Generally Speaking:

LT. GEN. STEVEN A. HUMMER COMMANDER, MARINE FORCES RESERVE

Our Marines have been doing what they have done best since 1775: standing shoulder-to-shoulder to fight and win our nation's battles. We don't differentiate; all Marines, whether Reserve or active duty, are disciplined, focused and lethal. We are a Total Force.

Marine Forces Reserve is the force of choice for augmentation to the active component, reinforcement for Service priorities, and sustainment as a relevant Force now and for the future. Aligned with the middle weight force of America's Expeditionary Force in Readiness, Marine Forces Reserve provides options to active component leaders and combatant commanders from being ready for immediate use in support of disaster relief to providing strategic depth through sustained augmentation for major contingency operations.

As part of the Total Force, the Marine Corps Reserve is integrated in all areas of our Marine Corps as never before. Long gone are the days of the so-called "weekend warrior" mentality of the Cold War era. Today's Marine Corps Reserve is a nimble, fully engaged part of the Total Force team that is necessary for modern combat. In fact, our active-duty Marines and senior leadership at all levels fully appreciate the fact they can't do what they do without a fully engaged operational Reserve Force.

In his testimony provided for the record before the House Armed Services Committee on March 1, 2011, Commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. James F. Amos stated:

"The transition in utilization of the Marine Corps Reserve from a strategic to operational Reserve, as affirmed by our force structure review, expands our ability to perform as America's Expeditionary Force in Readiness. Sharing the culture of deployment and expeditionary mindset that has dominated Marine Corps culture, ethos and thinking since our beginning more than two centuries ago, the Marine Corps Reserve is optimally organized, equipped, and trained to perform as an operational Reserve."

“The transition in utilization of the Marine Corps Reserve from a strategic to operational Reserve, as affirmed by our force structure review, expands our ability to perform as America’s Expeditionary Force in Readiness.”

- Gen. John F. Amos, Commandant of the Marine Corps

This fully integrated, operational Reserve Force didn’t happen overnight. It evolved in the harrowing weeks and months following the horrific attacks on American soil on Sept. 11, 2001. We quickly realized this was a new war, and it required a new model of engagement. Since then, Marine Forces Reserve has been redefined by more than 75,000 Marines who have deployed alongside the active component in support of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom. In fact, every Reserve unit was activated in support of these operations. More than 900 Marines and Sailors are currently deployed in Afghanistan and hundreds of others deploy each year to participate in multinational exercises and scheduled deployments that are critical to our national military strategy.

We maintain success using the Force Generation Model, which drives a continued and sustainable 1:5 deployment-to-dwell ratio for our Reservists. The Force Generation Model is one of the most important tools we have for coherently planning the operational use of the Marine Corps Reserve. The Model, which was implemented in October 2006, continues to provide long-term and essential predictability of future activations and deployments for our Reservists. The Model provides our Reservists, their families and their employers the ability to plan for upcoming operational requirements in their lives five or more years out.

We are working hard to ensure complete support from employers. The Reservist-employer relationship must be two-way in order for both parties to succeed, and we’re doing our part by working closer with the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve. Established in 1972, the ESGR promotes cooperation and understanding between Reservists and their civilian employers and assists in solving potential conflicts arising from an employee’s military commitment. It also recognizes outstanding support by employers who go above and beyond to support their Reservists through award programs that highlight policies and programs that demonstrate support for the Reserve Force and positively recognizes employers who go well beyond what is spelled out in the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act.

The Commandant’s planning guidance points to realigning the Marine Corps into an expeditionary, middleweight force. Marine Forces Reserve’s participation in security cooperation has sharpened our Marines’ mindset to operate in that capacity. During missions like Black Sea Rotational Force or Cooperation Afloat Readiness and Training, our Marines are conducting military-to-military training while accomplishing mission-essential tasks that serve as key enablers for me to provide the Commandant ready, relevant and responsive Reservists to compose his middleweight force.

