OVERVIEW

REPORTING REQUEST

This report responds to House Report 111-166, to accompany the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2010, which states in part:

Report on Implementation of Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design Standards

The committee is aware that each of the military services has endorsed sustainable building principles for new construction and commends the services for this effort. The Department of the Army sustainable design and development (SDD) policy, as updated April 27, 2007, required that all new construction projects achieve the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) silver standard for new construction effective with the fiscal year 2008 military construction program. Further, beginning in fiscal year 2008, the Army policy states that “all major renovation and repair projects exceeding $7.5 million (requiring congressional notification) shall incorporate sustainable design features where lifecycle cost effective to achieve a minimum of the Certified level of the LEED® Existing Buildings rating system.” The Naval Facilities Engineering Command bulletin issue number 2008-01 applies LEED silver-level performance metrics beginning in fiscal year 2009 to all new construction projects and major renovations where the work exceeds 50 percent of the building’s plant replacement value. The Department of the Air Force sustainable design and development policy specifies that “Beginning in FY09, 100% of each MAJCOM’s MilCon [(Major Command’s Military Construction)] vertical construction projects, with climate control, shall be designed so that it is capable of achieving LEED Silver certification” beginning in fiscal year 2009. The committee notes that section 433 of the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 (Public Law 110-140) also requires application of sustainable design principles to all new construction and major renovations undertaken by federal agencies including the Department of Defense.

The committee directs the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with each of the military service secretaries, to submit a report to the Senate Committee on Armed Services and the House Committee on Armed Services on whether, as of the end of fiscal year 2009, each military construction project or major renovation as defined by section 2811 of title 10, United States Code, has achieved compliance with the respective service’s policy to apply the LEED silver standards. An exceptions report for each project that has not obtained the status and the reason for not obtaining compliance also should be included. The committee directs this report to be submitted by February 1, 2010.

COMPONENT POLICIES

As noted in the report language, the Department of Defense has pursued sustainable building practices for several years. The Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED®) framework developed by the U.S. Green Building Council has become the Department's de facto standard rating system for sustainable buildings.

The following table summarizes Component sustainable design and construction policies that affected building projects authorized and funded in FY 2009:

Table 1: Component Sustainable Development Policies

Component	New buildings	Existing buildings	Other facilities
Department of the Army	Climate controlled: Minimum of LEED-NC Silver  Family housing: Minimum of SPiRiT Gold and Energy Star®	Renovation over $7.5M: Minimum of LEED-EB Certified	Horizontal construction: sustainable features to the maximum extent possible
Department of the Navy	Minimum of LEED-NC Silver	Renovation of facilities greater than 50% of its Plant Replacement Value: Minimum of LEED-NC Silver
Department of the Air Force	Climate controlled: LEED-NC Silver	MilCon/climate-controlled: LEED-NC Silver	Horizontal construction: Air Force-modified LEED Silver
Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA)	LEED-NC Silver	LEED-EB Silver (to extent feasible)
DoD Education Activity (DoDEA)	Climate controlled: LEED-NC Silver	MilCon/climate-controlled: LEED-NC Silver
Tricare Management Activity (TMA)	LEED-NC Gold (desired); Minimum of LEED-NC Silver
U.S. Special Operations Command (SOCOM)	Climate controlled: Minimum of LEED-NC Silver

LEED-NC: LEED for new construction

LEED-EB: LEED for existing buildings

SPiRiT: Army Sustainable Project Rating Tool

COMPLIANCE WITH COMPONENT POLICIES

The Components listed above undertook 717 military construction and major repair projects authorized and funded in FY 2009. Table 2 below summarizes these projects by sustainable building performance level and status as of the end of fiscal year 2009. The “none” category represents projects for which sustainable performance ratings did not apply (such as pavement projects), or to which Component policy did not apply (such as overseas contingency construction).

Table 2: Status* of Compliance with Component Sustainable Development Policies for FY 2009 Projects (number of projects)

Table 3 represents each of these categories as a percentage of the total number of projects:

Summary of the aggregate Military Department information:

- Sustainable performance ratings did not apply to 98 projects (13.7% of the total).
- 61 military construction projects and 14 major repair projects (75 projects or 10.5% of the total) achieved compliance with Component policy for sustainable buildings. Many of these projects were not yet complete, but nonetheless had satisfied the Component policy in cases where the policy did not require projects to be completed. These projects meet the silver or gold performance levels.
- 484 military construction projects and 58 major repair projects (542 projects or 75.6% of the total) had not yet achieved compliance with Component policy for sustainable buildings as of the end of FY 2009, but are expected to achieve compliance once Components perform evaluations and/or certifications in accordance with their policies upon completion. These projects are planned to meet the silver or gold performance levels.
- Two military construction projects did not achieve compliance with Army’s policy to meet the silver performance level due to either technical or funding constraints as explained below. These projects are expected to meet the lower “certified” performance level once the Army performs necessary evaluations upon the project’s completion.
  - Dining Facility at Camp Roberts, CA: This project consists of a small addition and an alteration that does not include mechanical systems—a source of many LEED points. The limited project scope precludes earning points necessary to earn LEED Silver.
  - Aviation Classification and Repair Depot at Springfield, MO: This project was estimated and budgeted prior to the adoption of LEED Silver as the performance standard. Army National Guard elected not to seek additional funding (estimated at $15 million) to meet LEED Silver.

PROJECT INFORMATION

The tables on the following pages list individual military construction and major repair projects by Component. For each project, the table provides the sustainable performance rating system, performance level, whether it achieved compliance with Component policy as of October 2009, and the reason for non-achievement, if applicable.
