This document was prepared by Fox Valley Technical College under Cooperative Agreement 2005–MC–CX–K116 from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice.

Points of view or opinions expressed in this document are those of the authors and do not necessarily represent the official positions or policies of OJJDP or the U.S. Department of Justice.

The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention is a component of the Office of Justice Programs, which also includes the Bureau of Justice Assistance, the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the National Institute of Justice, and the Office for Victims of Crime.

Foreword

Unfortunately, children are reported missing, abducted, or exploited daily. Our response to these offenses must be swift, efficient, and effective. The coordination and collaboration of federal activities relating to missing and exploited children is an important tool in fighting these crimes. The Federal Agency Task Force for Missing and Exploited Children's mission is to coordinate federal resources and services to meet the needs of missing, abducted, and exploited children and their families. As such, it plays an important role in responding to those who have been offended.

In the 11 years since the Task Force came into existence, we have made great strides in our quest to make our country safer for our children. The passage into law of the Prosecutorial Remedies and Other Tools to End the Exploitation of Children Today (PROTECT) Act in 2003 gave us a powerful instrument in eradicating crime. The law strengthened law enforcement's ability to investigate, prosecute, and punish violent crimes committed against children. In addition, the law formally established the role of the federal government in the AMBER (America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response) Alert System. This system is operational in all 50 states, Canada, Puerto Rico, and internationally.

We have many technological innovations, such as secondary distribution and wireless alerts that send the public a rapid message and diminish the chances of a crime succeeding. We have implemented programs to address and fight these heinous crimes. The Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) program is a national network of 46 task forces that include personnel from federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies. ICAC strongly supports Project Safe Childhood (PSC), a new federal initiative aimed at combating the proliferation of technology-facilitated sexual exploitation crimes against children. PSC and ICAC illustrate the importance of partnerships in our drive to keep our children safe.

However, the problems of missing, abducted, and exploited children are complex and multifaceted. Communities, along with the federal government, must be galvanized into action. Crimes against children severely strain the resources of the investigating agency. The publication of this fifth edition of the Directory is one valuable resource in our action plan. I encourage you to familiarize yourself with the contents of the Directory and use it in your work with other agencies and communities in protecting our children. Coordination and collaboration are critical in keeping our children safe.

Thousands of the resource directories have been distributed and I applaud the Task Force for its efforts in keeping the information current and accessible. I invite you to use this Directory as we work together to protect our children.

Introduction

On May 25, 1995, the 12th annual Missing Children's Day, Former Attorney General Janet Reno announced the creation of the Federal Agency Task Force for Missing and Exploited Children. The mission of the Task Force is to coordinate federal resources and services to effectively address the needs of missing, abducted, and exploited children and their families. The Task Force does the following:

- Serves as an advocate for missing and exploited children and their families.
- Initiates positive change to enhance services and resources for missing and exploited children, their families, and the agencies and organizations that serve them.
- Promotes communication and cooperation among agencies and organizations at the federal level.
- Serves as the focal point for coordination of services and resources.

The Task Force includes representatives from 16 federal agencies and 2 private agencies that work directly with cases involving missing, abducted, and exploited children and their families. As used in this Directory, the term "missing child" refers to any youth under the age of 18 whose whereabouts are unknown to his or her legal guardian. This includes children who have been abducted or kidnapped by a family or a nonfamily member, a child who has run away from home, a child who is a throwaway, or a child who is otherwise missing. It also includes both national and international abductions. The term "child exploitation" refers to any child under the age of 18 who has been exploited or victimized for profit or personal advantage. This includes children who are victims of pornography, prostitution, sexual tourism, trafficking, and sexual abuse.

Missing and/or exploited child cases are extremely challenging and frustrating to the practitioners handling these cases. The devastating impact occurs simultaneously on so many fronts—child, family, community, law enforcement, public and private agencies—each one looking for immediate answers. Timing is crucial; a rapid response increases the chance of successful case resolution.

The federal Directory is one effective resource that can be used by agencies and organizations involved in the safe recovery of missing children. The Directory contains current information and links to other agencies that can help in finding a solution. It describes the role of each Task Force agency in the location and recovery of missing and exploited children, the types of services and support that are available, the procedures for accessing these services, and instructions for obtaining additional information. To make the information more accessible, the next section, Where To Get Help, categorizes the types of assistance offered by each agency. In addition, telephone quick reference cards can be removed and kept where most needed; addresses and phone numbers are correct as of the date of publication. Agency information is listed in alphabetical order.

The Directory is intended to provide added information and linkages to increase and promote agency coordination. It is one more tool in aiding practitioners in dealing with the many challenges of returning children safely.

The resource Directory is available from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention's Juvenile Justice Clearinghouse:

Family Advocacy Program

Agency Description

The Family Advocacy Program of the Department of Defense (DoD) is designed to prevent and treat child and spouse abuse in accordance with DoD Directive 6400.1, Family Advocacy Program. DoD maintains a central registry of reports of alleged child and domestic abuse. Allegations of child sexual abuse that occur in out-of-home care settings, such as in childcare centers, family daycare homes, schools, or recreation programs, must also be reported within 72 hours to the service Family Advocacy Program for inclusion in the central registry and to the DoD Principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel & Readiness) or to his or her designee. Criminal prosecution is the primary goal of intervention in cases involving multiple victim child sexual abuse in an out-of-home care setting.

Services

If more than one child is a victim of sexual abuse in an out-of-home care setting, the service may convene a multidisciplinary technical assistance team for the installation at the request of the installation commander, or the Principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel & Readiness) may deploy a joint service multidisciplinary team of specially trained personnel from the four services to provide technical assistance. Technical assistance may include law enforcement investigations, forensic medical examinations, forensic mental health examinations, and victim assistance to the child and family.

The primary recipients at the installation are the Family Advocacy Program Manager, the investigators of the installation law enforcement agency, and the physicians and mental health professionals at the military treatment facility or those who provide services under contract.

For cases involving missing and exploited children, appendix 1 lists the investigative liaisons for law enforcement agencies.

Availability of Services

Services are available to (1) members of the armed services who are on active duty and their family members who are eligible for treatment in a military treatment facility, and (2) members of a reserve or National Guard component who are on active duty and their family members who are eligible for treatment in a military treatment facility.

At the request of the installation commander, a multidisciplinary team is convened by the Family Advocacy Program Manager for a particular service. A joint service team may be deployed by the Office of the Principal Deputy Under Secretary (Personnel & Readiness) at the request of the installation commander. These services are directed to cases in which multiple children are victims of sexual abuse in an out-of-home care setting.

Family Advocacy Law Enforcement Training Program

The United States Army Military Police School provides family advocacy-related law enforcement training and consultation services in domestic violence intervention, child abuse investigations, sexual assault investigations, and critical incident peer support.

Legal Assistance Offices

Agency Description

The Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps legal assistance offices serve as the point of contact for inquiries concerning legal issues in the abduction of a child by a parent or other family member either on active duty with that armed service or accompanying such a service member. They are also the point of contact for the U.S. State Department in cases of international abduction of the children of service members.

Services

Responsibility for ensuring a service member's compliance with child custody orders is placed with that service member's commander. Legal assistance offices provide advice to active-duty and retired service members and their family members on personal civil legal matters, but do not provide representation in civilian court. The legal assistance offices listed below can provide assistance in locating a service member and will coordinate with the local legal office where that service member is stationed. That local legal office provides legal assistance to the service member's commander. The legal assistance offices listed below are also the points of contact for the State Department in cases of international abduction of the children of service members.

Availability of Services

Legal advice is available to active-duty and retired service members and their family members who are parents of children who have been abducted. In all other cases, services are limited to assistance in locating the service member and coordinating with the local legal office or commander. Representation in civilian court is not provided. Services may be obtained directly by a parent at the service's legal assistance agency or through the legal office where the service member is stationed. The parent seeking assistance must have a valid court order for custody or visitation.

Office of Safe and Drug-Free Schools

Agency Description

The Office of Safe and Drug-Free Schools (OSDFS) is the federal government's primary vehicle for school-based programs related to emergency management and crisis response, drug and violence prevention, and development of good character and citizenship.

The Office administers, coordinates, and recommends policy for improving quality and excellence of programs and activities that are designed to strengthen programs that prevent violence in and around schools; prevent the illegal use of alcohol, tobacco, and drugs; involve parents; and are coordinated with related federal, state, and community efforts.

Services

The Safe and Drug-Free Schools Program consists of five major parts: (1) Health, Mental Health, Environmental Health, and Physical Education, (2) State Grants for Drug and Violence Prevention Programs, (3) National Programs, (4) Character and Civic Education, and (5) Policy and Cross-Cutting Issues.

The Health, Mental Health, Environmental Health, and Physical Education group administers programs that promote the health and well-being of students and families. The Health Programs provide financial assistance to expand and improve physical education and counseling programs and to increase student access to quality mental health care.

The State Grants Program is a formula grant program that provides funds to state and local education agencies and to state governors for a broad range of school- and community-based education and prevention activities.

The National Programs group carries out a variety of discretionary initiatives that respond to emerging needs and national priorities. Examples of activities funded under National Programs include direct grants to school districts and communities with serious drug and violence problems, program evaluation, grants designed to assist recovery efforts in school districts that have experienced significant violent incidents, and information development and dissemination. Grant competitions are conducted to address national priorities

The Character and Civic Education group administers programs in character and civics, including providing financial assistance for character and citizenship education activities in elementary and secondary schools and institutions of higher education, and reporting on issues and programs, disseminating information, and providing technical assistance to state agencies and state and local correctional institutions.

The Policy and Cross-Cutting Issues group administers discretionary grant initiatives authorized by Title IV, SDFSCA National Programs, including programs that emphasize coordinated, collaborative responses to developing and maintaining safe, disciplined, and drug-free learning environments and improving and strengthening school emergency management plans. Activities may be carried out by local educational agencies in partnership with local law enforcement officials, local mental health service providers, firefighters and emergency medical technicians, and other first responders. Specifically, the group has lead responsibility for the Emergency Response and Crisis Management Plans Discretionary Grant Program (www.ed.gov/programs/dvpemergencyresponse) and the Safe Schools/Healthy Students Discretionary Grants Program (www.ed.gov/programs/dvpsafeschools).

Information about available discretionary grants can be found at: www.ed.gov/fund/grant/find/edlite-forecast.html.

Availability of Services

Information about programs for elementary and secondary students that are provided by local schools and school districts can be obtained by contacting local Safe and Drug-Free Schools coordinators. State coordinators for Safe and Drug-Free Schools can provide information about statewide programs operated by state education agencies and governors' offices.

Children's Bureau Office on Child Abuse and Neglect

Agency Description

The Children's Bureau, which is headed by an associate commissioner, advises the commissioner of the Administration on Children, Youth and Families (ACYF) on matters related to child welfare, including child abuse and neglect, child protective services, family preservation and support, adoption, foster care, and independent living. It recommends legislative and budgetary proposals; operational planning, system objectives, and initiatives; and project and issue areas for evaluation, research, and demonstration activities. It represents ACYF in initiating and implementing projects affecting children and families and provides leadership and coordination for the programs, activities, and subordinate components of the Children's Bureau, including the Office on Child Abuse and Neglect (OCAN).

In December 1998, an agency reorganization consolidated the functions of the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect with those of the Children's Bureau. This action was taken pursuant to the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA), 1996, as amended. At that time, the Office on Child Abuse and Neglect was created within the Children's Bureau to provide national leadership and maintain a national focus on this critical issue. All aspects of CAPTA, as amended in the Keeping Children and Families Safe Act of 2003, are being implemented by OCAN or are integrated into the functions of other divisions across the Children's Bureau.

OCAN provides leadership and direction on the issues of child abuse and neglect, including child sexual abuse and exploitation, and on the prevention of abuse and neglect under CAPTA. OCAN is the focal point for interagency collaborative efforts, national conferences, and special initiatives related to child abuse and neglect and for coordination of activities related to the prevention of abuse and neglect and the protection of children at risk.

OCAN supports activities to enhance community-based, prevention-focused programs and activities designed to strengthen and support families and prevent child abuse and neglect through Title II of CAPTA, the Community-Based Grants for the Prevention of Child Abuse or Neglect Program (CBCAP). Formula grants are provided to states to develop and implement or to expand and enhance a comprehensive statewide system of community-based child abuse prevention services and activities. To receive these funds, the state chief executive officer must designate an agency to implement the program. Federal, state, and private funds are blended and made available to community agencies for child abuse and neglect prevention activities and family resource programs.

The Children's Justice Act (CJA) provides funds to support the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the territories to improve the systems that handle child abuse and neglect cases, particularly child sexual abuse cases, and to improve the processes of investigation and prosecution. Funds are also available to support the analysis of child fatalities involving suspected abuse.

Services

The Child Welfare Information Gateway, formerly called the National Clearinghouse on Child Abuse and Neglect Information, offers up-to-date information and publications on all aspects of child abuse and neglect, and child welfare, including prevention, protection, investigation, family support and preservation, foster care, adoption, and independent living programs.

Availability of Services

The Gateway answers queries from public and private agency personnel, professionals working in related fields, and the general public.

Publications

The Gateway provides copies of documents and annotated bibliographies on specific topics. Call 800-FYI-3366 or e-mail your request to info@childwelfare.gov. For more details on publications and services, consult the Web site: www.childwelfare.gov.

Some of the holdings include the State Statute Series, 2003, which is now available on the Web site through a searchable database. It offers the following topic areas:

- Reporting laws.
- Central registries and reporting records.
- Permanency planning.
- Domestic violence.

The types of publications in the State Statute Series include the Statutes at a Glance Series, which provides summaries of laws in the following topic areas:

- Definitions of child abuse and neglect.
- Mandatory reporters of child abuse and neglect.
- Reporting procedures.
- Reporting penalties.
- Central registries: establishment and maintenance.
- Central registry/reporting records expungement.
- Disclosure of confidential records.
- Reasonable efforts to reunify families.
- Grounds for termination of parental rights.
- Decisionmaking for the permanent placement of children.