As we look to the future, we will continue to prepare and provide units and individual Marines as a sustainable and ready operational Reserve Force in order to augment and reinforce active forces for employment across the full spectrum of crisis and global engagement. We’ll be better positioned and continually poised to provide ready, relevant, and responsive forces to support the Marine Corps’ role as America’s Expeditionary Force in Readiness.

Semper Fidelis,

Lt. Gen. Steven A. Hummer,
Commander, Marine Forces Reserve

Commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. James F. Amos and Lt. Gen. Steven A. Hummer, the commander of Marine Forces Reserve, speak after Hummer's assumption of command ceremony August 6, 2011. "As a Total Force, we believe servicing the Reserve provides an incredible environment to develop personally and professionally for those Marines who continue to serve with the Marine Corps but still look to the private sector for their future," said Hummer. TRANSITIONING FROM THE ACTIVE COMPONENT TO THE RESERVE COMPONENT

Story by Lance Cpl. Marcin Platek and Lance Cpl. Jessica DeRose

"Many Marines find that after leaving active service they miss the camaraderie of their fellow Marines and the challenges of being a Marine. The Reserve is a great way to stay Marine while pursuing a civilian career or educational goals."

- Maj. Andrew Dausman

"Education and mentoring by commanders, senior enlisted and career planners will preclude the Individual Ready Reserve from being the default choice," said Maj. Andrew Dausman, a Reserve Active Status List appointments officer, Reserve Continuation and Transition Branch, Reserve Affairs Division.

"Frequently, Marines are not educated on the Reserve portion of their eight-year contract", he said. "There are some misconceptions about the obligations of a Marine in the Individual Ready Reserve. We encourage Marines to keep their options open by investigating opportunities to serve in the Selected Reserve."

NEW ORLEANS – There has been a gap in educating and mentoring the transitioning Marines on Reserve opportunities, said Ferguson. As a result, most Marines who leave active duty shift to the Individual Ready Reserve and overlook the Selected Reserve even when they have years remaining on their military obligation.

Choosing the Selected Reserve or Individual Ready Reserve?

According to Reserve Continuation and Transition Branch, a transitional phase starts approximately a year prior to a Marine's end of active service date, allowing them to transition to the Reserve component. That final year of active duty should be the best time for a Marine to learn about the Reserve component and make the decision to become part of the Selected Reserve or the Individual Ready Reserve, said Ferguson.

Per Marine Corps Order 1001R.1K (Marine Corps Reserve Administrative Management Manual), the United States Marine Corps Reserve is divided into three components: Ready Reserve, Standby Reserve and Retired Reserve.

The Ready Reserve is a pool of mobilization-ready troops working in the Marine Corps on different levels. The Standby Reserve includes enlisted Marines who are unable to meet the participation requirements of the Ready Reserve and are bound by contractual obligation or officers who have not resigned their Reserve commissions. The Retired Reserve consists of Marines who have been approved to retire after completing 20 years of active duty or a satisfactory amount of Reserve duty.

The Ready Reserve is broken down into the Selected Reserve and the Individual Ready Reserve. The only requirements of Marines who choose to become part of the Individual Ready Reserve include informing any personal information changes to Marine Individual Reserve Support Organization here and attending an annual one-day assembly.

What is the Individual Mobilization Augmentee Program?

The Selected Reserve consists of three components: the Individual Mobilization Augmentee program, the Active Reserve program and the Selected Marine Corps Reserve.

Marines in the Individual Mobilization Augmentee program are individual Selected Reservists who after receiving specialized military occupational specialty training are pre-assigned to an active component organization billet. These billets must be filled in order to meet the requirements of the organization's training evolutions and operational obligations.

This program allows Marines to participate globally with some units being located in Hawaii, Korea, Germany and Africa, said Staff Sgt. Victor M. Alvarado, a prior-service recruiter at the Marine Corps Support Facility here. Individual Mobilization Augmentee positions can also be filled by Individual Ready Reserve Marines who contact a local prior-service recruiter.

