INTRODUCTION

Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance

The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance is a government-wide compendium of Federal programs, projects, services, and activities that provide assistance or benefits to the American public. It contains financial and nonfinancial assistance programs administered by departments and establishments of the Federal government.

In 1984, Public Law 98-169 authorized the transfer of responsibilities of the Federal Program Information Act from the Office of Management and Budget to the General Services Administration (GSA). The transfer took place in July 1984. These responsibilities include the dissemination of Federal domestic assistance program information through the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, pursuant to the Federal Program Information Act, Public Law 95-220, as amended by Public Law 98-169. GSA now maintains the Federal assistance information database from which program information is obtained. The Office of Management and Budget serves as an intermediary agent between the Federal agencies and GSA, thus providing oversight to the necessary collection of Federal domestic assistance program data.

As the basic reference source of Federal programs, the primary purpose of the Catalog is to assist users in identifying programs that meet specific objectives of the potential applicant, and to obtain general information on Federal assistance programs. In addition, the intent of the Catalog is to improve coordination and communication between the Federal government and State and local governments.

The Catalog provides the user with access to programs administered by Federal departments and agencies in a single publication. Program information is cross referenced by functional classification (Functional Index), subject (Subject Index), applicant (Applicant Index), deadline(s) for program application submission (Deadlines Index), and authorizing legislation (Authorization Index). These are valuable resource tools that, if used carefully, can make it easier to identify specific areas of program interest more efficiently.

Other sections of the Catalog provide users with information on programs added and deleted since the last edition of the Catalog, a crosswalk of program numbers and title changes, regional and local offices, intergovernmental review requirements, definitions of the types of assistance under which programs are administered, proposal writing, grant application procedures, and additional sources of information on Federal programs and services.

Programs selected for inclusion in the Federal assistance data base are defined as any function of a Federal agency that provides assistance or benefits for a State or States, territorial possession, county, city, other political subdivision, grouping, or instrumentality thereof; any domestic profit or nonprofit corporation, institution, or individual, other than an agency of the Federal government.

A "Federal domestic assistance program" may in practice be called a program, an activity, a service, a project, a process, or some other name, regardless of whether it is identified as a separate program by statute or regulation. It will be identified in terms of its legal authority, administering office, funding, purpose, benefits, and beneficiaries.

"Assistance" or "benefits" refers to the transfer of money, property, services, or anything of value, the principal purpose of which is to accomplish a public purpose of support or stimulation authorized by Federal statute. Assistance includes, but is not limited to grants, loans, loan guarantees, scholarships, mortgage loans, insurance, and other types of financial assistance, including cooperative agreements; property, technical assistance, counseling, statistical, and other expert information; and service activities of regulatory agencies. It does not include the provision of conventional public information services.

For years, GSA has published a printed version of the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance (CFDA or Catalog), as required by legislation. That same legislation allowed GSA to distribute free copies of the printed Catalog to designated recipients. In fiscal year 2003, nearly 10,000 paper copies of the Catalog were distributed at no cost to the recipients Current legislation, however, authorizes GSA to determine in what form to prepare and publish the Catalog. Consistent with the Administration's Electronic-Government initiatives, the Government Paperwork Elimination Act, and a move to a paper free environment, GSA will now disseminate the Catalog electronically through the CFDA website on the Internet. As a result, effective immediately, GSA will no longer print and distribute free copies of the Catalog.

The Internet and GSA's free CFDA website at <http://www.cfda.gov> will be the primary means of disseminating the Catalog. The CFDA website will also contain a PDF file version of the Catalog that, when printed by any user, will have the same layout as the printed document that the Government Printing Office (GPO) has provided.

GPO will continue printing and selling the CFDA to interested buyers. For information about purchasing the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance from GPO, call the Superintendent of Documents at 202-512-1800 or toll free at 866-512-1800, or you may reach GPO's on-line bookstore at <http://bookstore.gpo.gov>.

Types Of Assistance

Currently, programs in the Catalog are being classified by GSA into 15 types of assistance. (Cooperative Agreements as a type of assistance is used for programs administered under that mechanism. However, the definition does not appear in this section.) Benefits and services of the programs are provided through seven financial types of assistance and eight nonfinancial types of assistance. The following list defines the types of assistance that are available through the programs. Code letters below (A through O) which identify the type of assistance) will follow program titles in the Agency Index, Applicant Eligibility Index, the Functional Index, Deadlines Index, and in the list of added programs.

- A. Formula Grants - Allocations of money to States or their subdivisions in accordance with distribution formulas prescribed by law or administrative regulation, for activities of a continuing nature not confined to a specific project.
- B. Project Grants - The funding, for fixed or known periods, of specific projects. Project grants can include fellowships, scholarships, research grants, training grants, traineeships, experimental and demonstration grants, evaluation grants, planning grants, technical assistance grants, survey grants, and construction grants.
- C. Direct Payments for Specified Use - Financial assistance from the Federal government provided directly to individuals, private firms, and other private institutions to encourage or subsidize a particular activity by conditioning the receipt of the assistance on a particular performance by the recipient. This does not include solicited contracts for the procurement of goods and services for the Federal government.
- D. Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use - Financial assistance from the Federal government provided directly to beneficiaries who satisfy Federal eligibility requirements with no restrictions being imposed on the recipient as to how the money is spent. Included are payments under retirement, pension, and compensatory programs.
- E. Direct Loans - Financial assistance provided through the lending of Federal monies for a specific period of time, with a reasonable expectation of repayment. Such loans may or may not require the payment of interest.
- F. Guaranteed/Insured Loans - Programs in which the Federal government makes an arrangement to identify a lender against part or all of any defaults by those responsible for repayment of loans.
- G. Insurance - Financial assistance provided to assure reimbursement for losses sustained under specified conditions. Coverage may be provided directly by the Federal government or through private carriers and may or may not involve the payment of premiums.

- H. Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods - Programs which provide for the sale, exchange, or donation of Federal real property, personal property, commodities, and other goods including land, buildings, equipment, food and drugs. This does not include the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property.
- I. Use of Property, Facilities, and Equipment - Programs which provide for the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property wherein the federally owned facilities or property do not remain in the possession of the recipient of the assistance.
- J. Provision of Specialized Services - Programs that provide Federal personnel directly to perform certain tasks for the benefit of communities or individuals. These services may be performed in conjunction with nonfederal personnel, but they involve more than consultation, advice, or counseling.
- K. Advisory Services and Counseling - Programs which provide Federal specialists to consult, advise, or counsel communities or individuals to include conferences, workshops, or personal contacts. This may involve the use of published information, but only in a secondary capacity.
- L. Dissemination of Technical Information - Programs that provide for the publication and distribution of information or data of a specialized or technical nature frequently through clearinghouses or libraries. This does not include conventional public information services designed for general public consumption.
- M. Training - Programs that provide instructional activities conducted directly by a Federal agency for individuals not employed by the Federal government.
- N. Investigation of Complaints - Federal administrative agency activities that are initiated in response to requests, either formal or informal, to examine or investigate claims of violations of Federal statutes, policies, or procedure. The origination of such claims must come from outside the Federal government.
- O. Federal Employment - Programs that reflect the Governmentwide responsibilities of the Office of Personnel Management in the recruitment and hiring of Federal civilian agency personnel.

Organization of the Catalog

The Catalog is divided into three basic sections -- the indices, the program descriptions, and the appendices.

INDICES --To locate specific programs of interest, determine eligibility, and to obtain information on the dates applications for assistance should be submitted to the funding agency, users may consult the Agency Program Index, the Functional Index, or the Subject Index; the Applicant Eligibility Index, and the Index listing deadlines for program applications.

The Agency Index Summary provides a description of the functions and activities of Federal agencies responsible for administering programs in the Catalog. Program numbers are also listed with the administering agency.

The Agency Program Index lists all programs in the Catalog in numerical order by the five-digit program identification number, the program title, the Federal agency responsible for administering the program, and whether the program offers financial assistance, nonfinancial assistance, or a combination of both.

The Functional Index Summary lists the basic functional categories and the subcategories that further identify specific areas of interest. Following the Summary is the Functional Index listing each program number and title under the appropriate basic category and subcategory.

The Subject Index provides a detailed listing of programs by various topics, popular name, general functional terms, categories of services, and selected beneficiaries, and is followed by the applicable program numbers.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act Index lists CFDA programs that are funded in whole or in part by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) of 2009, Public Law 111.5.

The Applicant Eligibility Index is a listing in program number sequence, along with program titles, indicating the applicants eligible to apply. The index lists programs that may be applied for by:

- Any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of a State exclusive of State institutions of higher education and hospitals;
- Local governments which include a county, parish, municipality, city, town, township, village, State-designated Indian tribal government, local public authority, school district, special district, intrastate district, council of governments, sponsor group representative organizations, and other regional or interstate government entity, or any agency or instrumentality of a local government;
- U.S. Territories (and possessions) of the United States which include the Commonwealths of Puerto Rico and the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and American Samoa;
- Federally-recognized Indian Tribal governments which include the governing body or a governmental agency of any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community (including any Native village as defined in Section 3 of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, 85 Stat. 688) certified by the Secretary of the Interior as eligible for the special programs and services provided through the Bureau of Indian Affairs;
- Nonprofit organizations and institutions which include quasi-public, public and private institutions of higher education and hospitals, Native American Indian Organizations, and other quasi-public and private nonprofit organizations such as, but not limited to, community action agencies (CAAs), Head Start agencies, research institutes, educational associations, and health centers. Excluded under this definition are government-owned contractor operated facilities or research centers providing support for mission-oriented, large scale programs that are government-owned or controlled, or are designed as federally-funded research and development centers; and
- Private individuals such as Native Americans, homeowners, students, farmers, artists, scientists, consumers, small business, refugees, aliens, veterans, senior citizens, low-income persons, health and education professionals, builders, contractors, developers, handicapped persons, the physically afflicted.

The Deadlines Index (for program applications) is a listing of program numbers and titles and the deadline date(s) by which funding agencies must receive applications. This information is also contained in the Deadlines Section of the program descriptions.

Users should also consult the following listings:

The Archived Programs list identifies programs that have been archived since the previous edition of the Catalog due to: expiration of budget authority; rescission of budget authority for the current fiscal year; program consolidation which has rendered the former program number(s) obsolete; the replacement of a categorical grant program by a block grant program; the replacement of two or more categorical programs by a block grant program; the abolishment of an agency; or the criteria for including a program in the Catalog no longer valid being (e.g., a program which no longer operates under Federal funding).

The Added Programs list identifies programs that have been added since the previous edition of the Catalog due to: the appropriation of new budget authority; the consolidation of two or more programs creating a new program; the splitting of elements from a former program creating two or more new programs; the transformation of a single categorical grant program into a block program; or the consolidation of two or more categorical grant programs into a block program.

The Crosswalk of Changes to Program Numbers and Titles which lists programs that have undergone a title change, or a program number change due to restructuring of programs, or reorganization of a Federal agency.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS -- The center section of the printed Catalog and the listings available on this web site contain descriptions of Federal programs listed by program number in the same numerical sequence as in the Agency Program Index. Detailed information concerning programs is contained under the description headings of each Catalog program. The following is an explanation of each program description heading followed by examples of the type of information found under each heading.

NOTE: The program used in the example below does not exist. It is provided for the purpose of illustration only.

PROGRAM NUMBER, TITLE, AND POPULAR NAME -- Each program in the Catalog is preceded by a five-digit program identification number. The first two digits identify the Federal department or agency that administers the program, and the last three numbers are assigned in numerical sequence. Thus, program number 10.500 is administered by the Department of Agriculture, 11.500 by the Department of Commerce, 12.500 by the Department of Defense, 93.500 by the Department of Health and Human Services, and so on. (In the numerical sequence of program numbers, some numbers do not appear due to program deletions or consolidations. To accommodate users' systems and records, the numbers are not reassigned to other programs but are reserved for the reinstated programs.) The program title is the descriptive name given to a program. The popular name, which is less descriptive than the program title, is the name by which programs are commonly known or most often used by applicants and agencies.