Also available online are a number of Ready Reference publications that provide the full text of laws in the following selected topic areas:

- Clergy as mandated reporters.
- Reporter immunity.
- Cross-reporting across systems.
- Drug-exposed infants.
- Religious exemptions.
- Concurrent planning
- Best interests of the child.

See appendix 2 for additional reporting and prevention resources.

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Family and Youth Services Bureau

Agency Description

The Family and Youth Services Bureau (FYSB) is an agency within the Administration on Children, Youth and Families, Administration for Children and Families. FYSB provides national leadership on youth-related issues and helps individuals and organizations to provide comprehensive services for youth in at-risk situations and for their families. The primary goals of FYSB programs are to provide positive alternatives for youth, ensure their safety, and maximize their potential to take advantage of available opportunities. FYSB programs and services support locally based youth services.

Services

Six major FYSB programs relate to missing and exploited children: the Basic Center Program (BCP), the Transitional Living Program (TLP) for Homeless Youth, the Street Outreach Program (SOP) for Runaway and Homeless Youth, the National Runaway Switchboard, the National Clearinghouse on Families and Youth (NCFY), and the Runaway and Homeless Youth Training and Technical Assistance System.

Basic Center Program

FYSB's Basic Center Program supports agencies that provide crisis intervention services to runaway and homeless youth who are outside the traditional juvenile justice and law enforcement systems. The goal of the program is to reunite youth with their families, whenever possible, or to find another suitable placement when reunification is not an option. Discretionary grants are awarded to Basic Center projects each year on a competitive basis.

There are 342 Basic Center projects across the country. More than three-quarters of these projects are operated by community-based organizations. Some of the projects are freestanding, single-purpose emergency shelters, while others are multipurpose youth service agencies. All Basic Center projects are required to provide a set of essential core services to runaway and homeless youth, including the following:

- Short- and long-term emergency shelter.
- Individual, group, and family counseling for youth and families.
- Aftercare services to stabilize and strengthen families and to ensure that additional assistance is available, if necessary.
- Recreation programs for youth.

- Linkages to other local providers for services not available through the Basic Center Program.
- Outreach efforts to increase awareness of available services.
- Prevention services for youth at risk of running away.

Transitional Living Program for Homeless Youth

Through TLP, FYSB supports projects that provide longer term residential services to homeless youth ages 16–21. Generally, services are provided for up to 18 months, and an additional 180 days is allowed for youth younger than 18 years old. These services are designed to help youth who are homeless make a successful transition to self-sufficient living.

TLP grantees are required to provide youth with stable, safe, living accommodations and services that help them develop the skills necessary to move to independence. Living accommodations may be host family homes, group homes, maternity group homes, or “supervised apartments.” (Supervised apartments are either agency-owned apartment buildings or “scattered site” apartments, which are single-occupancy apartments rented directly by young people with support from the agency.) TLPs also provide pregnant or parenting youth with parenting skills, including child development, family budgeting, health and nutrition, and other skills to promote their long-term economic independence in order to ensure the well-being of their children. There are 194 Transitional Living Programs nationally that provide the following:

- Safe, supportive living accommodations in group homes, host family homes, or supervised apartments.
- Mental and physical health care.
- Education in basic living skills.
- Development of an individual transitional plan.
- Educational advancement assistance.
- Employment preparation and job placement.

Street Outreach Program for Runaway and Homeless Youth

The primary focus of the Street Outreach Program for Runaway and Homeless Youth is the establishment of ongoing relationships between the staff of local youth service providers and street youth, with the goal of helping young people leave the streets. There are 144 Street Outreach Programs nationally.

Local grantee programs provide a range of services directly to or through collaboration with other agencies, specifically those working to protect and treat young people who have been, or who are at risk of being, subjected to sexual abuse or exploitation. Those services include the following:

- Street-based education and counseling.
- Emergency shelter.
- Survival aid.
- Individual assessment.
- Treatment and counseling.
- Prevention and education activities.
- Information and referral.

National Runaway Switchboard

The National Runaway Switchboard is a confidential, 24-hour, toll-free hotline (800-621-4000) that provides assistance to runaway and homeless youth and helps them to communicate with their families and service providers. The switchboard provides the following services to at-risk youth and their families:

- Crisis intervention.
- Message relay.
- Conference calling.
- Home Free (in partnership with Greyhound Lines, Inc.).
- Prevention/education/outreach.
- Information and referral.

The switchboard uses a computerized national resource directory that includes more than 9,000 resources. In addition, the switchboard maintains a management information system for local switchboard staff and conducts an annual conference for local switchboard service providers.

In 2005, the National Runaway Switchboard responded to more than 102,000 calls for youth and families requesting some sort of assistance.

National Clearinghouse on Families and Youth

NCFY is a resource for communities interested in developing effective new strategies to support young people and their families. NCFY serves as a central information source on family and youth issues for youth service professionals, policymakers, and the general public. Services include the following:

- Information sharing. NCFY distributes information about effective program approaches, available resources, and current activities relevant to the family and youth services fields. The agency uses special mailings, maintains literature and FYSB program databases, and operates a professionally staffed information line.
- Issue forums. NCFY facilitates forums that bring together experts in the field to discuss critical issues and emerging trends and to develop strategies for improving services to families and youth.

- Materials development. NCFY produces reports on critical issues, best practices, and promising approaches in the field of family and youth services, and information briefs on FYSB and its programs.
- Networking. NCFY supports FYSB’s efforts to form collaborations with other federal agencies, state and local governments, national organizations, and local communities to address the full range of issues facing young people and their families today.

Runaway and Homeless Youth Training and Technical Assistance System

The Family and Youth Services Bureau’s Regional Training and Technical Assistance (T/TA) Provider system was first established by Congress as “coordinated networks” through the Juvenile Justice Amendments of 1977 (P.L. 95–115) to the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act (RHYA) of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (P.L.93–415). (The system currently is authorized by Part D, Section 342, of the RHYA, as amended by the Runaway, Homeless, and Missing Children Protection Act (P.L.108–96).) Today, FYSB has cooperative agreements with regional organizations in the 10 Administration for Children and Families (ACF) Regions to provide T/TA to FYSB grantees.

The Regional T/TA Providers assist FYSB grantee agencies by helping them develop new approaches for responding to challenges in serving young people, accessing new resources, and establishing linkages with other grantees with similar interests and concerns. Through this system, FYSB tracks regional trends in youth and family issues, identifies and shares best practices, sponsors conferences and workshops, and provides direct T/TA.

The T/TA Providers work closely with the ACF Regional Office Youth Specialists to identify grantee needs, including by reviewing the results of visits to grantee programs conducted under the Runaway and Homeless Youth Program Monitoring System. On the basis of those analyses, T/TA Provider needs assessments, and grantee requests, the T/TA Providers offer several types of services:

- Regional and state-level conferences that address topics of interest to FYSB grantees. Conferences also provide an opportunity for grantees to network within their region and, in some cases, to meet with federal regional representatives to discuss programmatic issues and effective practices and learn firsthand of pending federal initiatives.
- Workshops and trainings that address grantees’ issues of concern. Training events range from 1- to 2-day intensive skill-based training seminars to multiday events with a variety of shorter workshops.
- Onsite and telephone consultations to individual grantee agencies, offered by the T/TA Provider or by grantee staff from the same or another region that has experience and knowledge in the requester’s area of interest.
- Technical assistance that offers grantees capacity assessments and the development of individualized plans for training and technical assistance.

- Newsletters and special quarterly mailings that offer grantees information on issues and strategies in the youth service field, new federal legislation and funding opportunities, innovative program ideas, and other pertinent information.
- Resource materials, available through T/TA Provider resource libraries, including publications, Web site postings, videos, and other materials.

While the T/TA Providers are responsible for the provision of training and technical assistance services within their regions, they also collaborate across regions to carry out special projects of national interest and to ensure consistent quality in FYSB grantee program services across the nation.

Availability of Services

Services provided by FYSB are directed to runaway and homeless youth and their families. To locate a service provider in your community or to secure services, contact the regional center serving your area (see appendix 3). Runaway and Homeless Youth Programs may also be located via the Family and Youth Services Bureau Web site at www.acf.hhs.gov/programs/fysb.

The Runaway Youth Act, Title III, Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (JJDP) Act of 1974 (P.L. 93–415) focused attention on the need to develop a nonpunitive system of social services for vulnerable youth and authorized resources to support shelters for runaway and homeless youth. The 1977 Amendments to the JJDP Act (P.L. 95–115) extended services to “otherwise homeless youth” and authorized support for coordinated networks to provide training and technical assistance to runaway and homeless youth service providers (Basic Center Program). The 1980 JJDP Act Amendments (P.L. 96–509) changed the title to the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act. The program was reauthorized through 1992 by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 (P.L. 100–690) and was subsequently reauthorized through FY 1996 by the 1992 JJDP Act Amendments (P.L. 102–586).

The 1988 Amendments to Title III of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (P.L. 100–690) included the Transitional Living Program, which was subsequently reauthorized through 1996 by the 1992 Amendments to the JJDP Act (P.L. 102–586).

In 2003, the Runaway and Homeless Youth (RHY) Act was reauthorized and is listed under Public Law 108–96. Changes or additions to the RHY Act include the facility to recognize that there is “a state or local law or regulation that requires a higher maximum to comply with licensure requirements for child- and youth-serving facilities.” The term “maternity group homes” was also added and is defined as “a community-based, adult-supervised, traditional living arrangement that provides pregnant or parenting youth and their children with a supportive and supervised living arrangement in which such pregnant or parenting youth are required to learn parenting skills, including child development, family budgeting, health and nutrition, and other skills to promote their long-term economic independence in order to ensure the well-being of their children.”

U.S. Department of Homeland Security

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement

Agency Description

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), the largest investigative arm of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, brings a unified and coordinated focus to the enforcement of federal immigration and custom's laws. ICE brings to bear all of the considerable resources and authorities invested in it to fulfill its primary mission: to detect vulnerabilities and prevent violations that threaten national security. ICE works to protect the United States and its people by deterring, interdicting, and investigating threats arising from the movement of people and goods into and out of the United States and by policing and securing federal government facilities across the nation.

Under the auspices of Operation Predator, ICE aggressively targets transborder importers, distributors, and purveyors of child exploitation materials and U.S. and foreign child sex tourists to prevent the sexual exploitation and abuse of children both in the United States and around the world. The ICE Cyber Crimes Center Child Exploitation Section works closely with international law enforcement agencies, the Department of Justice's Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, the FBI, the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Regional Task Forces, and the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC).

ICE (under legacy U.S. Customs) was one of the first federal law enforcement agencies to partner with NCMEC and to become a point of contact for transborder tips and leads received. Today, ICE works actively on tips regarding transborder child exploitation and international child sex tourism that originate from NCMEC's toll-free hotline and Web site. ICE further develops leads from NCMEC for referral to appropriate domestic and foreign ICE field offices.

Services

Services provided by ICE include the following:

- Investigation, support, and coordination for child exploitation and child tourism violations.
- Functioning as the primary federal repository for images of identified child exploitation victims and child exploitation videos and magazines, and supporting NCMEC in verifying images of identified victims of child exploitation through the National Child Victim Identification System (NCVIS).
- Training for law enforcement officers who are involved in child exploitation investigations.

Availability of Services

Services available through ICE are directed to federal, state, and local law enforcement officials and investigators involved in cases of child pornography and child sex tourism. Services can be accessed by contacting the nearest domestic ICE Office of Investigations (see appendix 4). Members of the public can receive assistance by calling a domestic office or 800–DHS–2ICE (347–2423). For overseas locations, please contact your nearest domestic office or the ICE Cyber Crimes Center.

A training course curriculum is available through the training center in Glynco, GA. All training courses are coordinated through local ICE offices (listed in appendix 4).

U.S. Department of Homeland Security

U.S. Secret Service Forensic Services Division

Agency Description

Under Title XXXI of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, the U.S. Secret Service is mandated to provide forensic and technical assistance to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children and to state and local law enforcement authorities investigating crimes against children. In April 2003, under the PROTECT Act, Section 322, the U.S. Secret Service statutory authority was amended. Title 18, United States Code 3056, was amended as follows: “(f) Under the direction of the Secretary of Homeland Security, officers and agents of the Secret Service are authorized, at the request of any state or local law enforcement agency, or at the request of the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, to provide forensic and investigative assistance in support of any investigation involving missing or exploited children.”

Services

Services provided by the U.S. Secret Service include access to the following:

- Forensic Investigative Response and Support Team (FIRST), which is composed of forensic experts who can respond to requests for assistance in cases involving missing and exploited children.
- Forensic Automation Branch, which specializes in computer-based data used in the identification of fingerprints and handwriting. This Branch includes the Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS), used to search unknown fingerprints in local, state, and federal fingerprint databases; direct connectivity to the FBI’s Integrated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (IAFIS); live scan recording of fingerprints allowing for quick electronic transmission to the appropriate AFIS location for searching; and the Forensic Information System for Handwriting (FISH), a database composed of scanned and digitized images of text writings that allows handwritten or printed material to be searched against previously recorded writing.
- Identification Branch, which provides state-of-the-art forensic analysis of evidence, written reports of scientific findings, and expert testimony in court proceedings. The Branch uses the most current techniques in the development of latent prints to include the use of vacuum metal deposition technology.
- Questioned Document Branch, which provides comparisons of handwriting and embossing machines and analysis of credit cards, typewriter and check writer impressions, indented writings, erasures, eradications, obliterations, and paper striations. To determine the source of unknown documents or suspect writings, expert staff use the International Ink Library and a collection of watermarks to analyze the age of ink and paper.

- Polygraph Branch, which is staffed by highly trained examiners who use the latest technology to detect deception through use of psychophysiological science. Polygraph examiners are available to travel at a moment's notice with instruments that are easily transported.
- Visual Information Branch, which provides expertise in forensic photography, graphic arts, video production, audio/image enhancement, voice identification, and computerized 3D models.
- Electronic Crimes Special Agent Program (ECSAP), which is composed of special agents trained in computer forensics. Their expertise includes computer network forensics, online undercover operations, e-mail tracing, and cellular tracking and mapping.
- Operation Safe Kids, which provides parents with a document containing their child's fingerprints, biographical data, and black and white photograph. Upon request, this service is provided free of charge at special events.