The Active Reserve program allows a Marine Reservist to serve on a full-time basis to support the organization, administration, recruiting, retention, instruction and training requirements.

"The Active Reserve is a great option for Marines desiring an active duty career," said Dausman. "If a Marine isn't sure about the Active Reserve, joining a Selected Marine Corps Reserve unit is a great way to keep their options open and stay competitive for the Active Reserve program."

Selected Marine Corps Reserve Marines drill a minimum of one weekend a month and perform two weeks of annual training. Selected Marine Corps Reserve units include the 4th Marine Division, 4th Marine Logistics Group, 4th Marine Aircraft Wing, force-level units of Marine Forces Reserve and their underlying sites throughout the nation.

According to Ferguson, on average, Selected Marine Corps Reserve units are filled at capacities of 95 percent sergeants, 75 percent staff sergeants, 33 percent lieutenants and 54 percent captains. Only 10 percent of Marines exiting active duty chooses to affiliate with a Reserve unit. Approximately 3,040 sergeants, 166 first lieutenants and 336 captains left active duty in fiscal year 2010 who had additional years of military service obligation.

By default, these talented Marines were attached to the Individual Ready Reserve, said Ferguson. But very few affiliate with the Selected Marine Corps Reserve unit where their leadership, experience and esprit de corps is needed to keep Reserve units vibrant and ready to augment and reinforce during a time of crisis.

"This talent pool contains exactly who we need in our Selected Marine Corps Reserve units," said Ferguson. "We need good Marines with active-duty experience. Noncommissioned officers, staff noncommissioned officers and company grade officers have a lot of great opportunities waiting for them in the Selected Reserve."

What about Retirement?

Reserve service can provide a lot of opportunities for everyone however, said Alvarado. Being in the Selected Reserve contributes toward a Marine's required 20 satisfactory years for a Reserve component retirement. To obtain a satisfactory year, a Marine must receive 50 retirement points annually. Each point equals to a four-hour drill period but can also be obtained in different ways, such as completing professional military education courses or supporting funeral honor details.

Besides a potential Reserve component retirement, other benefits are also available.

Marine Corps Administrative Message 623/11 reveals an additional available incentive for corporals who join a Selected Marine Corps Reserve unit and obligate themselves for 12 months to fill a valid need. This will add 60 points to their composite score, which determines their promotion. A $10,000 to $15,000 bonus is also available for enlisted Marines choosing to fill validated billets with the Active Reserve program or a Selective Marine Corps Reserve unit, according to Marine Corps Administrative Messages 565/11 and 573/11 respectively.

Lateral Moves

Marines who are military occupational specialty mismatches or want to perform a lateral move to a new military occupational specialty can utilize the Prior-Service Military Occupational Specialty Retraining Program (Marine Corps Administrative Message 568/11). These Marines can attend a schoolhouse to obtain a new primary military occupational specialty in order to fill a validated vacant billet corresponding with their grade.

Other opportunities exist to train in the Reserve, said Alvarado. Marines can attend additional military occupational specialty-related schools or special skills training to obtain billets as a Marine Corps Martial Arts Program instructor, primary marksmanship instructor, and Marine Corps Water Safety/Survival instructor.

With many training opportunities for Reservists, finding time to take advantage of them can seem challenging.

Being in Reserve part time and having a career outside the Corps can seem daunting at first, said Dausman, but a strong support system is available.

“I talk to a lot of Marines that are concerned about their ability to balance a civilian career with a Reserve career,” he said. “Reserve units and Reserve leaders are well acquainted with the challenges associated with Reserve service and are more than willing to assist Marines in managing the balance with their civilian careers.”

“As a total force, we believe servicing the Reserve provides an incredible environment to develop personally and professionally for those Marines who continue to serve with the Marine Corps but still look to the private sector for their future,” said Commander of Marine Forces Reserve, Lt. Gen. Steven A. Hummer.

The Reserve environment is starting to look more attractive as an option for Marines who might be facing their expiration of active service date.