Example: 93.259 Mental Health -- Children's Services

FEDERAL AGENCY -- The Federal agency is the Federal department, agency, commission, council or instrumentality of the government, and the primary organizational sub-unit (the administering office) that has direct operational responsibility for managing a program.

Example: SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES ADMINISTRATION, PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

AUTHORIZATION -- This section lists the legal authority upon which a program is based (acts, amendments to acts, Public Law numbers, titles, sections, Statute Codes, citations to the U.S. Code, Executive Orders, Presidential Reorganization Plans, and Memoranda from an agency head). Information provided here is used to produce Appendix II, the Authorization Appendix.

Example: Community Mental Health Centers Act of 1975, Part A, Section 203(e), Public Law 94-63, 42 U.S.C. 2689.

OBJECTIVES -- This is a brief statement of specific objectives stated in terms of what the program is intended to accomplish along with the goals toward which the program is directed.

Example: To stimulate innovative approaches to children's mental health problems emphasizing prevention and coordination of community services; to expand training activities; and, to broaden resources for children's mental health services.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE -- This section indicates the form in which the assistance is transmitted from the Federal government and is initially received for use or distribution by the applicant.

Example: Project Grants.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS -- This section describes the potential uses for the assistance provided to meet stated objectives, and the specific restrictions placed upon the use of funds. The section cites one or more applications depending upon the nature of a particular program. Since this section translates objectives into the uses of a program, users may develop a clearer understanding of the program's objectives.

Example: Support for Continuation Grants only. Program authorizes funds on a matching basis for initial staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children. Staffing grants may be used for a portion of the costs of professional and technical personnel to operate a facility for child mental health services; a higher percentage may be paid if an area has been designated a poverty area by the Secretary, HHS. The proposed program must provide consultation and coordinating services with other community agencies serving children in service area, and must include a plan with the means by which it will be evaluated.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility -- This section indicates who can apply to the Federal government for assistance and the criteria the potential applicant must satisfy. For example, individuals may be eligible for research grants, and the criteria to be satisfied may be that they have a professional or scientific degree, 3 years of research experience, and be a citizen of the United States. Universities, medical schools, hospitals, or State and local governments may also be eligible. Where State governments are eligible, the type of State agency will be indicated (State welfare agency or State agency on aging) and the criteria that they must satisfy.

Certain programs in the Catalog (e.g., the Pell Grant program which provides grants to students) involve intermediate levels of application processing, i.e., applications are transmitted through colleges or universities that are neither the direct applicant nor the ultimate beneficiary. For these programs, the criteria that the intermediaries must satisfy are also indicated, along with intermediaries who are not eligible.

Example: To be eligible for staffing grants, applicants must be part of, or affiliated with, a community mental health center, unless there is no center serving the community. Applicants may then be any public or private nonprofit agency providing, or coordinating with programs that will provide a full range of mental health services for children and their families residing in the service area.

Beneficiary Eligibility -- This section lists the ultimate beneficiaries of a program, the criteria they must satisfy and who specifically is not eligible. The applicant and beneficiary will generally be the same for programs that provide assistance directly from a Federal agency. However, financial assistance that passes through State or local governments will have different applicants and beneficiaries since the assistance is transmitted to private sector beneficiaries who are not obligated to request or apply for the assistance.

Example: Children and their families in the service area as well as personnel of schools and other community agencies serving children.

Credentials/Documentation -- This is a brief description of the credentials or documentation required prior to, or along with, an application for assistance. The eligibility factors that must be proven, certified, or established are indicated in this section. This section also indicates whether OMB Circular No. A-87 requirements, "Cost Principles Applicable to Grants and Contracts with State and Local Governments," are applicable. In cases where specific Federal circulars or other regulatory requirements are not applicable to the program, disclaimer statements may be included referencing the requirement(s) from which the program is excluded, e.g., "This program is excluded from coverage under (applicable requirement)."

Example: Proof of nonprofit status is required of nonprofit organizations and institutions. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination -- This section indicates whether any prior coordination or approval is required with governmental or nongovernmental units prior to the submission of a formal application to the Federal funding agency. For example, programs may require: (1) State agency approval prior to the submission of an application to a Federal agency; (2) the submission of environmental impact information as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, and Executive Order 11514 of March 4, 1970; (3) coordination with the policies of the recently revised OMB Circular No. A-102, "Uniform Administrative Requirements for Grants and Cooperative Agreements to State and Local Governments" (referenced here for construction, land acquisition, and land development projects for which Federal funding exceeds $100,000); (4) coverage for eligibility under Executive Order 12372, "Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs"; or (5) a preapplication or preapplication conference. Applicants should also ascertain from the Federal agency the existence of other circular requirements not indicated by this section, and from the State, any State requirements that may be in effect. In cases where E.O. 12372 is not applicable to the program, a disclaimer statement is included referencing the exclusion, e.g., "This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372."

Example: Preapplication consultation with the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) Branch of the HHS Regional Office is not mandatory. Application must be accompanied by evidence of approval and recommendation by the appropriate State agency or agencies. The standard application forms, as furnished by the Federal agency and required by OMB Circular No. A102, must be used for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedure -- This section discusses the basic procedural steps required by the Federal agency in the application process, beginning with the lowest level (e.g., State and local government units, institutions or organizations) and ending eventually with the Federal government. Each program will indicate whether applications are to be submitted to the Federal headquarters, regional or local office, or to a State or local government office. Numerous programs in the Catalog require the standard application forms in OMB Circular No. A-102 (Attachment M). Other applications may be in the form of a written request to the funding agency stating the need for assistance and requesting available services, or a formal proposal prepared in response to an announcement in the Federal Register or the Commerce Business Daily. Also indicated in this section is guidance concerning the applicability of OMB Circular No. A-110, "Grants and Agreements with Institutions of Higher Education, Hospitals, and Other Nonprofit Organizations." In cases where specific Federal circulars or other regulatory requirements are not applicable to the program, disclaimer statements may be included referencing the requirement(s) from which the program is excluded, e.g., "This program is excluded from coverage under (applicable requirement)."

Example: Continuation Application Form ADM-115 should be used for staffing. Instructions and consultation may be obtained from the mental health section of the appropriate HHS Regional Office. Applications are sent to the Regional Office with copies to Acting Director, Division of Mental Health Service Programs, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. This program is subject to the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-110. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102.

Award Procedure -- This section lists the basic procedural steps for awarding assistance, beginning with the organizational components of the Federal agency that has final approval authority for the application and ending with the lowest level at which Federal resources are expended. Also indicated is whether assistance passes through the initial applicant for further distribution by intermediate level applicants to groups or individuals in the private sector.

Accepted applications are subject to evaluation by the headquarters, regional, local or district office to determine the feasibility of the proposed project to include consistency with Federal and individual agency policies concerning its scope and purpose. Grant payments may be made by a letter of credit, advance by Treasury check, or reimbursement by Treasury check. The headquarters office may make awards directly to the applicant, an agency field office, a regional office, or by an authorized county office.

Example: The Regional Health Administrator makes awards to approved applicants.

Deadlines -- When available, this section indicates the deadlines for applications to the funding agency that will be stated in terms of the date(s) or between what dates the application should be received. Reference is made to new applications, continuations, renewals, and supplementals. Application deadline information is also indicated in the Deadlines Index, in the agency's program guidelines, or announced in the Federal Register. Where not available, applicants should contact the funding agency for deadline information.

Example: Staffing: Determined by award period (contact the Regional Office).

Range of Approval or Disapproval Time -- This section informs the applicant of the representative range of time required for the application to be processed (in terms of days or months) at the Federal level. Example: From 90 to 120 days.

Appeals -- In some cases, there are no provisions for appeal. Where applicable, this section discusses appeal procedures or allowable rework time for resubmission of applications to be processed by the funding agency. Appeal procedures vary with individual programs and are either listed in this section or applicants are referred to appeal procedures documented in the relevant Code of Federal Regulations (CFR).

Example: Not applicable. (An appeal was not applicable in this case. A related program (93.231) allows applicants to reapply if revised applications are submitted.)

Renewals -- This section advises the applicant as to whether renewals or extensions of applications are available and indicates the appropriate procedures to follow. In some instances, renewal procedures may be the same as for the application procedure, e.g., for projects of a non-continuing nature renewals will be treated as new, competing applications; for projects of an ongoing nature, renewals may be given annually.

Example: This program is renewed annually. Grantees are required to update their plan and submit a current year budget.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements -- This section indicates the formula and matching requirements prescribed in the allocation of funds or maintenance of effort requirements. A formula may be based on population, per capita income, and other statistical factors. Applicants are informed whether there are any matching requirements to be met when participating in the cost of a project. In general, the matching share represents that portion of the project costs not borne by the Federal government. Usually, a minimum percentage for matching share is prescribed by program legislation, and matching share requirements are included in the grant agreement. Attachment F of OMB Circular No. A-102 sets forth the criteria and procedures for the evaluation of matching share requirements which may be cash or in-kind contributions made by State and local governments or other agencies, institutions, private organizations, or individuals to satisfy matching requirements of Federal grants or loans.

Cash contributions represent the grantees' cash outlay, including the outlay of money contributed to the grantee by other public agencies, institutions, private organizations, or individuals. When authorized by Federal regulation, Federal funds received from other grants may be considered as the grantees' cash contribution.

In-kind contributions represent the value of noncash contributions provided by the grantee, other public agencies and institutions, private organizations or individuals. In-kind contributions may consist of charges for real property and equipment, and value of goods and services directly benefiting and specifically identifiable to the grant program. When authorized by Federal legislation, property purchased with Federal funds may be considered as grantees' in-kind contribution.

Maintenance of effort (MOE) is a requirement contained in certain legislation, regulations, or administrative policies stating that a grantee must maintain a specified level of financial effort in a specific area in order to receive Federal grant funds, and that the Federal grant funds may be used only to supplement, not supplant, the level of grantee funds. Programs that have maintenance of effort requirements and have total allocations over $100 million (current FY) should have the following statement in this section: This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements; see funding agency for further details.

Example: Staffing: Federal funds on a decreasing percentage basis over a period of 8 years 90 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 80 percent - 3rd year; 75 percent - 4th and 5th years; 70 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years. Nonpoverty areas are entitled to: 80 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 75 percent - 3rd year; 60 percent - 4th year; 45 percent - 5th year; 30 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance -- This section indicates the time period during which the assistance is normally available, whether there are any restrictions placed on the time permitted to use the funds awarded, and the timing of disbursement of the assistance, e.g., lump sum, annually, quarterly, or as required. Example: Staffing grants are limited to 8 years by law. Payments are made on a Monthly Cash Request System or under a Letter of Credit.

POST ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS:

Reports -- This section indicates whether program reports, expenditure reports, cash reports or performance monitoring is required by the Federal funding agency, and specifies at what time intervals (monthly, annually, etc.) this must be accomplished.

Example: Interim progress reports must be submitted annually as part of a non-competing application; reports of expenditures are due annually. Immediate reporting of any inventions is required.

Audits -- This section discusses audits required by the Federal agency. The procedures and requirements for State and local governments and nonprofit entities are set forth in OMB Circular No. A-133. These requirements pertain to awards made within the respective State's fiscal year -- not the Federal fiscal year, as some State and local governments may use the calendar year or other variation of time span designated as the fiscal year period, rather than that commonly known as the Federal fiscal year (from October 1st through September 30th).

Example: In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133, "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that receive financial assistance of $300,000 or more in Federal awards will have an audit made for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $300,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133.

Records -- This section indicates the record retention requirements and the type of records the Federal agency may require. Not included are the normally imposed requirements of the General Accounting Office. For programs falling under the purview of OMB Circular No. A-102, record retention is set forth in Attachment C. For other programs, record retention is governed by the funding agency's requirements.