Availability of Services

Services are directed to local, state, and federal law enforcement investigators who deal with cases involving missing children, runaways, parental abductions, international abductions, sexual tourism, online enticement, and child pornography. Services are available at the discretion of the investigating agency. For specific requests, please contact your local U.S. Secret Service office (see appendix 5 for addresses and phone numbers).

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development

Office of Inspector General Office of Investigation

Agency Description

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Inspector General is one of the original 12 Inspectors General authorized under the Inspector General Act of 1978. HUD's Office of Inspector General's (OIG) mission is independent and objective reporting to the Secretary and the Congress for the purpose of bringing about positive change in the integrity, efficiency, and effectiveness of HUD operations (www.hud.gov/offices/oig).

Over the years, OIG has forged a strong alliance with HUD personnel in recommending ways to improve departmental operations and in prosecuting program abuses. OIG strives to make a difference in HUD's performance and accountability. OIG is committed to its statutory mission of detecting and preventing fraud, waste, and abuse and promoting the effectiveness and efficiency of government operations. While organizationally located within the Department, OIG operates independently with separate budgetary authority. This independence allows for clear and objective reporting to the Secretary and the Congress. Some OIG activities are to do the following:

- Promote efficiency and effectiveness in HUD programs and operations.
- Detect and deter fraud and abuse.
- Identify, locate, and/or solve missing children cases identified by the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) to be in HUD housing.

The Offices of Investigation are located in HUD Headquarters, Washington, DC, and in eight regions and numerous field offices (www.hud.gov/offices/oig/locations/index.cfm).

HUD's primary mission is to expand housing opportunities for American families seeking to better their quality of life. HUD seeks to accomplish this through a wide variety of housing and community development grant, subsidy, and loan programs. Within the Public and Assisted Housing Program Administration, HUD provides housing assistance funds under various grant and subsidy programs to public housing agencies and multifamily project owners. These intermediaries, in turn, provide housing assistance to benefit primarily low-income households (www.hud.gov).

Under the Office of Public and Indian Housing (PIH) Programs, HUD provides grants and subsidies to approximately 4,165 public housing agencies (PHA) nationwide. PHAs administer Public Housing and/or Housing Choice Voucher programs. Programs administered by PHAs are designed to enable low-income families, the elderly, and persons with disabilities to obtain and reside in housing that is safe, decent, sanitary, and in good repair (www.hud.gov/offices/pih/index.cfm).

Under the Office of Multifamily Housing Programs, HUD oversees multifamily housing developments with HUD-held or HUD-insured mortgages. HUD owns some multifamily projects acquired through defaulted mortgages. HUD subsidizes rents (Section 8) for low-income households, designed to enable low-income families, the elderly, and persons with disabilities to obtain and reside in housing that is safe, decent, sanitary, and in good repair (www.hud.gov/offices/hsg/hsgmulti.cfm).

The OIG Office of Investigation conducts criminal investigations in PIH programs, working with HUD; PHAs; federal, state and local prosecutors; the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); U.S. Marshalls Service (USMS); U.S. Postal Inspection Service (USPIS); U.S. Secret Service (USSS); Social Security Administration Office of Inspector General (SSA OIG); Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General (HHS OIG); and other federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies nationwide. OIG Special Agents work cases in various areas of low income HUD families and children. OIG has access to HUD databases of public housing and Section 8 residents and multifamily residents (www.hud.gov/offices/oig).

Services

Services provided by OIG include the following:

- Assisting NCMEC and all law enforcement agencies on missing children cases related to HUD-funded rental assistance properties.
- Assisting NCMEC and all law enforcement agencies on identifying and capturing wanted or unregistered sex offenders residing in HUD-funded rental assistance properties.
- Assisting the FBI, USMS, and other federal, state, and local agencies in capturing fugitive felons residing in HUD-funded rental assistance properties.
- Providing NCMEC awareness to HUD personnel, PHAs, HUD multifamily owners and management companies, and HUD professional groups to help prevent and/or solve crimes against children who live in HUD housing.
- Joint investigations of sexual exploitation of children facilitated by a HUD/PHA/HUD-tenant computer.
- Joint investigations of possession, production, and/or distribution of child pornography in HUD housing or HUD facilities.
- Joint investigations of possession, production, distribution, and/or downloading of child pornography facilitated by a HUD/PHA/HUD-tenant computer.
- Joint investigations of National Sex Offender Registry matters related to HUD housing.

OPERATION FIND HUDkids

In 2005, OIG identified the important need to work jointly with NCMEC and law enforcement to identify and locate missing children that were living at the time of their disappearance in HUD's Rental Assistance Housing properties throughout the United States. More than 10 million people live in HUD housing, of which an estimated 3.88 million are children. These children are identifiable in HUD databases managed by PIH and the Office of Multifamily Housing. NCMEC's missing children cases are active and inactive criminal investigations conducted by federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies. Many of these cases are "cold cases" that are unsolved. The HUD/NCMEC computer-matching project is under a memorandum of understanding between NCMEC and OIG. OIG receives the NCMEC data and conducts matching on HUD tenant systems to identify positive hits on missing children living in HUD housing. Some cases are resolved by OIG and closed by NCMEC. OIG Special Agents actively work with law enforcement and NCMEC to help solve missing children cases related to HUD housing. The common NCMEC case types found in HUD housing are runaways and family abductions.

OIG and HUD Headquarters have joined NCMEC's prevention efforts by providing public awareness to HUD management, PHAs, HUD multifamily owners and management companies, HUD professional groups, and law enforcement. The OIG staff has joined the AMBER Wireless Alert system and placed the NCMEC and AMBER Web site links on the OIG Web site and HUD Web sites. CMEC will be able to alert all HUD offices and PHAs by fax and mail when there is a missing child emergency in their area.

OIG investigative authority to assist NCMEC and law enforcement is supported by the IG Act of 1978, Senate Bill 2435, The Missing Child Cold Case Review Act of 2004, and OIG national initiatives on rental assistance fraud and fugitive felons. Criminal investigations are conducted by OIG Special Agents on tenants who are falsifying their true income, falsifying their dependents (adults and children), and falsifying their identities. OIG identifies and arrests fugitives living in HUD housing and receiving HUD benefits illegally. Many of the OIG fraud cases are worked jointly with the FBI, USMS, USSS, USPIA, SSA OIG, and the HHS OIG, whereby the tenants defraud HUD, SSA, and HHS for the low-income benefits. During these investigations, OIG Special Agents have contacts with children living in HUD housing.

Availability of Services

Investigative and computer matching services are directed to NCMEC, HUD, and federal, state, and local law enforcement officials and investigators involved in cases of missing children related to HUD housing programs. Services can be requested by contacting the nearest OIG Office of Investigation (refer to Web site www.hud.gov/offices/oig/locations/index.cfm).

Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section

Agency Description

The Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section (CEOS) is a specialized group of attorneys and computer forensic specialists who investigate and prosecute violations of federal criminal statutes involving the following:

- Possession, manufacture, production, or distribution of child pornography; and sale, purchase, or transportation of women and children interstate or internationally to engage in sexually explicit conduct, including the trafficking of children and child prostitution.
- Travel interstate or internationally to sexually abuse children.
- Abuse of children on federal and Indian lands.
- Nonpayment of certain court-ordered child support payments.
- Transportation and distribution of obscene material in interstate or foreign commerce via the mail, common carrier, cable television lines, telephone lines, or satellite transmission.
- Parental abduction of children internationally.

CEOS attorneys and computer forensic specialists work closely with federal law enforcement agencies and prosecutors, including U.S. Attorneys Offices, U.S. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, and the FBI, in investigations, trials, and appeals related to the above statutes. In addition, CEOS attorneys provide advice on victim-witness issues and develop and refine proposals for prosecution policies, legislation, governmental practices, and federal agency regulations in the areas of child sexual exploitation, child support, international parental kidnapping, and obscenity. CEOS actively conducts training for local, state, federal, and international prosecutors, investigators, judges, and others who work in the field of child exploitation and trafficking of women and children.

CEOS recently created a High-Tech Investigative Unit, with a staff of five computer forensic specialists, to conduct complex online investigations involving commercial child pornographic Web sites, online file sharing of child pornography, and the commercial distribution of obscenity. CEOS's High-Tech Unit computer forensic specialists work hand-in-hand with CEOS attorneys to investigate some of the more complex and technologically challenging crimes on the Internet involving child pornography and obscenity. The High-Tech Unit often lends its expertise to other federal law enforcement agencies and federal prosecutors.

CEOS plays a central role in coordinating nationwide investigations. Increasing use of the Internet allows large numbers of pornographic images of children to be traded quickly and relatively easily across state borders. As a consequence, today's investigations often uncover hundreds and thousands of targets in venues across the United States and abroad. These sweeping investigations present a significant challenge in coordination among federal districts and between federal and state law enforcement.

In conjunction with the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, CEOS is taking a leading role in marshaling federal and state resources to jointly target the difficult problem of child prostitution in U.S. cities. The agencies are using a multidisciplinary model to eradicate the problem.

Services

In addition to prosecuting a full docket of CEOS cases, CEOS attorneys often pair with U.S. Attorneys Offices to work on their litigation. Other services include the following:

- Coordination of national investigations of child pornography and exploitation rings.
- Technical assistance and advice to federal and state prosecutors and agents, through a "duty system."
- Training for prosecutors and investigators on topics such as computer child pornography, case preparation, and child exploitation law.

Availability of Services

Upon request, CEOS provides litigation support, technical assistance, and training to federal investigators and prosecutors who work on obscenity cases and child sexual exploitation cases, including child pornography, trafficking, child prostitution, sexual tourism, and sexual abuse occurring on federal lands.

U.S. Department of Justice

Federal Bureau of Investigation

Agency Description

The FBI's Crimes Against Children (CAC) Program is composed of the Crimes Against Children Unit (CACU), the Innocent Images Unit (IIU), the National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime (NCAVC), and the Office for Victim Assistance (OVA). CACU is located at FBI Headquarters in Washington, DC. IIU is located in Beltsville, MD. NCAVC is located at the FBI Academy in Quantico, VA. OVA is located at FBI Headquarters in Washington, DC. All of these units are staffed by supervisory special agents and support professionals who provide program management and fieldwide investigative oversight over all crimes under the FBI's jurisdiction that involve the victimization of children.

Crimes Against Children Unit

CACU is within the FBI's Criminal Investigative Division (CID) and is responsible for providing investigative oversight and resources to support noncomputer facilitated CAC investigations. These investigations include nonransom child abductions, domestic and international parental kidnappings, child prostitution, physical and/or sexual abuse of children occurring on government reservations, sexual exploitation of children, child sex tourism, and National Sex Offender Registry matters.

The mission of the FBI's CAC Program is to develop a nationwide capacity to provide a rapid and effective investigative response to reported federal crimes involving the victimization of children; reduce the vulnerability of children to acts of sexual exploitation and abuse; reduce the negative impacts of domestic/international parental rights disputes; and strengthen the capabilities of federal, state, and local law enforcement through training programs and investigative assistance.

The FBI exercises jurisdiction and investigative responsibilities pursuant to federal statutes addressing various crimes against children, including child abduction and sexual exploitation. The FBI's response to these types of cases is immediate, as there is no requirement for a 24-hour waiting period for involvement and no crossing of state lines. Federal law defines children under the age of 18 as minors. Children less than 12 years of age are often referred to as "children of tender years."

FBI investigations involving crimes against children generally include violations of federal statutes relating to the following:

- The mysterious disappearance of children.
- Child abduction with no ransom.
- Domestic and international parental kidnapping.
- Sexual exploitation of children.

- Sexual exploitation of children facilitated by an online computer.
- Possession, production, and/or distribution of child pornography.
- Possession, production, distribution, and/or downloading of child pornography facilitated by an online computer.
- Interstate transportation of obscene material.
- Interstate transportation of children for sexual activity (child prostitution).
- Physical and sexual abuse of a child on a government reservation.
- Physical and sexual abuse of a child on an Indian reservation.
- National Sex Offender Registry matters.
- Child sex tourism.
- The RICO (Racketeer-Influenced and Corrupt Organizations) statute, which also may apply in some circumstances.

CAC program strategy is implemented through the following:

- Multidisciplinary, multiagency resource teams that investigate and prosecute all crimes against children that cross legal, geographical, and jurisdictional boundaries.
- Interagency sharing of intelligence information, specialized skills, and services.
- Increased victim-witness assistance services.

Services

Crimes Against Children Coordinators. Each of the FBI's 56 field offices (see appendix 6 for a list of FBI field offices) has at least two special agents designated as CAC coordinators. These coordinators investigate crimes against children by using all available FBI investigative, forensic, tactical, informational, and behavioral science resources and by coordinating their investigations with appropriate federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies and prosecutors. Recognizing that no single agency can provide all the resources necessary to conduct effective CAC investigations, CAC coordinators have established multiagency CAC resource teams consisting of representatives from law enforcement agencies, prosecutors' offices, and the courts; social service, mental health, and medical facilities; schools; advocacy groups and other private organizations; and other groups as needed. CAC resource teams incorporate local, state, tribal, and federal law enforcement agencies; private organizations; psychologists, sociologists, and medical professionals; probation and juvenile authorities; and child advocacy groups. By enhancing interagency sharing of intelligence, CAC resource teams are able to effectively investigate and prosecute incidents that cross legal, geographical, and jurisdictional boundaries. The FBI provides resources and expertise—including evidence recovery, laboratory analysis, surveillance, technical and analytical support, behavioral science support, and countless other services—to complex kidnapping investigations, interstate and international CAC investigations, and other situations requiring rapid multijurisdictional lead coverage.

