Dear Mr [REDACTED] b6, b7c

I have received your inspection with noted I.C.E. Deficiencies. I would like to point out that we are inspected by numerous state and county agencies yearly and the issues you raise have not come up. It is also our belief that under a U.S. Supreme Court decision (Logue v. United States, 412 US 521 (1973)) federal inmates contracted out to be housed in our jails fall under state and local rules. The issues you have brought up have not been items of grievance or litigation at this facility. We do appreciate the time and suggestions your agency has made. The following is our response.

1. Discipline sanctions are not in detainee handbook.

Response: We will be contacting our Administrative Support Division and suggesting they create a policy change that requires that information to be included in the inmate rules and information brochure.

2. Knives not secured to a workstation.

Response: We feel our policy of having the inmate sign the knife out and wear a vest is an adequate way to keep track of the knife. (Tethered knives could be removed from the chain and hidden. With our system we have an identified inmate to watch and go to in the event of any issues)

3. Detainees not allowed to have religious items in their immediate possession.

Response: We consider allowing inmates to have personal religious items in their possession (excluding bibles) to be a safety issue. Any items not given to all are subject to be items of envy that inmates may attack and hurt others in order to gain possession of said object.

Sincerely [REDACTED] b6, b7c Sheriff (County of San Bernardino)

SUBJECT: San Bernardino, CA Central Detention Center Plan of Action.

On September 10, 2007, I received Captain [REDACTED] b6, b7c response from the San Bernardino Central Detention Center (SBDC), regarding their Plan of Action (POA) to correct the deficiencies which were discovered during their jail inspection. The three deficiencies were: non-compliance with components within the Detainee Handbook, Food Service, and Religious Practices standards. The POA described the action taken to correct the detainee handbook deficiency, and the rationale to keep their Food Service and Religious Practices standards in place. Captain [REDACTED] b6, b7c underlying argument in keeping those standards in place is a US Supreme court decision which read, in part, that federal inmates contracted out to be housed in local jails fall under state and local regulations.

Per a telephonic conversation I had with Staff Officer [REDACTED] b6, b7c from the Detention Standards Compliance Unit (DSCU), on August 20, 2007; he advised me to compose a memorandum to accompany the POA which can be faxed to DSCU. The purpose of this memorandum is to provide guidance to the DSCU regarding the particular jail which is submitting a POA. In this case, SBDC is an under 72 hour facility which is used by the Los Angeles Field Office for overnight purposes. The DSCU requested SBDC to complete a POA for deficient components regarding the three standards. SBDC took steps to comply with the Detainee Handbook standard, but did not take action on the Food Service and Religious Practices standards due to aforementioned reasons.

The applicability of these standards applies to: Service Processing Centers, Contract Detention Facilities, or State or local facilities used by the Agency through Intergovernmental Service Agreements to hold detainees for more than 72 hours. Since SBDC does not fall within any of these categories, and is merely used to overnight detainees, the actions taken by SBDC in their POA have met the requirements to rectify the situation. Therefore, their POA should be approved and a follow up inspection scheduled within 90 days.