Example: Records must be retained at least 3 years; records shall be retained beyond the 3-year period if audit findings have not been resolved.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Account Identification -- This 11-digit budget account identification code represents the account that funds a particular program. This code should be consistent with the code given for the program area as specified in Appendix III of the Budget of the United States Government. (See Appendix III for further information on the meaning of the 11 digits of this code.)

Example: 75-1361-0-1-550.

Obligations -- The dollar amounts listed in this section represent obligations for the past fiscal year (PY), estimates for the current fiscal year (CY), and estimates for the budget fiscal year (BY) as reported by the Federal agencies. In each succeeding edition of the Catalog, the dollar amounts are revised to reflect changes that may result from supplemental appropriations or amendments. Each program indicates what the obligation figures represent in terms of the type of assistance provided. Obligations for nonfinancial assistance programs indicate the administrative expenses involved in the operation of a program as an indication of the magnitude of the services being provided, or the items involved in obligations.

Example: (Grants) PY $19,853,000; CY est. $20,407,000; and BY est. $14,830,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance -- This section lists the representative range (smallest to largest) of the amount of financial assistance available. These figures are based upon funds awarded in the past fiscal year and the current fiscal year to date. Also indicated is an approximate average amount of awards that were made in the past and current fiscal years.

Example: Formula: $26,355 to $691,481; $235,305.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS -- This section briefly describes the accomplishments of a program using quantitative data, focusing on program output, results achieved, or services rendered during the past fiscal year, the current fiscal year, and projections for the coming fiscal year.

Example: In the past fiscal year, 140 applications were received and 140 staffing awards were issued. Approximately 147 continuation grants were funded during the current fiscal year and 103 are estimated to be funded in the budget fiscal year.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE -- This section lists the title, number, and price of guidelines, handbooks, manuals, and other officially published information pertinent to a program. Since program regulations are published first in the Federal Register (FR) and later in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), citations to the CFR are listed.

Example: Interim guidelines available in application kits.

INFORMATION CONTACTS:

Regional or Local Office -- This section lists the agency contact person, address and telephone number of the Federal Regional or Local Office(s) to be contacted for detailed information regarding a program such as: (1) current availability of funds and the likelihood of receiving assistance within a given period; (2) preapplication and application forms required; (3) whether a preapplication conference is recommended; (4) assistance available in preparation of applications; (5) whether funding decisions are made at the headquarters, regional or local level; (6) application renewal procedures (including continuations and supplementals) or appeal procedures for rejected applications; and (7) recently published program guidelines and material.

However, for most programs in the Catalog, this section will instruct the reader to consult Appendix IV of the Catalog (Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses) due to the volume of Regional and Local Office Contacts for most agencies. For those agencies with fewer contacts, the actual information will be provided in this section.

Example: Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMSHA) Branch of the appropriate HHS Regional Office (see Appendix IV of the Catalog for listing).

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS -- This section indicates the different types of projects which have been funded in the past. Only projects funded under Project Grants or Direct Payments for Specified Use should be listed here. The examples give potential applicants an idea of the types of projects that may be accepted for funding. The agency should list at least five examples of the most recently funded projects.

Example: Awards are made only for staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS -- This section indicates the criteria used by the Federal grantor agency to evaluate proposals in order to inform potential applicants of the application review process and the criteria used to award funds for projects.

Example: The criteria for selecting proposals are based upon the extent the project will contribute to needed services and training, capability of applicant to provide services and training, more effective utilization of personnel providing mental health services, and development of new methods or information.

AGENCY INDEX SUMMARY

The export promotion and service agency for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Stimulates overseas markets for U.S. agricultural products. FAS fulfills its role as the promotional agency for the world's largest agricultural export business through its network of agricultural counselors, attaches, and trade officers stationed overseas and its backup team of analysts, marketing specialists, negotiators, and related specialists. FAS maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting system through its attached service. FAS also has a continuing market development program to develop, service, and expand commercial export markets for U.S. agricultural products. By virtue of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, FAS received authority to open at least 6 and not more than 25 agricultural trade offices overseas to develop, maintain and expand international markets for U.S. agricultural commodities. Ten of these offices have been established and are located in such key markets as West Germany, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, and Mexico City. To improve access for U.S. farm products abroad, FAS international trade policy specialists coordinate and direct USDA's responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations. FAS also manages the Public Law 480 Program, Titles I and III (Food for Peace Program), and the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) Export Credit Guarantee Programs. Public Law 480 is aimed at long-range improvement in the economies of developing countries. Commercial programs promote commercial agricultural exports by providing credit guarantees to exporters which are used to obtain additional U.S. exports. Title I, the concession sales section of Public Law 480, provides for low-interest, long-term credit to recipients of U.S. farm commodities. The Title II program authorizes the donation of agricultural commodities to foreign governments, voluntary relief agencies, or intergovernmental organizations. Title III permits multiyear programming and forgiveness of dollar payments, provided the recipient country undertakes specific agricultural and economic development projects for commodities delivered under Title I agreements. FAS focuses on sharing knowledge of agriculture through development assistance and cooperation with other countries. Primary activities are providing technical assistance and training in agriculture to other countries, particularly the developing world; working with international food and agricultural organizations to solve world food problems; and sponsoring scientific exchanges and research that will help farmers both at home and abroad.

Forest Service (10.652, 10.664-10.666, 10.672, 10.674-10.676, 10.678-10.691, 10.693-10.694)

Cares for the land and serves people. Promotes the sustainability of ecosystems by ensuring their health, diversity, and productivity, which is coupled with this service ethic: work collaboratively and use appropriate scientific information in caring for the land and serving people. Provides financial, technical and scientific assistance to outside organizations in order to achieve these goals when authorized by statute. These land and service ethics are applied by the Forest Service through ecosystem management. Ecosystem management is the integration of ecological, economic, and social factors in order to maintain and enhance the quality of the environment to meet current and future needs. The four strategic goals of the Forest Service are to: (1) protect ecosystems, (2) restore deteriorated ecosystems, (3) provide multiple benefits for people within the capabilities of ecosystems, and (4) ensure organizational effectiveness. The Forest Service Natural Resource Agenda identifies four key areas of national focus. They are: watershed, health and restoration; sustainable forest ecosystem management; forest roads management; and recreation enhancement. Implementation of the agenda will help bring people together and help them find ways to live within the limits of the land. This in turn will ensure that future generations will forever be endowed with the rich natural bounty of our Nation.

National Agricultural Statistics Service (10.950)

Agricultural estimates involve collecting, analyzing, and publishing agricultural production and marketing data, including: number of farms and acreage in farms; crop acreage, yields, production, stocks, value, and utilization; inventories and production of livestock, poultry, eggs, and dairy products; prices received by farmers for products, prices paid for commodities and services for living and production, and related indexes; farm employment and wage rates; cold storage supplies; agricultural chemical use; aquaculture; and other relevant aspects of the agricultural economy. Estimates for about 120 crops and 45 livestock items are published in about 400 Federal and 9,000 State-Federal reports each year. Beginning in 1997, NASS is responsible for the Census of Agriculture, previously conducted by the Bureau of the Census, Commerce Department. The Census of Agriculture is taken every 5 years and provides comprehensive data down to the county level on all aspects of the agricultural economy for the U.S., as well as selected data for American Samoa, Puerto Rico, Guam, Virgin Islands, and the Northern Mariana Islands. All information is made available to the news media and the public at scheduled release times and is available for free on the Internet. Statistical research and service is directed toward improving crop and livestock estimating techniques. Considerable emphasis is placed on improving survey sample designs as well as testing new forecasting and estimating techniques, such as using satellite data.

National Institute of Food and Agriculture (10.200, 10.202-10.203, 10.205-10.207, 10.210, 10.212, 10.215-10.217, 10.219-10.223, 10.225-10.228, 10.303-10.320, 10.322, 10.324-10.327)

The National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) is an agency within the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), part of the executive branch of the Federal Government. Congress created NIFA through the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008. NIFA replaced the former Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service (CSREES), which had been in existence since 1994. NIFA's unique mission is to advance knowledge for agriculture, the environment, human health and well-being, and communities by supporting research, education, and extension programs in the Land-Grant University System and other partner organizations. NIFA doesn't perform actual research, education, and extension but rather helps fund it at the state and local level and provides program leadership in these areas.

Supports the objectives of the Nation's commitment to the 1973 International Boundary and Water Commission Agreement concerning the quality of water in the Colorado River delivered downstream to users in the United States and the Republic of Mexico. Conserves water; preserves, maintains, and improves migratory waterfowl habitat and other wildlife resources. Encourages good forestry management through the development, management, and protection of non-industrial private forest lands, to increase the production of timber and enhance other forest resources.

RMA's mission is to promote, support, and regulate sound risk management solutions to preserve and strengthen the economic stability of America's agricultural producers. As part of this mission, RMA operates and manages the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC). RMA was created in 1996; the FCIC was founded in 1938. RMA, via the FCIC, provides crop insurance to American producers. Private-sector insurance companies sell and service the policies. RMA develops and/or approves the premium rate, administers premium and expense subsidy, approves and supports products, and reinsures the insurance companies. RMA through the formation of partnerships with public and private organizations fund projects that:

(A) Create new products, seek enhancements in existing products, and expand the use of non-insurance risk management tools that will be utilized by agricultural producers to assist them in mitigating the risks inherent in agricultural production. Risk management tools include a variety of risk management options and strategies developed to assist producers in mitigating the risks inherent in agricultural production. Risk management tools may include financial management tools to mitigate price and production risks; tools to enhance measurement and prediction of risks in order to facilitate risk diversification; tools to improve production management, harvesting, record keeping or marketing. (B) Provide women, limited resource, socially disadvantaged, and other traditionally underserved producers of Priority Commodities with risk management training, informational opportunities, and assistance necessary to understand: (1) The kind of risks addressed by existing and emerging risk management tools; (2) The features and appropriate use of existing and emerging risk management tools; and (3) How to make sound risk management decisions. (C) Deliver crop insurance education and information to U.S. agricultural producers in certain States that have been designated as historically underserved with respect to crop insurance. The states, collectively referred to as Targeted States, are Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wyoming. (D) Deliver risk management education and information in the management of production, marketing, and financial risk to U.S. agricultural producers. The program gives priority to educating producers of crops currently not insured under Federal crop insurance, specialty crops, and underserved commodities, including livestock and forage.

