II. Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Impact Assessments

As part of its statutory requirement, the Office for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties (CRCL), conducts in-depth examinations of the civil rights and civil liberties implications and effects of selected Department of Homeland Security (DHS) programs, and provides suggestions for improvements to those programs. The following CRCL Impact Assessment was underway or completed during the first quarter of FY 2013:

DHS Support to the National Network of Fusion Centers: Section 511 of the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act requires CRCL to conduct a follow-up to the Fusion Center Impact Assessment released in December 2008. CRCL, in collaboration with the DHS Office of Intelligence and Analysis, State and Local Program Office and other DHS partners, completed and released this assessment in the first quarter of 2013.

III. Investigations Data and Analysis

CRCL investigates complaints concerning:

- abuses of civil rights, civil liberties, and racial, ethnic, or religious profiling, 6 U.S.C. § 345(a)(1);
- compliance with constitutional, statutory, regulatory, policy, and other requirements relating to the civil rights or civil liberties of individuals affected by the programs and activities of the Department, 6 U.S.C. § 345(a)(4);
- possible abuses of civil rights or civil liberties, unless the Inspector General of the Department determines that any such complaint or information should be investigated by the Inspector General, 6 U.S.C. § 345(a)(6); and
- department, agency, or element actions, policies, procedures, guidelines, and related laws and their implementation to ensure that such department, agency, or element is adequately considering civil liberties in its actions, 42 U.S.C. § 2000ee-1(a)(2).

Under these authorities, CRCL reviews and assesses civil rights and human rights complaints. These matters arise in a variety of contexts, which we designate in the tables that follow as “situations,” and raise one or more issues. The tables set forth here identify investigations by the primary situation and issue involved.

Our process for addressing complaints has been explained in detail in CRCL’s previous quarterly reports. CRCL initiates investigations based on complaints received from the general public and non-governmental organizations by U.S. mail, email, and fax, and the CRCL telephone hotline, as well as through the DHS Traveler Redress Inquiry Program (TRIP). Incidents that might merit investigation are also forwarded to CRCL from other offices at DHS and other government agencies. Table 1, below, indicates investigations opened during the first and second quarters by the primary civil rights issue raised, the situation in which the investigation arose, and the DHS Component that was the primary subject of the investigation.

Pursuant to 6 U.S.C. § 345(a)(6) and internal DHS policies, CRCL begins the investigation process by referring all matters involving the conduct of DHS employees to the DHS Office of Inspector General (OIG).¹ OIG then determines whether or not it will investigate the case; in this report, such cases are designated OIG retained. If OIG declines to investigate the complaint, it is referred back to CRCL for appropriate action, at which point CRCL determines whether the case should be retained for CRCL’s own investigation (CRCL retained) or referred to the relevant

¹ Complaints involving the activities of state or local law enforcement agencies, acting under state law, that come to CRCL as a result of ICE’s Secure Communities program are not initially referred to OIG, because they do not involve the conduct of ICE employees. CRCL notifies the Department of Justice, which has jurisdiction to investigate violations of civil rights by state and local officers of all investigations undertaken. The complaint protocol in Secure Communities cases is posted on the ICE Secure Communities website, http://www.ice.gov/secure_communities.

DHS Component(s) (CRCL referred). Retained cases may be subject to a full investigation or short-form resolution.² A small number of cases are subject to a joint investigation, combining CRCL's investigative resources with those of the relevant Component(s). Investigations at any other stage are noted as in process.³ Table 2 describes all investigations, including those initiated prior to FY 2013, in process as of the last day of the quarter, under these categories. In cases where the OIG retains a complaint, once the OIG investigation is complete, the matter is returned to CRCL for consideration. We may then close the matter or retain it for our own investigation. As Table 3 indicates, there were a total of four such matters for the first and second quarters.

If a case is referred to a Component for investigation, the Component issues a Report of Investigation to CRCL at the completion of the investigation, which is reviewed by CRCL; if retained, CRCL conducts its own investigation and drafts an investigative report. When the investigation, whether conducted by CRCL or the Component involved, is complete, CRCL closes the matter and provides senior leadership of the relevant Component(s) with its conclusions and any recommendations for improving policies, practices, or training. At that time, we also notify the complainant of actions being taken as a result of our investigation. Table 4 provides investigations closed during the first and second quarters, by issue, situation, and Component principally involved.

Beginning in FY 2010, CRCL asked DHS Components to formally concur or non-concur with recommendations, and to provide concrete action plans for implementing accepted recommendations. A single investigation may result in multiple recommendations and a Component may accept some, all, or none of the recommendations. Table 5 indicates the current status of recommendations resulting from investigations closed during the first and second quarters.

² CRCL has implemented "short-form" complaint processing procedures to facilitate swift action on urgent complaints and expeditious resolution of allegations that are narrowly focused and require limited investigation. The short-form process makes it easier to open and close complaints, allowing speedier resolution. Cases that subsequently require additional work are converted to standard investigations.

³ The in process categories include multiple cases where Reports of Investigation (ROIs) have been received from Components and are currently under review within CRCL. For CRCL's purposes, these investigations remain in process until we have completed our review and response to the ROIs.
