition peculiar to the State, as compared to the country as a whole, or for a purpose not normally a part of the continuing extension program.

(c) Smith-Lever Special Needs Program (aka ESPN Special Needs Projects):

There has been an increase in public awareness regarding the number and severity of disaster type critical incidents involving earthquakes, tsunamis, tornadoes, wildfire, drought, contagious disease, and terrorist events. The National Academy of Sciences Committee on Environment and Natural Resources and the Subcommittee on Disaster Reduction of the National Science and Technology Council have acknowledged the many effective roles that the Cooperative Extension System (CES) has played in disaster preparedness, response and remediation.

Within the states and territories, the CES has repeatedly served as the trusted community organization that has helped to enable families, communities, and businesses to successfully prepare for, respond to and cope with disaster losses and critical incidents. Once a disaster has occurred, the local extension outreach includes: 1) Communicating practical science-based risk information, 2) Developing relevant educational experiences and programs, 3) Working with individuals and communities to open new communication channels, and 4) Mitigating losses and facilitating recovery. Never was this more evident than after hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma in 2005 and during the 2008 Midwestern Summer flooding. During and after these incidents, local Extension agents served as a critical communication node throughout affected urban and rural areas, particularly when traditional communication systems were temporarily overwhelmed or destroyed.

The Extension Special Needs RFA encourages proposals that specifically address one or more of the following six key target areas:

1. Education and Technical assistance through inter-disciplinary and multi-state disaster training programs and demonstration projects for problem solving, especially those which build upon already existing strengths, contribute to or expand the EDEN and/or eXtension educational materials related to disaster preparation, mitigation, response and recovery;
2. Collaboration with Federal, state and local agencies and other disaster relief organizations to support education and service activities that enhance recovery of impacted rural communities, schools, businesses and agricultural-based activities;
3. Long range family, community and regional planning projects that will enhance implementation of programs that serve public needs in preparation for, during and after emergency situations within impacted States and across impacted regions;
4. Communication delivery of key information that meets end-users needs in a timely fashion with consideration of potentially limited communication channels due to disaster situations;
5. Dissemination of credible, science-based information that is reliable and easily accessible even if electronic access is compromised; and
6. Integrated Research and Extension Planning Projects (up to $15,000) are intended to provide assistance to applicants in bringing together teams for the development of highly competitive grant proposals where extension personnel would apply for large grants (in excess of $250,000) from other grant programs (e.g., the Agriculture and Food Research Initiative and etc) and lead nationally important disaster prevention, protection and mitigation projects.

Fundable projects should support education and extension activities which:

1. Reduce risk through planning, disaster preparedness and emergency response by improving communication between the public, community leaders, state and Federal agencies;
2. Develop strategies and educational materials and/or programming in the area of emergency planning, infrastructure design and disaster recovery operation;
3. Develop community networks that provide real-time disaster education information; and/or
4. Develop or expand educational materials regarding disaster issues suitable for use and distribution by the Extension Disaster Education Network (EDEN) or the eXtension Community of Practice working with disaster planning.

(d) CSRS Retirement Contributions Program (aka ERET CSRS Retirement):

These grants are used to defray the CSRS Retirement costs to the 1862 land-grant institutions for the former Schedule A Appointments who conduct agricultural extension work.

Funds are provided for the retirement costs of the former Schedule A Appointments at the 1862 land-grant institutions. These funds are allocated based on each institutions relative share of the total payments to OPM during the previous year.

The separate allocation of funds for this purpose is being phased out over a 10-year period, beginning in FY 2007. The amount available for this program is reduced each fiscal year by $1,473,658 and the same amount is added to the funds available for distribution under the Smith-Lever Act, Section 3(b) and (c), statutory formula.

The Schedule A 213.3113 (a) (1) was issued by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) to employ individuals in the Cooperative Extension Service (CES) as a joint appointment between USDA and the land grant institution. The official title of Schedule A appointees includes the title Agent (e.g., Agent/Cooperative Extension Director; Agent/Cooperative Extension Educator) as by law only agents with a Schedule A appointment were eligible to participate in the Federal benefit plan(s).

Employment is dependent upon an individuals appointment in the CES at the university. The appointment must be a regular position with at least 50 percent of the staffs time dedicated to extension projects, and the appointee must work and be paid over a 12-month period.

Agents in the Cooperative Extension program are not classified under the General Schedule (GS) classification system or any other Federal pay system. The positions are classified by the employing land grant institution, and the salary is established according to policies and procedures at the institution.

The OPM has the authority and responsibility for issuing rules and regulations covering Schedule A appointments and resulting benefits. OPM has delegated to the USDA the responsibility for overseeing and managing Cooperative Extension Schedule A appointments and the accompanying Federal benefits, (e.g., retirement and insurance plans). The Human Resources Division (HRD)/Cooperative Extension Service (CES) Team within Administrative and Financial Management (AFM) of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) carries out this function for USDA.

Effective January 31, 2003, the authority to grant Schedule A Excepted Appointments to CES employees was terminated. Public Law 107-171, Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002, dated May 13, 2002, Section 7220, terminated the Schedule A appointing authority used by USDA to grant a companion Federal appointment and Federal benefits to state/university employees of the Cooperative Extension Service. The law allowed the CES Federal appointees that were employed on the day before the date of the enactment of the Act, (i.e., May 12, 2002) to: a) continue to accrue Federal creditable service for retirement; and b) participate in the following benefits as long as the employees continued their employment with the Cooperative Extension Service:

- 1) The Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHB);
- 2) The Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program (FGLI);
- 3) The Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS);
- 4) The Federal Employee Retirement System (CSRS);
- 5) The Thrift Savings Plan (TSP); and
- 6) The Federal Long Term Care Insurance Program (FLTCIP).

The Federal Office of Workers Compensation Program (OWCP) is the only Federal program that will not continue as it is not a program that the dual appointee was vested in. Claims already on file with the Department of Labor (DOL) Office of Workers Compensation Office will continue to be processed by the DOL. Using a formula based in the prior years injury or illness claims, NIFA will pay these claims on behalf of each institution and charge that institution by reducing its annual retirement allocation by the amount remitted. If the amount of claims paid exceeds the institutions annual retirement allocation, NIFA will bill the institution for any OWCP costs in excess of the annual retirement allocation.

Changes and new features for the current Federal Benefits programs such as FEHB, FELGI, TSP and FLTCIP will be offered to the CES organizations and employees that are eligible to participate in the affected program(s). However, former Federal appointees cannot participate in new Federal benefit programs that were not in effect as of May 12, 2002.

Effective January 31, 2003, CES can no longer grant Schedule A Federal appointments to new employees because they no longer have a Federal appointment authority available to make new Federal appointments. Former CES Schedule A appointees may be reappointed to another CES organization and continue their benefits as long as they do not have a break in service.

(e) FERS Retirement Contributions Program (aka ERET FERS Retirement):

Federal funds are provided for the retirement costs of the former Schedule A Appointments at the 1862 land-grant institutions. These funds are allocated to the 1862 land-grant institutions with former Schedule A Appointments based on each institutions relative share of the total payments to OPM during the previous year.

The separate allocation of funds for this purpose is being phased out over a 10-year period, beginning in FY 2008. The amount available for this program is reduced each year by $376,826 and this same amount is added to the funds available for distribution under the Smith-Lever Act, Section 3(b) and (c), statutory formula.

The Schedule A 213.3113 (a) (1) was issued by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) to employ individuals in the Cooperative Extension Service (CES) as a joint appointment between USDA and the land-grant institution. The official title of Schedule A appointees includes the title Agent (e.g., Agent/Cooperative Extension Director; Agent/Cooperative Extension Educator) as by law only agents with a Schedule A appointment were eligible to participate in the Federal benefit plan(s).

Employment is dependent upon an individuals appointment in the CES at the university. The appointment must be a regular position with at least 50 percent of the staffs time dedicated to extension projects, and the appointee must work and be paid over a 12 month period.

Agents in the Cooperative Extension program are not classified under the General Schedule (GS) classification system or any other Federal pay system. The positions are classified by the employing land-grant institution, and the salary is established according to policies and procedures at the institution.

The OPM has the authority and responsibility for issuing rules and regulations covering Schedule A appointments and resulting benefits. OPM has delegated to the USDA the responsibility for overseeing and managing Cooperative Extension Schedule A appointments and the accompanying Federal benefits, (e.g., retirement and insurance plans). The Human Resources Division (HRD)/Cooperative Extension Service (CES) Team with Administrative and Financial Management (AFM) of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) carries out this function for USDA.

Effective January 31, 2003, the authority to grant Schedule A Excepted Appointments to CES employees was terminated. Public Law 107-171, Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002, dated May 13, 2002, Section 7220, terminated the Schedule A appointing authority used by USDA to grant a companion Federal appointment and Federal benefits to state/university employees of the Cooperative Extension Service. The law allowed the CES Federal appointees that were employed on the day before the date of the enactment of the Act, (i.e., May 12, 2002), to: a) continue to accrue Federal creditable service for retirement; and b) participate in the following benefits as long as the employees continued their employment with the Cooperative

Extension Service:

- 1) The Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHB);
- 2) The Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program (FGLI);
- 3) The Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS);
- 4) The Federal Employee Retirement System (FERS);
- 5) The Thrift Savings Plan (TSP); and
- 6) The Federal Long Term Care Insurance Program (FLTCIP).

The Federal Office of Workers Compensation Program (OWCP) is the only Federal program that will not continue as it is not a program that the dual appointee was vested in. Claims already on file with the Department of Labor (DOL) Office of Workers Compensation Office will continue to be processed by the DOL. Using a formula based in the prior years injury or illness claims, NIFA will pay these claims on behalf of each institution and charge that institution by reducing its annual retirement allocation by the amount remitted. If the amount of claims paid exceeds the institutions annual retirement allocation, NIFA will bill the institution for any OWCP costs in excess of the annual retirement allocation.

Changes and new features for the current Federal Benefits programs such as FEHB, FELGI, TSP and FLTCIP will be offered to the CES organizations and employees that are eligible to participate in the affected program(s). However, former Federal appointees cannot participate in new Federal benefit programs that were not in effect as of May 12, 2002.

Effective January 31, 2003, CES can no longer grant Schedule A Federal appointments to new employees because they no longer have a Federal appointment authority available to make new Federal appointments. Former CES Schedule A appointees may be reappointed to another CES organization and continue their benefits as long as they do not have a break in service.

(f) District of Columbia Public Postsecondary Education Reorganization Act Program (Cooperative Extension Programs) aka EUDC:

Sections 208 of the District of Columbia Public Postsecondary Education Reorganization Act provides, in pertinent part, that In the administration of the Act of August 30, 1890 (7 U.S.C. 321-326, 328) (known as the Second Morrill Act), the University [of the District of Columbia] shall be considered to be a university established for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts in accordance with the provisions of the Act of July 2, 1862 (7 U.S.C. 301-305, 307, 308) (known as the First Morrill Act); and the term "State", is used in the laws and provisions of law listed in the preceding, paragraphs of this section shall include the District of Columbia. In the administration of the Act of May 8, 1914 (7 U.S.C. 341-346, 347a-349) (known as the Smith-Lever Act) the University [of the District of Columbia] shall be considered to be a university established for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts in accordance with the provisions of the Act of July 2, 1862 (7 U.S.C. 301- 305, 307,308); and the term "State" as used in such Act of May 8, 1914, shall include the District of Columbia, except that the District of Columbia shall not be eligible to receive any sums appropriated under section 3 of such Act. In lieu of an authorization of appropriations for the District of Columbia under section 3 of such Act of May 8, 1914, there is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to provide cooperative agricultural extension work in the District of Columbia under such Act. Any reference in such Act (other than section 3 thereof) to funds appropriated under such Act shall in the case of the District of Columbia be considered a reference to funds appropriated under this subsection.

Therefore, this grant funds the development of practical applications of research knowledge and giving of instruction and practical demonstrations of existing or improved practices or technologies in agriculture, uses of solar energy with respect to agriculture, home economics, and rural energy, and subjects relating thereto to persons not attending the University of the District of Columbia, and imparting information on those subjects through demonstrations, publications, and otherwise and for the necessary printing and distribution of information in connection with the subjects.

Section 7417 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-234) amended section 208 of the District of Columbia Public Postsecondary Education Reorganization Act to eliminate any matching requirement for the extension formula funds provided to the University of the District of Columbia, effective October 1, 2008.

No portion of the funds allocated under this grant will be applied, directly or indirectly, to the purchase, erection, preservation, or repair of any building or buildings, or the purchase or rental of land, or in college course teaching, lectures in college, or any other purpose not specified in NARETPA section 1444.

This program supports Federal funding for extension activities associated with disseminating the results of food and nutrition research performed or funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to enable low-income individuals and families to engage in nutritionally sound food purchase and preparation practices. Funding extends to EFNEP at State land-grant colleges established under the Morrill Act of July 2, 1862, as amended, and the Morrill Act of August 30, 1890, as amended, including Tuskegee University and West Virginia State University.

[for] programs or activities that fall within the purposes of agricultural research and cooperative extension under sections 1444 and 1445 of NARETPA ... or [for] qualifying educational activities. Matching funds means cash contributions and excludes Finally, it defines qualifying educational activities as programs that address food and agricultural sciences components of an eligible institution.

4. OTHER EXTENSION ACTIVITIES - - Funding Restrictions:

(a) Renewable Resources Extension Act (RREA)

The majority of the appropriated funds are distributed to eligible institutions based on a formula that considers the geographic extent, ecosystem productivity, economic contribution, and population for each state.

Since FY 2002, a small amount of these funds have been used to fund National Focus Fund Projects (RREA-NFF).

NIFA does not require matching support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

For Fiscal Year 2014 appropriated funds, Section 716 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2014 (HR 3547 Pub.L. 113-76) stipulates that indirect costs are not to exceed 30% of total Federal Funds provided under each award.

(b) Rural Health and Safety

The Rural Health and Safety Education Competitive Grants Program provides funds to meet national goals for addressing the health and access needs of rural Americans.

NIFA does not require matching or cost sharing support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

For Fiscal Year 2014 appropriated funds, Section 716 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2014 (HR 3547 Pub.L. 113-76) stipulates that indirect costs are not to exceed 30% of total Federal Funds provided under each award.

(c) Extension Services at the 1994 Institutions

Appropriated funds are to be awarded to the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions for Extension work and funds are to be distributed on the basis of a competitive application process.

NIFA does not require matching support for this program, and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

Under the TCEP, the use of grant funds to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility, or to acquire land, is not allowed. With prior approval, in accordance with the cost principles set forth in OMB Circular No. A-21, grant funds may be used to purchase equipment, or for improvements, alterations, renovations, or repairs to land, buildings, or equipment, deemed necessary to retrofit existing spaces and resources in order to carry out a funded project under this grant. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that such expenditures are incidental to the major purpose for which the grant request is made and no more than twenty-five percent of the project budget may be used to purchase equipment. Any equipment purchased with Federal funds is the property of the grantee or the subgrantee, as appropriate.

Indirect costs are unallowable costs, and no funds will be approved for this purpose. Costs that are a part of the institutions indirect cost pool may not be reclassified as direct costs for the purpose of making them allowable.

(d) Grants to Youth Serving Institutions (aka Rural Youth Development or RYD Grants)

Title IV of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7630) authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to make grants to the Girl Scouts of the United States of America (GSUSA), the Boy Scouts of America (BSA), the National 4-H Council (4-H Council), and the National FFA Organization (FFA). Section 7309 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act (FCEA) of 2008 reauthorized 7 U.S.C. 7630, which was also amended to provide additional flexibility in content delivery to each organization receiving funds and to allow recipients to redistribute all or part of the funds to individual councils or local chapters without further need of approval from the Secretary. In FY 2009, Terms and Conditions of these awards should facilitate the redistribution without further need of approval. The Omnibus Appropriations Act, 2009 (Pub. L. 111-8) appropriates funds under Division A, Title I for grants to youth organizations pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 7630.

There are no matching requirements associated with the Rural Youth Development program, and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of facility space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

For Fiscal Year 2014 appropriated funds, Section 716 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2014 (HR 3547 Pub.L. 113-76) stipulates that indirect costs are not to exceed 30% of total Federal Funds provided under each award.

(e) Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database Program (FARAD)

Pursuant to Sec. 604 of the Agricultural research extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 [7 USC 7642(d)], applicants requesting recovery of indirect costs should limit their requests to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect costs rate or the equivalent of 19 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

(f) Federal Administration (DIRECT APPROPRIATION) - Extension Activities

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Other pertinent details will be provided at a future date.

(g) 1890 Facilities (Section 1447):

In Fiscal Year (FY) 2009 NIFA assessed four percent (4%) of the appropriated amount for Federal Administration, distributed sixty percent (60%) of the balance equally, and distributed the remaining forty percent (40%) based on the formula found in Section 1444 of NAREPTA of 1977, as amended (Pub. L. No. 95-113).

Within each institution, the research, teaching and extension programs must each receive at least 20 percent of the annual allocation. The remaining 40 percent may be allocated based on institutional needs for research, teaching, or extension. No more than 60 percent of the total allocation should be directed to research, teaching, or extension. However, if there are unique situations in your institution which warrant a deviation from these guidelines, we will consider requests for reallocation. Such reallocations must be justified by the submission of a situation statement which describes the research, teaching, and extension facilities needs in your institution and how previously available Federal funds were utilized.

NIFA does not require matching support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

The obligation and expenditure of funds awarded under these grants are limited to equipment, land, buildings and other related costs which are or will be used in the administration and conduct of approved research, teaching and extension activities.

In accordance with NAREPTA Section 1447 (e), funds provided for this program may not be used for the payment of any overhead costs of the eligible institutions.

Further, in accordance with Section 7129 of the Agricultural Act of 2014 (House Conference Report 113-333, to accompany H.R. 2642), Central State University has the Designation as 1890 Institution.

(h) Agriculture Risk Management Education Partnerships Grants Program (aka ARPA, ERME & RME)

For Fiscal Year 2014 appropriated funds, Section 716 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2014 (HR 3547 Pub.L. 113-76) stipulates that indirect costs are not to exceed 30% of total Federal Funds provided under each award.

Other pertinent details will be provided at a future date. Some funds are Fully Discretionary. Some funds are Mandatory. Some funds are formula-based.

SPECIAL NOTE:

Please refer to the Competitive and/or Capacity Requests for Applications (RFAs) for further specific and pertinent details. RFAs are generally released annually. Hence, the RFAs provide the most current and accurate information available. Any specific instructions in the Competitive and/or Capacity RFAs supersede the general information provided in the CFDA database.

A Data Universal Number System (DUNS) number must be obtained - A DUNS number is a unique number that identifies an organization. It has been adopted by the Federal government to help track how Federal grant money is distributed. If your organization does not have a DUNS number, call the special Dun & Bradstreet hotline at 1-866-705-5711 to receive one free of charge. You will receive a DUNS number within several days of your request. Please note, individual proprietorships (i.e. farmers, ranchers) can request and receive a DUNS number, but must register with Grants.gov as an organization, not as an individual.

Registration with Central Contractor Registry (CCR) is required - The CCR is the central government repository for organizations working with the Federal government. If your organization is not already registered, identify the primary contact who should register your organization. When your organization registers with CCR, it will be required to designate an e-Business Point of Contact (e-Business POC). The e-Business POC authorizes individuals to submit grant applications on behalf of the organization and creates a special password called a Marketing Partner ID Number (M-PIN) to verify individuals authorized to submit grant applications for the organization. Visit the CCR Web site at <http://www.ccr.gov> to begin this process. It may take several days to collect the information needed for your organizations registration. The CCR Assistance Center can be reached at 888-227-2423. This information collection is approved under OMB Control No. 0524-0039, NIFA Application Kit for Research and Extension Programs.

Applicants must furnish the information required in the request for applications (RFAs). Successful applicants recommended for funding must furnish the information and assurances requested during the award documentation process. These include, but are not limited to the following:

Organizational Management Information - Specific management information relating to an applicant shall be submitted on a one time basis, with updates on an as needed basis, as part of the responsibility determination prior to the award of a grant identified under this RFA, if such information has not been provided previously under this or another NIFA program. NIFA will provide copies of forms recommended for use in fulfilling these requirements as part of the preaward process. Although an applicant may be eligible based on its status as one of these entities, there are factors which may exclude an applicant from receiving Federal financial and nonfinancial assistance and benefits under this program (e.g., debarment or suspension of an individual involved or a determination that an applicant is not responsible based on submitted organizational management information). This information collection is approved under OMB Circular Control No. 0524-0026, Assurance of Compliance with the Department of Agriculture Regulations Assuring Civil Rights, Compliance and Organization Information.. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

States are eligible for funds appropriated under this Act according to the following formula: Out of each annual allocation, each State will be entitled to receive a sum of money equal to the sums available from Federal cooperative extension funds for the fiscal year 1962, and subject to the same requirements as to furnishing of equivalent sums by the State, except that amounts heretofore made available to the Secretary for allotment on the basis of special needs shall continue available for use on the same basis. Further, the University of Guam and the University of the Virgin Islands will receive $100,000 each in addition to the sums appropriated for the several States of the United States and Puerto Rico under the provisions of sections 3(b) and 3(c) of the Smith-Lever Act. Of the remainder so appropriated for each fiscal year 20 per cent will be paid to the several States in equal proportions, 40 per cent will be paid to the several States in the proportion that the rural population of each bears to the total rural population of the several States as determined by the census, and the balance will be paid to the several States in the proportion that the farm population of each bears to the total farm population of the several States as determined by the census. Any appropriation made under sections 3(b) and 3(c) of the Smith-Lever Act will be allotted in the first and succeeding years on the basis of the decennial census current at the time the appropriation is first made, and as to any increase, on the basis of decennial census current at the time such increase is first appropriated.

Cost Sharing or Matching

However, section 3(e)(4) of the Smith-Lever Act (U.S.C. 343(e)(4)) provides that Effective beginning for fiscal year 2003, in lieu of the matching funds requirement of paragraph (1), the insular areas of [American Samoa,] the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, [Micronesia, the Northern Marianas Islands,] and the Virgin Islands of the United States shall provide matching funds from non-Federal sources in an amount equal to not less than 50 percent of the formula funds distributed by the Secretary to each of the insular areas, respectively, under this section..... The Secretary may waive the matching fund requirement [of 50 percent] for any fiscal year if the Secretary determines that the government of the insular area will be unlikely to meet the matching requirement for the fiscal year.

(b) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions (Special Needs) aka ESPN Special Needs:

Funds will be distributed to the institutions on a quarterly basis. See Appendix A of the Capacity Request for Applications (RFA) for the specific allocation.

Cost Sharing or Matching

1862 Land-grant Institutions in the 50 States must match 100 percent of the Special Needs funds they receive with funds from non-Federal sources such as State or county appropriations. The matching must be in the form of cash. Matching funds must be used for extension activities approved in the eligible institutions 5-Year Plan of Work.

To comply with the matching requirements of the Special Needs Program, applicants are required to provide 100 percent matching funds from non-federal sources for all proposed federal funds sought in the application. In-kind and third party contributions are not allowed for the Smith-Lever Special Needs program. Grant awards cannot be issued until ALL required matching has been documented and verified.

3. Matching Exception. Insular Areas: In lieu of the matching funds requirement, the insular areas of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United States shall provide matching funds from non-Federal sources in an amount equal to not less than 50 percent of the grants awarded. The Secretary may waive this matching fund requirement for any fiscal year if the Secretary determines that the government of the insular area will be unlikely to meet the matching requirement for the fiscal year. Insular applicants may submit a waiver request as a PDF attachment to the application (see Part IV.,B.,2.,c.,(2) for specific instructions).

For all projects:

Include the matching amount, the budget category for the match, and detail how the matching support, from each source, will be used (e.g., salary and position supported). Additionally, all pledge agreements must be included as a PDF attachment in Field K as well.

The value of applicant contributions to the project shall be established in accordance with the applicable cost principles. Applicants should refer to OMB Circulars A-21, Cost Principles for Educational Institutions; A-87, Cost Principles for State, Local, and Tribal Governments; 2 CFR Part 215, Uniform Administrative Requirements for Grants and Agreements With Institutions of Higher Education, Hospitals, and Other Non-Profit Organizations (OMB Circular A110); for further guidance and other requirements relating to allowable costs.

4. OTHER EXTENSION ACTIVITIES:

(a) Renewable Resources Extension Act (RREA):

The majority of the appropriated funds are distributed to eligible institutions based on a formula that considers the geographic extent, ecosystem productivity, economic contribution, and population for each state.

Since FY 2002, a small amount of these funds have been used to fund National Focus Fund Projects. (RREA-NFF).

NIFA does not require matching support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

(b) Rural Health and Safety (RHSE):

The Rural Health and Safety Education Competitive Grants Program provides funds to meet national goals for addressing the health and access needs of rural Americans.

NIFA does not require matching or cost sharing support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

(c) Extension Services at the 1994 Institutions (TCEP):

Appropriated funds are to be awarded to the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions for Extension work and funds are to be distributed on the basis of a competitive application process.

NIFA does not require matching support for this program, and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

Under the TCEP, the use of grant funds to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility, or to acquire land, is not allowed. With prior approval, in accordance with the cost principles set forth in OMB Circular No. A-21, grant funds may be used to purchase equipment, or for improvements, alterations, renovations, or repairs to land, buildings, or equipment, deemed necessary to retrofit existing spaces and resources in order to carry out a funded project under this grant. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that such expenditures are incidental to the major purpose for which the grant request is made and no more than twenty-five percent of the project budget may be used to purchase equipment. Any equipment purchased with Federal funds is the property of the grantee or the subgrantee, as appropriate.

(d) Grants to Youth Serving Institutions (RYD):

Title IV of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7630) authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to make grants to the Girl Scouts of the United States of America (GSUSA), the Boy Scouts of America (BSA), the National 4-H Council (4-H Council), and the National FFA Organization (FFA). Section 7309 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act (FCEA) of 2008 reauthorized 7 U.S.C. 7630, which was also amended to provide additional flexibility in content delivery to each organization receiving funds and to allow recipients to redistribute all or part of the funds to individual councils or local chapters without further need of approval from the Secretary. In FY 2009, Terms and Conditions of these awards should facilitate the redistribution without further need of approval. The Omnibus Appropriations Act, 2009 (Pub. L. 111-8) appropriates funds under Division A, Title I for grants to youth organizations pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 7630.

There are no matching requirements associated with the Rural Youth Development program, and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of facility space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

(e) Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database Program (FARAD):

Pertinent details will be provided at a future date.

(f) Federal Administration (DIRECT APPROPRIATION):

Pertinent details will be provided at a future date.

(g) 1890 Facilities (Section 1447):

NIFA assessed four percent (4%) of the appropriated amount for Federal Administration, distributed sixty percent (60%) of the balance equally, and distributed the remaining forty percent (40%) based on the formula found in Section 1444 of NAREPTA of 1977, as amended (Pub. L. No. 95-113).

Within each institution, the research, teaching and extension programs must each receive at least 20 percent of the annual allocation. The remaining 40 percent may be allocated based on institutional needs for research, teaching, or extension. No more than 60 percent of the total allocation should be directed to research, teaching, or extension. However, if there are unique situations in your institution which warrant a deviation from these guidelines, we will consider requests for reallocation. Such reallocations must be justified by the submission of a situation statement which describes the research, teaching, and extension facilities needs in your institution and how previously available Federal funds were utilized.

NIFA does not require matching support for this program and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

The obligation and expenditure of funds awarded under these grants are limited to equipment, land, buildings and other related costs which are or will be used in the administration and conduct of approved research, teaching and extension activities. In accordance with NAREPTA Section 1447 (e), funds provided for this program may not be used for the payment of any overhead costs of the eligible institutions.

Further, in accordance with Section 7129 of the Agricultural Act of 2014 (House Conference Report 113-333, to accompany H.R. 2642), Central State University has the Designation as 1890 Institution. MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: (A) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions [aka Smith-Lever 3 (b) & (c) Capacity (formerly known as Formula)] Grants Programs:

This formula based program allocation was $256,740,165 with funds being provided to land-grant institutions in each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the U.S. Insular Areas. A matching requirement is a key component of the program.

(B) Cooperative Extension at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions Capacity [(formerly known as Formula) aka Smith-Lever Special Needs] Grants Program:

This special needs formula based program allocation was $1,029,979 with funds being provided to land-grant institutions in selected states of the country. A matching requirement is a key component of the program.

(C) Smith-Lever Special Needs [Sections 3 (b) & (c)] Competitive Grants Program:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture funded Smith Lever Special Needs projects to implement applied scientific programs that serve public needs in preparation for, during and after local or regional emergency situations or disasters. The program received nine applications, and the total allocation was $472,744. The range of proposal requests was from $40,500 to $107,449.

(D) Extension at 1890 Land-Grant Institutions and (newly designated) Central State University (aka 1890 Capacity Building and/or CBG) Grants Program:

In this fiscal year, $39,299,008 were appropriated; with $37,727,048 being available to the Institutions after administrative deductions. This program required a dollar for dollar match. However, the institutions who were unable to secure the match, were approved a waiver (up to 50% of total funds awarded).