ETA funds training programs which enable workers to attain the skills needed for employment; administers a Federal-State employment service system which helps people find jobs and employers find workers. It also offers wage replacement programs for workers who lose their jobs through no fault of their own, such as the Unemployment Insurance (UI) and the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) programs. Special efforts are made to address the unique job market problems of groups having difficulty entering or returning to the work force, such as older workers, school dropouts, displaced homemakers and individuals with disabilities. ETA also is responsible for promoting apprenticeship standards and programs and conducting programs of research, development and evaluation. The American Folklife Center in the Library of Congress, has a coordinative function both in and outside the Federal establishment to carry out appropriate programs to support, preserve, and present American folklife through such activities as the collection and maintenance of archives, scholarly research, field projects, performances, exhibitions, festivals, workshops, publications, and audiovisual presentations. The Center for the Book was established in the Library of Congress to provide a program for investigating the transmission of human knowledge and to heighten public interest in the role of books and printing in the diffusion of knowledge. Drawing on the resources of the Library of Congress, the Center works closely with other organiza- tions to explore important issues in the book and educational communities, to encourage reading, and to encourage research about books and about reading. Its goal is to serve as a useful catalyst by bringing together authors, publishers, librarians, booksellers, educators, scholars, and readers to discuss common concerns and work toward the solution of common problems. The Library provides technical information related to the preservation and restoration of library and archival material. A series of leaflets on various preservation and conservation topics has been prepared by the Preservation Office. Information and publica- tions are available from the National Preservation Program Office, Library of Congress. A free national library program of braille and recorded materials for blind and physically handicapped persons is administered by the National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (NLS), Library of Congress. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY (81.001-81.999)

DOE is major government enterprise. If included among the Nation's Fortune 500 firms, it would rank in the top 50. Its $16.5 billion appropriation comprises close to 3 percent of total Federal discretionary spending DOE Funds the largest environmental cleanup in history, and research and development that supports the Nation's defense and its energy and economic security. DOE employs over 11,000 Federal employees and about 108,000 contract employees. DOE owns and manages over 50 major installations located on 2.4 million acres in 35 States and is the fourth largest Federal landowner in the United States. DOE is an energy policy, supply, and technology enterprise. It invests in developing a secure, clean, and sustainable energy system. It helps the Nation meet its environmental challenges by administering the largest pollution prevention and efficiency program in the world, with partners from every sector of the economy. It enhances the Nation's energy security by increasing the diversity of energy, and fuel choices and sources; bringing renewable energy sources into the market, strengthening domestic production of oil and gas, maintaining the U.S. nuclear energy option, and increasing the efficiency with which we use energy and generate electricity. The Department also maintains the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and operates five Power Marketing Administrations that sell and distribute over $3 billion of electric power generated at Federal hydroelectric plants. DOE is a national security enterprise. It is a key player in the Administration's furtherance of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty and its overall goal of reducing the global danger from nuclear weapons. It ensures the safety and reliability of the U.S. nuclear weapons stockpile without underground testing. At the same time, it manages and safely dismantles excess nuclear materials, and ensures the security of vital departmental nuclear assets. It provides policy and technical assistance to curb global proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, emphasizing U.S. nonproliferation, arms control, and nuclear safety objectives in the states of the former Soviet union and worldwide. Further, it develops and ensures the safety and reliability of nuclear reactor plants to power U.S. Navy warships. DOE is an environmental remediation enterprise. It cleans up the 50-year environmental legacy left at the industrial complexes where nuclear weapons were designed and manufactured. It manages the problems associated with the large quantities of various types of radioactive wastes, surplus nuclear materials, and spent nuclear fuels that remain at the sites of the Nation's nuclear weapons facilities and at nuclear energy research and development sites. In addition, it must address the growing inventory of spent nuclear fuel from commercial nuclear reactors that is awaiting disposal. These wastes must be dealt with responsibly to ensure the safety and health of the public. DOE is a science and technology enterprise. At the center of all we do are our 27 laboratories, our additional scientific user facilities, and our researchers at the Nation's universities. These form the backbone of U.S. scientific leadership by conducting and facilitating breakthrough research in energy sciences and technology, high energy physics, global climate change, genomics, superconducting materials, accelerator technologies, environmental sciences, and super-computing in support of DOE's mission. The laboratories, described as the crown jewels of the Nation's science establishment, and the Department's funding of research at universities have resulted in 66 Nobel prize winners, including three in 1996. The Department is also an investor in the Nation's most precious resource - its youth - by supporting science and mathematics education in our schools through grants, educational programs, and fellowships. DOE is global enterprise. The outcome of our work is the technology that stimulates the private market for the expansion of clean energy to meet national and global energy requirements of almost 500 quadrillion Btu's by the year 2010 - a staggering 36 percent increase over 1995. Overseas energy market needs include coal, nuclear power, oil and gas exploration, energy efficiency, and renewable energy technologies that are available for export now or that will soon be available for the international marketplace. DOE supports the export of U.S. energy services and technologies by assisting the nations in Asia, South America, Eastern Europe, an Africa, and the states of the former Soviet Union in developing private markets for environmentally responsible, sustainable energy. These alliances support U.S. competitiveness in a global economy of growing energy infrastructure requirements and create jobs in the U.S. at all skill levels.

PENSION BENEFIT GUARANTY CORPORATION (86.001-86.999)

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation guarantees payment of nonforfeitable pension benefits in covered, private-sector-defined benefit pension plans. Title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.) provides for coverage of most private-sector-defined benefit pension plans that provide a benefit based on factors such as age, years of service, and average or highest salary. The Corporation administers two benefit insurance programs separately covering single-employer and multi-employer plans. Nearly 40 million workers participate in more than 112,000 covered plans.

Single-Employer Insurance: Under the single-employer program, the Corporation guarantees payment of a covered plan's basic benefits if that plan terminates without sufficient assets to pay those guaranteed benefits.

Multi-employer Insurance: Under Title IV of the Act, as originally enacted, the Corporation guaranteed nonforfeitable benefits for multi-employer plans in a similar fashion as for single-employer plans. However, the payment of guaranteed benefits was at the agency's discretion under the provisions of the law that remained in force until August 1, 1980. The Multi-employer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1980 (29 U.S.C. 1001) revised the law applicable to multi-employer pension plans by changing the insurable event from plan termination to plan insolvency. In accordance with the Act, the Corporation provides financial assistance to plans that are unable to pay basic benefits. The plans are obligated to repay such assistance. The act also made employers withdrawing from a plan liable to the plan for a portion of its unfunded vested benefits. Premium Collections: All defined benefit pension plans covered by Title IV of Employee Retirement Income Security Act are required to pay premiums under prescribed rates to the Corporation.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION (96.001-96.999)

On March 31, 1995, the Social Security Administration (SSA) became an independent agency. SSA administers a national program of contributory social insurance. Employees, employers, and the self-employed pay contributions which are pooled in special trust funds. When earnings cease or are reduced because the worker retires, dies, or becomes disabled, monthly cash benefits are paid to replace part of the earnings the family has lost. Part of the workers contribution goes into a separate hospital insurance trust fund. This fund helps disabled workers, retirees, and their dependents with their hospital bills. They may also elect to receive assistance with medical expenses. This is done by the workers paying a percentage of supplementary medical insurance premiums. The Federal government pays the balance. Together, these two programs are often referred to as "Medicare." Medicare protection is also provided, under certain conditions, to Railroad Retirement beneficiaries based on a disability. The principal functions of SSA include, but are not limited to; research and recommendations oriented to the problems of poverty; health care for the aged, blind, and disabled; long-range planning, design, and development of SSA administrative plans; data processing systems used in establishing and maintaining records essential to its' various programs; statistical measurement and systematic evaluation of its' programs; policy guidance for the administration of the OASDI and SSI programs; and development of programs and materials to assure that Congress, Federal and State agencies, and the general public have an adequate understanding of the protections, rights, and responsibilities under SSA administered programs. In addition, SSA, through a world-wide organization of ten regional offices, six program service centers, and over 1,300 field offices, guides and directs all aspects of the cash benefit program operations of SSA

10.051 COMMODITY LOANS AND LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS

(Price Supports)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, Public Law 110-246.

OBJECTIVES:

To improve and stabilize farm income, to assist in bringing about a better balance between supply and demand of the commodities, and to assist farmers in the orderly marketing of their crops.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT LOANS; DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Loans and loan deficiency payments (LDP's) give farmers a means of promoting more orderly marketing. Loans to producers may be "nonrecourse" which means that producers have the option of forfeiting the collateral to CCC at loan maturity in full satisfaction of the loan obligation; or "recourse" for low quality grain, or non-ginned seed cotton, which means that producers must repay the loans by maturity." If market prices are above the support level producers may repay their loans at the original loan principal plus interest and market their commodities. When market prices are low, most nonrecourse commodity loan repayments are less than the original loan principal plus interest. Eligible commodities for loans are wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats, barley, rice, peanuts, upland cotton, extra-long staple cotton, soybeans, crambe, canola, flaxseed, mustard seed, rapeseed, safflower, sunflower seed, sesame seed, dry peas, lentils, small and large chickpeas, graded and ungraded wool, mohair, honey, and sugar. LDP's are offered for wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats, barley, upland cotton, rice, soybeans, crambe, canola, flaxseed, mustard seed, rapeseed, safflower, sunflower seed, sesame seed, peanuts, dry peas, lentils, small and large chickpeas, graded and ungraded wool, unshorn pelts, mohair, honey, hay, and silage. If the loan repayment rates for these commodities are less than the established loan levels, producers may, for most commodities that are eligible for a nonrecourse loan, agree to forego such loan and elect to receive an LDP. The LDP payment rate equals the amount by which the loan rate exceeds the loan repayment rate in effect at the time the LDP application is approved, or the delivery date, or date sold or date beneficial interest is lost, as applicable.

Applicant Eligibility:

Owner, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper on an eligible farm that has produced the eligible commodities or, in the case of sugar, a processor or refiner who meets program requirements as announced by the Secretary.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Owner, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper on a farm that has produced the eligible commodities, meets program requirements as announced by the Secretary, and maintains beneficial interest in the commodity.

Credentials/Documentation:

Record of farming operation must be on file in the FSA county office and a complete acreage report to account for all cropland on the farm must be submitted for the applicable crop year. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

In the case of warehouse-stored commodities, producer or Cooperative Marketing Association presents warehouse receipts to the FSA county office (warehouse-stored peanut loans may be made through Designated Marketing Associations). In the case of farm-stored commodities (including sugar), producer/processor or Cooperative Marketing Association requests a loan at the FSA county office.

Award Procedure:

Applications are approved by the FSA upon determination that applicant and commodity are eligible.

Deadlines:

Sep 30, 2009 Loans and LDP's are available for peanuts, graded and ungraded wool, mohair, and unshorn pelts (LDP ONLY) through January 31 of the year following the year in which the crop is normally harvested, shorn, or slaughtered. OBJECTIVES:

To encourage the construction of on farm grain storage capacity and to help farmers adapt to identity preserved storage and handling requirements for genetically enhanced production.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT LOANS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Loans are used to finance the purchase and construction of new storage structures, handling equipment and drying equipment, and to finance the remodeling of existing storage structures. The loan amount is limited to $500,000 per storage facility for each loan. The following are security requirements for farm storage facility loans: All loans must be secured by a promissory note and security agreement, as well as a UCC-1 describing the storage facility and accompanying equipment; and Severance agreements from all lien holders on the real estate where the facility will be located or from owners of real estate when the loan applicant is not the landowner, except when CCC holds the first lien on the real estate. Severance agreements will not be required if the borrower increases the down payment from 15 percent to 20 percent. For loans that exceed $50,000 or the borrower's aggregate outstanding loan balance exceeds $50,000, the borrower must be able to provide at least one of the following: A first lien on the real estate on which the facility is located; Real estate owned by the borrower other than where the facility is located, provided the real estate offered is sufficient to secure the loan; or An irrevocable letter of credit from a financial institution in an amount sufficient to protect CCC's interest for each year the loan has an outstanding balance. Facility Loan Terms. The following are the terms for farm storage facility loans: A 15 percent cash down payment is required; thus, CCC's loan is limited to 85 percent of the net cost of the eligible storage facility and permanent drying and handling equipment (subject to the applicant's storage needs test). The down payment cannot include any trade-in, discount, rebate, deferred payment, or post-dated check. Loan terms available are seven (7) years, ten (10) years or twelve (12) years depending on the amount of the loan. Interest rate is fixed for the loan term based on the rate in effect during the month the loan is initially approved. The interest rate is equivalent to the rate of interest charged on Treasury Securities of comparable term and maturity. Loans are to be repaid in equal amortized annual installments. Loan will not be disbursed until the facility has been erected and inspected with the exception of one (1) qualifying partial disbursement, once 50 percent of the facility has been completed. Cost of Obtaining a Loan. Each applicant will be charged a nonrefundable $100 application fee. CCC will pay all collateral lien searches and recording fees for filing Form UCC-1 and credit reports. Applicants pay all other fees, such as severance agreements, attorney fees, real estate lien search fees, and instrument filing fees. For loans over $50,000, applicants will be required to pay the cost of obtaining a title search/opinion or title insurance. Persons Required to Sign the Note. The following persons are required to sign the loan agreement: For sole proprietorships and joint ventures, all individuals, including spouses, if applicable. For general partnerships, any member unless the Articles of Partnership are more restrictive. For corporations and limited partnerships, an individual with signature authority on file with FSA. TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Eligible owners or operators may place highly erodible or other environmentally sensitive land into a 10-15 year contract. The participant, in return for annual payments, agrees to implement a conservation plan approved by the local conservation district for converting highly erodible cropland or other environmentally sensitive land to a long-term resource conserving cover i.e., eligible land must be planted with a vegetative cover, such as, perennial grasses, legumes, fobs, shrubs, or trees. Financial and technical assistance are available to participants to assist in the establishment of a long-term resource conserving cover.

