

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR*Fish and Wildlife Service*50 CFR Part 17*Endangered and Threatened Wildlife and Plants; Review of Vertebrate Wildlife

AGENCY: Fish and Wildlife Service, Interior.

ACTION: Notice of review.

SUMMARY: The Service issues a revised notice identifying vertebrate animal taxa, native to the U.S., being considered for possible addition to the List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife. The Service emphasizes that this notice is not a proposal for such addition, and that the involved taxa do not receive substantive or procedural protection pursuant to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. The Service does, however, encourage Federal agencies and other appropriate parties to take these taxa into account in environmental planning. Also identified in this notice are vertebrate taxa that were previously under consideration for listing, but that are currently presumed either to be extinct, to not be valid species or subspecies, or to be more abundant and widespread than previously thought and/or not subject to substantial threats.

DATE: Comments may be submitted until further notice.

ADDRESSES: Interested persons or organizations are requested to submit comments to: Director (OES), 500 Brophy Building, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, DC 20240. Comments and materials relating to this notice are available for public inspection, by appointment, during normal business hours at the Service's Office of Endangered Species, Suite 500, 1000 North Glebe Road, Arlington, Virginia.

Mr. John L. Spinks, Jr., Chief, Office of Endangered Species, 500 Brophy Building, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, DC, 20240 (703/235-2771 or FTS 235-2771), or the appropriate Regional Office.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) requires determination of whether species of wildlife and plants are endangered or threatened based on the best available scientific and commercial data. For many years, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been gathering data on taxa of vertebrates (fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds, and mammals), native to the United States, that have appeared, at least at times, to warrant consideration for addition to the List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife. The accompanying table identifies many of these taxa (including, by definition, biological subspecies) and assigns each to one of the three categories described below. Unless the subject of a published proposed or final rule determining endangered or threatened status, none of these taxa receive substantive or procedural protection pursuant to the Act.

Category 1 comprises taxa for which the Service currently has substantial information on hand to support the biological appropriateness of proposing to list as endangered or threatened. Proposals have not yet been issued because they have been precluded at present by other listing activity. Development and publication of proposed rules on these taxa are anticipated, however, and the Service encourages Federal agencies and other appropriate parties to give consideration to such taxa in environmental planning.

Category 2 comprises taxa for which information now in possession of the Service indicates that proposing to list as endangered or threatened is possibly appropriate, but for which conclusive data on biological vulnerability and threat are not currently available to support proposed rules. The Service emphasizes that these taxa are not being proposed for listing by this notice, and that there are no specific plans for such proposals, unless additional information becomes available. Further biological research and field study may be needed to ascertain the status of taxa in this category, and it is likely that many will be found to not warrant listing. The Service hopes that this notice will encourage investigation of the status and vulnerability of these taxa, and consideration of them in the course of environmental planning.

Category 3 comprises taxa that were once being considered for listing as endangered or threatened, but are not currently receiving such consideration. These taxa are included in one of the following three subcategories.

Subcategory 3A comprises taxa for which the Service has persuasive evidence of extinction. If rediscovered, however, such taxa might warrant high priority for addition to the List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife.

Subcategory 3B comprises taxa that were once thought to be biological species or subspecies, but that, on the basis of recent systematic work, usually as represented in published revisions and monographs, are not now considered distinctive and do not meet the Act's legal definition of species. Future systematic investigation could lead to reevaluation of the listing qualifications of such taxa.

Subcategory 3C comprises taxa that are now considered to be more abundant or widespread, and/or substantially less subject to identifiable threats, than previously thought. Should new information suggest that any such taxon is experiencing a numerical or distributional decline, or is under a substantial threat, it may be considered for transfer to category 1 or 2.

Many of the taxa in the accompanying table were also covered by the Service's previous Review of Vertebrate Wildlife, published in the Federal Register of December 30, 1982 (47 FR 58454-58460), as corrected on May 17, 1983 (48 FR 22173-22174). Certain of the taxa covered by the previous notice, however, have already had emergency, proposed, and/or final determinations of endangered or threatened status, and therefore these taxa are not included in this notice of review (for the complete U.S. Lists of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife and Plants, contact any of the offices in the above "ADDRESSES" section).

The Service hereby solicits data concerning the taxa in the accompanying table. Especially sought is information:

(1) Indicating that a taxon would more properly be assigned to a category other than the one in which it appears;

(2) Nominating a taxon not included in the table;

(3) Recommending an area as critical habitat for a taxon, or indicating why critical habitat may not be prudent or determinable for a taxon;

(4) Documenting threats to any listed taxon;

(5) Pointing out taxonomic changes for any taxon;

(6) Suggesting new or more appropriate names; or

(7) Noting errors, such as in the indicated distributions.

The Service intends to consider all data received in response to this notice, to make appropriate amendments to the accompanying table, and to indicate intentions with regard to future listing actions. Substantive changes in status may be announced by periodic notices in the Federal Register.

The accompanying table is arranged in a general systematic order, beginning with fishes and ending with mammals. For each taxon, the assigned category appears on the left, followed by the common name, the scientific name, the family name, and the known range. Range is indicated by abbreviations of State names (also AS=American Samoa, CM=Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, GU=Guam, PR=Puerto Rico, TT=Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and VI=Virgin Islands), and by the full names of foreign regions and Navassa Island, a U.S. possession in the Caribbean. The species may no longer occur in some of the areas shown. Some taxa have been included that have not yet been formally described in the scientific literature. Such taxa are indicated by the abbreviation "sp." after the generic name, or "ssp." after the generic and specific names. In the section on birds, the abbreviation "N" indicates the nesting range of the species, and the abbreviation "V" indicates additional areas in which the species is a regular visitor.

The primary authors of this notice are C. Kenneth Dodd, Jr. (herpetologist), George E. Drewry (programmer), Ronald M. Nowak (mammalogist), Jay M. Sheppard (ornithologist), and James D. Williams (ichthyologist), Office of Endangered Species, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, DC 20240 (703/235-1975 or FTS 235-1975).