(E) Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Capacity [(formerly known as Formula) aka Smith-Lever 3d EFNEP and/or ENUT] Grants Program:

The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) brings together federal, state, and local resources to target two primary audiences: low-income families with young children and low-income youth. The program is delivered by the 1862 and the 1890 Land-Grant Institutions. It operates in over 800 counties throughout the 50 states, 6 U.S. territories, and the District of Columbia. Each year, more than million new participants complete the program.

In FY 2013, EFNEP received $62,681,696 in federal funding. EFNEP reached 121,025 adults and 418,961 youth directly and over 359,000 family members indirectly. 85% of EFNEP participants who reported income were at or below 100% of poverty, earning $23,550 a year or less for a family of four. At least 72% of all EFNEP adults are minorities. This is significant because poor health disproportionately affects minority and low-income populations. As well, educational opportunities and resources are limited.

EFNEP consistently demonstrates strong results. FY 2013 data confirms adult graduates:

Improve their diets: 95% report more closely following dietary recommendations, including consuming an extra 1.2 cups of fruits and vegetables;

Improve their nutrition practices: 90% improve nutrition practices, such as making healthier food choices and reading nutrition labels;

Stretch their food dollars farther: 84% improve food resource management practices, such as planning meals and shopping with a grocery list;

Handle food more safely: 65% improve food safety practices, such as storing and thawing food properly; and Increase their physical activity rates: 39% increase their physical activity level by 30 minutes or more.

(F) Regional Integrated Pest Management Competitive Grants Programs:

(F-1) North Central Region (aka NC-RIPM):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $144,150 was available for Extension grant awards and $543,816 was available for research grant awards.

A total of 23 proposals requesting $2,681,102 were received in the FY 2013 grant competition. Eight proposals (excluding the Administrative Grant Management Project) were recommended for funding (see below). The grant funding ratio was 35%.

(F-2) Northeastern Region (aka NE-RIPM):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $144,150 was available for Extension grant awards and $402,083 was available for research grant awards.

A total of 18 proposals requesting $1,645,248 were received in the FY 2013 grant competition. Six proposals were recommended for funding (excluding the Administrative Grant Management Project) - see below. The grant funding ratio was 33%.

(F-3) Southern Region (aka S-RIPM):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $144,150 was available for Extension grant awards and $608,700 was available for research grant awards.

A total of 31 proposals requesting $4,035,691 were received in this years competition. 5 proposals were recommended for funding (excluding the Administrative Grant Management project) see below. The grant funding ratio was 16%.

(F-4) Western Region (aka W-RIPM):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $144,150 was available for Extension grant awards and $473,051 was available for research grant awards.

A total of 31 proposals requesting $3,913,131 were received in this years competition. Five proposals were recommended for funding (excluding the Administrative Grant Management project) see below. The funding percentage for this program was 16%.

FARM SAFETY COMBINED PROGRAMS (G), (H) & (W):

(G) Farm Safety;

(H) Farm Safety and Youth Safety Education and Certification Program (aka YFSEC); and

(W) Assistive Technology Program for Farmers with Disabilities - National AgrAbility Project:

In FY 2012, Congress consolidated Extension 3(d) line items Farm Safety (AgrAbility) and Youth Farm Safety Education and Certification into a single line item.

In FY 2013, approximately $3,781,786 was available for project awards (after subtracting administrative and panel costs) to support AgrAbility and Youth Farm Safety Education and Certification (YFSEC) projects. Of this amount, $300,000 was made available for one (1) new award for YFSEC, approximately $3,395,000 for seventeen (17) AgrAbility continuation awards (including State and Regional AgrAbility Projects and National AgrAbility Project) and $486,000 was available for three (3) new State AgrAbility awards.

As in the past, AgrAbility program maintained its focus on supporting state and regional projects that increase the likelihood that individuals with disabilities and their families engaged in production agriculture (AgrAbility customers) will become more successful.

Through the YFSEC program, NIFA awarded $300,000 a year for two years to Pennsylvania State University to develop a national training curriculum that lessens agricultural hazards to youth workers. The training will align with Career Cluster Standards (CCS) of the National Council for Agricultural Education for a unified approach to a national farm safety education and curricula-certification program for youth. The project will establish a national steering committee to engage the Department of Education, Department of Labor, FFA, Farm Bureau, Farmers Union, Ag Safety and Health Council of America, National Council for Ag Education and other relevant partners. The committee will work to identify curriculum and testing gaps, certification needs and industry-recognized credentials. Curriculum materials will be placed on the eXtension website in the Ag Safety and Health CoP to be used in both formal and non-formal settings. A national outreach strategy will promote use of the curriculum from youth and farm safety instructors to parents and 4-H youth programs. Additionally, the project will determine the resources required to sustain a clearinghouse for national youth farm safety and education curriculum, state certification requirements and testing. Penn States partners on this project include the Ohio State University, University of Kentucky, Utah State University, and CareerSafe. NIFA made the award through the Youth Farm Safety Education and Certification (YFSEC) Program, which was established in 2001 in response to the need for alignment between youth vocational agricultural program curricula and youth agricultural safety and health standards.

(I) New Technologies at Ag Extension (aka NTAE):

Fiscal Year 2013 Accomplishments:

This is the 10th anniversary of eXtensions founding and now offers over 70 Communities of Practice (CoP) and Learning Networks (LN). In 2013, 5 new CoPs/Learning Networks were initiated: Tourism, Garden Professors, Families and Child Well Being, Women in Agriculture, and the Community Capacity Building as part of the Military Family Learning Network. The eXtension staff developed selection criteria and conducted an evaluation of the 70+ CoPs and identified the top 25 performing teams. 6 CoPs are being optimized towards Learning Networks with higher audience engagement through social media: Entrepreneurs; Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion; For Youth, For Life; Feral Hogs; Extension Disaster Education Network; and Garden Professors.

In Fiscal Year 2013, 17,392 articles were published and the overall Social Media Reach increased by 124% to 1.64 M users. Over 3,000 experts answered 48,008 questions in 2013 with the number of questions answered by the Ask an Expert (AaE) system increasing by 29% over 2012 with 54% of the AaE users who had never heard of or used Cooperative Extension before. 78% of the users were satisfied with the answers to their questions.

Social Media Engagement primarily occurred through Facebook, Twitter and YouTube increased more than 12 fold with 5.763 M interactions in 2013 through 573 total course offerings. The campus Moodle system doubled the number of active users in 2013 to 21,268 and issued 36% more certificates in 2013 numbered at 14,900.

There were 51,458 unique visits to LEARN with 494 webinars offered through this component of eXtension with a savings value of $1.63 M to the Cooperative Extension System. There were a total of 18,534 people participating in the webinars and the total recorded webinar viewed was documented at 173,683. The number of instructors participating in LEARN in 2013 increased by 25% to 482.

In Fiscal Year 2013, when counting all contracts, sponsorships, donations, course revenue, and grants received, including the NTAE award, the CES received $1.53 of additional funds for each dollar invested by the CES Directors and Administrators. Since eXtension was established, the CES has received $1.58 additional funds for each dollar invested.

At the request of the CES Directors and Administrators, eXtension was independently evaluated and a new strategic planning process was recommended. The eXtension staff developed a new plan called eXtension 2.0. The eXtension Director and Chief Technology Officer resigned, an interim director was hired to lead the initiative through the transition. The eXtension staff developed criteria to evaluate the effectiveness of each of the 70+ Communities of Practice finding about one-third to be of the highest quality.

CHILDREN, YOUTH, AND FAMILIES (CYFAR) COMBINED PROGRAMS (J) & (U) :

(J) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk (aka Youth at Risk and/or CYFAR); and

(U) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk - Sustainable Community Projects (aka CYFAR-SCP):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $6,728,000 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

A total of 21 academic institutions submitted applications requesting $13,138,695.00 in this years competition. In January 2013, an eight member peer review panel evaluated these applications.

Funds were available to support a total of seven awards in the following project types: one 4-H Military ($425,949); 40 Sustainable Community Projects ($4,457,931); and nine New Sustainable Community Projects ($720,000).

The funding ratio for this program in FY 2013 was 43%.

Funded projects should address one of the following CYFAR National Outcomes:

- a) Early Childhood;
- b) School Age;
- c) Teens; and
- d) Parent/Family.

NOTE: For CYFAR-PDTA Program, see CFDA 10.500 (V).

(K) Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education- Professional Development (aka Chapter 3 and/or SARE-PD):

NOTES:

- (1) Effective Fiscal Year 2014, Programs under Sustainable Agriculture (research, education and extension) were merged into a single program under the research account.
- (2) See CFDA Number 10.215 for all pertinent details.

(L) Federally- Recognized Tribes Extension Program (aka FRTEP):

In FY 2013, the FRTEP program had a competitive panel, restricted to the existing 36 active programs, to ensure program continuity. NIFA awarded $ 2,688,054 to 36 FRTEP projects in 19 states. With their funding, the grant recipients:

Supplied 18,475 farmers and ranchers with information;
Supported 116,278 youth adult volunteers;
Leveraged $1.5 million in additional funds; and Helped to improve 363,930 acres of Reservation land.

(M) Extension Services at the 1994 Institutions (aka Tribal Colleges Extension Program and/or TCEP); and

(BB) Tribal Colleges Extension- Special Emphasis (TCEP-SE):

This grant program made 41 awards totaling $3,819,473 to 32 Land Grant Institutions. These included 32 capacity projects and nine special emphasis projects. A capacity grant funds an entire Extension department and a special emphasis grant supports pilot projects responding to community needs. The total funds were split with Extension Capacity receiving $3,404,520 and Special Emphasis receiving $735,000. The programs focus was 24 percent agriculture, 12 percent conservation, 25 percent youth and 35 percent health. There were 1,003 farmer contacts with 682 acres were improved. Programs involved 8846 youth and 16,920 community contacts. In addition, the extension offices provided 6,417 health programs and 359 community gardens to promote nutrition and food security.

RENEWABLE RESOURCES EXTENSION ACT COMBINED PROGRAMS (N) & (O) :

(N) Renewable Resources Extension Act (aka RREA); and

(O) Renewable Resources Extension Act- National Focus Fund Projects (aka RREA-NFF):

Capacity funds resulted in the following impacts (60 of 72 institutions reporting to date):

Number of educational events 5,807

Number of landowners adopting at least one new management practice 59,493

Number of forest and rangeland acres impacted 30,571,826

Number of management plans developed 51,710

Number of forest, range, fish and wildlife income-generating business created or expanded 3,057

Number of new jobs created 439

For the FY 2013 funding cycle, approximately $150,000 was available from the National Focus Funds. Because of a FY 2013 budget cut in RREA the National Focus Funds (NFF) Competitive Program budget consisted of $150,000. RREA Program Managers determined that this amount was too small to justify a formal competition and received approval of a non-competition waiver. Four awards were made:

Forest Farming Community of Practice;

Southeast Silvopasture Initiative;

2nd National Extension In-Service on Natural Resources and Climate Change; and Rangeland Stewardship and Health Community of Practice.

These awards are currently in process, no other data or information is available.

(P) Rural Health and Safety Education (Competitive) Grants Program (aka RHSE):

In FY 2013, $1,325,066 was available (after admin and panel costs) to support Extension projects through the RHSE program.

RHSE RFA was revised to align the program more closely with:

a) Stakeholders feedback; and

b) Programs needs to provide guidance to future grantees regarding better capture and reporting on their projects outcomes and impacts.

FY 2013 proposals were expected to be community-based, outreach education and extension programs that provide individuals and families with:

Information as to the value of good health at any age;

Information to increase individual or families motivation to take more responsibility for their own health;

Information regarding rural environmental health issues that directly impact on human health;

Information about and access to health promotion and educational activities;

and

Training for volunteers and health services providers concerning health promotion and health care services for individuals and families in cooperation with state, local and community partners.

In order to achieve these program goals, the Rural Health and Safety Education Program focused on supporting:

Rural Health and Safety Education projects at state and regional levels. Proposed project budgets could not exceed $200,000, including indirect costs, for a project period of 1 year.

One project addressing National Common Measures for Rural Health and Safety Education projects. Proposed project budgets could not exceed $50,000, including indirect costs, for a project period of 1 year. One award was to be given in the form of a cooperative agreement to identify common measures for individual and family health education Extension programs from a FCS/Human Sciences perspective. These common measures were to help increase capacity of the state and regional projects to: a) report on outcomes and impacts of their project objectives; and b) inform state, regional and national efforts aimed at protecting and promoting rural vitality.

To allow more institutions overall to successfully compete for RHSE funds, the following types of applications submitted to the Rural Health and Safety Education Competitive Program in FY 2013 were not considered for funding:

Projects that have received funding through Rural Health and Safety Education Competitive Grants Program for 2 or more years within the past 5 years; and Proposals with a focus on research (other than evaluation related to project impacts), formal education (K-12, university), or clinical interventions.

Of the 20 proposals submitted to the program, 19 were reviewed by the FY 2013 RHSE panel, of which 7 were triaged during the panel session and 12 proposals were considered for funding. Of the proposals recommended for funding, there were sufficient funds for only top 7 proposals. Total cost for the top 7 proposals came up to $1,283,613, which left $41,453. This amount was not sufficient to fully or partially fund proposal ranked as #8 while still ensuring the proposed projects effective deliver and success. Hence, those funds were allocated to the proposal ranked as #3. The PD of this proposal agreed to expand her project to more rural counties. The additional funds will keep the total amount allocated to proposal #3 still below the maximum amount allowable per individual project and as indicated in the RFA, which was set at $200,000.

(Q) 1890 Facilities Grant Program and Tuskegee and (newly designated) Central State University (aka Section 1447):

In FY 2013, a Request for Applications was issued to solicit new five-year Plans of Work (2013-2017) and the first year funding proposals from the respective 1890 Land-Grant Institutions. The appropriated amount in FY 2013 was $18,204,579. After administrative deductions, a total distribution of $17,475,271 was available to support facilities projects at each of the 1890 Land-Grant Institutions (including Tuskegee University and West Virginia State University). The awards ranged from $685, 691 to $1,424,221.

(R) Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database Program (aka FARAD):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, Congress appropriated $1,000,000 to support FARAD, which is funded under its own line item authority.

A total of four (4) applications were received and evaluated under competition waiver administrative processes. FARAD applications were merit reviewed internally by National Program Staff and all 4 entities were funded. This 30-year-old high performing integrated consortium of collaborating institutions includes at each Land Grant campus a lead Project Director (PD), and his/her respective scientific staff.

The funding ratio for this program in FY 2013 was 100% due to the competition waiver process.

FARAD is a university-based national program that serves as the primary source for scientifically-based recommendations regarding safe withdrawal intervals of drugs (used off label) and chemicals in food-producing animals. As such, FARAD is a key resource for protection of our nation's food supply, including meat, milk and eggs, against accidental contamination of animal-derived foods with residues of drugs, pesticides or other agents that could compromise food safety.

(S) Grants to Youth Serving Institutions (aka Rural Youth Development and/or RYD Grants Program):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $645,000 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

Based on Congressional language, only four organizations are eligible to apply for this funding: the National FFA Organization, the National 4-H Council, the Girl Scouts of the USA, and Boy Scouts of America. The Boy Scouts did not apply. Each organization could apply for up to 40 percent of the available funds.

A three (3) member peer review panel comprised of program staff from the National Institute of Food and Agriculture, plus the National Program Leader who manages the grant program, reviewed the three applications. Applications were scored independently by each reviewer based on pre-determined criteria outlined in the RFA.

The reviewers submitted their scores electronically. The scores were averaged to give a total for each application. In addition, reviewers made comments about the strength and weaknesses of each scoring component. The peer review panel met face-to-face to discuss rankings and make recommendations for funding levels.

Amounts are approximately: 4-H, $182,000; FFA, $258,000; and GSUSA, $206,000.

In this program youth and adult teams work together in their communities to learn leadership skills. They conduct community needs assessments. Based on the results of the needs assessments, they prioritize long-term, complex community issues that they can address. Then, the teams plan, implement, and evaluate projects to meet those needs.

(T) Agriculture Risk Management Education Program (aka ARPA, ERME and/or RME Program):

NIFA funds five (5) regional Extension Risk Management Education Centers through a line-item appropriate known as ARPA, the Agricultural Risk Protection Act. ERME is a results-based competitive program conducted at the regional level. Program applicants at the regional level must identify the intended audience(s) and outcomes of their curricula and training, along with metrics to measure those outcomes. Each year, the regional Centers combined fund approximately 50 projects. All curricula and training materials developed through this investment, as well as reports on program outcomes, are archived and publicly available on the Ag Risk Library at: <http://extensionrme.org/> formerly, <http://www.agrisk.umn.edu/Library/Topics.aspx?LIB=AR>

FY 2013 marks a decade of Extension Risk Management Education programming. Since FY 2003, Extension Risk Management Education projects have had more than 212,000 participants. More than 966 local projects throughout all 50 states have educated Americas farmers and ranchers to manage the unique risks of producing food for the worlds table. As a result of this programming, more than 14,000 participants understand more about transitioning their farm business to the next generation and more than 3,000 have made progress development a written transition plan. Likewise, more than 26,000 participants learned more about developing a marketing plan and over 10,000 have written a marketing plan for their enterprises.

Specifically as a result of the FY 2013 competition, 64 subawards were funded by the four regional ERME Centers. Of these, 12 were in the NE region, 16 were in the NC region, 19 were in the S region, and 17 were in the W region. This is an investment of $2.6M in regional Extension Risk Management Education. Furthermore, the program sponsored the FY 2013 Extension Risk Management Education National Conference.

Special programming in FY 2013 included training and technical assistance to Native American producers on the tax implications of the Keepseagle Settlement Payment.

As in previous years, projects funded in FY 2013 represent a diverse portfolio of risk management topics, audiences, and geography. Projects targeted the special emphasis audiences identified in Section 12026 of the 2008 Farm Bill. Among the examples and indicators of ERME program success are those found in Progress, which is published annually. The January 2014 edition details the Mid-Atlantic Farmwomens Network, an Agritourism Intensive in California, a North Carolina project Understanding the Risk and Rewards of Mineral Rights Leases, a Michigan initiative to open communication lines with farm employees, risk in the Texas environmental horticulture industry, improving land leasing skills in Kansas, a Massachusetts project on farm management decision making, and Financial Analysis and Benchmarking Education: Tools for Risk Management for South Central Utah Beginning Farmers and Ranchers.

(U) & (J) CYFAR-SCP and CYFAR, respectively were Combined).
NOTE: See CFDA 10.500 (J) Above for pertinent details.

(V) Children , Youth, and families at Risk- Professional Development and technical Assistance (aka CYFAR-PDTA):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $850,000 will be available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs. For this Professional Development and Technical Assistance (PDTA) award, one (1) university will be awarded this competitive award.

The funded project is designed to address the professional development and technical assistance needs of the CYFAR SCP grantees.

The panel review is set to occur during late July.

NOTE: For pertinent details re: CYFAR & CYFAR-SCP, see CFDA 10.500 (J) & (U), respectively.

(W) See COMBINED FARM SAFETY PROGRAMS (G), (H), & (W) Above.

(X) Extension IPM Coordination and Support Program (aka IPM-CS):

For the FY 2013, $ 8,135,704 was awarded for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs ($ 7,959,181 for EIPM Coordination and $ 176,523 for EIPM Support).

A total of 60 applications requesting a total of $ 34,598,992 for the three year term of the awards ($ 11,701,148 for year one) were received in the FY 2013 competition. In June 2013, a 17-member peer review panel evaluated these applications. The peer panel included faculty and administrators from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities.

Funds were available to support a total of 50 awards in the Coordination program and four awards in the Support program. Seven awarded grants have collaborations between 1862 and 1890 land-grant institutions.

The funding ratio for this program in FY 2013 was 96%, reflecting the substantial stakeholder input to retain a network of institutional and state-based IPM Coordination programs. The amount of the awards reflected the ranking of the application by the peer panel. The support program funded 50% of the applications.

Funded coordination projects address Extension education in one or more of the following IPM target audiences:

- 1) IPM in Agronomic Crops;
- 2) IPM in Specialty Crops;
- 3) IPM in Communities;
- 4) IPM in Animal Agriculture; and
- 5) Any of eight secondary areas (conservation, diagnostics, housing, pesticide application, public health, recreation, schools, and wide-area pest monitoring).

(Y) Extension Outreach on the Marketplace Exchanges of the Affordable Care Act:

Grant was awarded September, 2013. Recruitment of partner institutions and awarding of sub-award funds were accomplished through December, 2013. A training meeting of all participants was held in early January and implementation of the program began in all 12 States. Project ended June 18, 2014. Evaluated summary highlights indicated the following results:

*42,812 consumers (including 11,000 young adults) participated in over 4700 direct health insurance outreach and education activities

*2.8 million consumers were reached via indirect outreach and education resources, materials and activities

*Approximately 45,000 consumers were assisted with enrollment or directly referred to CACs or Navigators for enrollment

(Z) Military Family Readiness System (aka MFRS):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, no funds were available for project grant awards.

(AA) Second Language & Culture Exposure for Children Project (aka SLCECY):

For the FY 2013 award cycle, $ 0 was available for project grant awards.

The following accomplishments represent activity for prior on-going projects:

During this reporting period, SLCECY staff primarily focused on the requirements for Phase Two with a lesser focus on Phase Three. While a major challenge during year one (1) of the project was to identify the content for the training program and the classroom guide, the second year evolved into identifying an approach for addressing these two project activities. This approach includes utilizing a theory to practice framework to develop second language and culture exposure material for SLECEY. The theory to practice framework used to structure and present SLCECY materials is based on four components:

- (1) Learn;
- (2) Explore;
- (3) Apply; and
- (4) Demonstrate.

The first component, Learn, provides introductory information related to second language and culture exposure topics, and includes a focus on the benefits of second language and culture. A set of guiding principles for second language and culture was developed to guide teachers in their use of second language and culture activities in the classroom. Explore expands on the information provided in Learn, by allowing teachers to explore additional resources such as additional readings, videos, related to second language and culture exposure. Explore also introduces teachers to "Classroom Assets" that may be utilized to further understand how to present second language and culture activities in the classroom. Apply allows teachers to take concepts presented in "Learn" and "Explore" and to create second language and culture exposure activities for use in during any of their daily classroom routines. Demonstrate offers teachers a structure for actually presenting second language and culture activities in their classrooms and for documenting these activities through the use of a modified portfolio approach.

Having arrived at an acceptable structure for SLCECY materials, the grantee then focused on the developing its content. Content development was based on information provided in the project's request for application (RFA) and was informed to a larger extent from the literature review on second language and culture exposure. Information provided by NIFA/DoD on the primary stakeholders to be impacted by these materials also greatly informed the development of the SLCECY content. To assist in guiding the development of training and classroom materials, the awardee developed a vision statement and corollary statements for the SLCECY. The following vision statement was developed for the project: "Children in early learning settings will be exposed to the languages and cultures in their own classrooms to assist them in building knowledge of and an affinity for the diverse languages and cultures across the world."

The corresponding mission statement for the projects states: "Children, teachers, and families will also be provided with opportunities to be exposed to and contextually use diverse languages through home culture centered activities within the classroom and the broader environment." In addition to the vision and mission statements, the grantee also refined its view of the primary SLCECY stakeholders and corresponding goals for each stakeholder group. To further assist in the development of SLCECY training and classroom materials, the grantee developed a scope based on the following criteria appropriate for second language and culture exposure in an ECE setting:

- (1) Second language and Culture Strands;
- (2) ECE daily routines;
- (3) ECE socio-cultural themes; and
- (4) ECE curriculum standards.

The second language and culture strands are comprised of the following topics:

- (1) Orientation to Language;
- (2) Early Language Development;
- (3) Early Second Language Learning;
- (4) Heritage Language and Positive Cultural Identity;
- (5) Culturally-Based Family Involvement; and,
- (6) Methods for utilizing Second Language and Culture Exposure activities.

The early childhood education routines incorporated into SLCECY materials include:

- (1) Arrival time;
- (2) Story time;
- (3) Small groups;
- (4) Outdoor activities;
- (5) Snack time;
- (6) Departure times; and
- (7) Classroom project.

The traditional socio-cultural themes that are part of early childhood education setting are also incorporated into SLCECY materials. These themes include: Self, Family, School, Community, Seasons, Food, and Sports. The early childhood education (ECE) curriculum standards addressed in the SLCECY materials include NAEYC standards and Creative Curriculum standards. These standards were identified as relevant to SLCECY materials, given their prominence within the child development centers. In addition to these criteria, SLCECY staff are creating second language and culture exposure materials that will engage the multilingual capabilities found in the DoD classroom and in the community. For example, it is not out of the ordinary for ECE teachers and children in a DoD setting to know English in addition to having a home language. Moreover, DoD children may also reside in communities where the dominant language may not be English. For DoD child development centers abroad, children would participate as members of that linguistic community.

The purpose of the SLCECY materials, therefore, is not only to expose all students to second language and culture activities, but also to reinforce the value of existing languages in the classroom by using them as the springboard for presenting second language and culture activities to the entire classroom.

In preparation for Phase Three activities (pilot-testing), DoD staff arranged a visit to a DoD child development center within the Washington, DC metropolitan area. The visit was quite instructive in that it allowed SLCECY staff to observe primary stakeholders in routine activities. Based on this visit, SLCECY staff determined to further refine its approach for creating SLCECY second language and culture exposure training and classroom materials. The visit reaffirmed the need to make clear that SLCECY materials are to be integrated into the regular ECE classroom routines, and not to be used within a certain period of the day or the week. Consequently, through the leadership of our senior ECE staff person, the grantee developed the Daily Routine Wheel, with the intention of assisting ECE teachers to identify daily classroom routines, and to use these as the basis for planning when and how to use SLCECY materials or their adaptations. Also, as a result of the visit to the ECE child development, the grantee determined that the use of second language and culture exposure "assets" such as stories, songs, and games in different languages and/or cultures would assist teachers greatly in actually integrating second language and culture activities into their daily routines. These "classroom assets," have been adapted by the SLCECY multilingual staff from materials found in different cultures and languages. For the purpose of this project, materials have been adapted primarily from the following languages: Arabic, Chinese, English, Farsi, French, German, and Tagalog. These materials will be provided to teachers as part of the SLCECY training and classroom activities to be used as appropriate during any of their ECE daily classroom routines.

While working on developing the structure and content for SLCECY materials, the grantee has also been preparing for Phase Three Washington, DC area, as mentioned above. Further, the grantee has had conversations with DoD professional development staff in San Antonio, TX to discuss a process for pilot testing SLCECY materials at the child development center in Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado. As per this conversation, the grantee will provide one of the SLCECY strands for review to the professional development staff in San Antonio.

What opportunities for training and professional development has the project provided?

The project has provided opportunities for staff to attend relevant meetings such as the National Headstart Conference that was held locally, and other relevant professional organization meetings held within the Washington, DC metropolitan area. Project staff also had the opportunity to attend the NIFA Military Extension Partnership LEAD Institution Meeting held locally to learn about similar activities and to be provided with networking opportunities.

(I) New Technologies at Ag Extension (aka NTAE):

Fiscal Year 2014 Milestones:

The goal of this project is to increase the capacity of member institutions (states) to contribute expertise and content toward the development of eXtension, a national Internet-based educational network offering 24/7/365 access to objective, science-based information from land-grant universities and partners nationwide. It is an integral part of and complements the national community-based Cooperative Extension System (CES). This is the 4th year request for support of a four-year project.

The eXtension staff working on behalf of the CES at the request of the eXtension Governing Committee. Nationally, CES Directors and Administrators from 1862 and 1890 land-grant institutions voted to continue their support of eXtension and the work of this team, and as a result will continue to invest funding equal to .08 percent of their Smith Lever 3(b) & 3(c) and 1890 funding annually through 2015. These institutional investments and support from the New Technologies for Ag Extension (NTAE) grant program represent the funds that support the development and maintenance of eXtension. Additionally, the endorsement of Extension Directors and Administrators included a commitment of faculty and local Extension agents/educators to participate in new and existing Communities of Practice (CoPs) and Learning Networks (LN).

In October 2013, eXtension staff made some suggestions about future direction and focus of eXtension as a response to external reviews of eXtension conducted between FY 2012 and FY 2013. There was/is a growing concern among Extension Directors and Administrators that eXtension is not living up to its full potential. In November 2013, the eXtension Governing Committee decided a new strategic plan was needed. A request for applications was developed and in February 2014, an external firm was hired to develop a new plan. The planning committee leading the work with the external contractor includes ten extension directors/administrators, two representatives from the National Institute of Food and Agriculture, three eXtension staff members and a representative from APLU. Feedback indicates a stronger internal focus of eXtension is needed to help extension faculty across the country better use digital technology as they develop and deliver extension educational programs. This new plan is to be released for Extension director/administrator review in the summer of 2014. Because of this new plan and the probable need for immediate action, there may be a need to make some adjustment in the scope of work outlined in this document. Key priorities for moving eXtension forward are described in the FYs 2011-2014 eXtension Strategic Roadmap, approved by the eXtension Governing Committee June 3, 2011:

Learning Networks. A Learning Network is a group of people who share common emotions, goals, values or beliefs, are actively engaged in learning together from each other. This group will consist of subject matter experts with or without an Extension appointment, industry professionals and the general public or audience known of the learning network. The LN will focus on establishing regular and varied interactions using a variety of online or traditional mechanisms to ensure members needs are being met. Learning Networks capitalize on the resources at its disposal to develop products and address emerging relevant topics. They engage in online social spaces and participate in online events, such as webinars. Learning Networks explore all options for potential funding while simultaneously remaining flexible, attentive, and responsive to their network members.