Applicant Eligibility:

An individual, partnership, association, Indian Tribal ventures corporation, estate, trust, other business enterprises or other legal entities and, whenever applicable, a State, a political subdivision of a State, or any agency thereof may submit an offer to enroll acreage.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

If their offer is accepted for enrollment, an individual, partnership, association, Indian Tribal ventures, corporation, estate, trust, other business enterprises or other legal entities and, whenever applicable, a State, political subdivision of State, or any agency thereof may earn benefits.

Credentials/Documentation:

The land must be owned or operated for not less than 12 months prior to the close of the signup period, unless the land was acquired by will or succession or FSA determines that ownership was not acquired for the purpose of placing the land in the CRP. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is required. An environmental impact statement is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. FSA has three methods for enrolling acreage in the CRP. One method is a continuous signup process where acreage suitable for certain environmental priority practices, including but not limited to grass waterways, riparian buffers or filterstrips, and acreage within wellhead protection areas may be offered and accepted without going through a competitive offer process. The second method is similar to continuous signup and is available only in distinct geographic areas. These areas are targeted by FSA and State governments under partnership agreements. The third method is to offer acreage during a general signup period where eligible offers to enroll highly erodible and other environmentally sensitive acreage are submitted and ranked competitively based on an environmental benefits index. Regardless of the method of enrollment, the local FSA office that serves the area in which the farm or ranch is located will provide the maximum payment rate CCC will accept to enroll certain acreage in the program. Producers may submit a rental rate per acre offered that may be equal to or less than CCC's maximum payment rate.

Award Procedure:

FSA will notify persons whose offers are determined acceptable as soon as practicable after the close of the signup.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 7 to 120 days.

Appeals:

Producers may appeal any determination to county FSA committee, State committee, or National Appeals Division. Matters that are generally applicable to all producers are not appealable.

10.072 WETLANDS RESERVE PROGRAM

(WRP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Natural Resources Conservation Service, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Food Security Act of 1985, Title XII, Part Subtitle D, Section 1237, Public Law 99-198, 99 Stat. 1504, 16 U.S.C 3831.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist landowners in restoring and protecting wetlands on eligible lands on which they agree to enter into a permanent or 30- yearlong-term easement (30-year contract for Indian tribes) , or a restoration cost-share agreement with the Secretary. The goal of WRP is to maximize wetland functions and values and wildlife benefits on every acre enrolled in the program. Total acreage enrollment limitation is 3.041 ,2002,275,000 acres.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS FOR A SPECIFIED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Eligible landowners may offer farmed wetlands, prior converted wetlands, wetlands farmed under natural condition, former or degraded wetlands on lands that have been used or are currently being used for the production of food and fiber, including cropland, rangeland and forest production land, lands substantially altered by flooding, certain riparian areas, along with certain adjacent areas. The goal of the WRP is to achieve the greatest wetlands functions and values, along with optimum wildlife habitat on every acre enrolled in the program. At least 70 percent of the wetland and upland areas will be restored to the natural condition to the extent practicable; the remaining 30 percent of the project area may be restored to other than natural conditions. Enrollment options include permanent easements, 30-year easements, restoration cost-share agreements, and, for acreage owned by Indian Tribes, 30-year contracts. To be eligible for participation, land must be restorable and be suitable for wildlife benefits. Participating landowners must comply with the terms and conditions of their easement, agreement or contract for the duration of the document. For easement projects, landowners shall ensure the easement is superior to the rights of all others and shall agree to implement a wetland restoration plan designed to restore and maintain the easement area. Landowners must agree to a permanent retirement of crop acreage bases, allotments, and quotas to the extent that the sum of the crop acreage bases and allotments will not exceed the remaining cropland on the farm.

Participating landowners receive financial and technical assistance to install necessary restoration practices as follows.

Permanent easements: Easement duration is in perpetuity. Landowners receive an easement payment after the easement is filed. In addition NRCS shall share the cost of carrying out the establishment conservation measures and practices, and the protection of wetland functions and values including necessary maintenance activities to the extent that the Secretary determines that cost-sharing is appropriate and in the public interest.

30-year easements: Easement duration is 30 years. Landowners receive an easement payment after the easement is filed that is the equivalent of 75 percent of the value for a permanent easement and up to 75 percent of the eligible restoration costs.

Restoration cost-share agreements: Restoration cost-share agreements are made available to participating landowners as an alternative mechanism to restore wetlands, without requiring the participant to sell an easement. Agreements are generally for a 10-year period, although longer agreement periods may be required for unique projects that are funded at a higher level. There is no easement payment; however, NRCS pays up to 75 percent of the eligible restoration costs.

30-year contracts: Acreage owned by Indian Tribes can be enrolled through the use of a 30-year contract which shall be equivalent in value to a 30-year easement.

For both permanent and 30-year easements, WRP pays for all the overhead costs associated with recording the easement in the local land records office including recording fees, charges for title abstracts, surveys, appraisal fees, records searches, and title insurance associated with acquiring an easement. These overhead costs are generally not paid to participants but are provided directly to the vendor performing the service. Therefore, payments appearing on USDA spending.gov will be reflective of payments to participants and payments to vendors for services associated with restoration and management activities and administrative costs associated with recording an easement.

Under Credentials/Documentation

Eligible applicants must be in compliance with the highly erodible land and wetland conservation provisions in 7 CFR part 12 and the Adjusted Gross Income provisions in 7 CRP part 1400. They must be the landowner of the eligible land being offered for participation. For easement applications, the applicant must have owned the land for the 7-year period prior to the time the land is determined eligible for enrollment unless it is determined that the land was acquired by will or succession as a result of death of the previous owner; the ownership change occurred due to foreclosure and the owner of the land immediately before foreclosure exercises a right of redemption from the mortgage holder; or the land was acquired under circumstances that give adequate assurances, as determined by NRCS that such land was not acquired for the purposes of placing it in the program.

Applicant Eligibility:

An individual landowner, partnership, association, corporation, estate, trust, other business or other legal entities and, Indian tribe.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The 12-month requirement is not applicable to restoration agreement. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

AUTHORIZATION:

Food, Conservator and Energy Act of 2008, Title 1, Part E, Section 1506, Public Law 110-246, 7 U.S.C 7981-7982.

OBJECTIVES:

To maintain and expand existing markets for dairy which are vital to the welfare of milk producers in the United States. TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

DIRECT PAYMENTS WITH UNRESTRICTED USE

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Each fiscal year, eligible dairy operations can receive a monthly payment based on monthly milk marketing, up to a maximum of 2.4 million pounds per dairy operation, for fiscal year October 1, 2007 through September 30, 2008.

Maximum eligible pounds increase to 2.985 million pounds from October 1, 2008 through August 31, 2012, except that the cap reduces back to 2.4 million pounds during the month of September, 2012. Dairy operations who make changes to their producer status or who reconstitute their farm operations on or after October 1, 2007 for the sole purpose of receiving additional payments will not be eligible for the benefits under the program implemented by this rule.

Applicant Eligibility:

To be eligible, dairy producers must: (1) have produced milk in the United States and commercially marketed the milk produced anytime during the period of October 1, 2007 through September 30, 2012; (2) enter into a MILC contract during the contract application period; (3) agree to all terms and conditions in the MILC contract and comply with instructions issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation; (4) provide proof of monthly milk production commercially marketed by all persons in the dairy operation during the contract period, to determine the total pounds of milk that will be converted to hundredweight (cwt.) used for payment; (5) submit timely production evidence according to Sec. 1430.209; (6) be actively engaged in the business of producing and marketing agricultural products at the time of signing the MILC contract; (7) certify compliance with highly erodible land and Wetland provisions; (8) be in compliance with average adjusted gross income limitations; and (9) comply with start month selection provisions.

The CCC-580 must show total pounds of all milk produced and marketed during each month for all persons receiving a share of the marketed milk. Monthly milk production may not be apportioned to circumvent the maximum payment quantity. All persons who share in the risk of a dairy operation's total production must certify information on the CCC-580. FSA will accept only one CCC-580 per operation. When applying for MILC, operators must also have on file: (1) form AD-1026, "Highly Erodible Land Conservation and Wetland Conservation Certification," used to certify understanding of the conservation compliance requirements under USDA programs; and (2) form SF-3881, "Direct Deposit Sign Up Form," used to sign up for the direct deposit of payments into the payee's account.

10.087 BIOMASS CROP ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

(BCAP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

AUTHORIZATION:

The Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, Title IX, Section 9001, Public Law 110-246; Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2010, Title 1, Part Chapter 1, Section 101, Public Law 111-212; The Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002, Title IX, 7 U.S.C 8101.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of BCAP is to encourage the production of biofuels. BCAP accomplishes this by providing funding for agricultural and forest land owners and operators to receive matching payments for certain eligible material sold to qualified biomass conversion facilities for conversion to heat, power, bio based products, or advanced biofuels. It also provides funding for producers of eligible crops of renewable biomass within specified project areas to receive establishment payments and annual payments.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

BCAP is intended to encourage the production of biofuels by assisting agricultural and forest land owners and operators with the establishment and production of eligible crops in selected project areas for conversion to bioenergy, and with the collection, harvest, storage, and transportation of eligible material for use in a biomass conversion facilities.

Applicant Eligibility:

To be eligible to enter into a BCAP contract for the purposes of receiving an annual payment or establishment payments, a person or legal entity must be an owner, operator, or tenant of eligible land within a project area. Eligible land must be agricultural land or nonindustrial private forest land. Eligible agricultural land includes cropland; grassland; pastureland, rangeland, hayland, and other land on which food fiber, or other agricultural products are produced or capable of being legally produced for which a valid conservation plan exists and is implemented. Ineligible land is as follows: (1) Federal lands; (2) State-owned, municipal, or other local government-owned lands; (3) Native sod; and (4) Land that is already enrolled in CCCs CRP, Wetlands Reserve Program, or Grassland Reserve Program. Eligible crops for annual and establishment payments are renewable plant materials such as feed grains, other agricultural commodities, or other plants and trees, and algae; waste materials including vegetative waste, materials, such as woods wastes and wood residues, animal waste and byproducts, such as fats, oils, greases, and manure, food waste, and yard waste. Ineligible crops are any crop eligible to receive payments under Title I of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (See 8-LP, paragraph 126 and 7-CN for Title I commodities); and any plant that is invasive or noxious or has the potential to become invasive or noxious. Eligible materials for matching payments include various types of renewable biomass collected or harvested directly from the land in accordance with an approved conservation plan, forest stewardship plan, or an equivalent plan before transport and delivery to the biomass conversion facility. Materials will only be eligible if USDA determines that there is no higher value use for that material within a reasonable distance of the biomass conversion facility.

Matching payments are not available for the following products:

(1) Material that is whole grain from any crop that is eligible to receive; payments under Title I of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 or an amendment made by that title, including, but not limited to, barley, corn, grain sorghum, oats, rice, or wheat; honey; or material that is mohair; certain oilseeds such as canola, crambe, flaxseed, mustard seed, rapeseed, safflower seed, soybeans, sesame seed, and sunflower seeds; peanuts; pulse crops such as small chickpeas, lentils, and dry peas; dairy products; sugar; wool; and cotton boll fiber; (2) Animal waste and by-products of animal waste including fats, oils, greases, and manure; (3) Food waste and yard waste; and (4) Algae.