“Many Marines have prepared themselves for the decision to get out of active duty and they are very content in participating in the Reserve by taking advantage of some of the benefits that are out there,” said Alvarado.

Selected Reserve Marines can also reap the benefits of the Montgomery GI Bill-Selected Reserve. This program pays for 36 months of educational benefits until they leave the Selected Reserve. To qualify, Marines must make a six-year commitment to serve in the Selected Reserve. However, Marines transitioning from active component who received the active-duty Montgomery GI Bill remain eligible for that program and can still convert to the Post 9/11 GI Bill.

Active Reserve Marines are also eligible for the same benefits as their active component counterparts, to include life insurance, basic allowance for housing, family separation allowance, cost of living allowance and per diem.

Additionally, Marines can consider enrolling with Tricare Reserve Select.

The premium-based health plan provides coverage to Selective Reserve members and dependents for a low monthly premium.

“It is easy for enlisted Marines to keep their options open,” said Dausman. “Many Marines find that after leaving active service they miss the camaraderie of their fellow Marines and the challenges of being a Marine. The Reserve is a great way to stay Marine while pursuing a civilian career and/or educational goals.”

Reserve Commission

By obtaining a Reserve commission prior to leaving active duty, officers can also keep the doors open to opportunities in the Reserve branch, said Dausman. Seeking commission after leaving active duty could turn out to be a potentially lengthy and uncertain process. The transition is a total force responsibility, said Ferguson. In the end, retaining the significant investment Marine Corps has made in each separating Marine benefits the entire Marine Corps by encouraging them to stay Marine and applying their valuable skills, experience and leadership.

BENEFITS

TRICARE RESERVE SELECT

Source: DOD.

PLAN OVERVIEW

TRICARE Reserve Select (TRS) is a premium-based health plan available worldwide to Selected Reserve members of the Ready Reserve (and their families) who are not eligible for or enrolled in the Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) program (as defined in Chapter 89 of Title 5 U.S.C) or currently covered under FEHB, either under their own eligibility or through a family member.

You may visit any TRICARE-authorized provider, network or non-network. Care at military treatment facilities is on a space-available basis only. You do not need a referral for any type of care but some services may require prior authorization. The type of provider you see determines how much you'll pay out-of-pocket. If you're visiting a network provider, you'll pay less out of pocket and the provider will file claims for you.

The plan provides comprehensive health care coverage when you're not activated and covered by active duty TRICARE benefits. And, because you can see any provider, you don't have to change providers if you already have one.

PURCHASING TRICARE RESERVE SELECT

1. Log into the Defense Manpower Data Center Reserve Component Purchased TRICARE Application
 - a. You need a Department of Defense (DoD) Common Access Card (CAC), DFAS (MyPay) Account or DoD Self-Service Logon (DS Logon).
2. Complete the Reserve Component Health Coverage Request Form (DD Form 2896-1)
3. Mail or fax the form along with the first month's premium payment to your regional contractor by the deadline specified on the form.

MONTHLY PREMIUMS

TRS premium rates are established annually on a calendar year basis. You are required to pay the monthly premiums if you decide to enroll in TRS.

Type of Coverage	2011 Monthly Premiums	2012 Monthly Premiums
Member-only	$53.16 per months	$54.35 per month
Member-and-family	$197.76 per month	$192.89 per month

OUT-OF-POCKET COSTS

After you've met an annual deductible, you're responsible to pay a cost share (or percentage).

Type of Provider	Outpatient Cost Share	Inpatient Cost Share
Network	15% of the negotiated rate	$17.05 per day ($25 minimum charge)
Non-Network	20% of the TRICARE allowed	$17.05 per day ($25 minimum charge)

IS TRICARE RESERVE SELECT RIGHT FOR YOU?