Partnerships and funding This will include securing successful sponsorships, partnerships, and collaborations that meet identified needs and provide the additional investment funding enabling eXtension to leverage its growth beyond levels attainable through existing sources of funding. We have as much to offer partners, as they have to offer to us. An example of this is securing of funds to support the Women in Ag Learning Network and conference. Please note, no federal funding will be used to create new and additional funding.

Local value enhancement eXtensions national workforce development plan to develop an effective workforce for the 21st Century involves creating useful and valuable strategies for CES specialists and county agents/educators on how to contribute, to access educational resources and information needed to engage and serve their constituents more efficiently and effectively, to curate content from many sources to improve the customer/client educational experience, and to use technology to work differently and reach new audiences in the future.

Performance measurement In 2014 metrics were created to measure and evaluate CoP/LN performance. These metrics included use of Social Media and webinars by Communities.

Professional development This involves providing professional development leadership for the CES and offering professional development in areas that guarantee a 21st Century workforce, i.e., new technologies, content and program development, and collaboration and sharing. In 2014, a team of eXtension faculty was assembled to develop Professional Development pertaining to use of Google Apps in Extension Education. In moving forward, the FY 2014-2015 foci describe the work of eXtension for the next 12 months.

User Focus:

In FY 2013 eXtension Staff redesigned www.eXtension.org; began development of mobile apps and optimized Ask an Expert. All these activities are ongoing and continue to enhance the access to eXtension through the publics increasing number of technology choices.

Objectives and Procedures

1. Identify, acquire, and maintain state-of-the-art technology and software applications that support the primary business processes of eXtension.

(a) Enhance and Upgrade eXtensions Existing Functionalities:

The eXtension collaborative workspace will be continuously upgraded and refined as more user friendly for expert to work virtually and effectively as they repackage, repurpose and curate educational content and pedagogy. More specifically, we will:

Maintain and enhance the core eXtension infrastructure, i.e., data architecture, protocols, processes, and content management and learning management systems.

This will involve system engineering, content integration and standardization, data management, system security, usability testing, performance benchmarking, and monitoring system performance and scalability to meet both current and future demands.

Enhance the collaborative work environment and ways to connect people with similar interest to support Learning Networks and CoPs in their development of educational content, learning modules, events, news articles, and multimedia information products, i.e., video, audio, and hybrid technologies.

Work with Learning Networks and CoPs to provide access to eXtension information and educational programming. The primary work will be to provide frameworks for Web sites of educational content objects.

Address the needs of clientele within learning networks. Emphasis will be given to how customers interact with others, including faculty, within social learning networks.

Research, design, develop, and operate curation and filtering technologies for information originating from the scientific community for both Web and mobile devices.

Enhance eXtensions content management and learning management systems, as appropriate. Such tools will support the work of Learning Networks and CoPs and provide educational opportunities for the public.

Continue to refine the curation, filtering technologies, and functionality in Ask an Expert, Learn, and People applications to incorporate enhanced filtering and to make content more publically discoverable and more easily shared.

Conduct research and evaluation into the educational application of emerging technologies.

Develop educational programs on how to apply emerging technologies to CES programmatic efforts and monitor and evaluate the Extension Systems adoption and use of these new technologies.

Develop plans and contracts for the secure and scalable hosting of eXtensions technical infrastructure.

Generate reports on user collaboration success stories from within the CES and industry.

Create reports of top performing Learning Networks/CoPs as determined by a set of easily generated metrics like use of social media and webinars and other usage data, and share them with Learning Networks/CoPs.

(b) Provide Customer Support, including help-desk staffing, Web Hosting, Training and Software Licenses for eXtension:

We will develop services to handle, monitor and answer all incoming questions (e.g. phone, AaE, chat, email, Twitter, Facebook, et al), record and collect all pertinent information, direct people to appropriate support documents, create needed support documents, and create support videos on commonly identified problems. We will route questions to appropriate staff members and monitor them to ensure questions have been answered in a timely, complete, and appropriate manner. We will continue eXtension support identities on various social media networks, ensure that support contact information is easily found, and monitor and report on our responsiveness to customer concerns. We will collect and manage eXtension support documents in a single system (Drupal), with a common look and feel, and categorize and tag them so they can be easily discovered and navigated.

We will use the eXtension Learn network - learn.extension.org - to provide access to a regular schedule of training programs for CES employees and partners.

We will contract with Texas A&M AgriLife Extension to support our learning management system (Moodle) and help desk functions. People wanting to use Moodle may receive startup instruction, get answers to questions, and have resources allocated to them necessary to their use of Moodle. An eXtension staff person will also be assigned to support help desk questions coming from website users.

We will continue to partner with Iowa State University Extension for Adobe Web conferencing services to support eXtension administrative and LN/CoP programming. This includes program scheduling, hosting, facilitating and recording services.

We will use the Microelectronics Center of North Carolina (MCNC) in Research Triangle Park, North Carolina as our primary hosting facility. Its a state of the art hosting facility with high-speed connection to all of the major research networks connecting academic communities, and it provides networking and related services to K-12 and higher education institutions in North Carolina. MCNC provides a generator-backed, climate-controlled, controlled-access data center facility for educational institutions, educational non-profits, and public health organizations. eXtension maintains additional servers for off-site backups at a facility owned and operated by North Carolina State University. A number of contractors are used to support services, including DNS (domain name system), performance and availability monitoring, and notification systems.

eXtension Physical Infrastructure:

(c) Provide Infrastructure Support for Technical and Architectural Standards:

We will use open standards to develop eXtensions technical infrastructure, which means we will use, customize, implement, distribute and upgrade with little cost or license management. Source code will be made available to member institutions, thus leveraging the technical expertise and work of eXtension staff. We will support registration and authorization services, a content management system, a learning management system, the demonstration and publishing of Web content, syndicated data feeds (ATOM), analytics, Web conferencing, streaming video, chat, blogs, digital asset management, and other support services. We will use Google applications for staff email, eXtension chat, and document sharing services.

eXtension uses a localized "cloud" solution using VMWare and a Storage Area Network for system maintenance and provisioning to support 7/24/365 service. We will use Ubuntu Linux running MySQL, Apache, PHP, and Ruby on Rails to support core Web services, and deploy Drupal, WordPress, MediaWiki, and SenseMaker Suite products for certain offered services. All source code is made available through a third-party hosting service at <https://github.com/extension>. In addition, we will use software such as Postfix, Munin, MailMan, and others for monitoring, email, and system support services.

Funding from this grant program will be used to develop, enhance and customize the technical infrastructure, i.e., applications, hosting services, and help desk. This includes: developing, testing and implementing, as appropriate, new software applications. Key personnel involved will include the eXtension Engineering team that includes:

- 1) the Engineering team leader;
- 2) a Senior System Engineer;
- 3) Senior Applications Project Manager;
- 4) Senior Computer Human Interface Engineer; and
- 5) Senior Software Development Engineer.

Please note, a portion of the resources collected annually from CES institutional investments will be used to pay for learning management system support and professional development programming.

Much of the work described will be ongoing throughout the life of the grant award; improvement to support services, CoPs beginning to participate in Learning Networks, design, development, and refinement of curation and filtering technologies, improvements to the technical infrastructure, the collection of collaboration success stories, and reports identifying low performing content.

2. Recruit, hire, and retain innovative and high-quality leaders to create and manage eXtension for the collective vision, mission, values and principles.

eXtension Staffing:

eXtension will employ innovative and highly skilled people to lead this initiative. Currently, the eXtension Initiative employs approximately 16 FTEs and approximately 5 FTEs are employed through the Military Families Learning Network Project. Work to be addressed includes:

Administration (leadership, management, financial, legal)

Content and Instructional Development
Development of Learning Networks and Communities of Practice (CoPs)
Network & Software Engineering
Communications and Marketing
Evaluation (metrics, program outcomes and impacts)
Professional Development and Social Media Development

eXtension will rely on a strong volunteer base of support that currently includes many CES faculty participating in Learning Networks and CoPs. Many individuals serve on advisory committees, governance bodies, work teams and ad hoc groups, i.e., information technology, content development, communications and marketing & state and local value enhancement, corporate development, and evaluation and research.

Institutional/Innovation Teams (e.g., 5-10 people per team on average) will help integrate eXtension at the local level by contributing time and resources to encourage participation and use by faculty, staff and administration. A Governing Committee comprised of Cooperative Extension Directors and Administrators representing each CES region, representatives from USDA-NIFA and the Extension Committee on Organization and Policy (ECOP) is responsible for governing eXtension.

Much of the work described will be ongoing throughout the life of the grant award, but certain tasks will be completed over the next 12 months, i.e., overall leadership and coordination of eXtension, development of new partnerships, Learning Network/CoP contract development and management, and the annual appointment of a National eXtension Fellow.

NIFA National eXtension Fellowship Program:
eXtension will support a National eXtension Fellowship Program designed to bring faculty and educators into eXtension for a limited time period to focus on specific need areas such as technology mediated learning, instructional design, communications and marketing, evaluation and research, ontology (the categorizing of knowledge within a particular domain), and other needs, as determined. For complete information please see <http://create.extension.org/node/1433>.

Applications are due annually on October 31 so that all applications may be considered at the same time; fellowships are awarded for a calendar year. Individuals may self-nominate; however, eXtension will actively recruit individuals to apply for a fellowship in areas that will benefit the individual and eXtension.

Funding from this grant program will be used to lead and manage the eXtension Initiative, including business operations and subcontracts. Key personnel involved will include the:

- 1) Director of eXtension,
- 2) Administrative Associate, and
- 3) Grants Specialist.

Also, grant funds will be used to support the NIFA National eXtension Fellowship Program.

3. Train an exceptional CES workforce that can meet the challenges of the 21st century by integrating the Web-based resources of eXtension into their current mode of operations.

eXtensions national workforce development plan includes a number of strategies to develop an effective workforce for the 21st Century. We will help the CES transform the way it works and effectively engage customers through social networks and in formats of the customers choosing.

eXtension will develop a full complement of professional development opportunities designed to prepare CES to work with customers interested in online, as well as traditional learning opportunities. In conjunction with the National Association of Extension Program and Staff Development Professionals and others, a national training plan is being developed to ensure that CES faculty have the technical expertise to rapidly respond to the emerging and high priority learning needs of the people we serve. These professional development opportunities will include not only mastery of technologies, but program and content development, andragogy and pedagogy, effective collaboration and teamwork, and legal and policy considerations of working in online environments. Core to these efforts will be helping faculty and staff learn how to use eXtension to make their work better and easier.

The national eXtension Learn network - learn.extension.org - will be used to increase the sharing of professional development opportunities across the CES. Social media features have been added to make it more useful to faculty and staff in offering, discovering, and recommending professional development opportunities to their colleagues. As a comprehensive database of learning opportunities with records of those who have completed such opportunities, data is being used to help develop new highly effective hybrid learning opportunities designed to reach a broader audience, and engage more leaders and innovators. To make the Learn network a truly national system, we recruit national authoritative speakers to engage the CES on important technology and subject matter topics, and enlist state partners, institutional teams, CoPs, and others to contribute training programs. Also, we will develop new professional development resources using Moodle - <http://campus.extension.org> - which currently offers 298 professional development courses.

Content Development and Enhancing Communities of Practice:
Funding from this grant program will be used to support new and existing CoPs/Learning Networks, and promote content development and participation in these networks. Grant funding will be used to support CoP Optimization activities, i.e., organization and management of CoPs, and members of the content development staff, including the

- 1) eXtension Associate Director,
- 2) Information Technology Trainer, and
- 3) a Multimedia Programmer.

Other project resources will be used to support additional content development and management support, as well as professional development activities.

Moving forward, eXtension will create new Learning Networks that feature more user engagement through a host of social and learning networks, writing and curating more discoverable content, providing context around content, and creating sustainability of revenue sources. Five CoPs were selected for optimization in 2014: Feral Hogs, Entrepreneurs and their Communities, Garden Professors, For Youth For Life, and Extension Disaster Education Network (EDEN). A call for proposals has also put forth for the creation of two new Learning Networks to be funded in FY 2014.

Each of the communities selected are working on plans based on their subject matter focus, the audience(s) served, and identified optimization gaps as determined by the assessment scorecard. Strategies employed to solve problems, to promote user interaction, and to develop customer-generated content may vary, as well as the technologies used, i.e., forums, chat, blogs, social networks, and interactive learning environments. A key to their work will be to involve customers early in the participatory process, which is characteristic of learning networks and behaviors generally accepted on the Internet today.

eXtension will explore opportunities to deliver information in new, engaging formats that will benefit and extend the reach of the CES. Such formats will include applications designed for display in mobile interfaces, and more. eXtension is prepared to work with Learning Networks and CoPs to incubate special projects and activities when results can benefit Cooperative Extension.

Lowering the Barriers to Participation in eXtension:
eXtension is interested in lowering barriers to participation. Doing so will allow us to monitor and react to emerging subject matter needs and high profile situations that require a rapid response, as well as encourage inclusion of high quality content. Learning Networks and CoPs are encouraged to integrate Ask an Expert services within 30 days of forming.

Questions come through www.extension.org or through widgets placed on third party sites.

This allows Learning Networks and CoPs to immediately start engaging their users and gaining insight into user needs.

Community Management Board:

The eXtension Community Management Board will serve as an advisory committee to eXtension on content development and working in learning networks. The Community Management Board will coordinate across Learning Networks and CoPs, help qualify materials, ensure proper credit to authors and institutions, help manage and maintain collections of resources, and provide input on technological improvements. Qualifying materials include those for conducting review processes of published content, ensuring metadata is appropriate, and assisting in needs assessments to assure customer needs are met.

4. Develop and refine an array of current, effective, and legally binding contractual and financial instruments to support the business aspects of eXtension.

eXtension will develop and upgrade policies to manage and operate the organization. Key policies include:

- 1) Rules of Operation;
- 2) Contributor and Business Agreements (for both institutions and individuals);
- 3) Terms of Use;
- 4) Community of Practice Business Agreements;
- 5) Policy for Non-Payment of Institutional Investment;
- 6) Policy for Institutional Branding and Searching;
- 7) Privacy;
- 8) Disclaimers;
- 9) Community of Practice Policies;
- 10) Content Sharing Policy;
- 11) Non-discrimination;
- 12) Grievance Procedures and Removal of Content;
- 13) Data Collection and Services;
- 14) Community of Practice Leadership Policy;
- 15) Collaboration, Intellectual Property and Publishing Guidelines;
- 16) Sponsorship Agreements;
- 17) Partnership Policy;
- 18) State Affiliate Membership;
- 19) Sponsorship Policy & Sponsorship Recognition Levels;
- 20) Ask an Expert; and
- 21) Social Media Guidelines.

New contracts and agreements will be needed, including, but not limited to:

- 1) Agreements with potential partners describing the nature and terms of the specific partnership;
- 2) Grants and contracts for use with partners and member institutions; and
- 3) Security practices and procedures.

For information purposes only, a number of policies have been and will be developed to support the activities of the eXtension Foundation, operating as a 501c3 non-profit organization. Such policies relate to sponsorships and revenue generation, which are considered a separate activity from this application.

Funding from this grant program will be used to develop required policies and agreements.

Key personnel involved will include the Director of eXtension. Please note, a portion of the resources collected annually from CES institutional investments will be used to hire an attorney to assist with these responsibilities. Policies and agreements will be written on an as needed basis throughout the life of the grant award.

Develop and implement a comprehensive evaluation, and communications and marketing effort for eXtension.

Evaluation:

The focus of eXtension evaluation is to develop and implement evaluation efforts to measure how effectively eXtension is serving the informational and educational needs of customers through Learning Networks and CoPs as they develop eXtension content resources. Additional activities will include refining the performance metrics that are shared with the CES, and developing evaluation strategies and tools for documenting social media reach and engagement with customers and CoPs working in learning networks.

Evaluation of eXtension products and services to ensure competitiveness in the marketplace is the responsibility of Learning Networks, CoPs and eXtension. Learning Networks and CoPs are responsible for understanding the particular needs of customers, explaining how they will be served while describing scope and boundaries, economic, and/or social importance. They draw from needs assessment data and work experience to develop relevant and marketable products and services. Also, they are responsible for developing key partnerships and knowing competitors within the subject matter they support. Evaluation is expected to ensure that the design of new and exceptional curricula, products, and services are founded on needs, evaluated for user functionality and preference, relevant long-term, supplement state and local Extension programs, and produce outcomes that can be measured and reported.

eXtension will continue to refine its evaluation system to measure processes, strategies, and outcomes related to serving the needs of customers through the delivery of Internet based educational and informational programs and services. These include, but are not limited to, basic information, publications, news, Ask An Expert, FAQ, discussion and chat, decision tools, Web conferencing, learning modules, and certificate and credit courses.

Using Google Analytics and Qualtrics, Learning Networks and CoPs have the capability to track users interactions with the eXtension public Web site, as well as conduct surveys of users to document satisfaction, usefulness, knowledge, skill, and behavior changes.

Evaluation milestones for FY 2014-2015 will include (note that these will be reviewed, reported on, and revised annually, as appropriate):

In late FY 2011, an eXtension Critical Success Factor/Metrics (CSF/M) Task Force was convened and with input from other CES staff nationwide developed a set of nine Critical Success Factors and accompanying metrics that CES found to be credible and relevant for eXtension. These CSF/M were initially reported on for FY 2011. Work will continue on developing protocols to collect all data to document each CSF.

Continue to foster a national dialog to develop a set of national guidelines on developing critical and relevant metrics to help decision makers understand the significance of how CES online content and resources are used and evaluated in Cooperative Extension work.

Continue to investigate social media analytic tools to determine reach and engagement metrics we want to measure.

Work with Learning Networks and CoPs to document and measure outputs, outcomes, and impacts of their work in eXtension through the annual reports.

Conduct usability tests to determine customer feedback of the public website and specific applications (e.g., FAQs, AaE).

Work with eXtension staff to document efforts and outcomes of our learning management system (Learn) and Moodle courses (both internal and external).

Provide assessment and evaluation leadership to the eXtension.org redesign and State and Local Value Enhancement initiatives.

Enhance development of The Scholarship of eXtension page to promote and gauge the scholarship of eXtension. Engage land-grant institutions in sharing and incorporating efforts in eXtension into promotion, tenure and annual faculty reporting guidelines.

Continue to report eXtension progress made to the CES through documents such as the Return on Investment, State and Institutional Reports, CSF/M Report, and others as necessary.

Implement key recommendations from the FY 2014 Strategic Planning Committee.

Communications and Marketing:

eXtensions State and Local Value Enhancement effort is driven by results of a series of listening sessions that directed the State and Local Value Enhancement Working Group to develop a number of strategies to engage the land grant system:

State visits:

In cooperation with the states innovation/institutional team, if there is one, a team works with CES administration to conduct a listening session and then arrange a site visit to develop a team/rejuvenate an existing team, set up a plan for local value enhancement, and conduct training when possible. Tools and applications introduced include Ask an Expert, Learn and Search.

Innovation Teams:

We have begun an effort to convert institutional teams to innovation teams. The difference is the broader role we are finding for innovation teams. These teams certainly address eXtension tools, applications, and processes BUT they also look at technology applications within higher education. Successful innovation teams have worked with faculty and staff to examine the role of technology in learning in CES and have had good results in using ALL tools to support CES.

Middle Manager Training:

The State and Local Value Enhancement is developing training modules for state program leaders, regional directors and related administrative positions. These individuals are often in positions of directing programs, leading teams of agents and educators, and advising directors and administrators on tools and applications for adoption. In keeping with eXtensions mission of working differently its imperative to involve this group in such sessions.

Master Volunteers

eXtension is developing materials for states to use around master volunteers. The first project is completing universal training curricula for Ask an Expert so states can add more master volunteers to the Ask an Expert system. For example, Ohio estimates that their 70 master gardener volunteers added the equivalent of 2.5 FTEs of work during last year.

There are more than 35 different master organizations from gardeners to naturalists to home canners and more.

Digital Information Broker Train the Trainers:

eXtension continues to offer train the trainer sessions on becoming a digital information broker. These trainings demonstrate to institutions what county office workers, especially those who are on the front line working with clientele every day. eXtension tools are demonstrated including Learn, Ask an Expert, search.extension.org, people.extension.org and more. Sessions are offered quarterly.

As we develop and implement the comprehensive communications and marketing plan for eXtension, we will continue to focus on customer needs and services while continually analyzing market trends. eXtensions communications and marketing plan continues to include the creation of content that is original, searchable, and discoverable to major search engines such as Google.

Social Media, Learning Networks and CoPs Reaching the public with Learning Network and Community of Practice content has been enhanced as they have moved away from traditional media and into more social media efforts. eXtensions Facebook and Twitter feeds has increased the reach of Learning Networks and CoPs. eXtension will continue to develop and train extension faculty and staff on the use of social media for content dissemination.

eXtension continues to work on reaching new and traditional media, online editorial outreach, and blog relationship development. As noted above, eXtension continues to evaluate and develop search engine optimization strategies. eXtension continues to work with CES media relations units and news writers to disseminate and announce news, as appropriate. As always, eXtension will work to benefit the entire LGU community, NIFA, and the CES as a whole.

Funding appropriation for FY 2014 is approximately $19,730,000. The anticipated funding allocation is estimated at $18,938,800, which reflects adjustments for administrative costs. In FY 2014 a new school was designated as an 1890 Land-Grant Institution, bringing the total to 19; which includes Tuskegee University, West Virginia State University, and Central State University. This funding will support the second year of the five-year Plan of Work at 18 of the 1890 Land-Grant Institution. In support of the newly designated 1890 Land-Grant Institution, a four-year plan of work and a one-year funding application was requested through a Request for Application with a closing date of August 1, 2014. The anticipated range of funding is $806,696 to $1,510,916 to be distributed to the 19 institutions on a formula basis.

Facilities funds will be used for the acquisition and improvement of agricultural and food sciences facilities and equipment, as well as libraries, so the 1890 land-grant institutions may participate fully in the development of human capital in the food and agricultural sciences. Awards will be made by the end of Fiscal Year 2014.

(R) Food Animal Residue Avoidance Database Program (aka FARAD):

For the FY 2014 award cycle, Congress appropriated $1,250,000 to support FARAD, which is funded under its own line item authority.

A total of four (4) applications have been submitted. These applications are in the process of being merit reviewed internally by National Program Staff but recommendations for funding have not yet been determined as of the date of this report.

This 30-year-old high performing integrated consortium of collaborating institutions includes at each Land Grant campus a lead PD, and his/her respective scientific staff. The institutions involved are UC Davis, NCSU, UFL and KSU.

The funding ratio for this program in FY 2014 is not yet known.

FARAD is a university-based national program that serves as the primary source for scientifically-based recommendations regarding safe withdrawal intervals for drugs used off-label and for chemicals in food-producing.

(I) New Technologies at Ag Extension (aka NTAE):

Projected FY 2015 Accomplishments:

The expected accomplishments for FY 2015 will include the development and first year implementation of a new strategic plan. Although in progress, this plan may well change the financing strategy, as well as the name of eXtension, focusing more on private and public sector partnerships than the general assessment of all the 1862 or 1890 land-grant university state extension services.

The new initiative may well turn to a larger portion of its resources to building the capacity of state and county extension services to use technology to deliver better service to more audiences through online and face-to-face capacity building and professional development activities.

The eXtension staff is currently working on a request to fund a new Learning Network called educational technology. They are asking for the remaining $121,000 of the NTAE funds held by NIFA to support this new Network which may be hosted by Ohio State University with other partners as a response to a competitive call by eXtension in March 2014.

eXtension has a small team working with wearable technologies and that includes Ohio, Alabama and eXtension that started with Google Glass. There is already a spinoff network on Unmanned Aerial Systems with over 20 partners interested in this group. In addition, eXtension plans on starting a Learning Network dealing with Big Data.

Within the capacity building areas, eXtension is developing a professional training program focused on the application of a Google suite of products that have application to extension education. eXtension is working on the Farm Bill educational network that will include all states as directed by the Secretary of Agriculture, as well as, carrying out discussion with Lowes and the Southern Company about working with some existing CoPs.

The eXtension staff now has the Women in Agriculture COP contract almost in place with Iowa and Vermont. The Medgar Evers Foundation and Kellogg will have been approached as possible partners with eXtension. A new Learning Network on Climate Change will be formed to service the 7 USDA Regional Climate Hubs is expected to be initiated and launched in 2015 with USDA funding. The Climate Change Learning network will train USDA agency staff, Extension personnel, and private sector groups like the Certified Crop Advisors, as well as, individual producers.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: (A) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions [aka Smith-Lever 3 (b) & (c) Capacity (formerly known as Formula)] Grants Programs:

Below are five examples of progress from FY 2013 annual reports:

1. Family and Community Programs

In FY 2013, reports on homeless services utilization and on addiction treatment services were key references for policy makers and for media investigations of social conditions and the adequacy of services provided. In addition to the family and community development programs described below, research and extension staff implemented integrated intervention programs to define and promote financial literacy and skills, and science literacy (including critical thinking skills and application of classroom learning to community problems) in youth. The statewide "Kids Saving Project," implemented in 28 public schools to provide training in achieving financial security included partnerships with six credit unions and was recognized by the State Legislature. Over the past 4 years, a total of 1881 children have saved over $321,000, for an average of $171 saved per child. This savings project brings together as partners, State government, institutions, credit unions and banks, the school system, and parent, to enable and support young children, especially those from low income families, to open a savings account, to build a savings habit, and to build assets over time.

2. Master Gardener Program

Approximately 90% of all participants of the Master Gardener program considered training in turfgrass maintenance important and 95% of the participants reported that turfgrass training increased their knowledge of turf maintenance issues to either a great or a fair extent (immediately following a 3 hour training program). Approximately 75% of all participants that have attended 3 or more years in the Master Gardener Program reported that repeated training in turfgrass maintenance has helped them greatly in their career as a Master Gardener, and 90% reported that repeated training changed and enriched their understanding of turfgrass management differently than one time training would have. More than 70% of all turfgrass maintenance professionals who attended the annual Turfgrass Conference rated the knowledge they gained with either 4 or 5 on a scale of 0 (no useful knowledge) to 5 (knowledge provided extremely helpful). More than 90% of the participants rated the knowledge they gained with either 4 or 5 (on a scale of 0 = none to 5 = a lot), more than 95% rated the usefulness of information with either 4 or 5 (0 = not at all to 5 = very), and nearly 70% rated the quality of the training with either 4 or 5 (0 = poor to 5 = excellent).

3. Manure Management Planner

[1]Manure Management Planner website received 7,115 accesses, with 65 new accounts created, and 58 plans updated and/or modified; [2] Forty-two manure haulers, environmental managers and their employees attended the Custom Applicator Training program. Collectively, their production units and clients represented over 500 million gallons of annual manure application. All 42 individuals passed the Level Two exam for custom applicator certification; [3] Two hundred and seventy-four [274] individuals attended the Certified

Livestock Manager Training programs. According to the survey data, 88% of attendees responded that they currently had manure management plans. Of these respondents, 50% updated and used their plan annually.

4. Family Needs Resources Assessment

Surveys were given at the beginning as well as at the end of the series. The evaluation results found that there was a positive change on all four constructs assessed; Family Functioning and Resiliency, Emotional Supports, Concrete Supports and Nurturing and Attachment; 44% of the participants changed on the extent to which they recognized and responded to their own needs; 48% of the participants changed on the extent to which they could identify negative/abusive relationship behaviors, 39% of the participants changed on increased social support that helped in their emotional needs, 47% of the participants changed on ability to access needed resources at a time of crisis.

5. State 4-H program charges ahead on mission to help young people be healthy:

In FY 2013, 4-H's commitment to helping youth grow strong, both physically and mentally, continued with outstanding results. As a result of statewide 4-H programs:

- 26,817 youth increased their consumption of fruits and vegetables,
- 31,700 participants (youth and adults) increased their physical activity,
- 3,146 participants (youth and adults) reduced their BMI, and
- 9,513 participants (youth and adults) consumed less sodium in their diets.

(B) Cooperative Extension at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions Capacity [(formerly known as Formula) aka Smith-Lever Special Needs] Grants Program:

Below are five (5) examples of progress from FY 2013 annual reports.

1. Financial Management

In money management training, a total of 33,293 adults reported an increase in knowledge, opinions, skill or aspirations of the youth who participated in programming; 44,001 reported an increase in knowledge, opinion, skills or aspirations. Over 21,000 individuals in general reported implementing at least one financial management strategy (e.g. checking credit report, developing a spending plan, etc.) As a result of the Building Money management skills program, 66% (of the 69 participants) indicated that they had identified money management strategies for their family. Of those participating in the employment classes, 25% indicated that they were going to further their education and about 45% found employment.