All eligible material must be harvested or collected directly from the land by the eligible material owner according to a conservation, forest stewardship, or equivalent plan and be separated from the higher value product before the point of delivery. Woody biomass harvested or collected outside of project area contracts is limited to eligible material resulting from preventative treatments to address fire fuel load reduction, insect or disease outbreaks, or restore ecosystem health. Woody biomass harvested or collected outside of project area contracts is limited to eligible materials that do not have an existing market for non-biomass use and cannot be co-mingled with higher product value materials. Eligible material owner, for purposes of the matching payment, means a person or entity having the right to collect or harvest eligible material, who has the risk of loss in the material that is delivered to an eligible facility and who has directly or by agent delivered or intends to deliver the eligible material to a qualified biomass conversion facility, including: (1) For eligible material harvested or collected from private lands, including cropland, the owner of the land, the operator or producer conducting farming operations on the land, or any other person designated by the owner of the land; and (2) For eligible material harvested or collected from public lands, a person having the right to harvest or collect eligible material pursuant to a contract or permit with the US Forest Service or other appropriate Federal agency, such as a timber sale contract, stewardship contract or agreement, service contract or permit, or related applicable Federal land permit or contract, and who has submitted a copy of the permit or contract authorizing such collection to CCC. Eligible facilities are biomass conversion facilities that convert or propose to convert renewable biomass into heat, power, bio based products, or advanced biofuels and have been approved for the BCAP program by the CCC.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Owners and operators of agricultural and non-industrial private forest land will receive the ultimate benefits because it will provide financial assistance to establish, produce, and deliver biomass feedstocks. Eligible material owners who are the person or entity having the right to collect or harvest eligible material, who has the risk of loss in the material that is delivered to an eligible facility and who has directly or by agent delivered or intends to deliver the eligible material to a qualified biomass conversion facility.

Credentials/Documentation:

In order to enroll land in BCAP, the participant must enter into a contract with the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). Acceptance or rejection will be at the sole discretion of CCC, and offers may be rejected for any reason as determined appropriate to accomplish the purposes of BCAP. Contracts will be for a term of up to five years for annual and non-woody perennial crops and 15 years for woody perennial crops; or time period may vary due to type of crop, agronomic conditions, and other factors. Eligible material owner who enter into a contract with CCC may receive matching payments up to a period of two-years following the first payment for the delivery of eligible material to a qualified biomass conversion facility. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

FSA prepared a Final Programmatic Environmental Impact Statement (PEIS) for BCAP and NOFA and was published in the Federal Register on June 25, 2010 (75 FR 36386). On September 15, 2011, FSA published the BCAP interim rule (76 FR 56949). The BCAP interim rule provided FSA with the authority to prioritize establishment and annual payments (BCAP project areas) and if sufficient funding remains, to consider applications for matching payments. The interim rule also enables prioritization among project area proposals if eligible requests exceed available funding. Future funding for BCAP could make such prioritizing unnecessary. An environmental impact statement is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. In order for a delivery of eligible materials to a biomass conversion facility to qualify for a BCAP payment, the receiving biomass conversion facility must be qualified for BCAP. To become qualified, the biomass conversion facility must enter into an agreement with CCC, through the FSA State office in the State where the facility is physically located. For any facility, whether or not yet in operation, the entity requesting that a facility become qualified must provide proof of all applicable Federal, State, local, and Tribal permits and licenses required for operation or proof of application completions or letters of renewal submissions from the applicable governmental entity. Applicable permits and licenses may include, but are not limited to, business licenses, air quality permits, water discharge permits, storm water permits, or Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives registrations. Each biomass conversion facility must enter into a separate agreement with CCC regardless of whether a single owner has multiple facilities. CCC will issue a unique facility identification number to each qualifying biomass conversion facility. Eligible material owners must apply at an FSA county office and receive approval for that application before delivering the eligible material to the qualified biomass conversion facility. Applications must include the following based on information obtained from contracts, agreements, or binding letters of intent: (1) An estimate of the total dry tons of eligible material expected to be sold to the qualified biomass conversion facility; (2) The type(s) of eligible material that is expected to be sold; (3) The name of the qualified biomass conversion facility that will purchase the eligible material; (4) The expected, fair market, per dry ton payment rate the owner plans to receive for the delivery of the eligible material; (5) The date or dates the eligible material is expected to be delivered to the qualified biomass conversion facility; (6) A new or amended conservation plan, forest stewardship plan, or equivalent plan. Eligible material owners who deliver eligible material to more than one qualified biomass conversion facility must submit separate applications for each facility to which eligible material will be delivered. In order to enroll land for Establishment and Annual payments, the participant must enter into a contract with CCC. Only the owners, operators, or tenants of eligible land within a project area that will actually perform the work specified in the contract are eligible to apply for the program. The contract is comprised of: (1) The terms and conditions for participation in BCAP; (2) The conservation plan, forest stewardship plan, or equivalent plan; and (3) Any other materials or agreements determined necessary by CCC.

Award Procedure:

Contract approval for matching payments is subject to availability of funds and to eligible material owners completion of required conservation plan, forest stewardship plan or equivalent plan; presentation of proof of material ownership; and compliance with all eligible material provisions. Eligible material owners accepted into the program will receive their matching payments after they provide CCC documentation of deliveries to qualified biomass conversion facilities. Establishment payments will be made based on a determination by CCC that an eligible practice or an identifiable portion exists. Eligible practices are practices specified in the conservation plan, forest stewardship plan, or equivalent plan that meet all standards need to cost-effectively establish annual crops, non-wood perennial crops, and wood perennial crops. Payments will not be more than 75 percent of the cost for establishing a perennial crop for seed and stock costs; planting costs, cost of site preparation for non-industrial forest land; could include but not limited to site preparation for non-tree planting and supplemental or temporary irrigation. Annual payments will be calculated on a per acre basis using market-based rental rates. Rental payment rates will be based on average soil rental rate for cropland and all other agricultural land; marginal pastureland; and for forest land. The first years' payments will be made as an advance in an amount equal to 50 percent with 30 days of contract approval, with the remaining 50 percent being paid within 30 days of the first-year contract anniversary date. Annual payments for subsequent years will be made within 30 days of the contract anniversary beginning with the second-year contract anniversary. If BCAP participants collect both annual and matching payments for their crops, they are subject to a reduction in their annual payment. The size of the reduction depends on the end use of the biomass being delivered to a biomass conversion facility. The annual payment will be reduced by: 1 percent if the eligible crop is delivered to a biomass conversion facility for conversion to cellulosic biofuels as defined by 40 CFR 80.1401; by 10 percent if the eligible crop is delivered to a biomass conversion facility for conversion to advanced biofuels; and by 25 percent if the eligible crop is delivered to a biomass conversion facility for conversion to heat, power, or biobased products.

OBJECTIVES:

The Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) compensates producers for livestock death losses in excess of normal mortality due to adverse weather that occurred on or after January 1, 2008 and before October 1, 2011. No State, county or other trigger will be used to define an eligible LIP area. Sign up will begin when an eligible disaster is apparent.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments for Specified Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The assistance will be used to provide relief to eligible producers due to adverse weather, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture (henceforth the Secretary), during the calendar year. An eligible producer on a farm means an individual or entity that, as determined by the Secretary, assumes the production and market risks associated with the agricultural production of crops or livestock. An individual or entity is a citizen of the United States (U.S.); a resident alien; a partnership of citizens of the U.S.; or a corporation, limited liability corporation, or other farm organizational structure organized under State law. Eligible livestock is an adult/non-adult beef or dairy cattle, adult/non-adult buffalo/beefalo, equine maintained for commercial use as part of the farming operation, elk, reindeer, deer, sheep, alpacas, emus, swine, goats, llamas, and poultry. Eligible adverse weather events are wildfire (must be related to an adverse weather event), blizzard, tornado, lightning, ice storms, earthquakes, flooding, extreme cold or heat. If an eligible livestock dies due to a disease, it must be related to or exacerbated by an eligible adverse weather event to be an eligible cause of livestock deaths under LIP. Drought is not an eligible adverse weather event except when associated with anthrax, a condition that occurs because of drought and results in the death of eligible livestock.

Applicant Eligibility:

An eligible producer may use assistance for livestock death losses in excess of the normal mortality due to adverse weather.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Beneficiary eligibility is extended to an eligible livestock producer who is an owner, cash share lessee, a contract grower of covered livestock that provides the pasture land or grazing land (including cash-leased pasture land or grazing land for the livestock) that is physically located in a county affected by drought. The term "eligible livestock producer" does not include an owner, ash or share lessee, or contract grower of livestock that rents or leases pasture land or grazing land owned by another person on a rate-of-gain basis. The eligible producer on a farm must have during the 60 calendar days before the beginning date of a qualifying drought or fire, owned, ashed or share leased, or been a contract grower of eligible covered livestock.

Credentials/Documentation:

Proof of death of livestock must be provided and may include but is not limited to, any or a combination of the following: rendering truck receipts or certificates; national guard receipts of carcass removal; veterinary records; tax assessor records; private insurance documents; a measurement service may be requested by the producer and completed by FSA. Documentation must provide sufficient data that identifies the kind/type/weight range of livestock and the number of livestock. A third party certification may be accepted only when participant certifies in writing that no other form of proof of death is available and includes the number and physical location of livestock in inventory at time death occurs. Documentation must also be provided to support the number of livestock in inventory at the time the death occurred. The third party providing the certification must be a reliable source in a position to have knowledge of the dead livestock and shall not be affiliated with the operation such as a hired hand or a family member, etc. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

10.089 LIVESTOCK FORAGE DISASTER PROGRAM (LFP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Food Conservation and Energy Act of 2008, Public Law 110-246.

OBJECTIVES:

The objective of LFP is to provide financial assistance from the Agricultural Disaster Relief Trust Fund (Trust Fund). The Secretary of Agriculture (henceforth the Secretary) has the authority to use sums from the Trust Fund to provide compensation to livestock producers who suffered grazing losses due to drought or fire. For drought, the losses must have occurred because of a qualifying drought during the normal grazing period for the county on land that is native or improved pastureland with permanent vegetative cover or is planted to a crop planted specifically for grazing covered livestock. For fire, LFP provides payments to eligible livestock producers that have suffered grazing losses on range land managed by a Federal agency if the eligible livestock producer is prohibited by the Federal agency from grazing the normal permitted livestock on the managed range land because of a qualifying fire. Eligible grazing losses must have occurred on or after January 1, 2008, and before October 1, 2011. The eligible grazing losses must occur within the same calendar year for which benefits are being requested.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments for Specified Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The assistance can be used to provide financial assistance for grazing losses due to drought equal to one, two, or three times the monthly payment rate to eligible livestock producers if the eligible livestock producer owns or leases a grazing land or pastureland that is physically located in a county that is rated by the U.S. Drought Monitor as D2 Drought (severe drought) for at least eight consecutive weeks, D3 (extreme drought) at any time or for four weeks (not necessarily four consecutive weeks), or a D4 (exceptional drought at anytime) during the normal grazing period for the specific type of grazing land or pastureland for the county. Eligible livestock producers are eligible to receive assistance if grazing losses due to a fire on Federally managed land if the grazing loss is on range-land managed by a Federal agency such as the Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Indian Affairs or Tribal government and the eligible producer is prohibited by the Federal agency from grazing the normal permitted livestock and/or normal permitted days. Livestock producers are eligible to receive assistance if grazing losses due to drought or fire occur on or after January 1, 2008 and before October 1, 2011.