Child Abduction Rapid Deployment Teams. Research has shown that the majority of children abducted and killed are murdered within several hours of the actual abduction. In an effort to enhance the FBI's response to child abductions, the FBI's CACU, in coordination with the Critical Incident Response Group (CIRG)/Behavioral Analysis Unit-III (BAU III), created regional Child Abduction Rapid Deployment (CARD) Teams. CARD Teams are a proactive endeavor designed to deploy investigators with demonstrated, proven experience in CAC matters, particularly nonfamily child abductions, as a rapid onsite response to provide investigative, technical, and resource assistance to state and local law enforcement during the most critical time following a child abduction. CARD Teams are geographically distributed throughout four regions of the United States (Northeast, Southeast, Central, and West) consistent with the CID Program Management Plan. Each region has 2 teams of 6 supervisory special agents (SSA) and special agents (SA) for a total of 48 CARD Team members. Each team has a designated team leader. CARD Teams also consist of individuals from CACU and BAU III, which provides behaviorally based investigative and operational support to these complex and time-sensitive crimes. Members have been identified as the most experienced FBI SSAs, SAs, and intelligence analysts within the organization that work CAC matters. CARD Team deployments result from notification of a child abduction or life-threatening case reported to the field office, FBI Headquarters, or the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC). Upon deployment, CARD Teams are placed under the supervision of the field office special agent in charge. All CARD Team members must complete extensive training programs which consist of case studies, available resources, and innovative technology that facilitate child abduction investigations.

Initiatives

Innocence Lost National Initiative (IINI). In June of 2003, CACU, together with the Department of Justice—Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section (DOJ—CEOS) and NCMEC, introduced the national initiative entitled Innocence Lost. This initiative was designed to address the domestic trafficking of children for the purposes of prostitution. Fourteen geographic areas were identified as High Intensity Child Prostitution Areas: Atlanta; Los Angeles; Minneapolis; Dallas; Detroit; Tampa; Chicago; San Francisco; San Diego; Miami; New York; Washington, DC; Las Vegas; and St. Louis. Thus far, task forces/working groups have been established in Philadelphia-Harrisburg; Denver; Detroit; Miami; Los Angeles; Las Vegas; Phoenix; Reno; Chicago; Dallas; Jacksonville; Boston; San Juan; San Francisco; Washington, DC; Houston; Newark-Atlantic City; Honolulu; Oklahoma City; and Cleveland-Toledo. A review of current and historical intelligence regarding such criminal enterprises reveals juveniles are victims of trafficking for the purpose of prostitution in major metropolitan areas and smaller communities. Typically, children are transported to lucrative venues including cities hosting major sporting or public events. These criminal enterprise “pimps” are highly mobile and travel established routes throughout the United States. In addition, the criminal enterprises frequently communicate with each other in order to set pricing for services, identify new locations deemed profitable, and discuss locations where law enforcement is active or lax. These criminal enterprises typically engage in multiple criminal activities and have extensive supporting networks. The most effective way to investigate and prosecute these cases is by establishing task forces or working groups actively focused on national investigations. While local agencies can prosecute and identify victims, a national approach is required to disrupt and dismantle highly mobile enterprises. If not effectively disrupted and dismantled, the subjects and victims simply relocate to another area.

FBI investigations involving child victimization are based on violations of federal statutes, including the following:

- Kidnapping (Title 18, U.S. Code, Sections 1201 and 1202).
- International Parental Kidnapping Act (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1024).
- Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution (UFAP) — Parental Kidnapping (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1073).
- Crimes committed in Indian country (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1153).
- Child sexual abuse (Title 18, U.S. Code, Sections 2241, 2242, 2243, and 2244).
- Sexual exploitation of children (Title 18, U.S. Code, Sections 2251, 2251A, 2252, and 2258).
- Interstate transportation of obscene material (Title 18, U.S. Code, Sections 1462, 1465, 1466, and 1470).
- Interstate transportation of children for sexual activity (Title 18, U.S. Code, Sections 2421, 2422, 2423, and 2424).
- Child Support Recovery Act (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 228).
- Sex trafficking of children (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1591).
- RICO statute (Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1961), in some instances.

Innocent Images Unit

IIU is within the FBI's Cyber Division and is responsible for developing policy and providing resources to support investigations involving child sexual exploitation and child pornography facilitated by online computers. Priority Innocent Images investigations include online e-groups, organizations, and for-profit enterprises that benefit financially by exploiting children; individuals who indicate a willingness to travel for the purpose of engaging in sexual activity with a juvenile; and/or producers, distributors, and possessors of child pornography.

The mission of the Innocent Images Unit is to do the following:

- Reduce the vulnerability of children to acts of sexual exploitation and abuse.

- Support FBI field offices in their efforts to identify and rescue witting and unwitting child victims.
- Support field offices in their efforts to investigate and prosecute sexual predators who use the Internet and other online services to sexually exploit children for personal or financial gain.
- Strengthen the capabilities of federal, state, local, and international law enforcement through training programs and investigative assistance.

To proactively combat child sexual exploitation and child pornography facilitated by online computers, Innocent Images undercover operations are being conducted in FBI field offices by task forces that combine the resources of the FBI with other federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies. To obtain evidence of criminal activity, FBI agents and task force officers go online undercover using fictitious screen names and engage in real-time chat or e-mail conversations with subjects.

FBI investigations of specific online locations can be initiated through citizen complaints, a complaint by an Internet service provider, or a referral from law enforcement. Innocent Images investigations typically involve Internet Web sites, chat rooms, and newsgroups; Internet relay chat (IRC) channels; file servers; electronic bulletin board systems; and/or peer-to-peer file transfer programs.

Analysts are assigned full time in the IIU and throughout the FBI to conduct research and analysis to identify individuals suspected of any of the following: possession, manufacture, and/or distribution of child pornography; online enticement of children for sexual acts; child sexual tourism; and/or other sexual exploitation of children crimes. These analysts use various Internet tools and administrative subpoenas in their efforts to investigate the true identities of a potential subject's e-mail address and/or screen name. Once a suspect has been identified, the analysts compile an investigative packet that includes the applicable intelligence, subpoena results, FBI database, and other search results; evidence associated with the suspect; and other information, which is forwarded to the appropriate FBI field office. Analysts are also assigned to NCMEC to specifically review and analyze information received by NCMEC's CyberTipline.

The most common federal online child exploitation crimes are investigated in violation of the following sections of Title 18, United States Code (USC):

- § 1462. Importation or Transportation of Obscene Matters.
- § 1465. Transportation of Obscene Matters for Sale or Distribution.
- § 1466. Engaging in the Business of Selling or Transferring Obscene Matter.
- § 1467. Criminal Forfeiture.
- § 1470. Transfer of Obscene Material to Minors.
- § 2241(a)(b)(c). Aggravated Sexual Abuse.
- § 2251(a)(b)(c). Sexual Exploitation of Children.
- § 2251A(a)(b). Selling or Buying of Children.
- § 2252. Certain Activities Relating to Material Involving the Sexual Exploitation of Minors.
- § 2252A. Certain Activities Relating to Material Constituting or Containing Child Pornography.
- § 2253. Criminal Forfeiture.

- § 2254. Civil Forfeiture.
- § 2257. Record Keeping Requirements.
- § 2260(a)(b). Production of Sexually Explicit Depictions of a Minor for Importation into the United States.
- § 2421. Transportation Generally.
- § 2422. Coercion and Enticement.
- § 2423(a). Transportation of Minors with Intent to Engage in Criminal Sexual Activity.
- § 2423(b). Interstate or Foreign Travel with Intent to Engage in a Sexual Act with a Juvenile.
- § 2425. Use of Interstate Facilities to Transmit Information About a Minor.
- § 13032. Reporting of Child Pornography by Electronic Communication Service Providers.

The FBI has taken the necessary steps to ensure that IINI remains viable and productive through the use of new technology and sophisticated investigative techniques, coordination of the national investigative strategy, and a national liaison initiative with a significant number of commercial and independent online service providers. IINI has been highly successful and has proved to be a logical, efficient, and effective method for identifying and investigating individuals who are using the Internet for the sole purpose of sexually exploiting children.

For additional information on IINI and Internet safety, please read the FBI brochure, A Parent's Guide to Internet Safety. This brochure and other information about crimes against children are available on the official FBI Web site www.fbi.gov/innocent.htm. Individual FBI field offices serve as primary points of contact for persons requesting FBI assistance. For further information about FBI services or to request assistance, please contact a Crimes Against Children Coordinator at your local FBI field office.

National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime

NCAVC is the behavioral element of the FBI's Critical Incident Response Group. NCAVC is organized into four distinct units, which are broken down as follows:

- Behavioral Analysis Unit I (BAU-I), which is responsible for terrorism and threat assessments.
- Behavioral Analysis Unit II (BAU-II), which is responsible for serial and other violent crimes involving adult victims.
- Behavioral Analysis Unit III (BAU-III), which is responsible for all crimes against children. This unit is described below as it focuses specifically on children's issues.
- Violent Criminal Apprehension Program (VICAP), a nationwide data information center that collects, collates, and analyzes crimes of violence and compares the information with other unsolved crimes to identify and track violent serial offenders.

The Protection of Children From Sexual Predators Act of 1998 created the Child Abduction and Serial Murder Investigative Resources Center (CASMIRC), which has been assimilated into NCAVC. The Act specifies that CASMIRC is to "provide investigative support through the coordination and provision of Federal law enforcement resources, training, and application of other multidisciplinary expertise to assist Federal, State, and local authorities in matters involving child abduction, mysterious disappearances of children, child homicide, and serial murder across the country.” The Sexual Predators Act also clarified the “24-hour rule” in kidnappings, stating that there is no need to wait 24 hours before initiating a federal investigation. The Act also provides for the FBI to investigate serial killings if requested to do so by the head of the law enforcement agency with investigative or prosecutorial jurisdiction.

Services

BAU III – Crimes Against Children was established to provide behaviorally based investigative and operational support to complex and time-sensitive crimes and other matters of significance involving crimes perpetrated against child victims, through the application of investigative case experience, education, specialized training, and research. BAU III resources are focused on child abductions, mysterious disappearances of children, child homicides, child sexual victimization, and other criminal activities targeting child victims. BAU III’s assistance to law enforcement agencies is provided through the process of “criminal investigative analysis,” which is a process of reviewing crimes from both a behavioral and investigative perspective. It involves assessing the facts of a criminal act and then interpreting offender behavior and interaction with the victim, as exhibited during the commission of the crime, or as displayed in the crime scene. BAU III supervisory special agents and professional support staff conduct detailed analyses of crimes for the purpose of providing one or more of the following services:

- Crime analysis.
- Investigative suggestions.
- Profiles of unknown offenders.
- Threat analysis.
- Critical incident analysis.
- Interview strategies.
- Major case management.
- Search warrant assistance.
- Prosecutive strategies.
- Expert testimony.

Availability of Services

BAU III receives requests for services from federal, state, local, and international law enforcement agencies. Responses to these requests for BAU III assistance are facilitated through a network of NCAVC (National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime) field coordinators and Crimes Against Children field coordinators. These coordinators may be contacted in FBI field offices in the United States and its territories, or through FBI legal attache offices in various countries throughout the world.

BAU III provides training for law enforcement agencies at several regional workshops across the United States each year, and at the annual Crimes Against Children Conference in Dallas. Topic areas include response to child abductions, online sexual exploitation of children, media issues in child abduction investigations, and ongoing research results on various subjects, including maternal filicide, child abduction and homicide, and offender typologies. Training at these venues may be arranged through the FBI's field NCAVC coordinators; these individuals may also be able to assist in arranging additional training on these and other topics on a case-by-case basis for groups of police agencies within a geographic area.

Publications

In addition to publications in various law enforcement and academic journals, BAU III has, over the past several years, released (for law enforcement use only) copies of the Child Abduction Response Plan (CARP) in booklet form; a newly revised version of this document is scheduled to be issued in late 2006. BAU III has also prepared two additional documents for law enforcement investigators who are involved in "cold case" missing child matters and other unsolved cases relating to child abductions. These are entitled Child Abduction Analysis Team Program: Guide for Law Enforcement Investigators and Child Abduction Analysis Team (CAAT) Guidelines.

Research on various subjects of interest and use for law enforcement agencies relating to child victimization is ongoing within BAU III. Articles published by unit members are available for distribution upon request. Unit personnel may be contacted for further details. In operational matters, at any stage of an investigation BAU III personnel may be contacted for assistance. The unit's personnel resources include a unit chief, eight supervisory special agents, two crime analysts, and a major case specialist. BAU III assistance in active investigations may be rendered onsite, via telephonic consultation, or through a hosted conference with investigators who may choose to travel to the NCAVC facility in Quantico, VA.

Legislative Citations

BAU III is involved in case assistance in a variety of federal criminal matters, but provides services to law enforcement investigators at all levels. Its legislative mandate is found in federal law, specifically Public Law 105-314, the Protection of Children from Sexual Predators Act, which was passed by Congress in October 1998. This law established an entity initially known as the Morgan P. Hardiman Child Abduction and Serial Murder Investigative Resources Center (CASMIRC); BAU III continues to operate under this mandate.

Office for Victim Assistance

The mission of the FBI's Office for Victim Assistance is to ensure that victims of crimes investigated by the FBI are afforded the opportunity to receive the services and notifications as required by federal law and the Attorney General Guidelines on Victim and Witness Assistance (2005).

The FBI recognizes not only the necessity of providing for the legal rights of victims but also the benefits that effective and timely victim assistance can bring to investigations. OVA applies three major principles in performing its mission: (1) compliance with federal law; (2) assistance to victims to enhance their ability to participate in the investigative process; and (3) use of innovative, flexible, and practical methods to accomplish its goals. The mission of OVA has been expanded to include a greater focus on responding to victims of terrorism and cyber crime in an effective, coordinated way.

The FBI is responsible for assisting victims who have suffered direct or proximate physical, emotional, psychological, or pecuniary harm as a result of the commission of a crime. The FBI's responsibility for assisting victims is continuous while a case is pending final disposition or until it is turned over to the U.S. Attorney's Office for adjudication.

OVA is responsible for managing the day-to-day operations of the Victim Assistance Program and for ensuring that all victims of crimes investigated by the FBI are identified, offered assistance, and notified as specified by statute. Each FBI field office has access to a victim specialist to ensure that the needs of victims are being met. The FBI also has two full-time child interview specialists and a contract with another child interview specialist who interview child victims in FBI cases, conduct training, and provide case consultations.

In addition, OVA provides training and information that will equip FBI agents, evidence recovery teams, and other FBI personnel to work effectively with victims. The unit is the point of contact for the Department of Justice and outside agencies regarding the investigative policy issues and strategies pertaining to assistance to victims of federal crimes.