2. Outreach Education

These outreach education workshops promoted a better quality of life and increased the number of individuals mindset regarding the value of healthy lifestyles. More than 4,500 residents graduated with six hours of education. More than 2,000 food behavior check list evaluations conducted one year later showed positive changes in the following areas: money management 79%; nutrition 89%, food safety- 37%. Forty eight percent of participants increased fruit intake and 41% increased vegetable variety, 52% reduced fat and 51% reduced salt, 15% reduced soda intake, and 33% increased activity. In addition, non-traditional stores and gas stations now offer fresh fruits.

3. Evaluation Study:

A post program evaluation was conducted following a livestock symposium. Ninety one percent of the respondents indicated that they were either satisfied or very satisfied with the subject matter presented at the symposium. When asked if the general themes of the symposium were relevant and timely, eight six percent (86%) of the respondents either agreed or strongly agreed that they gained new knowledge related to the livestock industry and rangeland resources by attending the symposium. Ninety percent (90%) of the respondents agreed or strongly agreed that as a result of attending the symposium, they were better equipped to handle the issues and challenges facing the livestock and range industries.

4. Nutrition

Nutrition educators presented nutrition education programs that reached 3,653 youth and 1,983 adults. Of those youth, 641 completed a multipart series. Overall, 81% of the youth participating in the series (277 out of 342) showed that they improved their ability to prepare simple nutritious food. Of the 30 adults who graduated from multipart programs, 77% showed improvement in one or more nutrition practices such as planning meals, making healthy food choices, reading nutrition labels etc. Seventy percent of participants showed improvement in one or more food resource management practices, such as comparing prices, using grocery lists or planning meals.

5. Grain Production

Survey results for grain growers reflect that 68% have improved networking; 29% have increased their grain acreage, 29% have improved markets and processing infrastructure. At least three (3) brewers and two (2) distillers are now purchasing local grains. Hops results reflect 95% were helped to start or expand their hop yard; 68% used research input to improve yields; 100% stated that the research helped them to improve hop quality; 60% reported that the project helped them to find markets. As a direct result of networking events, thirteen (13) local breweries are now purchasing hops from growers. Ninety one (91) farms reported that as a result of growing grains or hops, they have improved farm viability and protecting businesses within their communities.

(C) Smith-Lever Special Needs [Sections 3 (b) & (c)] Competitive Grants Program:

Fiscal Year 2013 Examples:

Electronic Emergency Planning and Preparedness Education for Agritourism and Direct Marketing Enterprises. The major objective was to expand a network of Extension professionals working in segments of agritourism and to develop mobile device accessible curriculum pieces, consisting of educational materials that address emergency planning and preparedness within the agritourism industry. A trainer-the-trainer approach was used to increase capacity with a focus on agribusinesses accessibility to resources, including web based through iTunes University, mobile App., online video formats, and downloadable emergency plans.

Rural Alaska Citizens Emergency Preparedness (RACEP). The major objective of this project was to create awareness among rural citizens of the importance of anticipating and preparing for natural disasters, particularly for wildfire and severe weather events, and to educate citizens about the importance of assuming individual responsibility for their safety and wellness during natural disasters, especially during the first 72 hours.

Improving Whole community Animal and Agriculture Preparedness

The major objectives of this project were to increase youth involvement in community animal disaster preparedness and to increase knowledge base and teaching skills of trainers in agrosecurity concepts. The Train-the Trainer approach was used to expand the cadre of Extension Disaster Education Network (EDEN) agrosecurity planning trainers. The project supported development of peer-reviewed teaching materials and the piloting of the Strengthening Community Agrosecurity Planning (S-CAP) program in two states.

Community Capacity Building Program for Drought Response

The major objective of this project was to continue development of research-based, sustainable drought resources across program areas per the "Drought Cycle". The project supported distribution of sustainable EDEN drought preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation research based resources to Extension educators. eXtension was used as a venue to promote drought preparedness and mitigation through national, regional and state based webinars. The project supported pilot-testing and evaluating the Community Capacity Building Program for Drought Response. This was a collaborative effort through a multiagency approach to guide communities to increase awareness, disseminate credible, science-based information and address drought issues.

Ready Community Stage Two

The major objectives of this project were to expand the existing Ready Community curriculum to target African Americans and to leverage strengths of the Ready Community Team with targeted Historically Black Colleges and Universities (1890 Institutions) to improve regional/national stakeholder partnerships to benefit the target audience through preparedness for disasters.

(D) Extension at 1890 Land-Grant Institutions and (newly designated) Central State University (aka 1890 Capacity Building and/or CBG) Grants Program:

FY 2013 examples of projects support under the Administrative project are as follows:

The objectives of this program area are to provide youth and young adults exposure to a variety of learning experiences that will enhance their knowledge and understanding of entrepreneurial processes and opportunities, and job acquisition skills. Complementing these objectives, the program provides science and technology education and leadership skill development through processes in experiential "hands-on-learning." The program was carried out year-round through various seminars and workshops where county agents and youth volunteers went on-site to schools, community centers and various community sites to provide education to youth. Through this means, about 6177 youths were served. In addition, annual camps and large group events were held during this period, serving about 4,391 youths. Some successes of this program are highlighted in this report. Highlighted achievements concerning youth entrepreneurship in this report are; three (3) students starting their own businesses; groups of students developing realistic mock business plans, and presenting their marketing and sales materials in judged contests; and students growing vegetables in school gardens and greenhouses and selling produce on local markets. Highlighted achievements in workforce development and youth leadership; ten (10) youth attending a week-long youth leadership program at the national 4-H Conference Center in Chevy Chase, Maryland and Washington DC which culminated in informative meetings with their locally elected national representatives; student volunteers and youth Extension paraprofessionals pledging to implant what they learned from their leadership and nutrition education training to teach their peers and younger kids; students learning at summer camp a variety of subjects, including public speaking, leadership, entrepreneurship, art, healthy cooking and the scientific process.

Childhood Obesity:

This program revolves around development of healthy eating and physical activity patterns. These programs will be delivered by family and consumer science educators, youth agents, paraprofessionals, and trained volunteers. Special emphasis were placed on minority, low income and educationally disadvantaged individuals since nationwide data indicate these individuals have a disproportionate share of diet-related diseases, including being overweight. Although many diseases occur more frequently with advancing age, dietary practices in young people significantly affect the occurrence and onset of these diseases. Extension activities center on selecting foods from My Pyramid, meal planning, and food preparation to lose or maintain weight and increasing physical activity.

Family and Consumer Science Agents collaborated with county and state partners to conduct workshops, conference and other educational events addressing the importance of basic money management skills. As a result of these efforts, 2,620 individuals and families implemented basic financial management strategies, and 6,896 people accessed programs and implemented strategies to support their family economic well-being. Additionally, as a result of Extension programs in retirement planning, 586 people accessed financial products and programs aimed at accumulating wealth.

Extension provided education to horticulture professionals, master gardeners, master naturalists and consumers to help them improve their homes and communities through the use of environmentally sound horticultural practices. Extension provided education to horticulture professionals, master gardeners, master naturalists and consumers on environmentally sound horticultural practices. In turn, these volunteers answered consumer gardening questions, assisted with landscapes and gardening projects at schools and in their local communities, helped eradicate fire ants and other exotic invasive plants, renovated and maintained trails, restored habitats and cleaned up nesting boxes. Volunteers are involved in projects to educate and interpret nature to other audiences such as schools, assisting at parks and providing docent help for our many museums, nature centers and aquaria spread throughout the state.

They also give back to our program by assisting Extension with the delivery of new courses and by taking or leading advanced training classes throughout the state.

(E) Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Capacity [(formerly known as Formula) aka Smith-Lever 3d EFNEP and/or ENUT] Grants Program:

For Fiscal Year 2013:

The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) is funded as a national program, not as individual projects. All seventy-five 1862 and 1890 Land-Grant Institutions receive EFNEP funding each year and these are the only entities eligible for EFNEP funding. EFNEP is designed to assist limited resource audiences in acquiring the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and changed-behavior necessary for nutritionally sound diets, and to contribute to their personal development and the improvement of the total family diet and nutritional well-being. Although EFNEP lessons may be tailored to meet the needs of participants, all programming follows the same model: Lessons are taught by peer educators using an evidence-based, interactive, culturally appropriate approach. Participant entry and exit data are collected on diet quality, physical activity, food safety, and food resource management practices, all of which influence health.

FARM SAFETY COMBINED PROGRAMS (G), (H) & (W):

(G) Farm Safety;

(H) Farm Safety and Youth Safety Education and Certification Program (aka YFSEC); and

(W) Assistive Technology Program for Farmers with Disabilities - National AgrAbility Project:

AgrAbility program increases the likelihood that individuals with disabilities and their families engaged in production agriculture (AgrAbility customers) become more successful. The program provides up to 4 years of funding to support cooperative projects in which State Cooperative Extension Services (CES) based at either 1862 or 1890 land-grant universities or the University of the District of Columbia subcontract to private, non-profit disability organizations. Measures of success may include improvements in customers financial stability or access to life activities and in the capacity of the states and regions to deliver services this population requires in a timely and satisfying manner.

To address the specialized needs of AgrAbility customers, the program builds service capacity on national, regional, state, and local levels through education and networking. In the absence of capacity, projects provide assistance to customers. The primary function of the National AgrAbility Project is to support the state and regional projects in developing their capacity to meet these objectives. AgrAbility Projects use marketing activities to direct the public to initiatives in these three priority areas, described below:

In FY 2013, the program made 3 new awards and continued support for 17 previously funded-projects.

New Awards:

Three (3) new AgrAbility awards (recommended for funding but awards not yet made);

One (1) Youth Farm Safety Education and Certification award (recommended for funding but the award not yet made).

FY 2013 Continuation Awards:

Fourteen (14) continuation awards to support 4th (final) year of State AgrAbility projects originally funded in FY 2010 (awards made);

Three (3) continuation awards for the 3rd year of State AgrAbility projects originally funded in FY 2011 (awards not yet made);

One (1) continuation award for the 2nd year of the National AgrAbility Project, originally funded in FY 2012.

(I) New Technologies at Ag Extension (aka NTAE):

NOTE: See Section # 130 for pertinent details.

CHILDREN, YOUTH, AND FAMILIES (CYFAR) COMBINED PROGRAMS (J) & (U) :

(J) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk (aka Youth at Risk and/or CYFAR); and

(U) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk - Sustainable Community Projects (aka CYFAR-SCP):

1. The Project uses the Choice, Control and Change Curriculum to help at-risk youth increase their positive personal health decisions with greater autonomy. To gain greater autonomy on their personal health decisions, the middle school youth learning and practice result from engaging in science, understanding their personal food systems, and community engagement activities. Beyond after-school and school enrichment opportunities, learning and practice occur out-of-school through summer camps and summer school gardening.

The sites have significantly increased local collaborations that provide more investment of time, care, and retention of program activities within the neighborhoods. Through collaborative efforts, strong connections are evident in the communities which have created a strong path to program sustainability.

Short-term results show that these youth do benefit from their participation in the project. For example, all participants (100% of 189) could identify grain products and eat them daily and the majority of participants (87%) knows and apply basic food safety facts and practices, such as hand washing became almost habitual after three weeks of food preparation.

2. The after-school program that has been implemented at two community center sites located in low-income areas. The community centers are located in neighborhoods characterized by relatively high rates of poverty and crime, and these neighborhoods tend to have higher concentrations of ethnic minority residents than other areas of the city. During its first year, the program goals were to establish working garden sites for the children and to offer sufficient programming that children would begin to be certified as Junior Master Gardeners. To date, 18 children at one (1) site and 21 at the other have earned JMG certification.

3. The program empowers teens to be their own advocates so that they gain skills and confidence in making life choices as they thrive to be positive contributing citizens within changing social and economic environments.

Teens were able to advance their leadership and service skills by assisting with the cleaning of their local civic center, participating in a food-drive, were they collected non-perishable items for a shelter of women who are victims of domestic violence, wrote thank you cards to US soldiers, and participated in a food drive. The teens also implemented several non-bullying vignettes, and created a video to share with other teens within the community. Each of these community service projects were instrumental in engaging teens and helping them to become more involved with the community in which they live.

4. For this after school program, youth reported substantial learning as a result of the program with strongest effects on improved critical thinking skills including decision making, problem solving, comparing ideas and keeping an open mind. Youth are able to participate in field trips to learn about the science based issues impacting their community and engaged in service projects to restore shoreline habitat. The families learned from their young citizen scientists about water conservation, water contamination and environmental stewardship.

5. The program reached over 100 adults and 200 youth involved with community and school gardens. A retrospective survey approach used to measure program impact; one hundred percent of families were successful in growing food for their families. They grew over 54 different types of fruits and vegetables and harvested an estimated 9,200 pounds of produce valued at approximately $18,418. As a result of the gardens 90% (26/29), said they spent less money on food and 87% (27/31) said they were better able to provide food for themselves. One gardener said The garden really helps us save money and eat healthier especially on a tight budget! and another claimed that it was definitely cheaper than buying in grocery store.

Health benefits of the program were evident as well. Ninety-four percent (29/31) of families said that members of their household ate more fruits and vegetables, 97% (30/31) said they ate fresher, less packaged foods, 93% (27/29) said they ate new kinds of foods and learned new and healthier ways to prepare garden produce, 93% (28/30) said they learned why certain fruits and vegetables are good for them, and 90% (26/29) said they were more physically active as a result of the garden.

NOTE: For CYFAR-PDTA Program, see CFDA 10.500 (V).

(K) Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education- Professional Development (aka Chapter 3 and/or SARE-PD):

NOTES:

(1) Effective Fiscal Year 2014, Programs under Sustainable Agriculture (research, education and extension) were merged into a single program under the research account.

(2) See CFDA Number 10.215 for all pertinent details.

(L) Federally- Recognized Tribes Extension Program (aka FRTEP):

A program at the University of Alaska served the Tanana Chiefs community through a home gardening and youth outreach. A recent evaluation of the home gardening program revealed that of 20 survey respondents started home gardening because of their FRTEP training. These respondents shared their produce with less food secure neighbors and reported feeling more self-sufficient as a result of gardening. Five of the tribal gardeners grew 250 pounds of food and nine of them said they saved $500 by growing their own food. The FRTEP program had a beginning farmer outreach which will also be continued contingent on leveraged funding.

The FRTEP program at Washington State serves both the Kalispel and Colville Tribes. In the Kalispel project the FRTEP Educator facilitated two county-wide wildfire prevention meetings involving 30 tribal community members. As a result the tribe worked with FRTEP to conduct a controlled burning of 668 acres of tribal lands to ensure public safety and improve forest health. Community gardens provided over 200 pounds of produce for the tribal senior lunch program. Another demo garden, featuring traditional tea plants, was highlighted at the annual Culture Camp. In addition, 65 percent of the healthy cooking class participants said they were better food consumers and practiced better food safety. Participants in the grow your own groceries program also reported that they were better equipped to meet their food needs. Finally, 906 youth were served through 4-H and other Extension programs, including gardening, archery and a stream ecology summer camp.

The Colville program partnered with USDA-APHIS to provide farmers education on emerging livestock diseases and their prevention. The Educator used USDA risk management funding to promote awareness of livestock health issues. The Extension office also provided an eight-week course on Positive Indian Parenting to tribal families. In addition, seven 4-H clubs have been established on the Colville Reservation and a special outreach for at-risk families was established in partnership with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

EXTENSION AT 1994 INSTITUTIONS COMBINED PROGRAMS (M) & (BB) :

(M) Extension Services at the 1994 Institutions (aka Tribal Colleges Extension Program and/or TCEP); and

For Fiscal Year 2013:

Fond du Lac Tribal and Community College used NIFA special emphasis funding to protect local water quality while teaching students skills for field research. The River Watch program engages students from over 20 area secondary schools and their communities by including them in the monitoring of reservation waterways and making them partners in the data-gathering process. Students collect biological, chemical, and physical data throughout the St. Louis River watershed and Lake Superior basin. The students also presented their findings at the annual River Watch Congress, giving them both science and leadership skills. The program is highly valued by the over 400 teachers and students that participate in the water quality monitoring opportunity each year.

Nebraska Indian Community college used the power of radio to promote health messages throughout the reservation. With the help of NIFA funding, Tribal Radio Station, KZYK 88.9 FM, Sounds of the Dakota, began broadcasting in July 2012 from the NICC Santee campus. In 2013, the station provided programming on good health practices and made the reservation community aware of other Extension programming, enhancing attendance and participation in programs and workshops.

Sitting Bull College used NIFAs capacity funding to support a demonstration ranch. The bison pasture corral and the fencing were finished in time to begin the bison grazing demonstration in November, 2013. This allowed the college to play an important role in the Sustainable Ag Conference with 35 farmer/rancher participants. The bison project provided ranchers with an opportunity to observe and learn about the latest, science-based practices in livestock management and care.

RENEWABLE RESOURCES EXTENSION ACT COMBINED PROGRAMS (N) & (O) :

(N) Renewable Resources Extension Act (aka RREA); and

(O) Renewable Resources Extension Act- National Focus Fund Projects (aka RREA-NFF):

For Fiscal Year 2013:

Congress appropriated $3,413,395 for the RREA Program in FY 2013. The net amount awarded to institutions through the capacity funds was $3,127,378. These funds supported a total of 72 1862 and 1890 land-grant universities.

Examples of accomplishments include:

1. Exotic and invasive species A land-grant institution carried out a multi-faceted program that included: an Exotic Plant Pet Council Annual Meeting involving 140 professionals and landowners; published six Extension publications on control options for various invasive species, how to recognize poisonous plants, and a field guide for Japanese stiltgrass; and a Facebook page for invasive plants.

2. A program called ForestConnect serves the needs of private forest landowners through education and applied research programs. Presentations directly reached 5,000 participants and more than 13,000 contact hours. Internet technologies using webinars impacted 2.6 million acres, reaching participants in six states, and saving 53,000 miles of auto travel and the resulting carbon emissions.

3. Natural resource volunteers A state extension service in the northeast manages the activities and training of over 400 Coverts and Woodland Steward Volunteers who collectively contributed 41,000 hours of service. The volunteers, themselves, manage over 140,000 acres of forest and reached more than 25,000 people with information about sound forest management and wildlife conservation.

4. A Log-on Before You Log program was developed to serve as a clearing house of information for landowners to access before they plant and conduct a timber sale. In FY 2013 landowners with 83,912 acres logged on to the internet site, with 91 percent indicating that they had gained a better understanding of forestry best management practices to protect water quality, 94 percent indicating that they would actually implement forestry BMPs, and 67 percent indicating that they would seek professional assistance when marketing timber.

5. Forest Stewardship Coached Planning is a comprehensive landowner education program that results in individuals developing their own forest management plan with coaching assistance from professional foresters, with 188 families participating in the 8-week course resulting in the preparation of 105 new Forest Stewardship Plans.

On a rotating basis with other network nodes, this node also provides responses to drug and contaminant residue questions submitted to FARAD.

Funded Project Network Node 3: Collects and enters data for the US Approved Animal Drugs Database (US-AADD), maintains internet websites for FARAD, creates and supports platforms for mobile devices to access the Veterinarian's Guide to Residue Avoidance Management (VetGRAM) and other mobile-friendly applications, and distributes electronic alerts and updates via email, Twitter and other electronic formats.

Funded Project Network Node 4: On a rotating schedule with other network nodes, provides responses to emergency telephone calls from the FARAD hotline. Collaboration between all institutions occurs on research.

(S) Grants to Youth Serving Institutions (aka Rural Youth Development and/or RYD Grants Program):

For Fiscal Year 2013:

Outcomes and Impact: Program evaluations, based on qualitative and quantitative data, show that as a result of the RYD program Youth learned and applied 21st Century work and life skills such as: organizing groups and information, leading discussions, planning programs, teamwork, communication, creativity and innovation, critical thinking, problem solving, decision making, goal setting, collaboration and working with diverse populations; Youth gained self-confidence and efficacy. They are motivated to continue providing leadership in the future and developed a sense of belonging and connectedness to their communities; Adults learned how to effectively partner with youth to produce individual and community outcomes; and Community leaders and stakeholders see youth as resources to help solve community issues, not as problems. Financial support has been given to youth projects and new policies support youth programs and positive community change.

Based on qualitative analysis, it is evident projects have significantly improved human, social, cultural, political, financial, natural, and built (infrastructure) capital in rural communities. A few selected examples show that youth and adults have accomplished results such as:

Organizing public festivals that drew tourists and their spending money to the rural towns.

Eradicating invasive weed-like substances from local lakes threatening drinking water and boating, resulting in $9,365,900 in improved property prices at one lake, and at least double that when adding property prices around other lakes and rivers.

Harvesting and distributing 1,000 pounds of fresh vegetables to diabetics in Hispanic communities, improving blood glucose levels and healthy cooking habits for over 60 percent of the diabetic program participants.

Improving oral reading fluency test rates for 94 percent of the students in an after-school program

Recycling more than 1,300 tons of materials. This has saved approximately 53 cubic yards in the community's landfill.

(X) Extension IPM Coordination and Support Program (aka IPM-CS):

Of the following projects, some were funded for activity over three years, but years two and three were rescinded since the program was deauthorized and consolidated into the Crop Protection Program. They were able to partially accomplish the following projects. Others shorter term projects that were fully funded.

A state-based project in Alabama linked the resources of all three land-grant universities to advocate for the use of IPM in agronomic crops, specialty crops, diagnostics, housing, pesticide application and schools. The project focused on small farms and underserved audiences.

The Illinois coordination project addressed specialty crops, an underserved community, diagnostics, school IPM and wide area monitoring of high consequence pests.

Harnessing the Power of Narrative Animation for Urban IPM Outreach used animated stories to teach about bed bug biology and prevention.

Educational materials were developed for vegetable producers threatened by new high consequence crop pests including on-line learning modules for three new high consequence pests (bagrada bug, kudzu bug, and European pepper moth) that threaten vegetable crop production.

One project is developing an educational program for producers affected by the new threat from spotted wing drosophila, a new fruit fly that attacks most soft skinned small fruits.

(Y) Extension Outreach on the Marketplace Exchanges of the Affordable Care Act:

(CC) District of Columbia Public Secondary Education Reorganization Act Program (CES-Formula):

For Fiscal Year 2013:

1) Climate Change Research: Proposals have been submitted to USDA on precipitation and on analyzing watering devices for the planting and survival of young urban canopy trees. Extension: With fifteen community partners, the Forestry Outreach Program educated local residents on invasive plants and their impacts on the ecosystem. Activities for fiscal year 2013 included workshops; demonstrations; site visits; invasive plant management events; development of curriculum, outreach, and educational materials; and providing technical assistance to District residents through phone, email, and in-person consultations.

2) Global Food Security and Hunger In FY 2013 CAUSES established a small hoop house in Ward 8, the lowest income area in DC, to begin data collection on the barriers toward food production in urban neighborhoods where the term 'cooperative extension' is unknown and cultural barriers toward agriculture are high. Preliminary results of the social science research are expected during FY 2014. In FY 13, 286 (which includes 60 trainees) Master Gardeners and Trainees provided 11,000 hours of horticultural expertise to the District of Columbia. The value of volunteer time is $34.04 per hour according to www.independentsector.org with a total value of $374,440 in savings to the District of Columbia.

3) Health, Nutrition and Childhood Obesity Prevention The institution is working on a research project titled: Changing the Health Trajectory for Older Adults through Effective Diet and Activity. The goals of the project are:

(1) To design and implement intervention strategies that will increase fruit, vegetable, and whole grain consumption in multicultural elderly individuals in the District of Columbia who have been identified as low consumers of these foods; and

(2) To publish a culturally based recipe book that contains traditional recipes provided by participants, with modified ingredients where necessary, to increase nutritional density. Specific accomplishments directly related to these goals are: (1) Comparisons of knowledge, priorities, and attitudes of high consumers of fruits, vegetable, and whole grain with low consumers; (2) Design and development of an educational curriculum to increase fruit, vegetable, and whole grain consumption in the elderly of the District of Columbia.

4) Urban Families, Youth and Communities The Center for 4-H and Youth Development were able to reach 8,465 youth and adults with direct contacts through 4-H clubs and 4-H activities. We maintained 45 active 4-H clubs in schools and community programs and had an overall reach of 7,833 youth for the program year.

5) Sustainable Energy No outcomes reported for sustainable energy in FY 2013. Accomplishments and results for the project were reported in the FY 2012 annual report.

6) Food Safety Offered through the Center for Nutrition, Diet and Health, the District of Columbia Food Handler Certification Program is designed to conduct research and training to determine the appropriate educational level and methodologies needed to develop a food sanitation certification program. Results reveal a 100% pass rate on the national examination for program participants. Fiscal Year 2014: (A) Cooperative Extension Programs at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions [aka Smith-Lever 3 (b) & (c) Capacity (formerly known as Formula)] Grants Programs:

As outlined in the FY 2014 Plans of Work, the following are five examples of anticipated outcomes:

1. Global Food Security and Hunger:

These would involve increases in: agricultural literacy in urban and rural areas to develop residents' understanding of the food system; the sustainability and profitability of agriculture, forestry, and green industries through sustainable environmental practices; agricultural profitability and sustainability through the development of alternative enterprises and value-added products; Projects will entail food system to match local production with market demand; the use and affordability of locally grown, fresh food through local market promotion and community gardens; and, a decrease in the loss of agricultural lands while enhancing (promoting) value of agriculture land and open space in rural and urban areas. Research programs will focus on environmentally and economically sustainable food production, thus insuring food security and helping to minimize hunger.

2. Climate Change:

Work is being conducted on improved water quality as related to agriculture, forests, and developed lands and sustainable management of aquatic, forest, wildlife, soil and air resources. Work will be carried out on programs such as Nutrient Management, Drainage Design and Management to Improve Water Quality, Use of Beneficial Microorganisms to enhance Green Industries, Characterization and Mechanisms of Plant Responses to Ozone in the US, etc. that will have outcome in terms of both adaptation to and mitigation of Climate Change.

3. Sustainable Energy:

Projects are being supported that encourage sustainable production in a bioenergy environment. Plans are underway to develop research and extension programs to pursue economically and environmentally sustainable bioenergy production. Studies are being undertaken to look at the development of efficient methods to use bio-waste such as poultry litter, aquatic waste, feedstock, and switch grass to produce alternative energy. Methods for fuel production from plant biomass, animal waste, and algae are being investigated. It is envisioned that outcomes of these research and education programs can help to convert waste that is otherwise a pollutant to the water systems into a valuable product.

4. Childhood Obesity:

Youth will have increased consumption of fruits and vegetables following adoption of system changes in schools for availability of healthy food choices; youth and families will gain awareness, knowledge or skills regarding healthy eating and physical activity; teachers and youth leaders will acquire and use basic food gardening knowledge and skills; Growing Healthy Habits curriculum will be implemented in schools, after-school programs, and 4-H clubs.

5. Food Safety:

Work is ongoing to ensure safe food handling practices; use of Good Agricultural Practices (GAP) by fruit and vegetable producers; integration of organic practices; and, ensure that residents know how to purchase, store, handle and prepare locally grown fresh foods.

CHILDREN, YOUTH, AND FAMILIES (CYFAR) COMBINED PROGRAMS (J) & (U) :

(J) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk (aka Youth at Risk and/or CYFAR); and

(U) Children, Youth, and Families at Risk - Sustainable Community Projects (aka CYFAR-SCP):

1. Through the Head Start/Healthy Start by Kindergarten (HS/HS by K) Program, Extension and Head Start championed and enriched preschoolers healthy eating and active learning program with the ultimate goal of reducing childhood overweight and obesity. In cooperation with broader community collaboration, the program co-constructed among preschoolers and their primary caregivers, opportunities for learning, skill-building, and behavioral applications. Some 30 preschoolers increased their knowledge of healthier food and drink choices; age appropriate serving size; age appropriate level of body movements for physical activity; age appropriate level concept of strength building; and, concepts of coordination and flexibility.

Of the teachers, nine effectively and creatively meshed the Color Me Healthy curriculum and incorporating the curriculum into multiple facets of their lesson in fun, meaningful and engaging ways.

2. CITIZEN U focused on providing the opportunities and supports young people need in order to meet the challenges of growing up in poverty, graduate successfully from high school with increased education and career aspirations. Implementation focused on establishing the foundation for sustaining CITIZEN U through broad-based community involvement in the project, while simultaneously providing a high quality, high context program experience for participants. Weekly afterschool seminars with visiting professors from local colleges, universities, businesses and community organizations.

Statistical significance between the pre- and posttests. Statistically significant results were shown for all Leadership Development variables. Over 93% of the Teen Leaders can express their views in front of a group of people; 90.3% feel equipped to create a plan addressing a community problem; 87.1% can identify individuals or groups who could help them address a community problem; 87.1% can get others to care about the community problem; 80.1% can organize and run a meeting; 77.5% can call someone they have never met to get help addressing a community problem; 74.2% can contact an elected official about a community problem; and 67.8% can organize a petition.