Applicant Eligibility:

An eligible applicant or livestock producer may use assistance for grazing or fire losses for any specific purpose. Eligible covered livestock includes cattle (including dairy cattle); buffalo/beefalo/ alpacas, deer, elk, emu, equine, goats, llamas, poultry; reindeer, sheep; swine; and other livestock as determined by the Secretary.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Beneficiary eligibility is extended to an eligible livestock producer who is an owner, cash share lessee, a contract grower of covered livestock that provides the pasture land or grazing land (including cash-leased pasture land or grazing land for the livestock) that is physically located in a county affected by drought. The term "eligible livestock producer" does not include an owner, cash or share lessee, or contract grower of livestock that rents or leases pasture land or grazing land owned by another person on a rate-of-gain basis. The eligible producer on a farm must have during the 60 calendar days before the beginning date of a qualifying drought or fire, owned, cashed or share leased, or been a contract grower of eligible covered livestock. An eligible livestock producer must also be an individual or entity that is a citizen of the United States (U.S.); a resident alien; a partnership of citizens of the U.S.; or a corporation, limited liability corporation, or other farm organizational structure organized under State law. An eligible livestock producer shall only be eligible for assistance if the livestock producer meets the risk management purchase requirement by obtaining a policy or plan of insurance or filed the required paperwork and paid the administrative fee by the applicable State application closing deadline date for the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) for the grazing land crop that incurred the loss for which assistance is being requested. For 2008 only, a waiver was authorized to allow producers to pay a buy-in fee or receive a waiver by September 16, 2008, for grazing land for which the producer did not obtain a policy or plan of insurance for 2008. The risk management purchase requirement will be waived for producers who are considered to be a socially disadvantaged farmer or rancher, limited resource farmer or rancher, or beginning farmer or rancher.

Credentials/Documentation:

A livestock producer must certify that they have a grazing loss due to drought or fire. There is no minimum loss percentage required by the producer. A livestock producer must provide an FSA-925 (LFP application for payment) in their administrative FSA county office along with required supporting documents.

Supporting Documentation includes:

CCC-502 Farm Operating Plan for Payment Eligibility Review, applicable for 2008 calendar year

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110.

Award Procedure:

Payment Eligibility for Losses Due To Drought

An eligible livestock producer will be eligible to receive payments for grazing losses for qualifying drought equal to one, two, or three times the monthly payment rate. Total LFP payments to an eligible producer in a calendar year for grazing losses due to a qualifying drought will not exceed three monthly payments for the same livestock. To be eligible for a one month payment, the eligible livestock producer must own or lease grazing land or pastureland that is physically located in a county that is rated by the U.S. Drought Monitor as having at least a D2 severe drought (intensity) in any area of the county for at least 8 consecutive weeks during the normal grazing period for the specific type of grazing land or pastureland in the county. To be eligible for a two month payment, the eligible livestock producer must own or lease grazing land or pastureland that is physically located in a county that is rated by the U.S. Drought Monitor as having at least a D3 extreme drought (intensity) in any area of the county at any time during the normal grazing period for the specific type of grazing land or pastureland for the county. To be eligible for a three month payment, the eligible livestock producer must own or lease grazing land or pastureland that is physically located in a county that is rated by the U.S. Drought Monitor as having at least a D3 extreme drought (intensity) in any area of the county for at least four weeks during the normal grazing period for the specific type of grazing land or pastureland for the county, or is rated as having a D4 exceptional drought (intensity) in any area of the county at any time during the normal grazing period for the specific type of grazing land or pastureland for the county. The monthly payment rate for grazing losses due to a qualifying drought for producers who suffer grazing losses on grazing lands located in a county due to drought will be equal to 60 percent of the lesser of the monthly feed cost for all covered livestock owned or leased by the eligible livestock producer or the monthly feed cost calculated using the normal carrying capacity of the eligible grazing land of the eligible livestock producer. If an eligible livestock producer sold or otherwise disposed of covered livestock due to a qualifying drought in one or both of the two production years immediately preceding the current production year, the payment rate is 80 percent of the monthly payment rate.

Payment Eligibility For Losses Due To Fire

Livestock producers who suffer grazing losses on grazing lands managed by a Federal agency due to a fire, will receive a payment equal to 50 percent of the monthly feed cost for the number of days the producer is prohibited from grazing the managed range-land because of the qualifying fire, not to exceed 180 calendar days. The payment begins on the first day the permitted livestock are prohibited from grazing the eligible range-land and ending on the earlier of the last day of the Federal lease of the eligible livestock producer or the day that would make the period a 180 calendar day period.

Deadlines:

Dec 10, 2009 To apply for LFP, producers that suffer eligible grazing losses during 2008 must file FSA-925 and required supporting documentation by no later than December 10, 2009. Producers that suffer eligible grazing losses during 2009 and later years must submit a completed FSA-925 and supporting documentation to the administrative FSA county office no later than 30 calendar days after the end of the calendar year in which the grazing loss occurs. Late filed applications will not be accepted.

10.090 SUPPLEMENTAL REVENUE ASSISTANCE PROGRAMSURE*FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (The Farm Bill), Title X11, Part B, Section 12033, Public Law 110-246, 7 U.S.C 1501; The Trade Act of 1974, Section 902, Public Law 93-618; The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA), Public Law 111-5; The Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, Title XV, Section 15101, Public Law 110-246.

OBJECTIVES:

The objective of the SURE program is to provide financial assistance for farm revenue losses due to natural disaster. Assistance is provided from the Agricultural Disaster Relief Trust Fund (Trust Fund) established under Public Law 110-246. The Secretary of Agriculture (henceforth the Secretary) has the authority to use the Trust Fund to make crop disaster assistance payments to eligible producers on farms in disaster counties whose actual production is less than 50 percent of their normal production. A disaster county means a county included in the geographic area covered by a qualifying natural disaster declaration by the Secretary. SURE is the 2008 Farm Bill's successor to the prior Crop Disaster Programs. SURE is legislated through fiscal year 2011.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments for Specified Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

SURE assistance can provide benefit payments to eligible producers who have suffered eligible crop losses due to a natural disaster. To be eligible for crop loss assistance, a producer must show that the actual production on the farm for at least one crop of economic significance is reduced for at least 10 percent due to disaster, adverse weather, or disaster-related conditions. Payment limitations apply for SURE. For 2008, no person may receive more than $100,000 total for the 2008 program year under the Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees, and Farm Raised Fish Program (ELAP), Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP), Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP), and SURE. For 2009 and subsequent program years, no person or legal entity, excluding joint ventures and general partnerships may receive, directly or indirectly, more than $100,000 total per program year under ELAP, LFP, LIP and SURE. Producers or legal entities whose average adjusted gross income (AGI) exceeds $2.5 million in crop year 2008 shall not be eligible for benefit payments unless 75 percent or more of the income is from agriculture. For 2009 and subsequent years, the average AGI income cap changes to $500,000 of non-farm income, with no on-farm income cap. SURE assistance will be provided to an eligible producer in the amount equal to 60 percent of the difference between the SURE Guarantee and the total farm revenue. The SURE guarantee for the farm cannot be greater than 90 percent of the total of the normal production of the farm. There are specific eligibility criteria a producer must meet before becoming eligible for assistance. To be eligible, a producer (for all of the farming operation's crops that are planted or intended nationwide) must have obtained a policy or plan of crop insurance such as Catastrophic Risk Protection (CAT) for all insurable crops and/or Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistance Program(NAP) coverage for non-insurable crops that are of economic significance. However, statute does not require coverage for grazed crops for the SURE program. Sales closing dates for insurance and application closing dates for NAP have passed for the 2008 crop year for all insurable and non-insurable crops. A waiver was authorized in Public Law 110-246 to allow producers to pay within 90 calendar days of the enactment, a buy-in-fee to be eligible for Supplemental Agricultural Disaster Assistance for crops for which the producer did not obtain crop insurance or NAP coverage for 2008. The administrative service fee is equal to the lesser of $100 per crop per county, or $300 per producer per county, not to exceed $900 per multi-county producer. The final date for the buy-in fee was September 16, 2008. The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA), Public Law 111-5, authorized an additional waiver which allows producers another opportunity to pay a buy-in-fee for 2008 Supplemental Agricultural Disaster Assistance. The buy-in fee must be paid within 90 calendar days of the enactment of ARRA. The buy-in fee is $100 per crop, but not more than $300 per producer per administrative county, or $900 total per producer for all counties less any previously paid fees for NAP relief and other buy-in. Producers must buy-in for all non-insurable and insurable crops that are not already covered by NAP, crop insurance, or meet the previous waivers. The fee is nonrefundable and due at the time a producer files FSA-752 and/or FSA-753. Crop insurance and NAP coverage are not a requirement if the producer is considered a Socially Disadvantaged, Limited Resource, or Beginning Farmer or Rancher.

Applicant Eligibility:

An eligible applicant or eligible "producer on a farm", is an individual or entity who assumes the production and market risks associated with the agricultural production of crops or livestock. An individual or entity is a citizen of the United States (U.S.), a resident alien, or a partnership of citizens of the U.S.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The SURE program will provide financial assistance to an eligible producer on a farm who has insurable or noninsurable commodity or agricultural commodity (except livestock) for which the producer on a farm is eligible to obtain a policy or plan of insurance. Benefits are also extended to the Socially Disadvantaged Farmer or Rancher who has been subject to racial or ethnic prejudice because of his or her identity as members of a group without regard to there individual qualities; a beginning farmer or rancher who has not operated a farm or ranch for more than 10 years and materially and substantially participates in the operation; and limited resource producer with direct or indirect gross farm sales not more than $100,000 in both of the previous two years, adjusted upwards for any general inflation since fiscal year 2004, and if the total household income is at or below the national poverty level for a family of four or less than 50 percent of county median household income in both of the previous two years.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Application Procedures:

An eligible producer must provide a total crop acreage report (FSA-578) including crops on cropland and non-cropland in all counties that the producer has interest. The total farm acreage report includes native and improved grass that will be hayed or grazed, all grazing land and uninsurable land by either crop insurance or NAP coverage and file an AD-1026.

Award Procedure:

The applicant will submit the required forms to applicants local FSA office. Applications will be reviewed and the award will be distributed based on 60 percent of the difference of the SURE guarantee and total farm revenue calculation. Total farm revenue include estimated crop value, crop insurance indemnities, NAP payments, Market Assistance Loan proceeds, other disaster payments, DCP payments (15% of direct payments, plus all Counter-Cyclical and ACRE payments). To assist farmers and ranches in evaluating their options with SURE, USDA has created a SURE calculator. To utilize the calculator, visit the website www.fsa.usda.gov. The calculator and instructions linked on the FSA website are for informational purposes only. This calculator in no way binds FSA to potential payments under SURE and should not be relied on as the sole source of information to make final management decisions.

10.091 EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE FOR LIVESTOCK, HONEYBEES, AND FARM-RAISED FISH PROGRAM

(ELAP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Trade Act of 1974, Public Law 93-618, 19 U.S.C 2947a.

OBJECTIVES:

The objective of ELAP is to provide emergency assistance to eligible producers of livestock, honeybees, and farm-raised fish who have losses due to disease, adverse weather, or other conditions, including losses due to blizzards and wildfires, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture (Secretary). Assistance is provided from the Trust Fund established under Public Law 110-246. ELAP assistance is for losses not covered under other Supplemental Agricultural Disaster Assistance Payment programs specifically Livestock Forage Program (LFP), Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP), and the Supplemental Assistance Program (SURE). ELAP is authorized for fiscal years 2008 through September 30, 2011.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

ELAP covers losses occurring on or after January 1, 2008 and before October 1, 2011. Public Law 110-246, Sections 12033 and 15101, authorized the Secretary to provide payments to producers of livestock, honeybees, and farm-raised fish to aid in the reduction of losses due to disease, adverse weather, or other conditions such as blizzards and wildfires. ELAP also covers some species, loss conditions, and losses that are not eligible for other disaster assistance programs, including colony collapse disorder and wildfires on non-Federal land. Assistance will be granted only to eligible livestock, honeybee, and farm-raised producers. ELAP benefits, compensation, or relief will be strictly used to compensate eligible losses. The Secretary has the authority to use up to $50 million per year from the Trust Fund to provide emergency relief to eligible producers. For program year 2008, no person may receive more than $100,000 total in payments under ELAP, LFP, LIP, SURE, combined. For 2009 and subsequent program years, no person or legal entity may receive directly or indirectly, more than $100,000 total in payments under ELAP, LFP, LIP, and SURE combined.