TRICARE Reserve Select is a great option for you and your family if you are:

- A member of the Selected Reserves of the Ready Reserve
- Not on active duty orders or covered by the Transitional Assistance Management Program
- Not eligible for or enrolled in the FEHB

RESERVE BENEFITS

HEALTH CARE

Reserve Marines health care benefits change when they are ordered to active duty for more than 30 days. Selected Reserve members can buy Tricare coverage while drilling, if they meet the requirements for the Tricare Reserve Select program. Their families are also eligible for benefits in most cases.

www.tricare.mil

DENTAL

Selected Reserve members and their families are eligible for the Tricare Dental Program. Contact 1-800-866-8499 or visit:

www.tricare dental program.com

EDUCATION

All service members have access to several education benefits such as tuition assistance, the GI Bill and other programs. To see what benefits you might be eligible for, contact the MARFORRES education office at 1-800-647-8301.

BASIC ALLOWANCE FOR HOUSING

BAH is military housing or tax-free cash allowance provided to service members. The amount received varies by rank, location and number of dependents. Reservists are eligible for BAH based on length of active-duty service in one location, the type of duty and whether the member lives in military housing.

BASIC ALLOWANCE FOR SUBSISTENCE

BAS is a tax-free allowance provided for meals. Reservists qualify for BAS during periods of active duty. Their payments are prorated for the actual number of days served.

FAMILY SEPARATION ALLOWANCE

Reservists deployed for more than 30 days qualify for Family Separation Allowance at the rate of $250 per month. Payments are tax-free and prorated for any partial months deployed.

COST OF LIVING ALLOWANCE

COLA is paid to personnel assigned to high-cost locations. Reservists ordered to active duty may qualify for COLA, depending on where they live. For a list of eligible locations and allowance rates visit:

www.defensetravel.dod.mil/site/conus.cfm

PER DIEM

Per diem is a daily tax-free cash allowance provided for meals, incidentals and lodging expenses while service members are on temporary duty away from their home stations or on government business.

SPECIAL PAY

Special pays are provided for performing special duties such as diving duty, flight duty, foreign language proficiency, sea duty and hazardous duty. Pay is prorated for Reservists based on the number of days served on active duty.

INCOME REPLACEMENT

Involuntarily mobilized Reserve members who experience a monthly income differential of more than $50 receive this pay.

TRAVEL

The government pays for official travel. Unused seats aboard a military aircraft are made available to service members on a space-available basis. Find out more about Space-A travel at www.amc.af.mil/amctravel/index.asp

DEATH BENEFITS

Survivors of service members who die on active duty may qualify to receive a $100,000 death gratuity, regardless of whether the death occurred while performing duty. The Department of Defense also reimburses families for the money spent to transport dead service members to their final destination. The death benefits generally are tax-free.

THE FOLLOWING BENEFITS CAN BE FOUND ON MILITARY INSTALLATIONS COMMISSARIES

Commissaries are military supermarkets with products sold tax-free and at reduced prices. Reservists and their families have unlimited shopping privileges in commissaries. To locate a commissary near you, visit:

www.commissaries.com/store_locator.cfm

EXCHANGES

Exchanges are military department stores that sell brand name goods as well as their own labels and products. Items are sold tax free.

RECREATION CENTERS

Military bases offer indoor sports and classes.

LODGING

Lodging may also be reserved on a space-available basis at official travel lodging facilities.

The word "RESOURCES" is written in a large, orange, serif font. Below the text, there are several orange lines that form a decorative frame. A horizontal line extends from the left side of the text to the right edge of the page. From the right end of this line, a vertical line goes down to the bottom edge of the page. From the bottom end of this vertical line, a horizontal line goes left to the left edge of the page. From the left end of this horizontal line, a vertical line goes up to the top edge of the page, meeting the horizontal line above the text. This creates a large rectangular frame around the text.