3. The Roots Global Reach Program is a science literacy program for at risk youth cities. The most vulnerable, particularly people of color, low income, and Indigenous communities, are more adversely affected by the impacts of climate change. The objective of the program is to teach students about the science, causes, and impacts of climate change. Most importantly, it seeks to inspire students to protect their climate by empowering them with knowledge, tools, and skills to take action in their daily lives at home, at school, and in the community. School age youth, specifically those in grades 4-8, are targeted to participate in the program so that a greater understanding of climate change, its effects, and its solutions are fostered, enabling the healthy development of citizens, its communities, policies, and economy. Young people in these high at-risk communities would benefit from high context participation in the proposed initiative.

Of the participants, 85% know the basic process and importance of the Earths greenhouse effect ; 85% understand that an increase in CO2 levels can increase temperatures; 84% know how to measure current weather; 77% understand the concept of an individuals carbon footprint; 75% know the relationship between weather/climate and the oceans; 72% know about heat sinks; 71% can correctly identify two or more of the four major greenhouse gases; 69% know the major events that made Earths systems; and the Suns heat cycle; 48% post program could correctly identify facts/evidence of climate change compared to only 13% pre-program; over 200% change in identifying three or four of the four major greenhouse gases.

4. The Helping Families Help Themselves Project is focused on 46 children, youth and families at-risk in two housing developments. Educational sessions focus on various topics and are delivered through afterschool programming which includes 4-H and traditional Extension topics. Youth, ages five to sixteen, and parents/adults participate. An Advisory Council provides support and guidance through their affiliation with local government agencies, a local housing management company, the university faculty and staff; and the Governor's office.

The Belonging Scale was taken from the Study of Promising After-School Programs Measures; it supported the improvement in belongingness. Over half of the youth showed an increase in belongingness, while 13% stayed the same over the year.

5. GRandS (Grandfamily Resilience and Sustainability) is a Florida Sustainable Community Project designed to strengthen interpersonal relationships in at-risk grandparent raising grandchildren (GRG) families. Activities are aimed at increasing knowledge of childrens development, improving parenting, strengthening family relationships, utilizing technology, and accessing community resources. The target population includes GRGs from diverse backgrounds and who reside in both urban and rural areas. The program uses research-based curricula including Family Treasures, designed to enhance six qualities of strong families, and Parenting the Second Time Around, designed to educate GRGs on child development and parenting. The program also provides educational materials through the GRandS website.

Grandparents raising grandchildren (GRGs) will improve their knowledge of child development, parenting, and child guidance. Some 18 GRandS participants in programming and activities that target parenting and child guidance appear to be having the intended effect. Grandparents report using more positive parenting practices with their grandchildren, have increased their monitoring/supervision, and have decreased their use of inconsistent discipline. Results to date suggest that grandparents are benefiting from GRandS, especially in promoting positive discipline strategies that may reduce the need for corporal punishment and increase positive interactions between grandparent-grandchild that promote social-emotional well-being.

For Fiscal Year 2014:

The Oglala Lakota Extension office will collaborate with South Dakota State University and the Oglala Sioux Tribe to provide producer workshops and events aimed at enhancing farm productivity. Student and faculty from the colleges math and science department will provide technical assistance to producers in hydrology, GIS positioning and land management. The college will offer nutrition and garden outreach to the community as well. The college will build an Ag Expo Center where it can conduct workshops and events on Lakota agriculture, career development and family life. Part of this grant will be used to plan and promote the new center.

White Earth Tribal and Community College will use a NIFA special emphasis award for a project that combines gardening and traditional Anishinaabeg foods, with the addition of video and social media to promote traditional agriculture provide instruction to a wider audience. The project director will also lead an effort to create a food asset map for the White Earth community. The food map will lay a foundation for enhanced local production so that more families have access to fresh produce. Local experts on gardening and traditional foods will mentor families as they explore gardening as a means to better health.

This project seeks to reduce inter-generational poverty by encouraging children of the Lummi Nation to seek higher education while teaching them financial management skills. Educators plan to reach 600 youth in grades 7 through 12. The curriculum will be developed in partnership with the Lummi Nation School, Lummi Nation Youth Enrichment and local Social Services programs. The financial literacy training will build math skills, while training youth on how to set and reach financial and educational goals. A train-the-trainer effort will expand the programs reach.

(Q) 1890 Facilities Grant Program and Tuskegee and (newly designated) Central State University (aka Section 1447):
For Fiscal Year 2014:

The second year of funding under the Five-Year Plan of Work (2013-2017) was requested through a renewal RFA. Examples of funded projects are as follows:

Facilities improvements include:

- 1) The preparation and development of an infrastructure for the relocation of the Agricultural and Environmental Research Station at a newly identified location;
- 2) Design and develop building specifications for the renovation of a building designated to provide space for research and extension programming and will replace the Integrated Research and Extension Facility (previously planned to be located at the existing research station); and
- 3) Partial renovations at the existing research station including placement of four temporary greenhouses, a shop facility, anaerobic plant pilot assessment and updates, and site development of new facilities.

An oversight committee will develop and implement a process for selecting Architectural Consultants/Design Professionals. Selection will be based on a bid process. Recommendations from the selection panel will be submitted to DSU Board of Trustees and USDA for approval to award design contract. The architects will produce a conceptual framework for a two-story 15,000 square foot multipurpose office building that will house the Cooperative Extension Program. The facility will contain a 150-200 seat auditorium, three large (class-room type) meeting rooms, two conference rooms, approximately sixteen offices, one demonstration laboratory, and faculty-staff lounge. The facility will be furnished with parking facilities, equipment and technology to ensure scholarly and effective extension, outreach, and learning outcomes.

One project will support the renovation and upgrading of four research laboratories to allow for more open floor space. Funding will also lead to the improvement of lab standards to comply with Agricultural Research Service (ARS) Biosafety Level 2 (BSL-2) research facility standards. These activities will support the institutions goal of establishing a new on-campus Food Safety Research Laboratory, and increase the functionality of the three other research labs.

The completion of an Outdoor Adventure Challenge Camp is planned. This learning environment will be outdoors with limited indoor activities for participants. At this facility, both youth and adults will learn to communicate internally and externally, to plan, organize, and successfully complete educationally designed challenges. Participants will gain a better understanding and appreciation for the outdoors via environmental and natural science workshops and activities. The site will also provide research field experience to faculty and staff in Urban Forestry and Natural Resources.

Facilities improvements are directed to on-going initiatives:

1) The renovation of existing dairy facilities to an animal science teaching facility and alternative animal center;

2) The renovation of an existing research facility to a food processing laboratory and product development center[construction began in the Spring of 2014 and will conclude by the Fall of 2014. Equipment will be purchased and installed];

3) Repairs to a research and demonstration center; and

4) The development of an Extension led farmers market.

(CC) District of Columbia Public Secondary Education Reorganization Act Program (CES-Formula):

For Fiscal Year 2014:

Planned programs will include the following:

Climate Change:

This program includes relevant research and extension education and will assess and monitor natural resources and changes in the urban environment with respect to climate changes. Over the next five years, we will expand the program to identify and solve soil, air, and water quality problems as a specific result of urban forestry, gardening, and aging infrastructures activities. Initiatives will include providing extension activities that impart knowledge, demonstrating techniques, and fostering stewardship as a means to reduce the city's carbon and water footprints.

Global Food Security and Hunger:

To address the lack of accessibility results in inadequate diets and poor nutrition in the local area, A new compost pad for growing soils at the Muirkirk Farm will support the Community Garden Programs promote urban gardening as an instrumental means for residents to raise their own fresh organic fruits and vegetables for consumption and/or sale while protecting the environment. Additionally, residents will be educated in viable urban sustainable agricultural practices for crop production in an urban setting with a reduction in disease and insect infestation and utilization of composting of leaf and food waste as soil amendments.

Health, Nutrition and Childhood Obesity Prevention:

This institution is participating in SNAP-Ed and the Agricultural Experiment Station is participating in a multi-state research project aimed to change the health trajectory for older adults.

Sustainable Energy:

This program involves biomass energy production via the development of an organic digester for organic waste processing to demonstrate that using the resources that are easily available makes the production of energy efficient and reliable. The research will be conducted with a focus on the reduction of methane emissions, the replacement of fossil fuels, and the production of biogas.

Urban Families, Youth and Communities:

Specific CES programs in support of these initiatives are the National 4-H Program; Basic Financial Literacy Project (in partnership with FDIC); Home and Maintenance Repair; and the Center for Cooperatives. - 2) To decrease risk factors associated with foodborne illness and to score a minimum of 70% on the post test and national examination to become certified as a food handler in DC.

Additionally, the Agriculture Experiment Station intends to add research that addresses this critical issue for the residents in nation's capital as well as those across our country. Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The legislative authority for this grant announcement is Section 6(a)(3) of the National School Lunch Act.

OBJECTIVES:

This RFA intends to select one institution/organization (i.e. Accredited University or Research Center) to establish the USDA Rural Child Poverty Nutrition Center. The role of this Center will be to develop and administer a series of sub-grants pertinent to the purposes of this grant, coordinate relevant grant-related activities among sub-grantees and researchers, conduct an evaluation of subgrantees programs, and widely disseminate information on communities implementation strategies and evaluation findings.

The goal of the Center will be to reduce child food insecurity by improving Child Nutrition Assistance program coordination with other nutrition assistance programs or services in persistently poor rural counties.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Eligible Entities include governmental or non-governmental entities:

This Request for Application (RFA) is open to all Accredited Colleges/Universities, and Private or Public Research Institutions. These are requirements for the selected recipient of the Cooperative Agreement, not any potential sub-grantees.

The grantee will be responsible for awarding sub-grants to either States or persistently poor counties for the purposes of increasing cross-program coordination efforts among Child nutrition and other food assistance programs. Each sub-grantee will be expected to utilize their grant funds to conduct: 1) a needs assessment in their community and 2) implement a coordinated strategy based on findings from the needs assessment to facilitate improvements in nutrition program coordination. Each sub-grantee must also agree to provide the Grantee and FNS with program participation data and other data specified by the Grantee as necessary for the Grantee to evaluate the overall effectiveness of funded nutrition program coordination efforts while taking into account potentially influential external factors. Funds must be used to support projects in the persistently poor counties in the 15 States with the highest number of persistently poor counties (see list in Appendix A of RFA).

Applicant Eligibility:

The grant is to be used to establish grants and cooperative agreements to identify, develop and undertake projects to meet Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) program needs and the food, nutrition, and health needs of program eligible participants.

Cooperative agreements are awarded to State and local governments, hospitals, non-profit organizations and accredited colleges/universities. This is a requirement for the selected recipient of the grants and cooperative agreements, not the sub-grantees. Cooperative agreement recipients are to award sub-grants to researchers to identify, develop, and evaluate interventions and innovative approaches to strengthen the impact of Food and Nutrition Service programs, such as WIC, on the food, nutrition, and health of program eligible participants.

Applicants were only allowed to submit paper-copy applications under extenuating circumstances, such as outages of the Grants.gov website that can be substantiated by a valid case number with the Grants.gov support center.

Award Procedure:

FNS will pre-screen all applications to ensure that they contain the required documents and information, including but not limited to: all supporting documentation, the narrative proposal, Letters of Commitment, and Agreement to Cooperate with FNS. Complete applications will need to be submitted by eligible applicants, meet all other eligibility requirements stated in this RFA, submitted on or before the required deadlines, and be in the required format. If an application does not include all appropriate information, FNS will consider the application to be non-responsive and will eliminate it from further evaluation.

Following the initial screening process, FNS will assemble an evaluation panel to review and determine the technical merits of each application. The evaluation criteria discussed below will be reviewed by a panel of evaluators and used to score proposals. The proposals will be ranked by score starting with the highest score. The panel will present their recommendation to the selecting official based on this ranking. Awards will be considered based on rank order, however, the selection official reserves the right to make an award out of rank order to meet agency priorities, program balance, geographical representation, or project diversity. OBJECTIVES:

Improve nutrition of low-income households by ensuring access to nutritious, healthful diets through the provision of nutrition education and nutrition assistance through the issuance of monthly benefits for the purchase of food at authorized retailers.

Between April 2009 and October 2013, additional benefits were provided to SNAP recipients as a result of the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act.

The Healthy Incentive Pilot (HIP) examined the impact of providing financial incentives at the point of sale on the consumption of fruits and vegetables. Under HIP, SNAP participants received an incentive of 30 cents for every SNAP dollar spent on targeted fruits and vegetables credited to their SNAP Electronic Benefit Transfer (EBT) card, which could be spent on any SNAP-eligible foods and beverages. Implemented by the Massachusetts Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA) in Hampden County, HIP operated between November 2011 and December 2012.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Households receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits for the purchase of food at authorized retailers and use an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) card, which operates like a debit card, to redeem benefits at authorized retailers. The amount of benefits varies according to household size, expenses, and income. Recipients may only purchase food with their benefits and only from authorized retailers.

Applicant Eligibility:

SNAP is a Federal program administered by the States. The State or U.S.

Territory agency responsible for Federally aided public assistance programs submits requests for funding to USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Applications for SNAP are made through a local social services agency which determines eligibility and benefit amount. Eligibility is based on household size, income, and expenses. Eligibility is also based on assets, citizenship or legal immigration status, and other factors. A gross income test is based on 130 percent of the poverty line, and the net income (after expenses) test is based on 100 percent of the poverty line. Households with elderly and disabled members need only meet the net income test. The resource limit is $2,000 ($3,250 for a household with an elderly or disabled member). A total of 43 States use broad-based categorical eligibility to align the resource limits and gross income limits with other mean tested programs. Able-bodied adults with certain limited exceptions must meet a work requirement or face time limits on participation.

Credentials/Documentation:

Eligibility is determined by local social service offices based on National eligibility standards. Households must provide verification of identity, income, and resources. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. The Food and Nutrition Act of 2008, as amended, requires each State agency to submit to the Food and Nutrition Service for approval, a plan of operation specifying the manner in which SNAP will be conducted in every political subdivision within the State.

Award Procedure:

The Secretary of Agriculture approves State plans of operation submitted by the State agency that operates public assistance programs.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: SNAP participation for FY 2013 averaged 47.64 million persons per month, representing a nearly 2.2 percent increase from the average monthly participation in FY 2012. The majority of the increase reflects the impact of economic conditions, as well as Federal and State efforts to improve program access. As the economy continues and people go back to work, participation is expected to decline. The most recent figures on the rate of participation show that in 2011, 79 percent of all those who were eligible for SNAP participated in the program while over benefits were issued equaling 92 percent of the value of the cost of benefits if SNAP participation were 100 percent estimated benefits were issued. This indicates that the program is effectively serving those most in need of nutrition assistance.

The HIP Early Implementation Report, released in February 2013, covers the period from pilot inception to March 2012. The report describes how HIP works, what was required to overlay HIP on normal SNAP operations, and the key successes and challenges during implementation. Results presented in the Interim Report, released July 2013, indicate that HIP participants (respondents aged 16 and older) consumed one-fifth of a cup-equivalents more targeted fruits and vegetables per day than did non-participants. This represents an increase of 25 percent in consumption over control group members. The Final Report, expected to be released in spring 2014, will present comprehensive analyses of all data collected for the HIP evaluation, as well as providing detailed cost information for the pilot. The rates of reimbursement are adjusted on an annual basis to reflect changes in the Food Away From Home series of the Consumer Price Index for all Urban Consumers. All participating schools must agree to serve free and reduced price meals to eligible children. Please refer to regulations: 7 CFR Part 210 -- National School Lunch Program; 7 CFR Part 215 -- Special Milk Program; 7 CFR Part 220 -- School Breakfast Program; 7 CFR Part 235 -- State Administrative Expense; 7 CFR Part 245 -- Free and Reduced Price Eligibility.

Breakfast is served free to children who are determined by local education agencies to have household income levels at or below 130 percent, and at a reduced price to children from households with incomes higher than 130 but at or below 185 percent of the Federal poverty line, respectively. Meals served to non-needy children also get cash assistance. Such determinations are made in accordance with income eligibility guidelines prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture and cross reference household income with household size. The Secretary prescribes these income eligibility guidelines by July 1. The statistical source used in making such revisions is the Federal Income Poverty Guidelines.

Children from households certified to receive benefits through the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations, or Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, and children in Head Start programs are automatically eligible for free meals. Homeless children, children in certain runaway and homeless youth grant programs, migrant children, and foster children are automatically eligible for free meals.

This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Public schools in all States make application to the State education agency unless the State applies or is approved for a waiver to designate an alternate agency. In some States, however, the State education agency is prohibited by statute from disbursing Federal funds to nonprofit private schools.

In such instances, the application will be referred to the alternate State agency or the appropriate Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) regional office.

Award Procedure:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Effective upon approval by the State Agency.

Appeals:

The State agency is responsible for determining a school's eligibility.

Renewals:

Permanent, amended as necessary.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: The funding formula for cash assistance is set forth in section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act, 42 U.S.C. 1773, on a performance basis by: (1) multiplying the number of paid breakfasts served to eligible children during the fiscal year by a National Average Payment (NAP) prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture; (2) multiplying the number of breakfasts served free to eligible children by a NAP prescribed by the Secretary for free breakfasts; and, (3) multiplying the number of reduced price breakfasts served to eligible children by a NAP prescribed by the Secretary for reduced priced breakfasts. The amount of Federal funds given the grantee is the sum of the products obtained from these three computations.

Schools with a high percentage of needy may receive additional payments. The statistical factors used in this formula are: (1) The NAPs; (2) the number of paid breakfasts served; and (3) the number of breakfasts served free or at reduced price to eligible children. The NAPs are prescribed by the Secretary and adjusted each July 1, in accordance with the Food Away From Home series of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers. The source of this adjustment factor is the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The source of the numbers of breakfasts served, including the number served free or at reduced price, is the monthly programmatic reports submitted to FNS.

Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

For the period covered by the agreement on a fiscal year basis. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

States must submit a final fiscal year grant closeout report to FNS no later than 120 days after the end of the fiscal year to which they pertain. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133.

Schools must maintain full and accurate records of their breakfast programs. Such records must be retained for a period of 3 years after the end of the fiscal year to which they pertain, except that if audit findings have not been resolved, records must be retained beyond the 3-year period until audit findings have been resolved.

10.555 NATIONAL SCHOOL LUNCH PROGRAM

School Lunch

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 1751 1760, 1779.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist States, through cash grants and food donations, in providing a nutritious nonprofit lunch service for school children and to encourage the domestic consumption of nutritious agricultural commodities.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Federally appropriated National School Lunch Program funds are available to each State agency to reimburse participating public and nonprofit private schools, of high school grades or under, including residential child care institutions, for lunches meeting the nutritional requirements prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, served to eligible children. Schools meeting eligibility criteria may be reimbursed for snacks served to children enrolled in eligible after school hour care programs. Participating schools are reimbursed at rates that are adjusted on an annual basis to reflect changes in the Food Away From Home series of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers. All participating schools must agree to serve free and reduced price meals to eligible children. Please refer to regulations: 7 CFR Part 210 -- National School Lunch Program; 7 CFR Part 215 -- Special Milk Program; 7 CFR Part 220 -- School Breakfast Program; 7 CFR Part 235 -- State Administrative Expense; 7 CFR Part 245 -- Free and Reduced Price Eligibility.

Applicant Eligibility:

State and U.S. Territory agencies (except territories subject to the Compact of Free Association), public and nonprofit private schools of high school grade and under; public and nonprofit private residential child care institutions, except Job Corps centers, residential summer camps that participate in the Summer Food Service Program, and private foster homes. Schools and residential child care institutions that participate must agree to operate a nonprofit food service that is available to all children regardless of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or disability.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

All children enrolled in schools where this program is operating may participate. Lunch is served free to children who are determined by local educational agencies to have household income levels at or below 130 percent of poverty, and at a reduced price to children from households with incomes higher than 130 but at or below 185 percent of the poverty line respectively. Such determinations are made in accordance with income eligibility guidelines prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture and cross reference household income with household size. The Secretary announces these income eligibility guidelines by July 1. The statistical source used in making such revisions is the Federal Income Poverty Guidelines.

Children from households certified to receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits, the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, and children in Head Start Programs are automatically eligible for free meals. Homeless children, children in certain runaway and homeless youth grant programs, migrant children, and foster children are also automatically eligible for free meals.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicant organizations must furnish evidence of nonprofit status. Costs will be determined in accordance with USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Part 3015 or 3016 and 3019). OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

The application forms as furnished by the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) or the State agency, as applicable, must be used for this program. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Public schools in all States make application to the State educational agency unless the State applies and is approved for a waiver to designate an alternate agency. Appropriate forms may be obtained from this agency. Nonprofit private schools should also apply to the State educational agency in most States. In some States, however, the State educational agency is prohibited by statute from disbursing Federal funds to nonprofit private schools. In such instances, the application should be submitted to the alternate State agency or the appropriate FNS Regional Office.

Award Procedure:

The State agency reviews the written application of a school or a residential child care institution and, upon determination of eligibility, makes a written agreement with the school or institution for participation in the program.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Effective upon approval by the State agency.

Appeals:

The State agency is responsible for determining a school's eligibility.

Renewals:

Permanent, amended as necessary.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: The funding formula for the general cash for food assistance phase of this program is set forth in section 4 of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, 42 U.S.C. 1753; the formula for special cash assistance is described in section 11 of the Act, 42 U.S.C. 1759a. This program is funded on a performance basis. For every lunch served during the applicable fiscal year, the State receives a payment from funds made available under section 4. In addition, the State receives a payment from section 11 funds for each lunch served to a child eligible for free or reduced price lunches. The amounts of such per lunch payments are determined by "National Average Payment" (NAP) factors. The amount due the State under this program is obtained by: (1) multiplying the total number of eligible paid lunches and free and reduced price lunches served during the fiscal year by the section 4 NAP factor for lunches; (2) multiplying the number of free lunches served by the section 11 NAP factor for free lunches; (3) multiplying the number of lunches served at reduced price by the Section 11 NAP factor for reduced price lunches; (4) multiplying the total number of lunches served during the fiscal year in school food authorities which served 60 percent or more free or reduced price lunches in the second preceding school year by $.02; and (5) adding together the four products obtained thereby. The NAP factors are prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture in accordance with sections 4 and 11, respectively, of the Act; the numbers of lunches are obtained from programmatic reports submitted to FNS. In addition to the NAP factors, lunches certified as meeting updated meal patterns and nutrition standards receive an additional 6 cents in reimbursement. The funding formula for snacks in after school care programs is described in section 17A of the Act, 42, U.S.C. 1766a. Section 11(a)(3) of the Act requires that the NAP factors be adjusted annually, according to changes in the Food Away From Home series of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers; the source is the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Each State must appropriate from State revenues and use, for program purposes, an amount equal to 30 percent of the section 4 funds made available to the State in the 1980-81 school year. Also, commodity schools are eligible to receive donated commodities equal in value to the sum of section 6 and section 4 assistance rates, except that up to 5 cents of this amount may be received in cash for processing and handling commodities. In addition, commodity schools are eligible for section 11 free and reduced price meal reimbursements. This program has no matching requirements. This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details.

Annually, school food authorities must report, to their State agency, the most common charge for lunches served to children who do not qualify for free or reduced price lunches. School food authorities report the price charged at the elementary, middle and high levels, as applicable. In turn the State agency submits this information to FNS for publication. OBJECTIVES:

To provide subsidies to schools and institutions to encourage the consumption of fluid milk by children.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds are made available to State agencies to encourage the consumption of fluid milk by children in public and private nonprofit schools of high school grade and under, public and private nonprofit nursery schools, child care centers, settlement houses, summer camps, and similar nonprofit institutions devoted to the care and training of children, except Job Corps centers, provided that these schools and institutions do not participate in a meal service program authorized under the National School Lunch Act or the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. The Child Nutrition Amendments of 1986 expanded eligibility to include children in split session kindergarten and pre-kindergarten programs in nonprofit schools and institutions that do not have access to the Federal meal service program operating in schools the children attend. Disbursement to States is made on the basis of the number of half-pints of milk served to non-needy children, using a reimbursement rate specified by law. Milk served free to eligible needy children is reimbursed at the average cost of a half-pint of milk. Please refer to regulations: 7 CFR Part 215 -- Special Milk Program; 7 CFR Part 235 -- State Administrative Expense; 7 CFR Part 245 -- Free and Reduced Price Eligibility.

Applicant Eligibility:

Public and nonprofit private school of high school grade or under, and public and private nonprofit residential and nonresidential child care institutions, except Job Corps centers, may participate in this program upon request if they do not participate in a meal service program authorized under the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act or the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. This generally includes nonprofit nursery schools, child care centers, settlement houses and summer camps. Schools with split session kindergarten and pre-kindergarten programs can receive subsidies for milk served to children in the split session kindergartens and pre-kindergartens that do not have access to another meal service program operating in the school. All schools and child care institutions that participate must agree to operate this program on a nonprofit basis for all children without regard to race, sex, color, national origin, age or disability.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

All children enrolled in participating schools and institutions who do not have access to other Child Nutrition Programs, may participate in this program.

The reimbursement rate for each paid half-pint of milk served to children is adjusted each school year to correspond to the change in the Producer Price Index for Fluid Milk Products published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The statistical factor used for beneficiary eligibility for free milk is 130 percent of the poverty line and the source is the Federal income poverty guidelines. The cost of milk in excess of the Federal reimbursement must be borne by sources within the States (7 CFR Part 215). Disbursement to States is based on the number of half-pints served to children.

(WIC Program)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended, Section 17, 42 U.S.C. 1786. Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010, Public Law 111-296, 7 U.S.C 1746.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide low-income pregnant, breastfeeding and postpartum women, infants, and children to age five who have been determined to be at nutritional risk, supplemental nutritious foods, nutrition education, and referrals to health and social services at no cost. WIC also promotes breastfeeding as the feeding method of choice for infants, provides substance abuse education and promotes immunization and other aspects of healthy living.

For Formula Grants, the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) makes funds available to participating State health agencies and Indian Tribal Organizations (ITOs) that, in turn, distribute the funds to participating local agencies. State and local agencies use WIC funds to pay the costs of specified supplemental foods provided to WIC participants, and to pay for specified nutrition services and administration (NSA) costs, including the cost of nutrition assessments, blood tests for anemia, nutrition education, breastfeeding promotion, and health care referrals.

For Project Grants, funding for the competitive Loving Support grant is available for formative research and educational material development in the campaign for breastfeeding promotion and support. This project will effectively build on the successes of the existing Loving Support campaign to inform, motivate and persuade the audience in an effective manner that continues to increase breastfeeding rates among WIC participants and increase support for breastfeeding among those who most influence breastfeeding mothers (their family and friends, health care providers, WIC staff, and relevant community partners).

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS; Project Grants (Discretionary)

Funds are expended to pay for supplemental foods, nutrition education, breastfeeding promotion and support, health care referrals for participants, and other client services including certification, as well as administrative costs. State agencies are provided Federal funds according to legislative and regulatory formulas. Only local agencies qualifying under State agency applications with formal agreements may operate WIC programs.

The Loving Support Project grant is available to small businesses, nonprofits having a 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, institutions of higher education and for profit organizations other than small businesses, public and State controlled institutions of higher education and private institutions of higher education. Qualified applicants are expected to update the existing USDA breastfeeding promotion campaign. The campaign update will be based on a comprehensive social marketing plan with an emphasis on formative research, appropriately framed educational messages, innovative campaign strategies, and updated promotional materials. Grant awards are contingent upon availability of funding.

Applicant Eligibility:

A local agency is eligible to apply to deliver locally the services of the WIC Program, provided that: (1) it serves a population of low-income women, infants, and children at nutritional risk; and (2) it is a public or private nonprofit health or human service agency. 10.558 CHILD AND ADULT CARE FOOD PROGRAM (CACFP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, Sections 9, 11, 14, 16 and 17, as amended, 89 Stat. 522-525, 42 U.S.C. 1758, 1759a, 1762a, 1765 and 1766.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist States, through grants-in-aid and other means, to initiate and maintain nonprofit food service programs for children and elderly or impaired adults enrolled in nonresidential day care facilities, children attending afterschool care programs in low-income areas, and children residing in emergency shelters. This program provides aid to child and adult care institutions and day care homes for the provision of nutritious foods that contribute to the wellness, healthy growth, and development of young children, and the health and wellness of older adults and chronically impaired disabled persons.

Funds are also made available to the States for expenses associated with CACFP administration.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds are made available for disbursement to eligible institutions to reimburse their costs in providing meals and snacks to children and adults enrolled in nonresidential day care, children attending afterschool care programs, and children residing in emergency shelters. Disbursement is made on the basis of the number of breakfasts, lunches, suppers, and snacks served, using annually adjusted reimbursement rates specified by law. This program allows reimbursement for up to two meals and one snack served each day to children through the age of 12, children of migrant workers through the age of 15, and persons with disabilities, in child care centers and day care homes. Adult day care centers receive reimbursement for up to three meals served each day to enrolled adults who are functionally impaired or age 60 and older. This program also provides reimbursement to emergency shelters for up to three meals served each day to residents age 18 and younger. In at-risk afterschool care programs, reimbursement is available for one snack and an additional meal served each day, during the regular school year, to children through the age of 18. All program meals must meet the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) standards to be eligible for reimbursement. Funds are also paid to States for administrative expenses related to program staffing and oversight, as well as for audit expenses associated with CACFP administration.