Other FBI Resources

FBI Forensic and Technical Support Services

The FBI Laboratory is the only full-service federal forensic science laboratory serving the law enforcement community. The FBI is mandated by Title 28, CFR Section 0.85, to conduct scientific examinations of evidence, free of charge, for any duly constituted law enforcement agency in the United States. Assistance is provided through the following:

- Evidence response teams.
- Document services.
- Latent fingerprint services.
- Scientific analysis services (including chemistry-toxicology, DNA analysis/serology, explosives, firearms-toolmarks, hairs and fibers, and materials analysis).
- Special projects (including graphic design, photographic processing, special photographic services, structural design, and visual production and video enhancement).
- Forensic science research and training.

Detailed information about these services, including instructions for collecting, preserving, and shipping evidence, can be found in the Handbook of Forensic Science, which is available in CD-ROM, print, and online formats. Copies of the CD-ROM Handbook (updated in 1999) can be ordered from the Government Printing Office's online bookstore at www.bookstore.gpo.gov (specify stock number 027-001-00080-7). The online Handbook is accessible through the FBI's home page at www.fbi.gov/hq/lab/handbook/intro.html.

The Technology-Assisted Search Program supports the law enforcement community by providing aid in identifying, for recovery, forensic evidence that would not be identified through traditional search techniques. The group uses geophysical methodology (that is, ground-penetrating radar) and other remote-sensing equipment to search for clandestinely concealed evidence. These techniques are considered as an investigative tool only after more expedient measures have been exhausted.

Criminal Justice Information Services

The criminal justice information services provided by the FBI include a fingerprint repository, the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), and the National Sex Offender Registry.

- Fingerprint repository. The FBI serves as the nation's civil and criminal fingerprint repository and responds to the information needs of federal, state, local, and international members of the criminal justice community. The FBI receives approximately 40,000 fingerprint cards each day.
- National Crime Information Center. NCIC is a nationwide computer-based inquiry and response information system that was established in 1967 to serve the criminal justice community. NCIC's purpose is to maintain a computerized filing system of timely, accurate, documented criminal justice information that is readily available through a telecommunications network. An average of 2.5 million inquiry-response transactions per day are processed through terminals located in 47,827 law enforcement agencies and 48,627 criminal justice agencies. Since 1997, law enforcement agencies have been able to place a "CA," or child abduction flag, in the Missing Persons field in the NCIC entry. Such a flag ensures immediate notification of the FBI's Strategic Information Operations Center (SIOC) and NCMEC. SIOC, which is staffed around the clock, alerts CACU, NCAVC, and other entities, as appropriate, to immediately address any suspected child abductions.
- National Sex Offender Registry. The National Sex Offender Registry is an FBI database that retains information received from federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies in coordination with NCIC. The database holds sex offender registration information, including current addresses and dates of conviction.

Training

The FBI offers an extensive training program for the law enforcement community. Training in a broad spectrum of topics is offered to bona fide law enforcement personnel in settings throughout the United States, around the world, and at the FBI Academy. For domestic training requests, please contact the training coordinator in your local FBI field office (see appendix 6). For international training requests, please contact one of the FBI Legal Attaches located at American Embassies abroad (see appendix 7).

Availability of Services

Recipients of FBI services include law enforcement agencies and the U.S. Government (hence the citizens of the United States). Services can be accessed by a request from a law enforcement agency, either through NCAVC or through the local FBI field office or legal attaché (see appendixes 6 and 7, respectively).

Agency Contact

To obtain further information about services or to request immediate FBI assistance, contact one of the local FBI field offices listed in appendix 6 and in your local telephone directory, one of the FBI legal attaches listed in appendix 7, or one of the following units:

U.S. Department of Justice

Office for Victims of Crime

Agency Description

The Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) within the Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice, was formally established by Congress in 1988 through an amendment to the 1984 Victims of Crime Act (VOCA) to provide leadership and funding on behalf of crime victims. The mission of OVC is to enhance the nation's capacity to assist crime victims and to provide leadership in changing attitudes, policies, and practices to promote justice and healing for all victims of crime.

OVC provides federal funds to victim compensation and assistance programs across the nation, conducts training sessions for diverse groups of professionals who work with victims, develops and disseminates publications, supports projects that enhance victims' rights and services, and educates the public about victim issues.

Funding for OVC's programs comes from the Crime Victims Fund, established by VOCA to support victim services and other assistance. Fund dollars are derived from criminal fines, forfeited bail bonds, penalties, and special assessments collected by federal courts, U.S. Attorneys' Offices, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons from offenders convicted of federal crimes, and the deposit of private gifts, bequests, and donations.

Availability of Services

Victim Assistance

All states, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and the territories of American Samoa, Guam, and the Northern Mariana Islands are awarded victim assistance grants to support direct services to crime victims. Some 6,400 grants are made to domestic violence shelters; rape crisis centers; child abuse programs; and victim service units in law enforcement agencies, prosecutors' offices, hospitals, and social service agencies. These programs provide crisis intervention, counseling, emergency shelter, criminal justice advocacy, emergency transportation, and related services.

Victim Compensation

All states, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and the territory of Guam have established crime victim compensation programs. These programs reimburse victims for crime-related expenses such as medical costs, mental health counseling, funeral and burial costs, and lost wages or support. Compensation is paid only when other financial resources, such as private insurance and offender restitution, do not cover the loss.

Direct Services

OVC supports direct services to people who have been victimized on tribal and federal lands, such as military bases and national parks, and to U.S. citizens who have been victimized in foreign countries, including U.S. nationals and federal government employees who are victims of terrorism abroad.

OVC supports emergency funds to provide victims of federal crimes with needed services, such as crisis counseling, temporary shelter, and travel expenses to court, when these services are otherwise unavailable.

In 2003, OVC awarded 12 grants totaling more than $9.5 million to various nongovernmental organizations for the purpose of providing either trafficking victims with comprehensive or specialized services or discretionary trafficking victim grantees with training and technical assistance for program support and enhancement. In 2004, OVC awarded 10 grants totaling approximately $5.5 million. These grants were awarded to organizations solely for the purpose of comprehensive service provision. In 2005, OVC made two awards totaling approximately $7.5 million for the purpose of comprehensive service provision and training and technical assistance. Most recently, in early 2006, OVC provided more than $8.5 million in new awards and supplemental awards to existing grantees for the purposes of program continuation or expansion. OVC grants provide services to victims primarily during the precertification period—the time between when trafficking victims are initially identified by law enforcement and later officially certified by the federal government as such. Per capita reimbursement subcontracts from the Department of Health and Human Services provide for services after certification.

In coordination with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, OVC provides funding support to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) for the Victim Reunification Travel Program. This program was developed to assist left-behind parents whose children have been abducted by a spouse or biological parent and taken from the United States to a foreign country (or whose children have been unlawfully retained as a result of a visit to a foreign country). Program funds cover international travel expenses for parents to be reunited with their children and to participate in the foreign country's court proceedings, in addition to other support services such as those provided by mental health professionals who facilitate the reunification process and reduce a child's trauma. During 2005, the program helped return 30 children to their left-behind parents. (Contact NCMEC for further information.)

OVC also sponsors victim assistance programs in Indian country, including the establishment and training of multidisciplinary teams that handle child sexual abuse cases and provide comprehensive victim services.

Discretionary Funds

OVC discretionary funds are used to improve and enhance the quality and availability of victim services. OVC publishes an annual solicitation and application kit that identifies demonstration and training and technical assistance initiatives to be funded on a competitive basis. Through discretionary grants, OVC has initiated many innovative projects with a national impact.

At least half of all discretionary grant funds are dedicated to improving the response to federal crime victims, including American Indian and Alaska Natives. These initiatives include training for federal criminal justice system personnel on victims' issues, written materials that help victims of federal crimes understand their rights and available services, and support for direct victim assistance service programs that establish and expand services for victims of federal crimes.

Training and Technical Assistance Programs

OVC established its Training and Technical Assistance Center (OVC TTAC) to support development of the victim services field by increasing the nation's capacity to provide crime victims with skilled, capable, and sensitive assistance. OVC sponsors training for many different professions, including victim service providers and volunteers, law enforcement officials, prosecutors, judges, medical and mental health personnel, and members of faith-based communities.

Each year the OVC TTAC Training Calendar offers a variety of workshops that focus on professional development and capacity building and on sexual assault, identity theft, and other victim-related issues. OVC TTAC also serves as a vehicle for further dissemination of training and technical assistance developed under OVC's discretionary grant programs.

In addition, OVC TTAC manages a network of expert consultants who specialize in crime victim-related areas to support the training events of federal, state, local, and tribal agencies and organizations; provides intensive onsite technical assistance to agencies offering services to crime victims; administers OVC's scholarships for crime victims and survivors; and provides state and national conference support. OVC TTAC also organizes national conferences, regional workshops, and meetings with diverse constituent groups, including state and tribal VOCA administrators and discretionary grantees such as faith-based communities.

Publications

OVC develops and distributes a wide variety of publications to help educate and inform service professionals, provide crime victims with improved access to services, and raise public awareness of issues facing victims. Keeping pace with technology, many of these materials are now available online at OVC's Web site, www.ovc.gov. Subjects include promising practices in the profession, policy updates, information about emerging crimes, and skill-building tools for professionals.

OVC maintains an information clearinghouse, the Office for Victims of Crime Resource Center (OVCRC), to distribute its publications and provide research findings, statistics, and literature on victim-related issues. OVCRC, which may be accessed through www.ncjrs.gov, is a component of the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, a federally funded resource offering justice and substance abuse information to support research, policy, and program development worldwide.

Of particular interest is the Attorney General Guidelines for Victim and Witness Assistance, which provides guidance on how to treat crime victims and witnesses based on federal victims' rights laws and Department of Justice policies. This publication, which is available online at www.usdoj.gov/olp/final.pdf, was recently revised in response to the passage of the Justice for All Act of 2004. The guidelines set forth minimum training requirements for personnel who work primarily with victims and witnesses, and requirements for responsible officials to report compliance with the Act annually.

Online Directory of Crime Victim Services

OVC established an online directory of crime victim services in 2003 designed to help service providers and individuals locate nonemergency crime victim services in the United States and abroad. Users may search the directory by location, type of victimization, service needed, or agency type. The directory can be accessed via OVC's Web site, www.ovc.gov.

OVC Web Forum

In early 2004, OVC launched a Web forum, the OVC Message Board To Help Exchange Lessons and Practices (HELP) in Victim Services, to link victim service providers and allied professionals with colleagues throughout the nation who face similar challenges and experiences. An online bulletin board, the OVC Web Forum, allows peer-to-peer dialog on innovative practices and services in victim assistance. A guest host is featured each month, allowing participants to ask questions of and receive insight from nationally recognized experts on the featured topic. Guest hosts have covered such topics as helping child victims, assisting victims of identity theft, assisting victims of drunk and drugged driving, and managing compassion fatigue.

In 2005, OVC launched an expanded forum, featuring new tools to enhance collaboration. New features include the following:

- OVC News and Announcements. Reports current OVC-focused initiatives and relevant topics and events with a primary focus on best practices.
- Search Engine. Scans and retrieves posts by topic of interest, keywords, or date.
- Hot Topics. Features posts from unique users or forum topics that are relevant to current events in victim assistance.
- Post of the Month. Highlights a post that expresses information of value to the online community and contributes to the body of knowledge concerning crime victims and best practices.

U.S. Department of Justice

Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Child Protection Division

Agency Description

In 2000, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) created the Child Protection Division (CPD) to oversee its efforts in protecting children from violence, abuse, neglect, sexual exploitation, and other forms of victimization including Internet crimes against children. OJJDP's mandate to protect children is derived from two sources: the Missing Children's Assistance Act of 1984 and the Victim of Child Abuse Act of 1990. These Acts define the parameters of CPD's mission and provide the legislative authority for the work that CPD oversees. Other recent legislation also affects CPD's work, for example, the recently enacted Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006.

CPD is responsible for administering all programs related to crimes against children; providing leadership and funding in the areas of prevention, intervention, treatment, and enforcement; and promoting the effective use of policies and procedures to address the problems of missing, neglected, abused, and exploited children. CPD conducts research, demonstration, and service programs; provides training and technical assistance; provides assistance and support to the Association of Missing and Exploited Children's Organizations (AMECO), which works to improve the capabilities and quality of services provided to missing children and their families through its member network; supports the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, the national resource center and clearinghouse dedicated to missing and exploited children issues, and Team H.O.P.E. (Help Offering Parents Empowerment), which provides mentoring and support to families whose children are missing or victimized; and works closely with the National AMBER (America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response) Alert coordinator to support the development and improvement of the AMBER Alert system nationwide.

Since 1984, training and technical assistance have been provided to local law enforcement agencies to aid in their efforts to locate and recover missing children. Each year, CPD trains more than 4,500 law enforcement officials in the investigation of missing children cases, at no cost to state or local governments.

Services

CPD services include the following:

- Training and technical assistance.
- Demonstration programs.
- Research projects.

- Evaluation studies.
- Publications.
- Funding for the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children.
- Support for nonprofit organizations that work with missing and exploited children through AMECO.
- Coordination of the Federal Agency Task Force for Missing and Exploited Children.

Availability of Services

Training and technical assistance are available to state and local units of government, nonprofit organizations, and other agencies serving missing and exploited children. Research briefs and other publications are available to the general public. Some materials are restricted to law enforcement personnel.

Training Programs

The following training programs are sponsored by the Child Protection Division. These courses are designed to assist law enforcement officers and other professionals who handle child abuse and exploitation cases. A list of training programs, their description, and course registration forms can be found on the following Web site: <http://dept.fvtc.edu/ojjdp>.

AMBER Alert Training and Technical Assistance Program. Training and technical assistance are available to communities and jurisdictions interested in developing and/or enhancing their AMBER Alert programs. A list of AMBER Alert coordinators can be found on the Office of Justice Programs Web site at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/amberalert/home.html.

Child Abuse and Exploitation Investigative Techniques. This course is designed to enhance the skills of experienced law enforcement officials and other professionals who investigate cases involving child abuse, sexual exploitation of children, child pornography, and missing children.