WOUNDED WARRIOR REGIMENT

UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS

SUPPORT TO WOUNDED/ILL/INJURED RESERVE PERSONNEL

Medical Hold Program is for active duty service members and Reservists on active duty for more than 30 days and who must be retained beyond their Expiration of Active Service or Expiration of Current Contract for medical treatment. Per established guidelines, to be placed on medical hold Reservists must be in a limited duty status and must CONSENT in writing to stay on MedHold beyond their original EAS/ECC. After two periods of limited duty, Marines on medical hold orders will be referred to the Medical Evaluation Board. Reservists on MedHold receive their full pay and benefits.

Line of Duty Benefits are for Reservists injured during drill weekend, annual training or on active duty for 30 days or less. Reservists on active duty for more than 30 days who demobilize but need care for service-incurred ailments and Reservists who are directed to demobilize by the Reserve Medical Entitlements Determination senior medical officer are also eligible for LOD benefits. For Marines in receipt of LOD benefits, a Medical Evaluation Board will be initiated if condition is not or WILL NOT be resolved within 90 days.

All wounded, ill or injured Reservists on LOD receive medical benefits, however if the injury prevents the Reservist from returning to their civilian job, they may qualify for incapacitation pay. There are two types:

- Non-Drilling 204(g) - Members in an inpatient status, Sick in Quarters status or a convalescent leave status following surgery can receive their full pay and entitlements minus any earned income (i.e. income protection plan, vacation pay, or sick leave).

- Drilling 204(h) - While recovering, if they are still unable to work, they may be reimbursed for lost wages, not to exceed the military pay for which they qualify. In this situation, they must have had a civilian job when the illness, injury or disease occurred and they must provide proof of the lost income.

The Marine Corps Wounded Warrior Regiment was established to provide non-medical care to the total Marine force: Active Duty, Reserve, Retired and Veteran Marines.

Whether drilling, on annual training or serving on orders, WWR is here to support Reserve Marines who are wounded, become ill or are injured. Because of the unique needs of Reserve Marines, the WWR has the Reserve Medical Entitlements Determination Section to specifically assist wounded, ill or injured Reservists.

Reserve Medical Entitlements Determination Section

The WWR's RMED Section oversees all cases of Reservists who require medical care beyond the duty period for service-incurred ailments. Those who require extension on active duty are placed into the Medical Hold Program. Those who do not require extension on active duty, or who desire to demobilize to return to their civilian life, have their medical needs addressed through the WWR's Line of Duty Benefits Program.

Reserve Medical Entitlements Determination Procedures

When a Reserve Marine is wounded, becomes ill or is injured while in a duty status, the WWR steps in to support them. The Reservists must report the illness, injury or disease AS SOON AS it occurs. The Reserve unit then submits the appropriate request via Marine Corps Medical Entitlements Data System regardless of the member's intent to use other benefits. Once in MCMEDS, the Military Medical Support Office authorizes treatment and settles claims for medical care related to the specific illness, injury or disease.

When seeking care, the Reservist should use one of the following: Military Treatment Facility VA Hospital, or civilian health care provider participating in TRICARE. MTFs require a LOD authorization letter to allow the member to receive treatment. Program benefits are only authorized for medical conditions reported via MCMEDS.

Regardless if a Reservist is on MedHold or LOD, they must provide monthly physical status reports from their Physician via the MCMEDS system, which includes: (1) Detailed recent treatment; (2) Planned interventions for the upcoming month; and (3) Prognosis of the injury/illness/disease.

Yellow Ribbon Reintegration Program

For Those Who Serve and Those Who Support

What is the Yellow Ribbon Reintegration Program?

The mission of the Department of Defense Yellow Ribbon Reintegration Program is to promote the well-being of National Guard and Reserve Service members and their families by connecting them with resources throughout the deployment cycle. Through Yellow Ribbon events held across the country service members and those who support them have access to programs, services, resources and referrals to minimize stress and maximize resiliency during all phases of deployment.

What kind of information is provided at Yellow Ribbon events?

Events are offered at key stages in the deployment cycle: Pre-Deployment, Deployment (for families and designated representatives), Demobilization, and Post-Deployment (at 30, 60, and 90 days after deployment). Yellow Ribbon events offer information on benefits such as health care, education and training, and financial and legal counseling.