Applicant Eligibility:

The State or U.S. Territory agency applies for and signs an agreement to receive Federal funds for disbursement. The State agency enters into an agreement with each institution that has been approved for participation. The agreement is permanent and may be amended as necessary to ensure compliance with all Federal requirements. Institutions must agree to operate a nonprofit food service that is available to all eligible children and adult participants regardless of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or disability.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Approved institutions providing nonresidential day care services may participate in this program. Eligible public and nonprofit private organizations may include day care centers, outside-school-hours care centers, settlement houses, family and group day care homes, Head Start programs, and institutions providing day care services to children with disabilities. Private for-profit centers may also participate if at least 25 percent of the children in care (enrolled or licensed capacity, whichever is less) are eligible for free or reduced price school meals or receive benefits under Title XX of the Social Security Act. Also eligible for participation are nonprofit centers which provide nonresidential adult day care, and private for-profit centers if the center receives compensation under Title XIX of the Social Security Act or Title XX, and at least 25 percent of the adults enrolled in the center receive benefits under Title XIX, Title XX, or a combination of both. Emergency shelters which provide shelter and meals to children experiencing homelessness, and at-risk after school care programs in low-income areas are also eligible. Any eligible institution may participate in this program upon request with State agency approval.

Credentials/Documentation:

The allowability of costs incurred by States in administering this program will be determined in accordance with USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Parts 3016 and 3019). Applicants that are not public or proprietary institutions must furnish evidence of tax-exempt status under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process required by the State. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Institutions apply to the responsible State agency. This program is subject to the provisions of USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Parts 3016 and 3019).

Award Procedure:

When the application is approved, the institution signs an agreement with the administering State agency.

Deadlines:

Not Applicable.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

The State agency must make a decision within 30 calendar days of receiving a complete application from the institution.

Appeals:

The administering agency must provide a hearing procedure for local institution grievances.

Renewals:

The agreement is permanent and may be amended as necessary to ensure compliance with all Federal requirements.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Section 17(b) of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, 42 U.S.C. 1766, describes the funding formula for cash assistance. Program funds are provided to the States through letters of credit. The States, in turn, use the funds to reimburse institutions for costs of food service operations and to support State administrative expenses. Appropriate rates of reimbursement, multiplied by the number of meals served to enrolled participants, represent the basic program payment that an institution receives for each meal served. The assigned rates of reimbursement are adjusted annually on July 1. For child care centers, adult day care centers, emergency shelters, and at-risk after school care programs, the annual adjustment reflects changes in the Food Away from Home series of the Consumer Price Index for

All Urban Consumers. For day care homes, the adjustment reflects changes in the Food at Home series of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers. Donated foods or cash in lieu of donated foods are also made available. Program payments to child care or adult day care centers depend on the number and types of meals served to enrolled participants, multiplied by the appropriate rate of reimbursement. Rates for meals served to enrolled children and eligible adults in day care centers are determined by the participants' eligibility for free, reduced price, or paid meals using USDA Income Eligibility Guidelines. All resident children age 18 and younger in eligible emergency shelters receive free meals without application. At-risk after school care programs, which must be located in low-income areas, are reimbursed at the free rate for all meals and snacks served to children through age 18. Sponsoring organizations of day care homes are reimbursed at a national administrative rate based on the number of homes they operate. The level of reimbursement for meals served to enrolled children in day care homes is determined by economic need based on either the location of the day care home, the income of the day care provider, or the income of an individual child's household. Meals served in day care homes to the provider's own children are reimbursable only if those children are determined eligible for free and reduced price meals, and at least one other nonresident child is participating in the meal service. The reimbursement for food service is passed on by the sponsoring organization to the day care facility. Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

For the period covered by the agreement. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

Reports:

Institutions file monthly reports on program operations to claim reimbursement for meals served. They must submit final meal claims no later than 60 days after the claiming month. States must then submit final program reports to the Food and Nutrition Service no later than 90 days after the claiming month. No cash reports are required. No progress reports are required. No expenditure reports are required. No performance monitoring is required.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. Audits may be conducted less frequently under conditions specified in OMB Circular No. A-133. For-profit institutions are subject to audit by their administering State agencies.

Records:

Institutions must maintain full and accurate records of program operations for a period of 3 years after the end of the fiscal year to which they pertain. However, where there are unresolved audit findings, records must be retained until there is satisfactory resolution of all audit issues.

10.559 SUMMER FOOD SERVICE PROGRAM FOR CHILDREN

(SFSP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, Sections 9, 13 and 14, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 1758, 1761 and 1762a; Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2010, P.L. 111-80, Section 749(g)(1).

OBJECTIVES:

To assist States, through grants-in-aid and other means, to conduct nonprofit food service programs for children. This program operates in partnership with the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), State agencies, and local organizations to provide free meals to eligible children during the summer months and at other approved times, when school is not in session.

In addition there are discretionary grant initiatives to improve access and test alternative methods for feeding children over the summer. The methods being tested through these demonstrations are:

1. Extending Length of Operation: Eligible SFSP sponsors received an additional 50 percent lunch served if they operated for 40 or more days during the summer.
2. Activity Incentive: Eligible sponsors received a mini-grant of varying amounts to provide activities to children at their SFSP meal service sites.
3. Summer Home Delivery: Meals are delivered to homes or community drop-off sites for children eligible for free or reduced-price school meals to consume at home during the summer.
4. Food Backpacks: Bags containing meals are provided to children attending SFSP sites for them to take home to consume on the days that traditional SFSP sites are not open, typically weekends and holidays.
5. Summer Electronic Benefits Transfer for Children (SEBTC)-Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP): Free and reduced-price eligible children receive a per month SNAP EBT benefit that their families can use to purchase food during the summer.
6. SEBTC-Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC): Free and reduced-price eligible children receive a per month WIC EBT benefit that their families can use to purchase food during the summer.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds are made available for disbursement to eligible service institutions

(sponsors) which provide free meals to children in areas where at least 50 percent of the children meet the income eligibility criteria for free and reduced price meals. Meals may be served to children 18 and younger, and to individuals over 18 who participate in State-approved school programs for persons with disabilities.

This program generally operates during the months of May through September at site locations where regularly scheduled food services are provided for children. Sites may also participate in this program from September through May if an area school is closed because of an emergency situation. Sponsors operating food programs for children on school vacation under a continuous year-round calendar may apply for participation in other months.

Reimbursement may be paid for one meal and one snack or two meals per child each day. Camps and sites primarily serving children of migrant workers may be approved to serve up to three reimbursable meals each day. Meals must meet USDA standards to be eligible for reimbursement. Funds are also paid to participating State agencies for administrative expenses related to program staffing, operation, and oversight.

Summer demonstration projects either address funding limitations that restrict participation or provide an alternate approach to summer feeding needed by children unable to access traditional congregate feeding sites. Assistance must be used for specific activities authorized by Child Nutrition legislation. There may be restrictions as required by the legislation.

1. Extending Length of Operation: Only sponsors operating for 40 or more days during the summer were eligible.
2. Activity Incentive: SFSP sponsors were required to apply for selection by the State to receive the mini-grant.
3. Summer Home Delivery: Sponsors had to apply for a competitive grant selection process conducted by FNS. Sponsors in three States were selected to participate in this demonstration project. Only children certified eligible for free and reduced-price school meals were eligible to receive meals through this demonstration.
4. Food Backpacks: Sponsors had to apply for a competitive grant selection process conducted by FNS. Sponsors were only eligible if they had successfully operated SFSP the previous year. Sponsors in three States were selected to participate in this demonstration project.
5. SEBTC-SNAP: Only States that formally applied and were selected by FNS were eligible to implement this. Only free and reduced-price eligible children whose families consented to participation were eligible to receive benefits.
6. SEBTC-WIC: Only States that formally applied and were selected by FNS were eligible to implement this. Only free and reduced-price eligible children whose families consented to participation were eligible to receive benefits.

Applicant Eligibility:

The State or U.S. Territory agency applies for and signs an agreement to receive Federal funds for disbursement. The State agency enters into an agreement with each sponsor that has been approved for participation. The agreement is permanent and may be amended as necessary to ensure compliance with all Federal requirements. Sponsors must agree to operate a nonprofit food service that is available to all eligible children regardless of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or disability.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

A service institution that conducts a regularly scheduled program for children from areas in which poor economic conditions exist is eligible to participate as a sponsor in this program. Sponsors include public or private nonprofit school food authorities; public or private nonprofit colleges or universities operating the National Youth Sports Program during the months of May to September; units of local, municipal, county, or State governments; and other faith or community-based private nonprofit organizations.

Public or private nonprofit residential or nonresidential summer camps may also participate. However, at camps, reimbursement will only be paid for meals served to enrolled children who are individually determined to be eligible for free and reduced price school meals under USDA Income Eligibility Guidelines.

Credentials/Documentation:

The allowability of costs incurred by States in administering this program will be determined in accordance with USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Parts 3016 and 3019). OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Service institutions may apply directly to the responsible State agency. Applicants that are not public institutions must furnish evidence of tax-exempt status under section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. This program is subject to the provisions of USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Parts 3016 and 3019).

Award Procedure:

When an application is approved, the sponsor signs an agreement with the administering agency.

States were selected for the Summer EBT for Children (SEBTC) SNAP and WIC models based on a formal grants selection process.

Deadlines:

Not Applicable.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

The State agency must make a decision within 30 calendar days of receiving a complete and correct sponsor application. If an incorrect application is received, the State agency must notify the applicant within 15 days and provide technical assistance to complete the application.

Appeals:

The State agency must have a hearing procedure for local institution grievances.

Renewals:

The agreement is permanent and may be amended as necessary to ensure compliance with all Federal requirements.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Sections 13(b) and (k) of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, 42 U.S.C. 1761, describe the funding formulas for cash assistance. Cash reimbursement to States under this program is the product obtained by multiplying the number of meals served by maximum rates of reimbursement established by USDA. State agencies use the cash assistance to reimburse sponsors for eligible meals served to eligible children. Since all meals are served free, all meals of the same type are funded at the same rate. Rates are adjusted annually on January 1, to reflect changes in the "Food Away from Home" series of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers. Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. This program does not have MOE requirements.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide each State agency with funds for its administrative expenses in supervising and giving technical assistance to local schools, school districts and institutions in their conduct of Child Nutrition Programs. State agencies that administer the distribution of USDA Foods to schools and child or adult care institutions are also provided with State Administrative Expense (SAE) funds.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

SAE funds must be used for purposes specified in the legislation, consistent with the cost principles and constraints on allowable and unallowable costs, and indirect cost rates as prescribed in 2 CFR Part 225 (formerly OMB Circular No. A-87). These funds may be used, under certain conditions, for the procurement of supplies, equipment, and services.

Applicant Eligibility:

State agencies responsible for the conduct of Child Nutrition Programs, and agencies responsible for the distribution of USDA Foods to schools and child or adult care institutions, including agencies in the U.S. Territories.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

State agencies responsible for the conduct of Child Nutrition Programs, and agencies responsible for the distribution of USDA Foods to schools and child or adult care institutions, including agencies in the U.S. Territories.

Credentials/Documentation:

Costs are to be determined and documented in accordance with agency regulations (7 CFR 235) and USDA Uniform Federal Assistance Regulations (7 CFR Parts 3015 or 3016 and 3019). 2 CFR Part 225 (formerly OMB Circular No. A-87) applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. The State agency submits an initial administrative plan for disbursement of funds to the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS). A State agency may amend its plan at any time to reflect changes in funding or activities. Substantive changes require FNS approval.

Award Procedure:

Release of funds to a State agency is contingent upon approval of the State agency's initial SAE plan. Upon approval of the plan, the State agency and FNS enter into a written agreement. FNS will determine the amount of SAE funds available for payment to the State agency, specify the terms and conditions of the State agency's annual grant, and make funds available for payment by means of a letter of credit.

Deadlines:

Not Applicable.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Not Applicable.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Annually.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Section 7(a) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 1776, describes the funding formula for cash assistance. For the National School Lunch Program, School Breakfast Program, and Special Milk Program, funds are allocated on the basis of an amount equal to one percent of the total funds used in the State for these programs during the second preceding year based on FNS program and fiscal data. However, no State receives less than $200,000 or the amount it received in fiscal year 1981, whichever is larger. For the Child and Adult Care Food Program, a sliding grant is made based on FNS program and fiscal data. In addition, the Secretary of Agriculture has discretionary authority to provide funds to States for program improvement, based on FNS program and fiscal data. Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. Any reduction of funds from State sources below the fiscal year 1977 level will result in a withdrawal of Federal funds under this grant.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Funding is provided each fiscal year during the period covered by the agreement. A State agency may carry over up to twenty percent of SAE funds allocated to it for obligation and expenditure during the succeeding fiscal year. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

Reports:

Food and Nutrition Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-246); Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-86) , 7 U.S.C 2011-2036.

OBJECTIVES:

The Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (FDPIR) is a nutrition assistance program that may be operated, at the request of a Tribe or Indian Tribal Organization (ITO) on an Indian reservation, approved areas near a reservation, or approved service areas in Oklahoma. Income eligible households receive a supplemental monthly food package and nutrition education. Households may not participate in FDPIR and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) at the same time. In FY 2013, five States and 100 ITOs administered the program on 276 Indian reservations, pueblos, rancherias, and Alaska Native Villages. Nutrition assistance was provided to an average of 75.6 thousand persons per month. All participating ITOs receive administrative funding for costs incurred in the operation of the program; a limited portion of these administrative funds can be used for nutrition education activities. Additionally, Food Distribution Program Nutrition Education (FDPNE) grants are awarded competitively to ITOs participating in FDPIR for culturally relevant nutrition education activities that promote healthy choices through USDA Foods and physical activity among FDPIR participants. CFDA 10.594 FDPIR Nutrition Education Grants.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS; SALE, EXCHANGE, OR DONATION OF PROPERTY OR GOODS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

USDA provides USDA Foods to authorized ITOs and State Distributing Agencies (SDA) for distribution, free of charge, to qualifying households. FNS makes available to the ITOs and SDAs a minimum of 75% of the administrative funds necessary to operate the program and to conduct nutrition education. FDPNE grants can be used for nutrition education services to FDPIR participants and FDPIR-eligible participants. The ITOs and SDAs must follow national policies in certifying eligible households and issuing USDA Foods, and must comply with program and financial reporting requirements. The USDA Foods may not be sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of (authorized distribution excepted) without prior, specific approval of USDA. The Federal funds provided must be used to meet expenses incurred in operating FDPIR. These funds may not be used to purchase real property (land or buildings).

Applicant Eligibility:

The administration of FDPIR is limited to ITOs or to SDAs that assume administration on behalf of/at the request of a Tribe(s).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

FDPIR eligibility is limited to income eligible households residing on participating reservations or income eligible Indian Tribal Households (see definition at 7 CFR 253.2) residing in approved areas near a reservation or in approved service areas in Oklahoma. The ITOs/SDAs are responsible for certifying households based on national eligibility criteria. The income standards vary by household size and are based on 100% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines adjusted by the applicable SNAP standard deduction.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicant ITO/SDA administrators must submit Form SF-424 (Application for Federal Assistance) and a Plan of Operation. ITOs and SDAs must comply with federal financial management policies and regulations. Applicant households must submit a completed application form and provide documentation in accordance with federal regulations at 7 CFR 253.6. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is eligible for coverage under E.O. 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs." An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. ITOs and SDAs that want to administer FDPIR must submit Form SF-424 (Application for Federal Assistance) to the appropriate FNS Regional Office, as well as a Plan of Operation. The standard application forms as furnished by the Federal agency and required by OMB Circular No. A-102, as implemented by 7 CFR Part 3016, must be used for this program. ITOs and SDAs that wish to receive FDPNE grants must submit a competitive grant application; grant applications are solicited annually by FNS.

Award Procedure:

Administrative funding is provided annually by FNS to ITOs and SDAs for use in administering the program. Program benefits for eligible households are provided in the form of a monthly food package, selected by the household in accordance with Federal guide rates that are based on household size. ITOs and SDAs order from a list of about 115 available foods. The foods are delivered to the ITOs/SDAs on a predetermined schedule set by the ITO/SDA.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

ITOs/SDAs who wish to begin administering the program can submit an application at any time. FNS must determine within 30 days of the receipt of a completed application if an ITO/State agency is capable of administering the program. ITOs and SDAs must make foods available to eligible households within 7 days of receipt of the completed application form (1 day for households with no income). FDPNE grant applications are solicited annually; deadlines are announced each year.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Approval to administer the program continues unless a withdrawal is requested or required because of program irregularities, or funding is unavailable. Administrative funding is provided on an annual basis; a new Form SF-424 must be submitted each year. Households are assigned certification periods of varying lengths based on household circumstances. Household certification periods may not exceed one year, except elderly or disabled households may be certified for up to 24 months if household circumstances are stable.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title 7, Part 253.11.
Matching Requirements: Percent: 25%. The 25% match requirement may be waived or lowered, if compelling justification is provided by the ITO/SDA. MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Administrative funding for ITOs/State agencies expires at the end of each fiscal year. Food donations for household distribution are continuous. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

Reports:

Form FNS-152, Monthly Distribution of Donated Food to Family Units, captures, on a monthly basis, the number of households certified and number of households/individuals participating. It also captures food inventory (i.e., receipts, distributions, and remaining inventory at end of month). 10.572 WIC FARMERS' MARKET NUTRITION PROGRAM (FMNP)

WIC Farmers' Market, or FMNP

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Healthy Hunger Free Kids Act of 2010, Public Law 111-296, 106 Stat. 281; Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended, Section 17(m), 42 U.S.C. 1786.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide fresh, nutritious, unprepared, locally grown fruits and vegetables from farmers markets to women, infants, and children who participate in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC); and to expand the awareness and use of farmers' markets and increase sales at such markets.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants are made to State health, agriculture and other agencies, Indian tribes, bands, or intertribal councils or groups recognized by the Department of the Interior, or the Indian Health Service of the Department of Health and Human Services. Participating State agencies must provide program income or State, local, or private funds for the program in an amount that is equal to at least 30 percent of the administrative cost of the program except Indian Tribal Organizations which may provide a negotiated match contribution that is less than 30 percent but not less than 10 percent. The matching requirement may be satisfied from State contributions that are made for similar programs. Federal FMNP benefits (coupons) may be issued only to participants in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) or to persons who are on a waiting list to receive WIC benefits. A minimum of 83 percent of grant funds may be used to support the costs of the foods that are provided under the FMNP but no more than seventeen percent may be used for administrative cost of the program.

Applicant Eligibility:

All State agencies that desire to receive a FMNP grant must submit, for each Federal fiscal year, a State Plan to the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), USDA. New State agencies are selected based on the availability of funds after base grants for currently participating State agencies are funded. Local FMNP sites are selected by participating State agencies based on concentration of eligible WIC participants and access to farmers' markets.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

WIC participants (i.e., pregnant, postpartum or breastfeeding women; infants over 4 months of age; and children up to 5 years of age) and (at the State's discretion) those who are on a waiting list to receive WIC benefits are eligible to receive FMNP coupons. State agencies may also designate subcategories of WIC participants, e.g., pregnant and breastfeeding women only, to be FMNP recipients.

Credentials/Documentation:

A signed and executed Federal/State Agreement (FNS-339) is necessary before funds can be allocated to a participating FMNP State agency. Costs will be determined in accordance with 7 CFR Part 3016, and FNS guidelines and instructions. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Application is made through submission of a "State Plan of Program Operation and Administration" as required by law. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Farmers or farmers' markets (depending on whether State agencies have agreements with farmers or markets) located in communities with WIC Program sites may apply to be authorized to accept FMNP coupons under the program. The State agency reviews the applications for completeness and compliance with authorization requirements. The State agency contacts the farmer/farmers' market to inform them of qualification. Individual participants apply for FMNP benefits at approved local WIC agencies.

Award Procedure:

Funds are awarded by the Department on the basis of funding formulas to State agencies. If the available funds are insufficient to meet the base grant levels for current FMNP grantees, a pro-rata reduction will be applied to the grant levels awarded to all participating FMNP State agencies. If additional funds become available for the FMNP, such funds would first be distributed evenly among the current grantees to make whole their base grants for that fiscal year. Grant payments are made by a letter of credit.

Deadlines:

Nov 15, 2014 FMNP State Plans for the current fiscal year are due to the appropriate FNS Regional office by November 15.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

As required by law (at Section 1786(m)(6)(A) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended), the Secretary must inform each FMNP State agency of the award of funds by February 15 of each year.

Appeals:

All decisions by the FNS are final.

Renewals:

This Program is authorized through September 30, 2015.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Statutory formula can be found at Section 17(m)(3) of the Child Nutrition Act. As a prerequisite to the receipt of Federal funds, a State agency must agree to contribute program income or State, local or private funds equal to at least 30 percent of its administrative program cost. Provided that sufficient funds are available, each current State agency will be funded at its most recent year's level. Remaining funds are divided between current States for expansion and new States, based on a 75 to 25 percent ratio, respectively. Matching Requirements: Percent: 30%. As a prerequisite to the receipt of Federal funds, a State agency must agree to contribute program income or State, local or private funds equal to at least 30 percent of its administrative program cost. Indian Tribal Organizations may provide a negotiated match contribution that is less than 30 percent but not less than 10 percent. State contributions for similar programs may satisfy the State matching requirement. MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

10.574 TEAM NUTRITION GRANTS

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Child Nutrition Act, Section 19, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 1788.

OBJECTIVES:

Team Nutrition (TN) Training Grants for Healthy School Meals have been identified in USDA's national Strategic Plan for Training and Technical Assistance as one of the anchor delivery systems for supporting the implementation of USDA's nutrition requirements and the Dietary Guidelines for Americans in Child Nutrition programs. TN's goal is to improve children's lifelong eating and physical activity habits by using the principles of the Dietary Guidelines for Americans and the USDA Food Guidance System.

TN Training Grants offer funding to State agencies to establish or enhance sustainable infrastructures for implementing TN's three behavior-focused strategies: (1) provide training and technical assistance to child nutrition food service professionals to enable them to prepare and serve nutritious meals that appeal to students; (2) promote nutrition curriculum and education in schools through multiple communication channels (i.e., food services initiatives, classroom activities, school wide events, home activities, community programs and events, and media events and coverage) to reinforce positive nutrition messages and encourage students to make healthy food and physical activity choices as part of a healthy lifestyle; and (3) build school and community support for creating healthy school environments that are conducive to healthy eating and physical activity.

Competitive grants are grants awarded to State agencies to establish or enhance sustainable infrastructures for implementing TN's goal of improving children's lifelong eating and physical activity habits.

Non-competitive grants are awarded for training and technical assistance to help schools take the HealthierUS School Challenge (HUSSC).

HUSSC is a voluntary certification initiative established to recognize those schools participating in the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) that have created healthier school environments through promotion of nutrition and physical activity. Monetary incentive awards became available for each HUSSC award level: Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Gold Award of Distinction.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: Planning Grant: Lynwood Unified School District (USD), Lynwood, California, $24,294; Lynwood USD is in the initial stages of farm to school planning. The district has begun to undertake measures to improve overall health of its students by incorporating salad bars into all the elementary schools. The district has embarked on many activities to increase awareness of food quality, nutrition, and origin among students, parents, and community. The next step in this plan is to continue to impress the importance of local food procurement on educators and other stakeholders by giving the district an opportunity to create a concrete plan for changing procurement strategy and nutrition education curriculum to reflect the importance of consuming locally.

Implementation Grant: Fayetteville School District #1, Fayetteville, Arkansas, 99,058

The proposed project will build on Fayetteville Public Schools (FPS) past experience and existing community partnerships to develop a comprehensive farm to school program that will have dual health/wellness and economic prosperity impacts. The program will increase farm to school awareness through educational events, experiential learning, and curriculum integration while simultaneously integrating activities related to sourcing local and regional foods into everyday workflows and meal preparation by food service staff. The program will provide culinary training and improve food processing capacity to ensure local products are utilized in school menus throughout the academic year on a regular basis. The program will also provide educational and networking opportunities for existing and future producers. Fiscal Year 2014: Oakland Unified School District

Oakland, CA

Grant Type: Implementation; $100,000

Oakland Unified School District will develop and implement an innovative new lunch program called California Thursdays. Through this program, we intend to increase the amount of California-grown and processed products consumed by students and increase students awareness of the origin and agricultural character of the food items on their plates. California Thursdays will expand the districts local purchasing to include proteins and grains, as well as enhance current local produce purchasing from farms less than 500 acres.

Pasadena Unified School District

Grant Type: Planning; $44,486

Pasadena Unified School District will implement a farm to school program to benefit 18,965 students in a mid-size urban school district in Los Angeles County, California. Nearly 69% of students are eligible for free and reduced lunch, less than 30% meet the states Physical Fitness Test minimum requirements, and over 20% are obese. While there is a growing interest in urban agriculture and locally grown organic food within the greater Pasadena area, many of these resources are not broadly reaching the low-income children and families served by its public schools. This grant will help us broaden this reach by convening stakeholders who will develop an implementation plan for increasing the accessibility, availability, quality, and consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables for our students and community. Key activities include establishing policies and practices that support procurement of locally grown fresh fruits and vegetables, providing training for food services staff to increase scratch cooking and use of local produce, developing farm to school curriculum, and conducting outreach and education efforts aimed at students, parents, and families.

Bayfield Regional Food Producers Cooperative

Grant Type: Support Service; $76,742

Expanding farm to school in northern Wisconsin will require solving the challenge of a very short growing season. Through a collaborative effort, the Member Producers of the Bayfield Regional Food Producers Cooperative will help local school districts install and manage high tunnels to supplement each districts school gardens. The tunnels will allow district educators to implement experiential, project-based learning in the spring and fall seasons. In addition, the high tunnels will help the schools provide nutrient-dense hardy greens and other vegetables to the students in their lunch and snacks. To further the impact of the high tunnels, UW Extension and the Bayfield Regional Food Producers Cooperative will develop and implement an agripreneur training program to encourage older students to use high tunnels for commercial vegetable production. Further expanding the impact of farm to school efforts in the region, we will assist the community (schools, families, restaurants) in developing locally-relevant meals that are healthy and easy to prepare, that can be served at schools, restaurants, and at home, and that can be sourced from local producers. This multi-faceted approach to farm to school will increase opportunities for experiential learning, the volume of local vegetables consumed at school, and help transfer lessons learned at school to home, where health outcomes are largely determined. Fiscal Year 2015: n/a.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Criteria for selecting proposals is detailed in the RFA and includes degree to which the project serves a school or school district with a high percentage of free and reduced price meal enrollment; need, readiness and likelihood of success; alignment with farm to school program goals; project design and management; sustainability and transferability; and appropriateness of budget plan.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants are made to State departments such as health, agriculture and aging, United States territories and Federally-recognized Indian tribal governments, or any other agency approved by the chief executive officer of the State. Applicant Eligibility:

All State agencies that desire to receive a SFMNP grant must submit for review and approval, for each Federal fiscal year, a State Plan to the appropriate Regional Office of the Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), USDA. New State agencies are selected based on the availability of funds after base grants for currently participating State agencies are funded. Local SFMNP sites are selected by participating State agencies based on concentration of eligible senior participants and access to farmers' markets.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Persons eligible for the program are low-income seniors, generally defined as individuals who are at least 60 years old and who have household incomes of not more than 185 percent of the federal poverty income guidelines (published each year by the Department of Health and Human Services). Some State agencies accept proof of participation or enrollment in another means-tested program, such as the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP) or Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), for SFMNP eligibility.

Credentials/Documentation:

A signed and executed Federal/State Agreement (SF-339) is necessary before funds can be allocated to a participating SFMNP State agency. Costs will be determined in accordance with 7 CFR Part 3016, and FNS guidelines and instructions. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Farmers or farmers' markets (depending on whether State agencies have agreements with farmers or markets) may apply to be authorized to accept SFMNP coupons under the program. The State agency reviews the applications for completeness and compliance with authorization requirements. The State agency contacts the farmer/farmers' market to inform them of qualification. Individual participants apply for SFMNP benefits at approved SFMNP sites.

Award Procedure:

Funds are awarded by the Department on the basis of funding formulas to State agencies. If the available funds are insufficient to meet the base grant levels for current SFMNP grantees, a pro-rata reduction will be applied to the grant levels awarded to all participating SFMNP State agencies. If additional funds become available for the SFMNP, such funds would first be distributed evenly among the current grantees to make whole their base grants for that fiscal year. Grant payments are made by a letter of credit.

Deadlines:

Nov 15, 2013: Set forth in the announcement. SFMNP State Plans for the current fiscal year are due to the appropriate FNS Regional office by November 15.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

In general, FNS will announce SFMNP awards, and notify each State agency that did not receive an award, approximately 60 days after the date State Plans are due to FNS.

Appeals:

All decisions by the FNS are final.