Child Fatality Investigations. This course is designed to provide law enforcement officers, child protective service workers, medical professionals, and other juvenile justice personnel with comprehensive training on the detection, intervention, investigation, and prosecution of cases involving fatal child abuse and neglect.

Child Sexual Exploitation Investigations. This course provides law enforcement officials and other professionals with the knowledge and information they need to understand, recognize, investigate, and resolve cases of child pornography and sexual exploitation.

Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force Training. Training is available to help state and local law enforcement with the complex and challenging investigations related to Internet crimes.

Information about these training opportunities, which are available at little or no cost to law enforcement agencies, is available at www.icactraining.org.

Protecting Children Online. This program enhances law enforcement's ability to investigate computer crimes against children.

Protecting Children Online for Prosecutors. This program provides prosecutors with the information necessary to understand, recognize, and prosecute computer crimes against children.

Responding to Missing and Abducted Children. This course enhances the knowledge and skills of law enforcement officials who investigate cases involving abducted, runaway, and other missing youth.

School Resource Officer Leadership Program. This program demonstrates standards of excellence and best practices in the enhanced role of the school resource officer as a leader in planning and maintaining a safe school environment.

Team Investigative Process for Missing, Abused, and Exploited Children. This intensive team-training program promotes the development of a community-based, interdisciplinary team process for effectively investigating cases involving missing, abused, and exploited children.

U.S. Department of Justice

U.S. National Central Bureau (INTERPOL)

Agency Description

INTERPOL is the international criminal police organization that is composed of designated national central bureaus (NCB) in each of the 184 member nations. The primary mission of INTERPOL is as follows:

- To ensure and promote the widest possible mutual assistance among all criminal police authorities within the limits of the laws existing in the different countries and in the spirit of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.
- To establish and develop all institutions likely to contribute effectively to the prevention and suppression of ordinary law crimes.

By law, INTERPOL is forbidden to undertake any intervention or activities of a political, military, religious, or racial character.

INTERPOL maintains a sophisticated global communications network to coordinate international criminal investigations among its member countries. This network is also used to relay humanitarian requests, such as missing person inquiries. INTERPOL provides a forum for discussions, organizes working group meetings, and stages symposia for law enforcement authorities of member nations to focus attention on specific areas of criminal activity affecting their countries.

Services

Each INTERPOL member country establishes, funds, and staffs a national central bureau, which serves as the point of contact for the international law enforcement community. Every NCB operates within the parameters of its own nation's laws and policies and within the framework of the INTERPOL constitution. In the United States, authority for the INTERPOL function rests with the Attorney General. Authority for administering the U.S. National Central Bureau (USNCB) is shared by the Departments of Homeland Security and Justice.

The mission of USNCB is twofold:

- To receive foreign requests for criminal investigative assistance and direct them to the appropriate U.S. federal, state, or local law enforcement or judicial authorities.
- To receive domestic law enforcement requests and direct them to the appropriate NCB abroad.

USNCB's coordination services provide federal, state, and local law enforcement authorities with the most effective means available to secure the assistance of foreign police in matters ranging from a criminal record check to the arrest and extradition of wanted persons.

USNCB investigative staff includes senior agents who are detailed from more than 16 federal and state law enforcement agencies and a permanent analytical staff. Agents and analysts work in five investigative divisions: alien/fugitive, terrorism and violent crime, drugs, economic crimes, and state liaison. For example, the Terrorism and Violent Crime Division investigates sexual abuse against minors, sexual assault against minors, child pornography, and sexual tourism. The Terrorism and Violent Crime Division is responsible for cases involving missing persons, parental kidnapping, and child abduction. Cases involving missing, kidnapped, or exploited minors are also assigned to the Criminal Division.

Through INTERPOL's worldwide telecommunications network, messages can be directed to one country, to an entire region, or to the whole INTERPOL membership. Messages destined for regional or worldwide distribution are referred to as "diffusions." Diffusions inform other NCBs of the circumstances of a case and request their assistance or intervention.

Law enforcement can request issuance of a formal notice for worldwide distribution through the INTERPOL Secretariat General Office. INTERPOL notices are categorized (color-coded) according to the circumstances surrounding the request.

- International Red Notices request a subject's provisional arrest with a view toward extradition. A Red Notice provides specific details concerning charges against a subject, along with warrant information, and includes prior criminal history.
- International Blue Notices are designed to collect information about persons (for example, to trace and locate a subject whose extradition may be requested).
- International Yellow Notices are circulated to provide information about persons who are missing or abducted or who are unable to identify themselves, such as children.

Upon receipt of these notices, most member countries enter the information into their databases and border lookout systems.

Availability of Services

Requests for Assistance

To reach the international law enforcement community, USNCB enters information on the child-related crime, subject, victim, abducting parent, or missing child(ren) into the INTERPOL network. Requests can be made immediately following the incident, but they must be made by a U.S. law enforcement agency or judicial authority (see appendix 8 for a list of USNCB state liaison offices). USNCB cannot accept requests for assistance from members of the public—even a victim parent.

Virtually every request normally handled through law enforcement channels can be accommodated by INTERPOL, provided communication is needed within the international law enforcement community. Generally, correspondents on INTERPOL messages are the law enforcement authorities in the respective member countries.

Responses to inquiries are sent to the originating law enforcement agency. Interested parties, such as a victim parent, can ask for a status report directly from the originating law enforcement agency.

When a request is received, a USNCB analyst will search the internal case tracking system to determine if there is any prior correspondence regarding the principals in the investigation. Additional searches will be conducted on a wide range of internal and external computer databases to determine if there are any records that will disclose prior investigative information or if there is any information that will help to locate a missing or abducted child and/or the abducting parent.

A determination is then made as to what action should follow, and a message is usually sent to one or more foreign NCBs through the INTERPOL communications network by the agent or analyst. Because foreign customs, policies, and laws dictate what the receiving NCB can and will do, USNCB has little or no control over how a message will be handled by a foreign NCB. Most requests from U.S. police entail interviewing witnesses, victims, or subjects of child exploitation crimes who reside in foreign countries or concern efforts to locate missing or abducted children and/or abductors.

Domestic Child Abduction Cases

In domestic child abduction cases, the initial request seeks to confirm if border-entry records can establish the presence of the abductor or the child in a foreign country. Once entry has been established, discreet verification is requested to confirm the exact location of the abductor in the hope of preventing that person from fleeing to another location.

If an NCB confirms the location of an offender, abductor, or child, USNCB notifies the originating police agency, which then coordinates subsequent investigative or retrieval efforts with the prosecuting attorney or the victim parent via the Department of State, Office of Children's Issues. If USNCB messages fail to locate an offender, abductor, or child, USNCB helps the originating agency complete the application process that will lead to the publication of INTERPOL international notices.

If a child is located abroad, INTERPOL may request protective custody of the child, even in countries that are party to the Hague Convention treaty.

If a subject is charged with a child exploitation offense or parental kidnapping, a request for provisional arrest with a view toward extradition must be sent first through the proper diplomatic channels. Cases resulting in extradition are handled by the Department of Justice's Office of International Affairs, which uses the INTERPOL channel to transmit information pertaining to the extradition process.

Foreign Requests for Assistance

Foreign requests for investigative assistance are handled similarly to domestic cases. USNCB agents or analysts query various law enforcement databases—including the National Crime Information Center (NCIC)—to determine whether prior investigative information exists in the United States. The investigative request is then forwarded to the appropriate federal or state police authority and oftentimes is coordinated with the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children. The results of such investigative actions are then routed back to USNCB for relay to the requesting country. If another NCB requests such action, USNCB can initiate a border-lookout notice using the Treasury Enforcement Communications System database. Such a notice would request that INTERPOL be notified if the subject and/or missing/abducted child(ren) were to attempt to enter the United States.

In foreign origin abduction cases, the names of the abductor and of the child cannot be entered into the NCIC computer system unless a Red Notice has been issued for the abductor and a Yellow Notice for the child.

U.S. Department of State

Office of Children's Issues

Agency Description

The Bureau of Consular Affairs/Overseas Citizens Services/Office of Children's Issues (CA/OCS/CI) in the U.S. Department of State develops and coordinates policies and programs and provides direction to foreign service posts on international parental child abduction. CA/OCS/CI also fulfills U.S. treaty obligations relating to international parental abduction of children.

Services

The Office of Children's Issues provides services to assist in preventing and resolving international parental child abduction cases.

International Abduction

CA/OCS/CI works closely with parents, attorneys, private organizations, and government agencies in the United States and abroad to prevent and resolve international parental child abductions. CA/OCS/CI processes requests from parents and courts for entry of minor U.S. citizen children's names into the Children's Passport Issuance Alert Program, which flags passport applications submitted for children who are the subject of custody disputes or who may be removed from the United States without the knowledge or consent of both parents. Since the late 1970s, the Bureau of Consular Affairs has taken action in thousands of cases of international parental child abduction. In addition, the Office has answered thousands of inquiries concerning international child abduction, enforcement of visitation rights, and abduction prevention techniques.

CA/OCS/CI is the U.S. Central Authority for the operation and implementation of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction. The Convention discourages abduction as a means of resolving a custody matter by requiring, with a few limited exceptions, that the abducted child be returned to the country where he or she habitually resided prior to the abduction for the settlement of custody issues. About 60 percent of applications for assistance under the Hague Convention involve children abducted from the United States and taken to other countries, and 40 percent involve children who are abducted in other countries and brought to the United States. As of August 2006, the United States has recognized 55 foreign countries as partner signatories that have joined the Hague Convention. For updated information on partner Hague Convention countries and other issues related to operation of the Hague Convention, go to www.travel.state.gov and click on the Children & Family tab. Under an agreement reached by the Department of State, the Department of Justice, and the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC), NCMEC has been delegated responsibility for processing Hague partner requests for the return of or access to children currently in the United States. CA/OCS/CI case officers focus on children who have been taken abroad and children whose U.S.-resident parents fear are at risk of being removed from the United States.

Many countries have not yet accepted the Hague Convention. And in some instances of children taken to countries that are Hague partners, the circumstances under which a child is taken—for example, if a child is taken abroad with the left-behind parent’s knowledge and consent—may preclude the Hague return procedure from applying. In the event of an abduction to a non-Hague country or removal to a Hague partner country in an instance where the Hague Convention cannot be applied, one option for the left-behind parent is to obtain legal assistance in the country where the child was taken and to follow the local judicial process.

For international parental child abduction cases, CA/OCS/CI can do the following:

- Provide information through programs and tools that can be used to prevent an international parental child abduction, including the Children’s Passport Issuance Alert Program.
- Provide information in situations where the Hague Convention applies and help parents file an application with foreign authorities to obtain the return of or access to a child.
- Contact U.S. Embassies and consulates abroad and request that a U.S. consular officer attempt to locate, visit, and report on a child’s general welfare.
- Provide the left-behind parent with information on the legal system, especially concerning family law, of the country to which the child was abducted and furnish a list of attorneys willing to accept American clients.
- Monitor judicial or administrative proceedings overseas.
- Help parents contact local officials in foreign countries or make contact with such officials on the parent’s behalf.
- Inform parents of domestic remedies, such as warrants, extradition procedures, and U.S. passport revocations.
- Alert foreign authorities to any evidence of child abuse or neglect.

CA/OCS/CI cannot reabduct a child, help a parent in any way that violates the laws of another country, or give refuge to a parent who is involved in a reabduction. CA/OCS/CI also cannot act as a lawyer, represent parents in court, or pay legal expenses or court fees.

Availability of Services

In cases involving international abduction, services are directed to the parents or the attorneys of children who have been abducted internationally or to those parents, attorneys, or courts that fear a child may be abducted from the United States by another parent. CA/OCS/CI promotes the use of civil legal mechanisms to resolve international parental abduction cases. CA/OCS/CI also works closely with local and federal law enforcement agencies, the Department of Justice, INTERPOL, and the Department of State Office of the Legal Adviser regarding pursuit of civil or criminal remedies to international parental abduction cases.

General information on international parental child abduction and custody issues is available on the Department of State Web site at www.travel.state.gov under the Children & Family section. As the U.S. Central Authority for the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, CA/OCS/CI processes applications from parents seeking access to and the return of abducted children under the Convention. CA/OCS/CI coordinates U.S. government assistance in cases involving children abducted abroad. CA/OCS/CI works closely with U.S. embassies and consulates and with foreign Hague Convention Central Authorities to help resolve international parental child abduction cases. The International Child Remedies Act (52 U.S.C. 11601; P.L. 100-300; 22 CFR Part 94) is the federal legislation implementing the Hague Abduction Convention in the United States. A memorandum of understanding signed by the Departments of State and Justice and by the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children gives NCMEC the authority to process Hague abduction cases involving children taken from other countries to the United States.

Although the Convention does not require that requests for services be in the form of an application, CA/OCS/CI has created a special form (DSP-105), Application for Assistance Under the Hague Convention on Child Abduction, to help organize information (see appendix 9). This information is also available on the Department of State's Web site. It should be noted that CA/OCS/CI does not adjudicate the validity of the application claim for the return of or access to a child; rather, CA/OCS/CI provides information on the operation of the treaty and on the issues that the appropriate judicial or administrative body that reviews the application will consider in making a determination.

CA/OCS/CI has developed a number of other useful information fliers and booklets to assist parents and their attorneys. These are readily available at www.travel.state.gov under the Children & Family section and include dozens of country-specific abduction fliers and an Islamic family law flier. The fliers explain specific factors that may affect a parent's ability to obtain the return of or access to a child.

U.S. Postal Service

U.S. Postal Inspection Service

Agency Description

The U.S. Postal Inspection Service is the federal law enforcement arm of the U.S. Postal Service with responsibility for investigating crimes involving the U.S. mail, including all child pornography and child sexual exploitation offenses. U.S. Postal Inspectors, specially trained to conduct child exploitation investigations, are assigned to each of its field divisions nationwide (see appendix 10 for a list of child exploitation investigations specialists). As federal law enforcement agents, postal inspectors carry firearms, serve warrants and subpoenas, and possess the power of arrest.

