

Facility Data Fact Sheet

Property and facility data requirements are similar. Important data that specifically apply to facilities include the following:

- Loss-of-function impacts. Economic impacts of loss of service are generally the largest category of benefits
- Replacement values
- Displacement costs (costs borne until occupants are able to resume occupation).
- Demolition threshold (percentage of the pre-event replacement value of the building).
- Physical damage estimate. The estimated average cost of damage based on historical data.
- Functional downtime estimates. This is the amount of time that the system is expected to be down as determined by system days of loss of service. If service is not lost due to redundancy in the system, then there is no functional downtime.
- Loss of public services. The estimated dollar value per day for the loss of public services critical to immediate disaster response and recovery.