3. WIC State Agency Model (SAM) Amendments (non-competitive). Grant funds for WIC SAM amendments are provided to support WIC State agencies that are either part of the original SAM consortia, or those that need additional funding to complete implementation of a SAM transfer system. These funds are used by WIC State agencies for implementation completion as well as system enhancements through the SAM user group process.
4. WIC EBT Planning Grants (non-competitive). EBT Planning grants funds are provided to WIC State agencies to assess the feasibility of EBT for their State, as well as to perform a cost analysis to verify EBT affordability. The planning process is a WIC requirement prior to EBT implementation and looks at WIC Information System capabilities, retailer capabilities, and baseline paper cost compared to EBT operational cost within the State to better prepare for the challenges of EBT implementation. WIC State agencies must analyze both on-line and off-line EBT technologies to assess the most cost-effective solution.
5. WIC Technical Innovation Grants (competitive). WIC Technical Innovation grant funds are provided to WIC State agencies for the development of standardized reporting, retailer certification test scripts, and development of a web-based Internet system that will allow WIC participants to access grocer's websites, select WIC approved foods and purchase them with their EBT card from the convenience of their homes.

provided to WIC State agencies to assess their current system, complete a feasibility study and cost analysis as well as prepare a Request for Proposal for an implementation contractor.

10. WIC SAM Product Management Office (PMO) (non-competitive). WIC SAM PMO grant funds are provided to WIC State agencies responsible for the support and management of the SAM change control process; prioritization of enhancements, User Group Governance, and maintenance and operation of the State agency MIS Core Code.

1. WIC Breastfeeding Peer Counseling Funds (discretionary). The Food and Nutrition Services long-range vision is to institutionalize peer counseling as a core service in WIC. A portion of these funds may be used to award breastfeeding performance bonuses. These incentives build upon WICs longstanding efforts to promote and support breastfeeding, and are intended to recognize and award State agencies that have demonstrated successful breastfeeding promotion and support efforts.
2. WIC Special Projects Grants (discretionary). WIC Special Projects Grants are awarded to state agencies for special State projects of regional or national significance to improve the services of the program. The goal is to improve and strengthen the effectiveness of WIC Program services. Full and Mini grants are awarded to States to evaluate ongoing initiatives aimed at improving Program services. 11. Coordinating food services with park and recreation programs and other community-based outlets to which residents of the area would have easy access.
12. Improving public transportation, human service agencies, and food resources.

The selection official may also determine that, based on their scores, few of the applications are of technical merit. In such a case, FNS may make fewer awards or smaller awards than expected or make no awards. The Center is the only entity that focuses on science-based food safety research in schools, child care, and other Child Nutrition programs. The Centers research is applied to FNS food safety education resources developed through the National Food Service Management Institute (NFSMI).

Serving Up Science: The Path to Safe Food in Schools: In FY13, the Center delivered a pilot course in food science and food safety. This course is modeled after the highly successful PSU. It immerses attendees in the basic science behind food safety and connects the science to the importance of motivating behaviors in program operators that will result in a culture of food safety. The Center will launch the finalized course in 2014.

Cooling Foods in School Service Operations: In FY13, the Center completed a study on safe cooling techniques in school foodservice operations and published their results in two peer reviewed, professional journals. FNS and the Center also collaborated with NFSMI to develop educational materials based on the study results.

Assessment of School Food Safety Programs Based on HACCP Principles: In FY13, the Center completed research that assessed how schools have implemented school food safety programs. This research, in conjunction with the results of a previous study evaluating the effectiveness of the USDA guidance for developing school food safety plans, will be used to provide targeted resources to State and local program operators. These resources will help school nutrition professionals understand their roles in complying with section 302 of the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act (HHFKA) of 2010.

Produce Wash Study: In FY13, the Center completed a produce wash study that evaluated the effectiveness of washing methods and compounds on different types of produce. The results of this preliminary research will be used as a foundation for future research.

Health Inspection Report Study: The Center completed a study of the health inspection results for schools and is writing two articles about the findings. These articles are expected to be published in peer reviewed, professional journals in 2014.

10.586 SPECIAL SUPPLEMENTAL NUTRITION PROGRAM FOR WOMEN, INFANTS AND CHILDREN; NUTRITION EDUCATION INNOVATIONS

WIC Nutrition Education Innovations Grant, WIC Periconceptional Grant

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

National Agriculture Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977, Section 1403(8), 7 U.S.C. 3102, Section 1403(8), 7 U.S.C 3102.

OBJECTIVES:

These awards enable Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) to enter into grants and cooperative agreements with States and local governments, universities, hospitals and non-profit organizations to identify, develop, and undertake projects to meet FNS program needs and the food, nutrition, and health of program eligible participants. The grantees and recipients are expected to work cooperatively with FNS to:

- Support researcher-initiated projects that use a common approach to reporting findings to ensure transparency and facilitate a meta-analysis of all projects;
- Coordinate activities among researchers;
- Effectively use technology and digital media to achieve desired outcomes; and
- Advance communication and coordination to improve target behaviors.

The grants and cooperative agreements plan to enable FNS to be more responsive to program needs and the food, nutrition, and health needs of FNS program participants.

The objective of the WIC Periconceptional Grant is to establish a university-based grant series for researcher-initiated projects to demonstrate creative approaches to evaluate the impacts of WIC on periconceptional nutrition. FNS focus for this project is the direct and indirect effects of WIC participation by one or more family members during the periconceptional period and the implications for service delivery. During the periconceptional period the time period immediately prior to conception and in the first few days and weeks following conception nutrition can impact placental and embryonic development with critical lifelong implications. This project supports a university-based grant series for researcher-initiated projects to demonstrate creative approaches to evaluate WIC impacts on periconceptional nutrition, coordinate activities among researchers, and widely disseminate findings from current research.

The WIC Nutrition Education Innovations' Grant's objective is to enhance the effort to identify, develop, evaluate and disseminate innovative and effective WIC nutrition education interventions. This is to be accomplished by providing grant funding for a university-based center with this charge, including a program of sub-grants to support development and evaluation of WIC-focused researcher-initiated innovations from researchers across the nation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

For both the WIC Periconceptional Grant and the WIC Nutrition Education Innovations Grant, the following uses and use restrictions apply:

Cooperative Agreement Grants will be made to State and local governments, universities, hospitals, and non-profit organizations for awarding cooperative agreements, and grants to design, develop and evaluate innovative approaches for Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) programs, such as WIC, to meet FNS program needs and to strengthen their impact on the food, nutrition and health of program eligible participants. The grant and cooperative agreement recipient is task with:

- making sub-grants,
- coordinating efforts among sub-grantees,
- evaluating impact of FNS programs, such as WIC, on food, nutrition and health,
- providing a summary and syntheses of these and related efforts, such as meta-analysis on the results,
- composing and coordinating conference on observations and findings, and
- providing FNS with cost neutral approaches to improving FNS programs.

FNS' primary objective for these grants and cooperative agreements is to support interest in exploring better ways to improve and assess Food and Nutrition Service program needs and their impact on the food, nutrition and health of program eligible participants. The grants should enhance knowledge and further research activities by the academic community, FNS and others. See the RFP. The grant and cooperative agreement funds are provided to recipients (grantees) responsible to spend the funds in accordance with what is set forth in the grant or cooperative agreement, and applicable Federal circulars such as A-110. The source and use of the funds for the grants and cooperative agreements will be tied to a project of interest to one or more of FNS' program areas. FNS has the discretion to select (through competition) what institution will receive the funds and to what research endeavors they will be applied, assuming that research is not specified in the law or other directive.

Applicant Eligibility:

The grant is to be used to establish grants and cooperative agreements to identify, develop and undertake projects to meet Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) program needs and the food, nutrition, and health needs of program eligible participants.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Cooperative agreements are awarded to State and local governments, hospitals, non-profit organizations and accredited colleges/universities offering advanced degrees at the PhD level in biological and social sciences such as sociology, psychology, education, nutrition, public health and economics. This is a requirement for the selected recipient of the grants and cooperative agreements, not the sub-grantees. Cooperative agreement recipients are to award sub-grants to researchers to identify, develop, and evaluate interventions and innovative approaches to strengthen the impact of Food and Nutrition Service programs, such as WIC, on the food, nutrition, and health of program eligible participants.

OBJECTIVES:

The National Food Service Management Institute (NFSMI), is part of the School of Applied Science at The University of Mississippi, and is the only federally funded national center dedicated to applied research, education and training, and technical assistance for Child Nutrition Programs. The Institute was established and authorized by Congress, in 1989, and funded at The University of Mississippi in 1991 by a grant administered through the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), Food and Nutrition Service (FNS). In 1994, the Institute was permanently authorized. The specific duties (described below) of the Institute can be found in section 21 of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act, 42 U.S.C. 1769b-1.

General Education Cooperative Agreement:

The Institute also receives $800,000 for general education through a non-competitive cooperative agreement. The general education agreement supports activities under Team Nutrition. Team Nutrition is a USDA initiative to support the Child Nutrition Programs through training and technical assistance for foodservice, nutrition education for children and their caregivers, and school and community support for healthy eating and physical activity. In addition the FNS Office of Food Safety provides funding to support its mission of increasing awareness, visibility, and impact of food safety on USDA nutrition assistance programs. The Institute provides support to the FNS Office of Food Safety for developing food safety education programs and materials and conducting applied research related to food safety education (non-competitive). Russell National School Lunch Act, as amended and reauthorized, for activities that include training, applied research, preparation of informational materials and maintenance of an information clearinghouse. The grant funds staff positions in the Institutes four divisions: Education and Training, Information Services, Applied Research and Administration.

Mission and Vision:

The Institute's mission is to provide information and services that promote the continuous improvement of Child Nutrition Programs. The vision is to be the leader in providing education, research, and resources to promote excellence in Child Nutrition Programs. The Institute serves anyone connected with the Child Nutrition Programs: National School Lunch, School Breakfast, Summer Food Service, and Child and Adult Care Food Programs. As a national center, and to fulfill its mission, the Institute develops educational resources, and offers training and technical assistance using appropriate technology for child nutrition professionals across the nation and conducts applied research. It is the training and technical assistance arm of the Child Nutrition Programs.

In addition, $500,000 is provided to support the Chefs Move to Schools program. The overall goal is to continue the efforts of establishing the Chefs Move to Schools as a national volunteer movement that encourages Chef and School partnerships across the US to educate and empower children to develop healthier eating habits. Schools that sign up to partner with chefs receive menu ideas, culinary training and help teaching students about the importance of healthy meals.

10.588 ASSESSMENT OF ALTERNATIVES TO FACE-TO-FACE INTERVIEWS IN SNAP

Assessment of Face-to-Face Interviews

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Food Stamp Act of 2008 , Section 17 (a)(1).

OBJECTIVES:

To examine how/if eliminating the client interview for SNAP benefits affects administration of the SNAP program and client outcomes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Assistance shall be used to defray the cost for the states to implement the demonstrations and participate in the evaluation of the demonstrations.

Applicant Eligibility:

Allowable use of funds includes, but is not limited to, personnel costs; office and research supplies; travel for data collection; and technology (both hardware and software) necessary for operating the Cooperative Agreement.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

This project will be beneficial to both state and local SNAP offices, as it will inform them of how eliminating the face-to-face interview for SNAP applicants affects the administration of the program. The clients, in turn, will benefit from the project because the findings of the study will be used by the state and local offices to improve their administration of the program.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110.

Award Procedure:

Applicants will submit their response to the RFA through grants.gov. FNS will prescreen all applications to ensure that they contain the required documents and information. If an application does not include all appropriate information, FNS will consider the application to be non-responsive and will eliminate it from further evaluation.

Following the initial screening process, FNS will assemble a panel to review and determine the technical merits of each application based on how it addresses the required application components. The panel will award the grants to applicants whose application best demonstrates the capacity to implement and operate the pilots. Preference will be given to those applications that address all of the criteria completely, explain in detail how the pilot will be designed and implemented, and show capacity and willingness to cooperate fully with the data collection and evaluation. In addition, the applications that best detail a process for collecting the necessary information from clients to verify cases with minimal contact under the no interview model will merit higher scores. Additional points will also be given to states applying for the regular evaluation but have the capacity to conduct more than the minimum suggested QC-like reviews at the pilot site.

The selection official will consider the panels recommendations. The selection official may consider other FNS priorities, such as geographic, demographic, socioeconomic diversity or size of QC sample in addition to the scores assigned by the technical review panel. FNS reserves the option to select one or more lower-rated applications in order to achieve a diversity of projects and regional representation.

One-half of the TEFAP supplemental funding was allocated to States based on the population of counties that received major disaster declarations from FEMA, and one-half of funding was allocated to States based on the population of counties eligible for individual disaster assistance from FEMA. Under the Disaster Relief Appropriations Act, 2013 (P.L. 113-2, the Act), USDA was able to allocate the money without regard to the statutory formula used to allocate TEFAP administrative funds provided through the regular appropriations process. The funds were provided as USDA Foods under 10.591. However, State agencies had the opportunity to convert any or all of their allocation to administrative funds under this CFDA number, provided the States could show sufficient justification for making this conversion. 10.597 LOCAL WELLNESS POLICY SURVEILLANCE SYSTEM COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

Local Wellness Policy Grant

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 204 of the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 added Section 9A to the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act (NSLA) (42 U.S.C. 1758b), Local School Wellness Policy Implementation, in order to strengthen wellness policies of LEAs by placing greater emphasis on implementation and evaluation efforts.

OBJECTIVES:

The Local Wellness Policy Surveillance System will allow us to monitor, collect, and analyze state law and local district policy data and their effects on the implementation of HHFKA legislation and rules and student health outcomes. This competitive cooperative agreement solicits applications for a national-level surveillance system that will address the current gaps in surveillance by current federally and non-federally funded systems and surveys.

Three major federal-level surveillance systems and surveys are currently in place and are scheduled to continue for at least the next 2-3 years, if not indefinitely. Each of these surveillance systems and surveys is funded by a government agency, and each collects detailed data on the breadth and depth of existing state laws, district policies, and related school practices; the implementation of said laws, policies, and practices; and their effects on student health outcomes. The next section describes the strengths, primary areas of focus, periodicity, and other key characteristics for each of three major national surveillance systems and surveys. In so doing, it also highlights important gaps in what they cover, individually and collectively, and areas where linkage with other relevant surveys or research efforts would provide a more detailed picture of school wellness policies and their effects.

1. School Nutrition and Meal Cost Study/School Nutrition Dietary Assessment

The School Nutrition Dietary Assessment (SNDA) is administered by the USDAs Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) every 5 years and collects and analyzes nationally representative data on school meals and the school meal environment (including competitive foods) at the district- and school-levels, with individual-level dietary information collected every 10 years. 14 SNDA-V will be administered as the School Nutrition and Meal Cost Study (SNMCS) in SY 2014-2015 and will include SNDA-type, meal assessment data as well as data on meal cost, dietary recall, plate waste, and meals compliance with standards.

SNDA/SNMCS is the only assessment that examines specifically the nutritional quality of school meals, how and if those meals are meeting the new standards, and meal cost. Examining SNDA/SNMCS data together with state law and district policy data, which SNDA does not currently collect, has the potential to demonstrate how the laws and policies at the state- and district-level are being implemented in, or affecting, lunchrooms (with regard to meal planning and meal environment) and students (with regard to meal cost and diet).

2. Classification of Laws Associated with School Students

The National Cancer Institutes Classification of Laws Associated with School Students (C.L.A.S.S.) is a policy classification system that can be used to evaluate state-level codified laws for nutrition and physical education in schools across all 50 states and the District of Columbia by grade level. C.L.A.S.S. uses state law as the data source and scores the concordance between state laws and national school wellness policy mandates. Currently, C.L.A.S.S. measures are collected annually, with the next cycle beginning in 2014. C.L.A.S.S. data are publicly available for use by researchers, policy makers, and school administrators to obtain information on state laws associated with childhood obesity, track policy changes over time, test relationships between law and behavior, associate C.L.A.S.S. scores with state- and school district-policies, and link to information about obesity and other cancer-related behaviors. C.L.A.S.S. also offers two data visualization tools: (1) a map function that depicts the strength of specific policy areas by grade level across states, and (2) a profile function that depicts policy scores across grade levels within each state by year.

While C.L.A.S.S. is the only classification system that objectively scores state laws on nutritional and physical activity, it does not identify specific elements of the state laws. Therefore, additional, complementary research is required to parse out and examine relationships between individual policy components (e.g., addressing sugar or fat content in school foods) and related school practices and student outcomes (e.g., diet, physical activity, BMI).

3. School Health Policies and Practices Study

The Centers for Disease Control and Preventions School Health Policies and Practices Study (SHPPS) is a national, comprehensive survey conducted to assess school wellness at the state-, district-, school-, and classroom-levels. SHPPS surveys cover health education, physical education, health services, mental health and social services, nutrition services, healthy and safe school environments, and faculty and staff health promotion. Due to the comprehensive design of SHPPS, wellness policy data may be linked with other school health data. SHPPS data are collected every two years, alternating school- and classroom-level data collection with district-level data collection. In its next cycle (2014), SHPPS will collect school- and classroom-level data, and in the following cycle (2016) it will collect district-level data. Beginning in 2016, SHPPS will no longer collect state-level data.

SHPPS is unique in monitoring both school health policies and school wellness policies, which is essential for linking LWPs to student health outcomes such as services received, safety, and environments. The multi-level aspect of SHPPS assessments presents the opportunity for linking this data with state law data in order to show the effects of state laws on LWPs, and the effects of LWPs on overall health. However, SHPPS data are not collected annually.

Great progress has been made in adopting school wellness policies and in developing surveillance systems to monitor their implementation and impact. Yet continued progress in school wellness, school wellness policy development, and positive impacts will require surveillance that provides a fuller understanding of the strengths and limitations of current policies, and that chart the course for evidence-based improvements. This competitive cooperative agreement solicits applications for a national-level surveillance system that will address the most important gaps in the coverage of the existing school wellness policy surveillance systems and surveys. Applicants seeking funding under this School Wellness Policy Cooperative Agreement should consider, at a minimum, the following specific capabilities when developing their proposals:

The capability to link enacted school district wellness policy and related state law data with data being collected through other existing surveillance systems (e.g., SNDA, CLASS, SHPPS) in 2014-2015 (i.e., data collection occurring at various levels as outlined above);

The capability to conduct a nationwide evaluation of the scope of on-the-books (enacted) school district wellness policies and related state laws;

The ability to collect and analyze qualitative data that can explore the implementation of and compliance with HHFKA policies across various stakeholders (e.g., administrators, school food authorities, parents, children, etc.);

The capacity to develop and disseminate timely policy briefs, fact sheets, and other translation products (e.g., infographics) to inform the USDA, Congress, and the research field of key school wellness policy surveillance results and gaps as well as to produce papers for peer-reviewed publication; and

The focus of single or multiple-entity agency funding for the winning proposal(s) should be minimally to compile on-the-books wellness policy data for a nationally representative sample of public school districts and concomitant state laws using an innovative approach that encompasses the above-listed potential areas of focus and other policy opportunities. The Grantees (Recipients) shall work cooperatively with FNS on the study design and evaluation.

10.602 CCC'S DAIRY EXPORT INCENTIVE PROGRAM

The DEIP Program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Foreign Agricultural Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990; the Uruguay Round Agreements Act of 1995; and the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996., Title 7, Part CFR, Section 1494.

OBJECTIVES:

The major objective of the program is to develop export markets for dairy products where U.S. products are not price competitive and thereby, make sales in targeted overseas markets for the purpose of market development or where competitor countries are making subsidized sales.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments for Specified Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Dairy Export Incentive Program helps exporters of US dairy products meet prevailing world prices for targeted dairy products and destinations. Under the program, the US Department of Agriculture pays cash to exporters as bonuses, allowing them to sell certain US dairy products at prices lower than the exporter's costs of acquiring them.

Applicant Eligibility:

All sales under the DEIP are made by the private sector, not the U.S. government. An invitation for offers issued by USDA may be one of two types: those inviting exporters to submit a competitive offer for a bonus, and those inviting exporters to apply for an announced bonus. Once an invitation for offers is issued, it is up to agricultural exporters to contact prospective buyers in eligible countries and negotiate a sales contract covering price, quantity, quality, delivery, and other terms. The sale may be contingent on USDAs approval of a bonus. Each prospective exporter submits an offer to USDA requesting a bonus that would allow the sale to take place at the agreed price. Under an invitation for competitive offers, USDA reviews all bids for the competitiveness of the bonus value requested and compares the bids with offers from other U.S. exporters and with sales of competitor countries. Under an announced bonus, compliant offers meeting all program requirements are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. USDA has the right to reject any or all bids.

Once USDA accepts a bid, the exporter and USDAs Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) enter into an agreement. OBJECTIVES:

The primary objective of the Emerging Markets Program is to promote, enhance or expand the exports of U.S. agricultural commodities to overseas emerging markets through cost-share assistance to eligible organizations that implement an Emerging Markets Program. The program supports the activities of U.S. agricultural and agribusiness firms--particularly those that may need assistance in obtaining or maintaining access in overseas markets. Program funds help finance activities such as feasibility studies, market research, sectorial assessments, orientation visits, specialized training, and business workshops. The Program is not intended for projects targeted at end-user consumers. Ineligible activities include in-store promotions, restaurant promotions, branded product promotions, administrative and operational expenses for trade shows and advertising, except in connection with specific technical assistance activities such as training seminars.

10.609 TRADE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE

(TAA)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Foreign Agricultural Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Trade Act of 1974, as amended, Trade Act of 2002, and reauthorized by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) of 2009.

OBJECTIVES:

Under the program, the Department of Agriculture (USDA) provides technical assistance and cash benefits to eligible farmers and fishermen if increased imports contributed importantly to a production or price decline of greater than 15 percent. Technical assistance under the program provides access to a wide variety of resources from USDA's National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA), their county Extension Service, and their education contractor, the University of Minnesota's Center for Farm Financial Management (CFFM), to assist producers in exploring alternative crops or improved marketing techniques for their current enterprise. The program's goal is to help producers respond proactively to import competition through training and cash benefits.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

This program makes cash payments and provides technical assistance to eligible farmers, ranchers, and fishermen competing with like or directly competitive imported products.

Applicant Eligibility:

The TAA review process is two-tier and consists of a petition application process and a producer application process. First, group petitions must demonstrate, using data for the most recent, full marketing year or full official marketing season, a greater than 15-percent decline in at least one of the following factors: national average price, quantity of production, value of production, or cash receipts. In addition, petitions must also demonstrate that the decline in one of the cited factors be importantly caused by an increase in imports. If a petition is certified, individual producers may apply at their local FSA field office. Producers must demonstrate they produced the agricultural commodity in the marketing year for which the petition is filed and in at least one of three preceding marketing years. Producers must also demonstrate that they experienced a decrease in the production or price of the agricultural commodity in the marketing year for which the petition is certified, compared to the most recent prior marketing year preceding that marketing year for which data is available, or demonstrate that USDAs county price for the petitioned commodity on the petition filing date is less than USDAs average county price for the past three consecutive marketing years.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Producers of raw commodities who have been adversely affected by import competition and are covered by a certification of eligibility.

Credentials/Documentation:

When applying, producers must provide documentation that they produced the commodity during the most recent marketing year for which the petition is filed and in at least one of the three marketing years preceding that marketing year. To be eligible for cash payments, producers also must certify that they experienced a decrease in the quantity or price of the agricultural commodity in the marketing year for which the petition is certified, compared to the most recent prior marketing year preceding that marketing year for which data is available, or demonstrate that USDAs county price for the petitioned commodity on the petition filing date is less than USDAs average county price for the past three consecutive marketing years. If eligible, a producer may receive no more than $12,000 during the 36-month period following the certification of a group petition. Producers may receive no more than $65,000 in combined counter-cyclical and TAA payments. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. A group of producers or an association representing a group of producers must first file a petition with USDA's FAS to establish eligibility for assistance. Petitions may be filed by a group of three or more producers or an authorized representative. If a petition is certified, individual producers must file an application at their local FSA field office. Producers who are approved are eligible to receive, at no cost, trade adjustment technical assistance from the CFFM and cash benefits.

The TAA regulation defines articles like or directly competitive as products falling generally under the same number in the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTS). Links to the HTS and a U.S. trade database can be found at <http://www.fas.usda.gov/itp/us-tariff-sch.asp>.

The CFFM will provide information regarding the feasibility of substituting one or more alternative commodities and improve the competitiveness of the production and marketing of the adversely affected commodity.

Award Procedure:

FAS determined the eligibility of producers of raw commodities who have been adversely affected by import competition based on all information and supporting documentation provided. The CFFM will make available to all producers who apply for TAA free technical assistance within 180 days of the petition certification date. The CFFM will contact applicants with the times and dates of scheduled training sessions or online classes. Once an applicant has met all program requirements, they will receive a cash benefit of up to $4,000 based upon the completion of an Initial Business Plan, and an additional $8,000 based upon the completion of a Final Business Plan. The Farm Service Agency will make a direct deposit payment to the eligible applicant's checking account. The maximum cash benefit is $12,000 over a 36-month period. Applicants may receive less if total applications exceed TAA funding levels.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Petition filing to establish eligibility, on the average, will take 40 days from the date that the petition is accepted and published in the Federal Register. The CFFM will make available to all producers who apply for TAA free technical assistance within 180 days of the petition certification date.

Appeals:

Any person may obtain reconsideration and review of determinations made with respect to applications for program benefits by filing an administrative appeal with USDAs Foreign Agricultural Service within 30 days of FAS's denial and, if upheld, within 60 days to the U.S. Court of International Trade.

Renewals:

Initially expected to expire on December 31, 2010, the TAA for Farmers Program was extended until February 12, 2011, through the Omnibus Trade Act on December 29, 2010. However, given the statutory requirement of a 90-day application period, the six-week life of the new appropriation precluded the announcement of a new program. The program officially expired on February 12, 2011, but funding and operations for it remain intact and allow all approved applicants to continue to receive payments and complete their training until September 2013.

On October 12, 2011, Congress passed the Trade Adjustment Assistance Extension Act of 2011. The legislation reauthorized the TAA for Farmers Program through the first quarter of FY 2014. However, neither the House nor Senate bills provided appropriated funding for the program. As a result, no new petitions or applications have been accepted, to date.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: An eligible applicant will receive a monetary cash benefit of up to $4,000 based upon the completion of an Initial Business Plan and up to an additional $8,000 based upon the completion of a Long-Term Business Plan. Payment limitations exist for applicants who have received $65,000 in counter cyclical payments. Monetary cash benefits may be less than $12,000 if total TAA payments exceed available funds. Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Payment is made by direct deposit after determining applicant eligibility, unless otherwise arranged. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Two separate cash payments are provided to applicants who complete the training requirements.

Reports:

Not later than January 30, 2010, and annually thereafter, the Secretary of Agriculture shall submit to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives a report containing the following information with respect to adjustment assistance provided under this chapter during the preceding fiscal year: (1) A list of the agricultural commodities covered by a certification. (2) The States or regions in which such commodities are produced and the aggregate amount of such commodities produced in each such State or region. (3) The total number of agricultural commodity producers, by congressional district, receiving benefits. (4) The total number of agricultural commodity producers, by congressional district, receiving technical assistance. Cash reports are not applicable. Progress reports are not applicable. Expenditure reports are not applicable. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. At all times during regular business hours, authorized representatives of FSA, the United States Department of Agriculture, or the Comptroller General of the United States shall have access to the premises of the producer in order to inspect, examine, and make copies of the books, records, and accounts, and other written data as specified. Audits of certifications of average adjusted gross income may be conducted as necessary to determine compliance with established requirements. As a part of this audit, income tax forms may be requested and if requested, must be supplied. If a producer has submitted information to FSA, including a certification from a certified public accountant or attorney, that relied upon information from a form previously filed with the Internal Revenue Service, such producer shall provide FSA a copy of any amended form filed with the Internal Revenue Service with 30 days of the filing.

Records:

Persons making application for benefits under this program must maintain accurate records and accounts that will document that they meet all eligibility requirements specified herein, as may be requested by FSA. Such records and accounts must be retained for 2 years after the date of the final payment to the producer under this program.

10.610 EXPORT GUARANTEE PROGRAM

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Foreign Agricultural Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, Executive Order 7 U.S.C. 5602, 5622, 5661, 5662, 5663, 5664, 5676; 15 U.S.C. 714b(d), 714c(f).

Executive Order 13175

, Title 7, Part 1493, Section A, 15 U.S.C 714; OMB 7 CFR 1493.

OBJECTIVES:

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Export Credit guarantee Program (GSM-102) provides credit guarantees to encourage financing of commercial exports of U.S. agricultural products, while providing competitive credit terms to buyers. By reducing financial risk to lenders, credit guarantees encourage exports to buyers in countries-mainly developing countries- that have sufficient financial strength to have foreign exchange available for scheduled payments. The program guarantees credit extended by the private banking sector in the U.S. (or, less commonly, by the U.S. exporter) to approved foreign banks using dollar-denominated, irrevocable letters of credit for purchases of U.S. food and agricultural products by foreign buyers. USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) administers the program on behalf of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), which issues the credit guarantees. GSM 102 covers credit terms of up to three year; maximum terms may vary by country.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Guaranteed/Insured Loans

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

CCC guarantees payments due from approved foreign banks to exporters or financial institutions in the U.S. However, the financing must be obtained through normal commercial sources. Typically, 98 percent of principals and a portion of interest are covered by a guarantee. Because payment is guaranteed, financial institutions in the U.S. can offer competitive credit terms to the foreign banks, usually with interest rates based on the London Inter Bank Offered Rate (LIBOR). Any follow-up on credit arrangements between the foreign bank and the importer are negotiated separately and are not covered by the CCC guarantee.