The U.S. Postal Inspection Service has a long-standing reputation as a leader in the battle against child sexual exploitation. Recognizing that child molesters and child pornographers often seek to communicate with one another through what they perceive as the security and anonymity provided by the U.S. mail, postal inspectors have been involved extensively in child sexual exploitation and pornography investigations since 1977. Since the enactment of the Federal Child Protection Act of 1984, investigations conducted by postal inspectors have resulted in the arrest of more than 4,900 child molesters and pornographers.

Use of the mail to traffic child pornography or to otherwise sexually exploit children continues to be a significant problem in our society, although more and more child molesters and pornographers are becoming computer-literate and are turning to cyberspace to seek out potential victims, to communicate with like-minded individuals, and to locate sources of child pornography. Over the past several years, the number of unlawful computer transmissions and ads for trafficking of child pornography videotapes and computer disks through the mail has increased. Approximately 90 percent of the child exploitation cases now investigated by postal inspectors involve computers and the Internet in addition to postal violations.

Services

Postal inspectors have established a nationwide network of intelligence, incorporating a wide variety of undercover programs designed to identify suspects and develop prosecutable cases. These undercover operations recognize the clandestine nature of their targets and the inherent need of many offenders to validate their behavior. The techniques used in these programs include placement of advertisements in sexually oriented publications, written contacts and correspondence with the subject of the investigation, development of confidential sources, and undercover contact via the Internet. Postal inspectors are ready to assist in any related investigation involving child sexual exploitation.

Availability of Services

Investigative assistance by the Postal Inspection Service is available and should be sought under the following circumstances:

- When a subject may be using the U.S. mail to exchange, send, receive, buy, loan, advertise, solicit, or sell child pornography.
- When a subject is believed to be using the U.S. mail to correspond with others concerning child sexual exploitation, child pornography, or child erotica.
- When a subject is believed to be using a computer network and the Internet to traffic child pornography or to correspond with others concerning child sexual exploitation and the U.S. mail is also being used.
- When a subject is believed to be clearly predisposed to receive or purchase child pornography and a reverse sting investigative approach appears warranted.
- When there is a need to execute a “controlled delivery” of child pornography.
- When the activities of a subject warrant further investigation and there is a need for assistance from a postal inspector who is trained in the investigation of child pornography or child sexual exploitation cases.
- When other local investigative leads have been exhausted and a postal inspector is needed to use additional resources.

Services and investigative assistance provided by the Postal Inspection Service are available to any local, state, or federal law enforcement agency. Contact the nearest office of the U.S. Postal Inspection Service for further information.

Legislative Citations

For more than a century, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service has had specific responsibility for investigating the mailing of obscene matter (Title 18 U.S. Code, Section 1461). Over the years child pornography has been investigated as a matter of course along with obscenity matters. Increased public concern resulted in the enactment of the Sexual Exploitation of Children Act of 1977 (Title 18 U.S. Code, Section 2251–2253). The Child Protection Act of 1984 (18 U.S.C., Section 2251–2255) amended the 1977 Act by doing the following:

- Eliminating the obscenity requirement.
- Eliminating the commercial transaction requirement.
- Changing the definition of a minor from a person under age 16 to one under age 18.
- Adding provisions for criminal and civil forfeiture.
- Amending the federal wiretap statute to include the Child Protection Act.
- Raising the potential maximum fines from $10,000 to $100,000 for an individual and to $250,000 for an organization.

On November 7, 1986, Congress enacted the Child Sexual Abuse and Pornography Act (18 U.S.C., Section 2251–2256), which amended the two previous acts by doing the following:

- Banning the production and use of advertisements for child pornography.
- Adding a provision for civil remedies of personal injuries suffered by a minor who is a victim.
- Raising the minimum sentence for repeat offenders from imprisonment of not less than 2 years to imprisonment of not less than 5 years.

On November 18, 1988, Congress enacted the Child Protection and Obscenity Enforcement Act (18 U.S.C., Section 2251–2256), which did the following:

- Made it unlawful to use a computer to transmit advertisements for or visual depictions of child pornography.
- Prohibited the buying, selling, or otherwise obtaining temporary custody or control of children for the purpose of producing child pornography.

A new criminal statute was enacted with the passage of the Telecommunications Act of 1996. Title 18 U.S. Code Section 2422 made it a federal crime for anyone using the mail or interstate or foreign commerce to persuade, induce, or entice any individual under the age of 18 years to engage in any sexual act for which the person may be criminally prosecuted. On October 30, 1998, Congress amended 18 U.S.C., Section 2252, making it a federal crime to possess any depiction (Zero Tolerance Policy) of child pornography that was mailed or shipped in interstate or foreign commerce or that was produced using materials that were mailed or shipped by any means, including by computer.

ORGANIZATIONS

Association of Missing and Exploited Children's Organizations, Inc.

Agency Description

The Association of Missing and Exploited Children's Organizations (AMECO) is an organization of member agencies in the United States and Canada that provide services to families with missing and exploited children. AMECO's mission is to build and nurture an association of credible, ethical, and effective nonprofit organizations that serve missing and exploited children and their families.

Services

Visit the AMECO Web site (www.amecoinc.org) for a current list of AMECO members. A list of member agencies is in appendix 11. Although the specific services provided by each nonprofit vary, typical services include assistance with poster and flier development and dissemination, family support and assistance, advocacy, aid to local law enforcement, public awareness and education, coordination of volunteer activities, reunification assistance, and resource referral.

Availability of Services

AMECO provides training and technical assistance to its members. To qualify for membership in AMECO, a nonprofit organization (NPO) must do the following:

1. Provide a current tax-exempt status from the IRS or an equivalent nonprofit status document in other countries.
2. Provide Articles of Incorporation and current By-Laws.
3. Submit a copy of a legal tax form. (In the United States, use Form 990; in Canada use Revenue Canada Form T3010.) If an NPO does not meet the IRS criteria for submitting a Form 990, the NPO must fill one out to be reviewed by AMECO prior to acceptance for membership.
4. Have been in continuous operation as a nonprofit for 2 years prior to its admission to AMECO.
5. Submit three letters of reference from community groups attesting to the contributions of NPO. One reference MUST be from a law enforcement agency.
6. Provide services free of charge to victim families in the recovery process. Financial contributions may be solicited for general support of NPO, but there can be no charge associated with the recovery process, nor direct solicitation of donations as a contingency for recovery services.
7. Provide a list of states/provinces in which the NPO is registered to solicit funds.

8. Submit year-end financial statements and annual report.
9. Provide a current list of paid/unpaid board of directors and most recent year of board minutes.
10. Provide a copy of policies regarding police record/background checks.
11. Have a primary mission of one or more of the following categories:
 - Assisting law enforcement and/or searching parents in the recovery of missing children.
 - Helping missing and exploited children and their families to gain access to services.
 - Preventing children from becoming missing and exploited through prevention and education services for families, law enforcement, or other appropriate entity.

Training Programs

Each year, two annual training conferences are held to provide a platform for AMECO members to discuss and share best practices with each other. The fall conference is sponsored by the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children and the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention and includes state clearinghouses.

A list of training programs provided by individual AMECO members can be found in the member brochure on the AMECO Web site (www.amecoinc.org).

Resources

AMECO's Web site contains information about the resources that are available from its member agencies, including links to their Web sites, and information about state clearinghouses.

National Center for Missing & Exploited Children

Agency Description

“The mission of the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) is to help prevent child abduction and sexual exploitation; help find missing children; and assist victims of child abduction and sexual exploitation, their families, and the professionals who serve them.” A private, nonprofit organization established in 1984, NCMEC operates under a congressional mandate in a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Justice’s Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. The goal is to coordinate the efforts of law enforcement personnel, social service agency staff, elected officials, judges, prosecutors, educators, and members of the public and private sectors.

Services

NCMEC offers a variety of services to aid in the national and international search for a missing child, including a toll-free hotline; photograph and poster distribution; age-enhancement, facial reconstruction, and imaging-identification services; technical case analysis and assistance; recovery assistance; online computer networks; training and coursework for investigators; and legal strategies.

Age-Enhancement, Facial Reconstruction, and Imaging-Identification Services

NCMEC provides computerized age progression of photographs of long-term missing children, reconstruction of facial images from morgue photographs of unidentified deceased juveniles so that posters can be made to assist in a child’s identification, computer assistance in creating artist composites, assistance in identifying the faces of children in confiscated child pornography, and training in imaging applications and techniques.

AMBER Alert

NCMEC serves as an AMBER Alert clearinghouse and offers technical assistance and training, in concert with the U.S. Department of Justice, to all AMBER Alert plans throughout the country. NCMEC also disseminates AMBER Alert messages to secondary distributors so that subscribers or employees can be on the lookout for an abducted child in their area.

Case Analysis

The mission of the Case Analysis Unit (CAU), a unit of the Case Analysis and Support Division (CASD), NCMEC’s primary analysis resource, is to assist law enforcement agencies, NCMEC’s Missing Child Division, and NCMEC’s International Division to help locate missing and abducted children.

CAU staff receive and disseminate all lead and sighting information reported to the call center and evaluates each lead for potential usefulness. CAU research analysts have access to extensive geographical information systems for both mapping programs and data to produce analytical maps to further the investigation of these cases.

CAU maintains sex offender information about where to find up-to-date national sex offender information and resources to provide rapid data about the geographical proximity of these subjects to both new and unresolved cases of significance or relevance. CAU reviews and evaluates the multitude of messages received at NCMEC each week from NCIC about new entries and modifications to the missing persons and wanted persons files. NCMEC also receives messages about all unidentified persons entered into NCIC by law enforcement agencies.

Child Protection Education and Prevention

The Florida office of NCMEC, the central point for NCMEC child-protection education and prevention, provides public awareness about the issue of missing and exploited children and NCMEC safety-prevention initiatives. In NCMEC's continuing efforts to provide individuals who are educational decisionmakers guidelines for child-victimization-prevention programs, NCMEC disseminates the publication titled Guidelines for Programs to Reduce Child Victimization. These guidelines detail the recommendations of NCMEC's Education Standards Task Force for communities when choosing or developing programs to teach personal safety to children. In NCMEC's continuing efforts to offer technical assistance in the implementation of such programs in communities throughout the country, NCMEC reviews, develops, and revises educational materials. To learn more about NCMEC's prevention programs and publications, call the Florida office of NCMEC toll-free at 866-476-2338.

CyberTipline

The CyberTipline at www.cybertipline.com allows online computer users and electronic service providers to report information on the possession, manufacture, and distribution of sexually exploitive images of children; online enticement of children for sexual acts; child victims of prostitution; sexual tourism involving child victims; molestation of children by unrelated individuals; misleading domain names; and unsolicited obscene material sent to children. To date the CyberTipline has received more than 380,000 leads. The CyberTipline is managed by the Exploited Child Unit on behalf of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (formerly the U.S. Customs Service), and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.

CyberTipline analysts have extensive training in data collection using the Internet. Analysts use Internet resources to gather information about Web sites, e-mail addresses, newsgroup postings, suspect locations, and other important pieces of information relating to the case. Analysts conduct historical searches using public-record databases, the Internet, and NCMEC's CyberTipline. They also maintain a comprehensive list of law enforcement officers and Internet service providers with related technical expertise.

Exploited Child Unit

NCMEC's Exploited Child Unit (ECU) serves as a resource center for parents, law enforcement agencies, and members of the public on the sexual exploitation of children. ECU analysts process CyberTipline reports, disseminate leads, and provide technical assistance to local, state, federal, and international law enforcement agencies investigating cases involving the sexual exploitation of children.

Child Victim Identification Program

The ECU's Child Victim Identification Program (CVIP) serves as the U.S. clearinghouse for child pornography cases and also serves as the main point of contact to international agencies for victim identification. CVIP analysts, with the cooperation of federal law-enforcement partners, work to help prosecutors convict perpetrators and seek stronger sentences. Most importantly, analysts work diligently to identify the many children who have been victimized by child pornographers and the individuals who sell, trade, and distribute these horrible images.

CVIP assists with child pornography cases across the country by using NCMEC's Child Recognition & Identification System (CRIS). Local and federal law-enforcement agencies are able to submit copies of seized child pornography to federal law-enforcement agents assigned to NCMEC, accompanied by a written request that the images be reviewed for identified children. Combining CRIS and visual reviews by CVIP analysts, files containing identified child victims are listed in a report that is provided to the submitting law enforcement agency.

The most critical function of CVIP is the effort to rescue unidentified children seen in sexually abusive images. These children may still be suffering at the hands of their abusers and need to be located. CVIP serves as the U.S. clearinghouse for all investigative clues that may lead to the location of a child victim. During the evidence reviews, CVIP analysts closely examine the images and videos and document all investigative clues that may lead to the victim's location. Once a location has been determined, CVIP enlists the assistance of the appropriate law enforcement agency to locate the child victim(s).

Family Advocacy Division

NCMEC's Family Advocacy Division provides specific interventions designed to enhance service delivery to the children and parents served by NCMEC. The division works with families, law enforcement officials, and family advocacy agencies to provide technical assistance, referrals, and crisis intervention services. The division's team also triages cases of extra-familial child exploitation if requested by the family and/or law enforcement and provides appropriate referrals, support, and case followup. The division serves as a resource for NCMEC's Missing Children's Division, International Division, and Exploited Child Unit.

In addition to these services, the Family Advocacy Division houses Team H.O.P.E., which functions as a support network for families with missing children. Team H.O.P.E. connects trained volunteers who have experienced an abduction in their own families to other families with missing children who need advice, assistance, and encouragement. (See additional discussion on page 97.)

Global Missing Children's Network

The Global Missing Children's Network is a network of Web sites from 16 countries that feed information about and photographs of missing children into a central, multilingual database. Participants in the network are given access to a Web site interface that allows them to customize their country's Web site to meet their needs. Participants are also able to create posters using the information they enter into the missing children database. As a service to network members, NCMEC conducts age-progression training sessions at its headquarters in Virginia.