Yellow Ribbon works with a network of key organizations, including Military OneSource, Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, Small Business Administration and the Departments of Labor and Veterans Affairs. This collaboration provides informative and interactive seminars and resources relevant to members of the National Guard and Reserve community.

Is Yellow Ribbon specifically intended for National Guard and Reserve Service members?

Yes. Yellow Ribbon was signed into law in the National Defense Authorization Act of 2008 to address the unique needs and challenges of National Guard and Reserve Service members through all phases of deployments.

Where can I learn more about Yellow Ribbon?

Upcoming events and other information can be found online at www.YellowRibbon.mil. You can also e-mail YRRP@osd.mil or call 866-504-7092.

YOUR RIGHTS UNDER USERRA THE UNIFORMED SERVICES EMPLOYMENT AND REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS ACT

USERRA protects the job rights of individuals who voluntarily or involuntarily leave employment positions to undertake military service or certain types of service in the National Disaster Medical System. USERRA also prohibits employers from discriminating against past and present members of the uniformed services, and applicants to the uniformed services.

REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

You have the right to be reemployed in your civilian job if you leave that job to perform service in the uniformed service and:

- ☆ you ensure that your employer receives advance written or verbal notice of your service;
- ☆ you have five years or less of cumulative service in the uniformed services while with that particular employer;
- ☆ you return to work or apply for reemployment in a timely manner after conclusion of service; and
- ☆ you have not been separated from service with a disqualifying discharge or under other than honorable conditions.

If you are eligible to be reemployed, you must be restored to the job and benefits you would have attained if you had not been absent due to military service or, in some cases, a comparable job.

RIGHT TO BE FREE FROM DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION

If you:

- ☆ are a past or present member of the uniformed service;
- ☆ have applied for membership in the uniformed service; or
- ☆ are obligated to serve in the uniformed service;

then an employer may not deny you:

- ☆ initial employment;
- ☆ reemployment;
- ☆ retention in employment;
- ☆ promotion; or
- ☆ any benefit of employment

because of this status.

In addition, an employer may not retaliate against anyone assisting in the enforcement of USERRA rights, including testifying or making a statement in connection with a proceeding under USERRA, even if that person has no service connection.

HEALTH INSURANCE PROTECTION

- ☆ If you leave your job to perform military service, you have the right to elect to continue your existing employer-based health plan coverage for you and your dependents for up to 24 months while in the military.
- ☆ Even if you don't elect to continue coverage during your military service, you have the right to be reinstated in your employer's health plan when you are reemployed, generally without any waiting periods or exclusions (e.g., pre-existing condition exclusions) except for service-connected illnesses or injuries.

ENFORCEMENT

- ☆ The U.S. Department of Labor, Veterans Employment and Training Service (VETS) is authorized to investigate and resolve complaints of USERRA violations.
- ☆ For assistance in filing a complaint, or for any other information on USERRA, contact VETS at 1-866-4-USA-DOL or visit its website at <http://www.dol.gov/vets>. An interactive online USERRA Advisor can be viewed at <http://www.dol.gov/elaws/userra.htm>.
- ☆ If you file a complaint with VETS and VETS is unable to resolve it, you may request that your case be referred to the Department of Justice or the Office of Special Counsel, as applicable, for representation.
- ☆ You may also bypass the VETS process and bring a civil action against an employer for violations of USERRA.

The rights listed here may vary depending on the circumstances. The text of this notice was prepared by VETS, and may be viewed on the internet at this address: <http://www.dol.gov/vets/programs/userra/poster.htm>. Federal law requires employers to notify employees of their rights under USERRA, and employers may meet this requirement by displaying the text of this notice where they customarily place notices for employees.

COMBAT OPERATIONAL STRESS CONTROL

WHAT IS COSC?