Applicant Eligibility:

Export Credit Guarantee Program (GSM-102) provides credit guarantees to encourage financing of commercial exports of U.S. agricultural products, while providing competitive credit terms to buyers. By reducing financial risk to lenders, credit guarantees encourage exports to buyers in countries-mainly developing countries- that have sufficient financial strength to have foreign exchange available for scheduled payments. This Program provides guarantees to lenders.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Exporters or the exporters assignee are the direct beneficiaries and must meet the applicant eligibility requirements. Interested parties, including U.S. exporters, foreign buyers, banks, may request that the CCC establish a GSM-102 program for a country or region. Prior to announcing the availability of guarantees, the CCC evaluates the ability of each country and foreign bank to service CCC guaranteed debt.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. CCC must qualify exporters for participation before accepting guarantee applications. An exporter must have a business office in the U.S. and must not be debarred or suspended from any U.S. government program. Financial institutions must meet established criteria and be approved by CCC. CCC sets limits and advises each approved foreign bank on the maximum amount CCC will guarantee for that bank. The

Award Procedure:

The CCC-approved foreign bank issues a dollar-denominated, irrevocable letter of credit in favor of the U.S. exporter, ordinarily advised or confirmed by the financial institution in the U.S. agreeing to extend credit to the foreign bank. The U.S. exporter may negotiate an arrangement to be paid as exports occur by assigning to the U.S. financial institution the right to process that may become payable under the CCC's guarantee. Under this arrangement, the exporter would also provide transaction-related documents required by the financial institution, including a copy of the export report, which must also be submitted to CCC.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Please contact the headquarters or regional office for additional approval information.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Not Applicable.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title 7, Chapter 14, Part 1493. CCC will review documents submitted under a claim. If all information and documents are in good order and meet the requirements of the regulations, CCC will pay to the exporter (or the exporter's assignee) the lesser of 1) the guarantee value stated in the payment guarantee, plus eligible interest; 2) the guaranteed percentage, indicated in the payment guarantee, of the exported value as indicated in the Evidence of Export, plus eligible interest.

Matching requirements are not applicable to this program.

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

The payment guarantee applies to a credit period established in the application, and coverage begins either on the date(s) of export or the date when interest begins to accrue, whichever is earlier. Coverage will continue during the credit term specified in the payment guarantee. However, the payment guarantee does not become effective until the date of export. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

Reports:

No reports are required.

Audits:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-133. Recipients under this program are subject to audit by the Office of the Regional Inspector General, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Records:

For CCC audit purposes, the U.S. exporter must obtain documentation to show that the commodity arrived in the eligible country, and the exporter or the exporter's assignee must maintain all transaction documents for five years from the date of completion of all payments.

Account Identification:

10.665 SCHOOLS AND ROADS - GRANTS TO STATES

Payments to States

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Forest Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Secure Rural Schools and Community Self Determination Act of 2000, Division C, Section 601(a), 16. U.S.C. 7101-7153; 16 U.S.C. 500.

OBJECTIVES:

To share receipts from the National Forests with States in which the National Forests are situated.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

For Federal fiscal years 2008 through 2011 and reauthorized one year for FY 2012 and one year for FY 2013, the Secure Rural Schools Act allows counties in which national forests are situated to elect to share in the State payment (based on a formula in the Act) or to share in the state's 25-percent payment (based on the 7-year rolling average of receipts from national forests in the state). The fiscal year 2013 payment was made to states in April 2014. The 25-percent payments to states are to be used for the benefit of public schools and public roads in the counties in which national forests are situated. An eligible county that elects to receive a share of the State payment (based on the formula in the Act) must under some circumstances allocate a portion of that payment for title II special projects on national forests or title III county projects, or both. The portion of the Secure Rural Schools Act State payments not allocated for these purposes are to be used to benefit public schools and public roads in counties in which national forests are situated. The payments to benefit schools and roads are commonly called title I funds. Funds allocated by counties for title II special projects are reserved in a special account in the General Treasury and may be used by the Secretary of Agriculture for projects that improve the maintenance of existing infrastructure, enhance forest ecosystems, and restore and improve land health and water quality on national forests. Funds allocated by counties for title III county projects may be used only to: (1) carry out activities under the Firewise Communities program to provide homeowners in fire sensitive ecosystems education on, and assistance with implementing, techniques in home siting, home construction, and home landscaping that can increase the protection of people and property from wildfires; (2) reimburse the participating county for search and rescue and other emergency services, including firefighting, that are performed on a national forest after the date on which the use was approved, and paid for by the participating county; and (3) develop community wildfire protection plans in coordination with the Forest Service acting on behalf of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Applicant Eligibility:

Title I payments are made to States or territories of the United States in which national forests are situated. Title II project funds are reserved in special account in the U.S. Treasury and may be used by the Secretary of Agriculture for the purpose of entering into and implementing cooperative agreements with willing Federal agencies, State and local governments, private and nonprofit entities, and landowners. (16 U.S.C 7122).

Title III funds are paid to respective states to be passed-through to participating counties.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

A beneficiary of title II special project funds is a person or entity that receives a grant or enters into a cooperative agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out a project for protection, restoration, and enhancement of fish and wildlife habitat, and other resource objectives consistent with the purposes of the Secure Rural Schools Act on national forests and on non-national forest land where projects would benefit the resources on national forests. (16 U.S.C. 7122)

A beneficiary of title III funds is a participating county in which a national forest is situated that has elected to allocate a portion of its State payments for title III county projects.

Credentials/Documentation:

OMB circulars apply to title II special projects. No Credentials or documentation are required for title I or title III payments. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

A decision to reject a title II project is not subject to administrative appeal or judicial review. (16 U.S.C 7124).

Renewals:

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Statutory Formula: Under title I - Secure Payments for States and Counties Containing Federal Land, each county in an eligible state elected to receive one of the following payments: a share of the states 25-percent rolling average payment, or a share of the State payment calculated using the formula in the Secure Rural Schools Act. The payment to the state under the Secure Rural Schools Act is the sum of the county elections in that state. The 25-percent payments to states, is an amount equal to the annual average of 25-percent of amounts received for the applicable fiscal year and each of the preceding 6 fiscal years from each national forest. This amount is used to calculate a county's share of the states 25-percent payment. The sum of shares for counties that elect to receive this payment is paid to the state under the Secure Rural Schools Act. State payments for fiscal years 2008 through 2013 were calculated using a complex formula with multiple factors, including acres of proclaimed national forest within an eligible county, the average 3 highest 25-percent payments made to each eligible State for each eligible county for the eligibility period 1986 through 1999, and the annual per capita personal income for each county. The sum of shares for counties that elect to receive this payment is paid to the state under the Secure Rural Schools

Act.

Matching Requirements: There are no matching requirements for the 25-percent payment to states or for the State payment. Acquisition management regulations and procedures applicable to the Forest Service for purchases, contracts, grants and agreements may impose matching requirements on title II projects.

10.676 FOREST LEGACY PROGRAM

(FLP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Forest Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978, 16 U.S.C. 2101, et. seq., as amended by the 1990 Farm Bill, Section 1217 of Title XII of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990, Public Law 101-624, 104 Stat. 3359, 16 U.S.C. 2103c; later amended by the 1996 Farm Bill, Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act of 1996; Public Law 104-127; Title III, Conservation; Subtitle G Forestry; Section 374, Optional State Grants for Forest Legacy Program.

OBJECTIVES:

To effectively protect and conserve environmentally important forest areas threatened by conversion to nonforest uses, through conservation easements or fee simple purchase. The Forest Legacy Program (FLP) is a voluntary private land conservation partnership between the Forest Service, participating States, land trusts, private landowners, and others. The Program works with State partners and operates on a willing seller and willing buyer basis and is completely nonregulatory in its approach. No eminent domain authority or adverse condemnation is authorized for this Program.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Landowner participation in the program is voluntary and consists of two components: (1) conveying land or interests in land to achieve land conservation objectives and (2) preparing and periodically updating a Forest Stewardship Management Plan or a multi-resource management plan, when the participation is through conservation easement. State lead agencies must first evaluate and approve projects as Forest Legacy eligible before competing for Forest Service funding.

Applicant Eligibility:

Projects are evaluated and prioritized by State lead agencies, in consultation with the State Forest Stewardship Coordinating Committees. All States and territories participate except North Dakota, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and Guam.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

An applicant should consult the office or official designated as the single point of contact in his or her State for more information on the process the State requires to be followed in applying for assistance, if the State has selected the program for review.

The Forest Service then issues grants to states for the project specific Congressional set-aside designated in the Congressional appropriations bills. The Forest Service then issues grants to states based on the amounts provided in Congressional appropriations and the prioritized national project list.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory formulas are not applicable to this program.

Matching Requirements: Funding for the Cooperative Forest Health Protection program is provided to states to help support a base level of professional forest health expertise for non-federal forest managers. Grants for this program are allocated to states using a formula that is based on the number of acres of non-federal forest land within the states, other factors, and amount of funding available through annual appropriations.

Applicant matching for cooperative Forest Health Protection programs and projects that treat specific forest health problems on non-federal lands is required and is 50%. In cases where it is mutually agreed upon that an applicant will treat federal lands as part of a cooperative project or program, the Forest Service reimbursement is 100% for the federal portion. However, applicant matching rates may be adjusted in emergency or extraordinary situations. Forest Service cost-share rates for activities involving development of new and improved forest health protection methods and technologies, and the conduct of special projects and evaluations are negotiated on a project-by-project basis with the grantee. Exceptions from the 50% cost-share requirement must be approved by the Deputy Chief for State and Private Forestry. The applicant share of cooperative programs may be in the form of cash, services, or in-kind contributions. If a state elects to consolidate the annual Forest Service financial assistance, in lieu of functional cost sharing mechanisms, the total consolidated payment to any state during any fiscal year may not exceed the total amount of non-federal funds expended to implement its state forest resources program during that year. Treatment funds and activities cannot be a part of the consolidated payment and must stand alone to meet the 50% match requirement (See FSM 3431.22).

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Grants are typically awarded for one or two years and may be extended on request and with the approval of the program manager. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Payments made based on authorization and negotiation of provisions with cooperator.

10.681 WOOD EDUCATION AND RESOURCE CENTER (WERC) (WERC)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Forest Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Law 105-277, Div. A, Section 101(e) Title III, Section 343, 112 Stat. 2681-231, 2681-297; Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978, as amended, 16 USC 2101 et, seq.; Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Act of 1978, as amended, 6 USC 1600-1614.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide funds, on a cost-share basis, for projects that focus on enhancing opportunities for sustained forest products production for primary and secondary wood industries. In order to maintain and improve the health and stewardship of our Nation's forests, local wood-using industries need to be vibrant and able to utilize a wide variety of resources from the forest. Priorities include:

- Maintain the economic competitiveness of primary and secondary wood industries. Examples include:
 - 1) Encouraging the adoption of new technology to improve competitiveness and profitability,
 - 2) Bringing information and technology about processing, marketing, and business-related skills as well as urban wood utilization to existing and emerging businesses, and
 - 3) Developing utilization options that improve forest stewardship and health.

Increase the knowledge and information about how the wood industry can contribute to the green building movement. Examples include chain of custody certification for sustainable wood products as well as life cycle analysis for a range of wood products.

Increase the knowledge, information, and promotion of how carbon sequestration by wood products can provide a competitive edge to a sustainable forest products industry. An example includes developing specific carbon storage factors for a range of wood products.

Develop technology and markets to address urgent issues on a global or domestic scale, including:

- 1) Sanitizing wood packaging materials, firewood, and similar products to eliminate these pathways for the transport of insect and disease pests, and
- 2) Developing markets for and using unexpected increases in the volume of urban and rural wood due to new pest introductions (for example, emerald ash borer) and weather events such as tornadoes and ice storms.

Increase the sustainable use of woody biomass to meet our Nations needs for energy, raw materials, and reductions of hazardous fuels. Examples include public/private partnerships for using woody biomass in heating and cooling, process energy, cogeneration, district energy systems, and solid and liquid fuel production. Projects may also develop or maintain local markets and forest industry infrastructure by using woody biomass for both energy and value-added products. Provide key information to address the economic, social and ecological aspects of woody biomass production and use: including sustainable supplies, harvesting techniques, forest management, plantation development, and environmental implications.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation (NFWF) is an independent 501(c)(3) charity established by Congress in 1984 that protects, restores, and enhances the Nation's fish, wildlife, plants, and habitats. The Foundations greatest asset is its position at the nexus of the conservation community. Its myriad conservation partnerships connect it with potentially every federal and state agency, key industry leaders, concerned private citizens, and nonprofit leadership from the international to the local level. Since its establishment, NFWF has awarded more than 11,000 grants to 3,700 organizations in the United States and abroad and leveraged more than $650 million in federal and private funds into more than $1.7 billion for on-the-ground conservation.

NFWF began its relationship with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service in 1988 with a $30,000 challenge grant to restore trout habitat ravaged by flooding in the Monongahela National Forest. In 1995, the partnership expanded when Forest Service provided funds to the Foundation to launch a grant program focused on improving the ecological health of our National Forests. To date, the Foundation has undertaken more than 1,229 projects in partnership with the Forest Service and has leveraged more than $44 million in Forest Service funds with more than $251 million for targeted, on-the-ground conservation. Foundation grants have been made in more than 100 National Forests and Research Stations in all nine regions of the Forest Service. EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2013: No Current Data Available Fiscal Year 2014: Forest Service funding is apportioned between NFWF strategic keystone initiatives, and targeted charter grant programs. Among each program, a handful of high-priority projects are selected for funding each fiscal year. The following list summarizes the emphasis areas for fiscal years 2013 and 2014.

Strategic Keystone Initiatives Starting in 2008, the Foundation realigned its grant making to be more targeted and outcome-based. Keystone Initiatives were designed to achieve a measurable conservation outcome in a five to ten year timeframe. Specific goals and strategies are identified for each initiative through the development of business plans that serve as guides for the types of projects that will be considered for funding by NFWF. Each year, approximately 50% of the Forest Service contributions support these keystone initiatives.

Wildlife and Landscape Scale Habitat Keystone: Addresses conservation needs for mammals, reptiles, amphibians, invertebrates, and native plants. The Foundation is currently working with the Forest Service on Sierra Nevada Wet Meadow restoration and Northern Rockies Wildlife Corridors (eastern Idaho and western Montana).

Freshwater Fish and Habitat Keystone: Focuses on high-priority species and habitat for freshwater fish and associated aquatic life such as mussels, crayfish, and invertebrates. The Foundation is currently working with the Forest Service on Eastern Brook Trout (Virginia and West Virginia) and Apache Trout (Arizona).

Bird and Habitat Keystone: Focuses on migratory and resident bird species and their habitat. The Foundation is currently working with the Forest Service on to promote the conservation of Gunnison Sage Grouse (Colorado and Utah) and a wide variety of Southeastern grassland birds such as bobwhite quail and Bachmans sparrow.

Charter Grant Programs Funds (approximately 50% of Forest Service funding) are also awarded through targeted Charter Grant Programs which include:

I) Pulling Together Initiative is a unified effort by NFWF and DOI and DOA to fund and implement effective, long-term invasive plant management at the local level.

II) Bring Back the Natives seeks to implement the National Fish Habitat Initiative Action Plan by supporting on the ground watershed restoration and native fish projects.

III) Chesapeake Bay Small Watershed Grant Program provides grants to organizations and local governments working on a community level to protect and improve watersheds in the Chesapeake Bay basin.

IV) Upper Mississippi River Watershed Fund supports projects benefiting forest stewardship and the restoration of watersheds in the Upper Mississippi River drainage.

V) The Great Lakes Watershed Restoration Program funds organizations working to protect, restore, or enhance the habitat for fish, wildlife, and plants of the Great Lakes watershed.

Native Plant Conservation Initiative supports on-the-ground conservation projects that protect, enhance, and restore native plant communities on public and private lands. ($100K in fiscal years 2010 and 2011). Fiscal Year 2015: No Current Data Available

10.690 LAKE TAHOE EROSION CONTROL GRANT PROGRAM

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Forest Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Lake Tahoe Restoration Act, Public Law 106-506, as amended by Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2004, Public Law 108-108.

OBJECTIVES:

To make annual payments to the governing bodies of each of the political subdivisions (including public utilities) located in the Lake Tahoe Basin to be used primarily for erosion control and water quality projects. The goal of the program is to provide federal assistance to address urban stormwater runoff pollution, the primary source of pollutants (fine sediment and nutrients) affecting the clarity of Lake Tahoe. This program addresses urban runoff from public roads and right of ways.

To fund a competitive grant award program for research projects high in technical merit and relevant to land management and regulatory agencies working in the Tahoe Basin. The goal of the program is to promote applied, timely, relevant research that addresses natural resource management needs in the basin. Research funded through this program addresses key management questions, includes input from agencies, produces decision-support tools that are useful and accessible, fosters collaboration and communication, builds on previous research, and ultimately addresses the science needs identified in the Lake Tahoe Environmental Improvement Program. The environmental goals of the Lake Tahoe Environmental Improvement Program are defined using thresholds that were established to protect the natural environment and maintain public health and safety within the basin. The threshold categories are: 1) water quality, 2) wildlife, 3) soil conservation, 4) scenic resources, 5) air quality, 6) recreation, 7) vegetation, 8) noise, and 9) fisheries.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements; Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Only after water quality and soil conservation thresholds have been achieved, funds may be used to address other environmental threshold categories. Payments shall be used only to carry out a project or proposed project that is part of the environmental improvement program adopted by the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency in 1998.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible applicants for National Forest System awards includes State Forestry or equivalent agencies, tribes, non-profits, and municipalities in the local governing bodies of political subdivisions in the Lake Tahoe basin.

Eligible applicants for competitive research awards includes State Agricultural Experiment Stations, universities and colleges, State and local governments, U.S. Territories, nonprofit research institutions or organizations, international organizations, individuals, and for-profit organizations.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Beneficiary eligibility for National Forest System awards include governing bodies of each of the political subdivisions (including public utilities) located in the Lake Tahoe Basin.

Beneficiary eligibility for competitive research awards include organizations and scientists involved in basic and applied research activities related to forest and rangeland renewable resources.

Credentials/Documentation:

No credentials or documentation are required. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Submittal of an annual list of priority projects, along with written proposals for each of the identified priority projects. The USFS has chosen to adopt the State guidelines for the format of these proposals, since they meet all the needs for project narratives for federal grant considerations, with one additional requirement. That additional requirement is clear identification of sources and amounts of proposed match funding.

Implementation of construction projects under awarded grants are not allowed until a signed project decision under NEPA has been made, allowing the use of federal grant funds for implementation. Local Office monitors grant awards to assure compliance of this restriction. Planning, design, and monitoring grants do not require an environmental impact assessment. An environmental impact assessment is required for this program.

For competitive research awards, applicants must adhere to the requirements of the current Request for Proposals as stipulated by the Pacific Southwest Research Station. An environmental impact assessment is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110

applies to this program. Project narratives submitted through the pre-application process are reviewed by an interagency technical advisory committee convened by the Federal grants program managers. Projects are then identified for award, along with instructions for any needed revisions to the project narratives. At that time, eligible applicants submit revised narratives along with standard application forms and assurances to the Local Office, as furnished by the Federal agency.

For competitive research awards, a complete proposal must be submitted following guidelines provided by the Pacific Southwest Research Station. The proposal must explain in detail the work to be undertaken, the qualifications of key personnel involved in the work, other resources such as equipment, facilities, and services available or needed, and a proposed budget for each fiscal year during the life of the proposed grant. A short biographical sketch of the principal investigator and a list of his or her principal publications should be included.

Award Procedure:

National Forest System will send an award letter to grantee, with identification of grant requirements, in letter from Local Office.

Research award proposals must compete for priority, showing technical competence and demonstrating the ability to meet regional needs. Research grants cooperative agreements are made only in support of forestry research and monitoring of the Lake Tahoe Basin. Unsolicited proposals can be awarded for innovative or unique approaches to the proposed project.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 90 to 120 days. For competitive research grants or cooperative agreements contact Pacific Southwest Research Station's Tahoe Science Coordinator.

Appeals:

Contact Research Station for guidance regarding competitive research grants or cooperative agreements.

Renewals:

From 60 to 90 days. Extensions can be made for individual grants as long as end dates do not exceed five years post award date.

For competitive research awards requests for continued support will be considered as equal in importance and in competition with pending proposals. Applications submitted for continued support should be identical to a new proposal, except that a resume of progress to date must be added.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory formulas are not applicable to this program. Matching Requirements: Percent: 50.%. For National Forest System awards, notwithstanding section 9(b) of Public Law 106 506, funds hereinafter appropriated under Public Law 106506 shall require matching funds from non-Federal sources on the basis of aggregate contribution to the Environmental Improvement Program, as defined in Public Law 106506, rather than on a project by-project basis, except for those activities provided under section 9(c) of that Act, to which this amendment shall not apply.

For competitive research awards, as authorized by Public Law 106506 section 6(b) and 6(d), the applicant's contribution is negotiated for grants. The proposed budget by fiscal year shows the estimated cost of the complete project from grant funds and value of resources to be contributed by the applicant. Salaries of academic personnel for periods when they receive salary for teaching should not be included for payment from grant funds. The minimum matching contribution for Cooperative Agreements must constitute at least 20-percent of the estimated total cost of the project.

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Grants are awarded for a period not to exceed 5 years. Invoices may be submitted no more frequently than monthly. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Payments made based on authorization and negotiation of provisions with cooperator.

Reports:

Accomplishment reports are required at least annually, but not more than quarterly as detailed in the applicable OMB Circulars and the grant award. A final accomplishment report, financial expenditures report, and final as-built project design drawings are required within 90 days of project completion.

For competitive research awards, in addition to project-specific reports and products, all funded projects are required to submit quarterly project updates in January, April, July, and October and annual accomplishments reports to comply with the requirements of the Tahoe Science Program. Proposals must account for these reports in the project budgets and timelines. A final progress report showing all tasks complete and a final accomplishments report must be submitted along with the final project report and/or products. The final invoice and the final federal financial report (SF-425) must be submitted within 90 days of the Pacific Southwest Research Station agreement end date. No cash reports are required. No progress reports are required. Financial expenditures reporting is required. SF-425. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Grants must address planning, construction, or monitoring of projects identified in the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency environmental improvement program (EIP). Projects submitted from this list are selected based on the annual priority list provided by the eligible local governments, and direction provided in the LTRA: 1) The total amounts appropriated for payments under this subsection shall be allocated by the Secretary of Agriculture based on the relative need for and merits of projects proposed for payment under this section. 2) To the maximum extent practicable, for each fiscal year, the Secretary of Agriculture shall ensure that each political subdivision in the Lake Tahoe basin receives amounts appropriated for payments under this subsection.

The Pacific Southwest Research Station (PSW) will complete an administrative review of all submitted proposals to ensure that proposal specifications as outlined in the Request for Proposals are met. Proposals passing the administrative review will be forwarded to the Tahoe Science Consortium (TSC). The TSC will coordinate technical reviews of the proposals. Proposals passing technical review will be forwarded to Tahoe Basin agency personnel for relevancy reviews. The TSC will coordinate a synthesis of the results from the technical reviews and agency relevancy reviews to create a list of proposals recommended for funding. PSW will review the suite of recommended proposals to finalize funding allocations; proposals recommended for funding are not guaranteed funding due to constraints on funding allocations. Final funding allocations for recommended proposals will be determined by the number of projects recommended for funding and individual project budgets. Some projects may be identified as alternates to receive support should funds become available during the negotiation of awards. PSW reserves the right to negotiate scopes of work, budget amounts, and deliverables with Principal Investigators based upon feedback from the review process and to comply with Forest Service policies. Projects may be required to modify their proposed indirect cost rates and/or demonstrate cost share contributions. Once the recommendations and funding allocations have been finalized, PSW will forward the package of recommended projects to the Tahoe Regional Executive Committee (TREX) and to the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) for final approval.

However, no repayment period will exceed any statutory limitation or the organization's borrowing authority or the useful life of the improvement or facility to be financed. There are currently three interest rates for direct loans: a poverty rate that is 60 percent of market rate when the loan is required to meet health or sanitary standards and the median household income of the service area is below the higher of the poverty line or 80 percent of the statewide nonmetropolitan median household income; an intermediate rate that is 80 of market rate if the median household income of the service area is not more than 100 percent of the nonmetropolitan median household income of the State; and a market rate for those applicants that do not qualify for the poverty rate or the intermediate rate. The law authorizing the program allows a maximum repayment period of 40 years. However, the repayment period cannot exceed the useful life of the facilities financed or any statutory limitation on the applicants borrowing authority. This server farm will be used to manage and coordinate the distance learning activities between the 16 high schools in the project and the individual academic relationships that each school has with ASMSA teachers and mentors. The servers and their functional software will be specifically applied to support the target high schools of the project, located in the Delta region, with a strong focus on sciences, technologies, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). The projected end result is to create a high availability environment for STEM instructors and their classes (live or streamed), for content management, and collaboration providing students from the Delta Region with a strong STEM background and experience.

Gonzales Healthcare Systems Foundation

Rural Development funds will be used to update Gonzales Hospitals teleradiological equipment and related data and imaging information management systems. Critical teleradiological services provided by Gonzales Hospital (serving 18,000 patients per year that require radiological diagnostics) have recently come to a halt because of the obsolete functionality of the existing equipment and inoperable data formats for radiological imaging in its various modalities. With the new system in place radiologists (located many hours away) will be able to resume services in reading the hospitals transmitted images. Clinical specialties such as cardiology, endoscopy, mammography, orthopedic, neurology, vascular, gastroenterology and bronchoscopy rely on the hospitals radiological capacity to transmit visual data and accompanying information. The benefits of the upgrade will have a major impact on the hospitals overall level of care and effectiveness in serving its patients. Fiscal Year 2015: No Current Data Available

10.861 PUBLIC TELEVISION STATION DIGITAL TRANSITION GRANT PROGRAM

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Rural Utilities Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2014; Title III, Rural Development Programs; Rural Utilities Service; Distance Learning, Telemedicine, and Broadband Program; Public Law 113-76.

OBJECTIVES:

As part of the nation's transition to digital television, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) required all television broadcasters to convert their transmitters to broadcast digital signals by June 12, 2009. The goal of this conversion was a television system that makes more efficient use of the radio spectrum. Decreasing the use of spectrum by television channels freed up spectrum to enable the introduction of new wireless telecommunications services such as mobile wireless Internet access. In order to allocate spectrum to new uses, stations had to transition their main transmitter to the new broadcast system and digital no later than June 2009. While stations must broadcast their main transmitter signal in digital, many rural stations have yet to complete a full digital transition of their stations across all equipment. Rural stations often have translators serving small or isolated areas. The 2009 FCC deadline did not apply to translators; in 2011 the FCC adopted a final deadline for analog-to-digital conversion of all translators by September 1, 2015. Because of this, translators have been allowed to continue broadcasting in analog, and stations are still in the process of converting some of their translators to digital. Some rural stations also have not fully converted their production and studio equipment to digital, which has impaired their ability to provide the same quality local programming that they provided in analog. The digital transition has also created some service gaps where households that received an analog signal are now unable to receive a digital signal. For rural households the digital transition has meant in some cases diminished over-the-air public television service. These rural households are the focus of the Agency's Public Television Station Digital Transition Grant Program.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may be used to install digital television facilities through purchase or lease (up to three years of lease costs); and for associated engineering and environmental studies. All broadcast facilities acquired under this program must be capable of delivering both digital television (DTV, sometimes called standard definition) and high definition television (HDTV) at both the interim and final channel power authorizations. Grant funds may be used to fund facilities directly connected to the digital transition of the broadcast signal such as: digital transmitters; digital translators; transmitting antennas; new towers or improvements to existing towers necessary for antenna installation; tower ground infrastructure such as land, buildings, fencing, standby power, and where commercial power is unreliable, power generation and conditioning facilities; studio to transmitter/translator communication links; television program production and management equipment; datacasting equipment; and subject to RUS approval, other facilities directly necessary for the digital transition of the broadcast signal. Grants shall not be used: to fund operations or for facilities not owned by the applicant (except for leased facilities as described above); for salaries, wages, and other public television employee benefits (unless they are for construction or installation of eligible facilities); for construction performed or expenditures made prior to the application deadline; or for facilities funded under other grants. Grants shall not be used: to fund operations or for facilities not owned by the applicant (except for leased facilities as described above); for salaries, wages, and other public television employee benefits; for construction performed or expenditures made prior to the application deadline; or for facilities funded under other grants.