Current participating Web sites include the following:

- Argentina: <http://ar.missingkids.com>
- Australia: <http://au.missingkids.com>
- Belgium: <http://be.missingkids.com>
- Brazil: <http://br.missingkids.com>
- Canada: <http://ca.missingkids.com>
- Chile: <http://ch.missingkids.com>
- Costa Rica: <http://cr.missingkids.com>
- Ireland: <http://ie.missingkids.com>
- Italy: <http://it.missingkids.com>
- Malaysia: <http://my.missingkids.com>
- Mexico: <http://mx.missingkids.com>
- Netherlands: <http://nl.missingkids.com>
- South Africa: <http://za.missingkids.com>
- Spain: <http://es.missingkids.com>
- United Kingdom: <http://uk.missingkids.com>
- United States: www.missingkids.com

Currently, about 3,600 missing children are featured in the network. Of those, approximately 1,500 are from countries other than the United States. NCMEC is currently in discussions with Greece about starting new Web sites.

Call Center

NCMEC's Call Center receives toll-free calls from Canada, Europe, Mexico, and the United States on its telephone hotline 800-THE-LOST (800-843-5678). Specially trained staff handle lead and sighting information, provide assistance to families and professionals in their search for missing children, attempt to assist sexually exploited children, assist hearing impaired (TDD 800-826-7653) callers, facilitate communication with callers in 140 different languages, process requests from families with travel reunification needs, provide direct after-hours assistance to law enforcement, and provide safety information to help prevent the abduction and sexual exploitation of children.

Infant Abduction Prevention Program

NCMEC provides technical assistance on the prevention and investigation of newborn and infant abductions to nursing associations, hospital security associations, and law enforcement agencies. NCMEC also conducts site assessments of health care facilities to analyze their policies and procedures for preventing such incidents.

International Computer Network

Domestically, NCMEC is linked via online services to the 50 state clearinghouses plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, the U.S. Department of State, U.S. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, the U.S. Secret Service Forensic Services Division, INTERPOL, and other federal agencies. Internationally, NCMEC is linked to the Australia National Police, the Belgium Gendarmerie, the SOS Crianca in Brazil, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Canada, the Netherlands Politie, New Scotland Yard in the United Kingdom, and others. These computer links allow images of and information about missing and exploited children to be published instantly.

International Division

NCMEC's International Division, with a full-time, multilingual staff of 12, focuses on assisting left-behind parents/guardians to navigate a complex and often opaque legal bureaucracy. In 2005, NCMEC's International Division managed an average of 1,200 cases of children abducted by a parent or close family member. NCMEC is committed to advocating for an improved global response to cases of international family abduction—to help bring these children home.

The first step to addressing the crisis of international abduction is prevention. NCMEC's International Division assists parents to take steps to protect their children before an abduction occurs, and assists their family law attorneys to secure meaningful prevention orders from the courts. NCMEC is also expanding educational outreach efforts across the United States and abroad to arm judges, attorneys, law enforcement officers, and foreign service officers with the knowledge and tools to respond effectively to cases of international abduction and to educate them about resources available to help prevent and resolve these difficult cases.

The Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction is a multilateral treaty, which seeks to protect children from the harmful effects of abduction and retention across international boundaries by providing a procedure to bring about their prompt return. NCMEC's International Division assists the U.S. Department of State by managing incoming Hague cases by way of a Cooperative Agreement. Currently, 55 of the world's 192 formally recognized independent states are U.S.-ratified signatory members of this Hague Convention. The International Division has increased outreach efforts to countries not party to the Hague convention. NCMEC is helping to explore new mechanisms and set international standards for returning children to their families and countries of habitual residence.

In 2005 NCMEC, in partnership with Key Bridge Foundation, established the first international family abduction mediation network to help parents/guardians agree on mutually acceptable custody arrangements, without court intervention. The program is available to families faced with an international parental abduction between the United States and any other country in the world. Travel assistance for parents who are financially unable to recover their children once found in another country is provided through the U.S. Department of Justice's Office for Victims of Crime.

Legal Resource Division

NCMEC's Office of Legal Counsel (OLC) trains and assists federal, state, and local judges, prosecutors, law enforcement officers, and related professionals in investigative protocols, trial tactics and strategies, legal research, civil liability issues, and the use of experts both as consultants and witnesses in trial. OLC also advises the NCMEC Legislative Affairs Department, when requested on public policy issues; evaluates proposed legislation; and identifies best practice models for the investigation and prosecution of crimes against children. OLC also manages all of the regular business legal needs of NCMEC.

LOCATER

The Lost Child Alert Technology Resource (LOCATER) provides law enforcement with the tools and equipment needed to quickly disseminate images of and information about missing children. This service is provided at no charge.

Missing Children's Division

Staff members within the Missing Children's Division work with the families of missing and abducted children and investigating law enforcement agencies to provide technical assistance and all available search resources. Staff members maintain up-to-date case information, establish regular contact with families and investigative agencies, certify and prepare posters for dissemination, update the posting of that information on NCMEC's Web site, and coordinate with the Photo Distribution Unit to distribute posters nationwide. The Cold Case Review Unit within the Missing Children's Division works with families, law enforcement officials, and medical examiners to resolve long-term missing child cases.

NetSmartz[®] Workshop[®]

The NetSmartz Workshop is an interactive resource that teaches kids and teens how to stay safer on the Internet. NetSmartz combines the newest technologies and the most current research to create high-impact educational activities to help children prevent victimization and increase self-confidence whenever they go online. NetSmartz uses 3-D animation, music, and interactive games paired with dynamic activity cards to teach kids about online dangers and how to avoid them. NetSmartz interactive content is available at www.NetSmartz.org at no cost to the public.

The NetSmartz Workshop, in partnership with Boys and Girls Clubs of America (BGCA) and the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force Program, has developed Internet safety presentations for use with parents and communities, middle- and high-school students, and children in grades K–2 and 3–6. NetSmartz has also partnered with 13 states, including Arizona; Colorado; Indiana; Louisiana; Maine; Massachusetts; Missouri; New Hampshire; Ohio; South Carolina; Utah; Wyoming; Collier County, FL; and Fairfax County, VA to implement Internet safety into schools.

Poster Distribution

Through a network of more than 300 active private-sector partners, NCMEC has distributed millions of photographs of missing children. NCMEC coordinates national media exposure of missing children cases through its partnership with major television networks, leading nationwide publishers, and major corporations. NCMEC also has “broadcast” fax capabilities that provides rapid dissemination of vital information related to missing and abducted children to key locations throughout the country.

Project ALERT

America’s Law Enforcement Retiree Team (ALERT) is composed of retired, skilled law enforcement officers who donate their time, when requested by law enforcement agencies, to assist as consultants with long-term missing and/or exploited child cases. They assist by performing any task requested by the agency’s lead investigator. All costs associated with travel and resource material are paid by NCMEC.

Department of Communications

NCMEC’s Department of Communications acts as a liaison with all media outlets and corporate and photo partners. The department coordinates efforts with local and national press to enhance awareness of NCMEC, missing and exploited child cases, and resources for law enforcement families. It also develops proactive media strategies and public service advertising campaigns.

Team Adam

Patterned after the National Transportation Safety Board’s system for sending specialists to the site of serious transportation incidents, Team Adam sends trained, retired law enforcement officers to the site of serious child abductions and child sexual exploitation. These rapid-response consultants, who work in full cooperation with federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies, advise and assist local investigators, provide access to NCMEC’s extensive resources, and assist the child’s family and work with the media, as appropriate.

Team H.O.P.E.

Team H.O.P.E. (Help Offering Parents Empowerment) was created to provide parent-to-parent mentoring services for parents of missing children, resources, counseling, and emotional support and empowerment to families with missing children. Volunteers who had or still have a missing child are trained to provide the following services:

- Assisting families in crisis manage the search for a missing child and cope with the day-to-day issues of living with a missing child.
- Providing emotional support and empowerment and other resources.
- Instilling courage, determination, and hope in parents and other family members.
- Alleviating the isolation that so often results from fear and frustration.

Volunteers can be reached through Team H.O.P.E. at 866-305-HOPE (4673).

Training

NCMEC provides training in all aspects of missing and exploited child cases. Courses for investigators are conducted at regional sites: the Jimmy Ryce Law Enforcement Training Center in Alexandria, VA; and the Polisseni Law Enforcement Training Center in Rochester, NY. Courses range from regional investigative training sessions to policy development seminars. Training presentations are delivered by a team of certified experts. NCMEC programs are recognized by state and national accreditation agencies.

Availability of Services

Services provided by NCMEC are directed to the following:

- Parents and families of missing and exploited children.
- Local, state, and federal law enforcement investigators and agencies handling cases of missing and exploited children.
- Child care staff, child protection and social service personnel, criminal justice professionals, and legal practitioners who work with missing and exploited children and their families.
- Nonprofit organizations that seek access to a national network of resources and information.
- Members of the general public who have an interest in child safety.

Services are provided for the following:

- Cases of missing children, including endangered runaways; victims of family and nonfamily abduction; and those who have been lost, injured, or are otherwise missing.
- Reports of sightings of missing children.
- Other cases handled by law enforcement agencies that involve the victimization and possible exploitation of children.
- Reports of child exploitation and child pornography.

For parents or legal guardians of missing children, cases are taken in through the hotline when it has been determined that: (1) the child was younger than 18 years of age at the time of disappearance, and (2) a missing child report has been filed with the police. These cases include the following:

- Voluntary missing (runaway) cases, which are taken by NCMEC when a child is believed to have left on his or her own accord or when specific conditions indicate that the child is endangered, such as the existence of a life-threatening medical condition, a serious mental illness, a substance abuse problem, or a belief that the child is with a potentially dangerous individual or in a potentially dangerous situation.
- Family abduction cases, which are taken by NCMEC when it is determined that the person reporting the case has court-awarded custody of the child and that the child's whereabouts are unknown, is believed to be with a family member.
- International family abduction cases, which are taken by NCMEC when it is believed that the child has been taken by a noncustodial family member out of or brought into the United States and when the child's whereabouts are unknown, or when a child has been brought into the United States and the left-behind parent has made appropriate applications to invoke the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction.
- Nonfamily abduction cases, which may involve kidnapping by a stranger or by an acquaintance.
- Other cases, in which the facts are insufficient to determine the cause of a child's disappearance. The criteria for intake of a "lost, injured, or otherwise missing" child are the same as for a nonfamily abduction.

For law enforcement professionals, requests for resources, technical assistance, and access to NCMEC's database may be obtained by contacting NCMEC's Call Center or case management department. All services are free of charge.

For callers reporting a sighting of a missing child, the NCMEC Call Center will obtain complete information concerning the individual involved and the circumstances surrounding the sighting. A report will be distributed to law enforcement officials.

For callers reporting specific information concerning child pornography, the NCMEC Call Center also serves as the National Child Pornography Tipline. Reports of alleged child sexual exploitation, including child pornography and prostitution, are forwarded to the U.S. Department of Justice, U.S. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, or the U.S. Postal Inspection Service for verification and investigation.

For callers reporting instances of possible sexual exploitation, NCMEC acts as a referring agency and may provide technical assistance, but it does not formally handle such cases. Requests for services in cases of child sexual abuse, incest, and molestation are referred to appropriate law enforcement and child protection agencies.

These services have no waiting period or time limitation. All other calls and requests for information may be made at any time to NCMEC's Call Center. Free publications on child safety and protection are available on request.

Resources

Technical Assistance

Safeguard Their Tomorrows is a 48-minute, nationally accredited educational program for health care professionals designed to address the prevention and investigation of infant abductions. The program was produced by Mead-Johnson Nutritionals in cooperation with the Association of Women's Health, Obstetric, and Neonatal Nurses; the National Association of Neonatal Nurses; and NCMEC. A list of state clearinghouses is in appendix 12.

Publications

NCMEC publishes a wealth of materials on safety and prevention strategies for families, schools, community groups, and law enforcement. To learn more about NCMEC's publications and programs, visit the Web site at www.missingkids.com or call 800-THE-LOST (800-843-5678).

42 U.S.C. §§ 5771 and 5780. The National Center for Missing & Exploited Children was established in 1984 as a private, nonprofit organization to serve as a clearinghouse of information on missing and exploited children, to provide technical assistance to individuals and to law enforcement agencies, to offer training programs to law enforcement and social service professionals, to distribute photographs and descriptions of missing children, to coordinate child protection efforts with the private sector, to network with nonprofit service providers and state clearinghouses on missing person cases, and to provide information on effective laws to help ensure the protection of children. Working in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Justice, U.S. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, NCMEC serves as the National Child Pornography Tipline.

Appendix 2

Organizations Concerned With the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect: State Contacts

Appendix 2 contains lists of organizations that can provide information and materials on the prevention of child abuse and neglect:

- State Child Abuse Reporting Numbers. Each state designates specific agencies to receive and investigate reports of suspected child abuse and neglect. Typically, this responsibility is carried out by child protective services (CPS) within a child welfare agency (for example, Department of Social Services, Department of Human Resources, or Division of Child and Family Services). In some states, police departments may also receive reports of child abuse or neglect. The Child Welfare Gateway, formerly called the National Clearinghouse on Child Abuse and Neglect Information, has a resource listing of child abuse reporting numbers, state-by-state, online at www.childwelfare.gov. It provides a toll-free number, when available, and/or a local reporting number, and a link to the state's agency that is responsible for receiving and responding to reports.
- Toll-Free Crisis Hotline Numbers. These agencies and organizations can be contacted for help in intervening in a number of crises, including child abuse, a missing or abducted child, rape or incest, a runaway youth, victims of violent crime, and family violence. For more information or assistance with reporting, please call Childhelp USA at 800-4-A-CHILD (800-422-4453) or your local CPS agency.

In addition, The National Resource Center, FRIENDS, supports Community Based Child Abuse Prevention grantees and periodically updates the resource directory. This directory can be found on the FRIENDS National Resource Center Web site by using the following link:

INTERPOL State Liaison Offices

A point of contact has been established in each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, New York City, Puerto Rico, U.S. American Samoa, and the U.S. Virgin Islands for state and local authorities to receive assistance from INTERPOL on international investigations, including child abduction and kidnapping cases. This point of contact is known as the INTERPOL State Liaison Office. State and local law enforcement officials can forward requests for assistance through their State Liaison Office, which will then forward the request to USNCB for transmission to the appropriate foreign police authorities.