The Combat Operational Stress Control program assists commanders in maintaining their warfighting capabilities by preventing, identifying and managing combat and operational stress in their Marines, Sailors and families as early as possible. While stress strengthens Marines, too much stress has a negative impact that negatively affects the health and well being of the Marine and their family, the readiness of the unit and the future strength of the Corps.

WHAT CAN IT OFFER?

One of the major components of COSC is the Deployment Cycle Trainings. During Deployment/Pre-Redeployment and Post-Deployment training provide information specific to what is needed to prepare for the challenges in the next stage of deployment. Different content is offered to Marines, leaders and families. These trainings are coordinated by the Family Readiness Officer and given at Yellow Ribbon Re-integration Program or other events. Often chaplains, medical officers or operational stress control and readiness team members give the trainings to a Marine Corps Family Team Building member to provide the family-focused training to the families. The trainings can be accessed online at www.usmc-mccs.org/cosc or www.manpower.usmc.mil/cosc.

→ The Stress Continuum provides a common language to identify where one's stress level is in order to know what to do and which resources to utilize to bring a Marine/Sailor back to the "Green - Good to go" status. The sooner that happens, the less negative impact the stress will have.

OPERATIONAL STRESS CONTROL AND READINESS

WHAT IS OSCAR?

Operational Stress Control and Readiness is a training course developed by Marines as another way to take care of Marines. OSCAR teams, designed to promote resiliency and make sure that individuals who need help get it, began getting training at Marine Forces Reserve at the end of 2010 and now more than 1,400 Marines and Sailors have received the training. Active duty units began training earlier and more than 4,000 have been trained. Implementation of OSCAR supports one of the Commandant's four top priorities, "To keep faith with our Marines our Sailors and our Families." In reference to the impact of combat and operational stress injuries, Amos said, "We never leave a Marine behind, and we have no intention of doing so now."

HOW DOES IT WORK?

The OSCAR course is interactive training in which team members learn to identify, support and advise Marines on combat and operational stress issues to prevent stress from becoming a more serious issue requiring medical intervention. Marines are the first line of defense in helping another Marine return to the green. Working alongside each other and knowing each other, OSCAR team members and other Marines are in the best position to recognize when someone is acting differently. A Marine helping another Marine can make a difference.

MISSION

The goal is for stress reactions to be addressed and resolved early at the team member level. If a Marine's concerns are more than the OSCAR team member can resolve, OSCAR Extenders, who are corpsmen, chaplains and religious program specialists, can provide more formal counseling and medical services. OSCAR mental health professionals, psych techs, psychologists and psychiatrists, provide specialized prevention services and formal mental health care if that is needed. If a Marine is treated early and within the unit, the return rate to full duty is more than 90 percent.

Psychological Health Outreach Program

MISSION

To ensure that Marine Forces Reserve service members have full access to appropriate psychological health care services, to increase resilience and to facilitate recovery, which is essential to maintaining a ready military force.

PHOP ACTIVITIES

- Behavioral healthcare screenings
- Determine any psychological health issues that may require services or intervention.
- Provide outreach telephone calls to all identified Reserve Marines returning from deployment within the past six months.
- Assist referred Reserve Marines with the Line of Duty determination process.
- Maintain 24/7 phone/email on-call service to respond to inquiries and referrals.

GOALS OF THE PSYCHOLOGICAL HEALTH OUTREACH PROGRAM

- To maintain psychological health, enhance resilience and facilitate the recovery of Marine Forces Reserve service members and their families that is essential to maintaining a ready and fully capable force.
- To facilitate a “culture of support for psychological health” where Reservists and leaders understand that psychological health is essential to overall health and performance.
- To perform early and non-stigmatizing behavioral health care screenings and referrals to the appropriate psychological health care.
- To ensure Marine Forces Reserve service members and their families are psychologically prepared to carry out their missions.
- To ensure sufficient and appropriate resources are allocated to sustain prevention education, early behavioral health care screenings and referral to appropriate systems of care.
- To assist and empower Marine Forces Reserve leaders in advocating, referring, monitoring, and caring for Marine Forces Reserve service members.