Applicant Eligibility:

To be considered an eligible applicant, the participant must be a producer or contract grower of livestock, honeybee, or farm-raised fish that meet the requirements to receive ELAP payments.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Eligible producers of livestock, honeybees, and farm-raised fish will receive the ultimate benefits from ELAP. An eligible producer of livestock is an owner that provides the pastureland or grazing land. An eligible producer of honey bee's mean all bees and beehives in all counties are intended to be harvested for a honey crop. An eligible producer of farm-raised fish means any aquatic species that is propagated and reared in a controlled environment.

Credentials/Documentation:

Risk Management Purchase Requirement (RMPR)

For every commodity on every farm in which the producer has an interest for the relevant program year, the producer must obtain catastrophic coverage (CAT) or better under a policy or plan of insurance administered under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (FCIA). In the case of non-insurable commodity, the producer must obtain the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) coverage by filing the required paperwork and paying the administrative fee by the applicable state application closing date, except this requirement will not include forage on grazing land.

Due to the lateness of P.L. 110-246, producers were allowed to "buy-in" to the ELAP for 2008 by paying fees equivalent to the NAP service fee or CAT fee by September 16, 2008. If a producer who is otherwise ineligible because of the purchase requirement and did not meet the buy-in deadline of September 16, 2008, still may be eligible for ELAP if the producer paid the applicable fee no later than May 18, 2009.

For 2009, the RMPR was waived for insurable crops where sales closing dates for crop insurance coverage occurred before August 14, 2008, if the buy-in fee was paid by January 12, 2009. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Producers are required to obtain CAT or NAP coverage prior to applying for ELAP benefits. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. To apply for ELAP, the participant that suffered eligible livestock, honeybee, or farm-raised fish losses must submit the FSA administrative county office that maintains the participant's farm records the following:

1. A Notice of Loss for calendar years 2008 and 2009 must be provided no later than May 5, 2010 and for subsequent year losses, the producer must provide a notice of loss to FSA the earlier of 30 calendar days of when the loss is apparent to the producer or 30 calendar days after the end of the calendar year in which the loss occurred.
2. A complete application for payment no later than May 5, 2010 for calendar years 2008 and 2009 and for subsequent crop years, January 30, after the year in which the loss occurred.

Award Procedure:

Livestock payment calculations will be based on losses for no more than 90 days during the calendar year. ELAP payments for feed losses will be based on 60 percent of the producers actual cost for livestock feed, that was purchased or mechanically harvested for forage or feedstuffs; the additional cost incurred for providing or transporting livestock feed or to purchase additional livestock feed above normal to maintain the eligible livestock due to an eligible adverse weather or eligible loss condition. Grazing losses will be calculated based on 60 percent of the lesser of the total value of the feed cost for all covered livestock based on the number of days grazing was lost, not to exceed 90 days of daily feed cost for all covered livestock or the total value of grazing lost for all eligible livestock based on the normal carrying capacity of the eligible grazing land. Livestock death losses will be calculated by multiplying the national payment rate for each livestock category times the number of eligible livestock that died in each category as a result of an eligible loss condition in excess of normal mortality.

ELAP payments for honeybee losses will be based on 60 percent of the actual cost of honeybee feed that was damaged or destroyed and intended as feed for an eligible honeybee colony. Payments for honeybee colony losses will be based on 60 percent of the average fair market value of the honey bee colonies in the year in which the loss occurred times the number of honey bee colonies that were damaged or destroyed. Payments for honeybee hive losses will be based on 60 percent of the average fair market value of the honey bee hives in the year in which the loss occurred, times the number of honey bee hives that were damaged or destroyed due to an eligible adverse weather or eligible loss condition.

ELAP payments for eligible farm-raised fish feed losses are based on 60 percent of the actual cost of purchased or harvested feed that was intended as feed for eligible farm-raised fish and was damaged because of an eligible adverse weather or loss condition in the calendar year in which the loss occurred. Payments for farm-raised fish death losses will be based on 60 percent of the State's average fair market value of the bait or game fish times the number of bait or game fish lost due to an eligible adverse weather or loss condition.

OBJECTIVES:

The Tree Assistance Program (TAP) provides financial assistance to qualifying orchardists and nursery tree growers to replant or rehabilitate eligible trees, bushes and vines affected by natural disasters and suffered mortality losses in excess of 15 percent, after adjustment for normal mortality occurring on or after January 1, 2008, and before October 1, 2011. TAP was authorized by the 2008 Farm Bill and is funded through the Agricultural Disaster Relief Trust Fund under Section 902 of the Trade Act of 1974.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use

For cumulative total quantity of acres planted to trees, bushes, or vines where a producer may receive TAP payments for losses occurring between January 1, 2008 and September 30, 2011, cannot exceed 500 acres. The Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) limitations for 2009 and subsequent program years for producers or legal entities whose average non farm AGI exceeds $500,000 are not eligible and for the 2008 program year, producers are not eligible if their average AGI is $2.5 million or greater, unless 75% or more of their AGI is from agriculture.

In order for a participant to obtain a TAP payment, the eligible applicant must (1) File an application (FSA-899) at the FSA administrative county office that maintains the applicants farm records for the agricultural operation, within the applicable sign-up deadline. 10.093 VOLUNTARY PUBLIC ACCESS AND HABITAT INCENTIVE PROGRAM

(VPA-HIP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Food Security Act of 1985, Public Law 99-198, 15 U.S.C 714b and 714c.

OBJECTIVES:

The primary objective of the VPA-HIP is to encourage owners and operators of privately-held farm, ranch, and forest land to voluntarily make that land available for access by the public for wildlife-dependent recreation, including hunting or fishing, under programs implemented by state or tribal governments.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The funding provided by the VPA-HIP will help states and tribal governments address many issues that can greatly increase access and recreational experiences. Grant recipients will be able to use the funding to provide higher rental payments, provide technical and conservation services to landowners, and increase acreage enrolled for public access. Twenty-six states have public access programs for hunting, fishing, and other related activities. These programs provide rental payments and other incentives, such as technical or conservation services to landowners who allow the public to hunt, fish, or otherwise appropriately recreate on their land. Section 726 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012, effectively ended any new obligations, or modifications to existing obligations, under VPA-HIP. Only states and tribal governments are eligible for VPA-HIP grant.

Applicant Eligibility:

Only States and Tribal governments are eligible for VPA-HIP. An eligible State government means any State or local government, including State, city, town, or county government. An eligible Tribal Government means any Federally-recognized Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group, or community, including pueblos, rancherias, colonies and any Alaska Native Village, or regional or village corporation as defined in or establish pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (43 U.S.C 1601-1629H), which is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The beneficiary eligibility is extended to the public for the purposes of expanding existing public access programs or create new public access programs or provide incentives to improve habitat on enrolled program lands. Proposals for grant money should be submitted to the local State or Tribal governments by owners and operators of privately-held farm, ranch, and forest land. An eligible owner is one who has legal ownership of farmland. An eligible operator (individual, entity, or joint operation) who is determined by the FSA county committee to be in control of the farming operations on the farm. For the purposes of receiving grant money, an appropriate wildlife habitat should be suitable or proper, as determined by the applicable State or tribal government, to support fish and wildlife populations in the area. A eligible farmland or ranch land means the sum of the Direct and Counter-Cyclical (DCP) cropland, forest, acreage planted to an eligible crop acreage and other land on the farm. Eligible forest land is at least 120 feet wide and one acre in size with at least 10 percent cover (or equivalent stocking) by live trees of any size, including land that formerly had such tree cover and that will be naturally or artificially regenerated. Forest land includes transition zones, such as areas between forest and nonforest lands that have at least 10 percent cover (or equivalent stocking) with live trees and forest areas adjacent to urban and built-up lands. Roadside, streamside, and shelterbelt strips of trees must have a crown width of at least 120 feet and continuous length of at least 363 feet to qualify as forest land. Unimproved roads and trails, streams, and clearings in forest areas are classified as forest if they are less than 120 feet wide or an acre in size. Tree-covered areas in agricultural production settings, such as fruit orchards, or tree-covered areas in urban settings, such as city parks, are not considered forest land. Eligible privately-held land means farm, ranch, or forest land that is owned or operated by an individual or entity that is not an entity of any government unit or Tribe.

Credentials/Documentation:

Funding priority will be given to proposals that will use the grant money in a public access program to address these objectives:

- Maximize participation by landowners;
- Ensure that land enrolled in the program has appropriate wildlife habitat;
- Provide incentives to strengthen wildlife habitat improvement efforts on Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) land;
- Supplement funding and services from other federal, state, tribal government or private resource that is provided in the form of cash or in-kind services; and Provide information to the public about the location of public access land. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. CCC will issue periodic Request for Applications (RFA) on the federal government grants portal www.grants.gov. Applicants must file an original and one hard copy of the required forms and an application. A State or tribal government must include all proposed activity under a single application per RFA review period. Multiple applications from an applicant during a single RFA period will not be considered. The applicant is the individual State or Tribe; any application form any unit of the State or tribal government must be coordinated for a single submission of one application from the State or Tribe. Incomplete applications will not be considered for funding. However, incomplete applications may be returned, and may be resubmitted, if time permits. Data furnished by grant applicants will be used to determine eligibility for the VPA-HIP benefits. Furnishing the data is voluntary; however, the failure to provide data could result in program benefits being withheld or denied.

The following forms must be completed, signed, and submitted as part of the application; other forms may be required, as specified in the applicable RFA:

1. Application for Federal Assistance;
2. Budget Information-Non-Construction Programs; and
3. Assurances-Non-Construction Programs.

Each application must contain the following elements; additional required elements may be specified in the applicable RFA:

Title page;

Table of contents;

Executive summary, which includes activities which provide a summary of the application that briefly describes activities proposed to be funded under this grant; objectives, funding, performance which includes the tasks to be accomplished, the amount of funding requested, how the work will be performed, whether organizational staff, consultants or contractors will be used, and whether other resources will be used.

Award Procedure:

Grants will awarded through a competitive RFA process. Before receiving grant funding, the grantee will be required to sign an agreement similar in form and substance to the form of agreement published within or as an appendix to the RFA. The agreement will require the grantee to commit to do all the following:

1. Take all practicable steps to develop continuing sources of financial support from other Federal, State, tribal government, or private resources;
2. Make arrangements for the monitoring and evaluation of the activities related to implementation of the public access program of the owners or operators that enroll farm, ranch, and forest land; and
3. Provide an accounting for the money received by the grantee.

The grantee will be required to monitor funds or services as specified and must agree to that monitoring before grant funds are awarded. The grantee must also certify that the grant funds and services will not be used for ineligible purposes.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The assistance will be used to compensate producers of durum wheat. Cost share assistance will be used to compensate producers for 50 percent of their share of both the purchase price of an eligible fungicide and the cost of applying the eligible fungicide to durum wheat acres.

Applicant Eligibility:

To be considered an eligible producer for DWQP, the producer must have a share in the treated durum wheat crop planted on eligible acres, have a share in the cost of either or both of purchasing an eligible fungicide or applying an eligible fungicide to eligible acres.

An eligible fungicide for DWQP must be registered with EPA, as required under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), unless exempt from FIFRA requirements, compliant with pesticide regulations in the State in which benefits are being requested, and used specifically for one fungicide treatment in the applicable crop year, to control FHB on eligible acres.

An eligible acre for DWQP must be planted to durum wheat and treated with an eligible fungicide, to specifically control FHB and applied during the flowering stage, the period of time during the wheat growth stage after the head emergence has completed and before milk development in the kernel.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Subject to available funding, eligible producers of durum wheat will be partially compensated for the cost of purchasing and applying fungicides to a crop of durum wheat to control Fusarium head blight on acres accurately certified as planted to durum wheat.

- 1) original commercial sales and purchase receipts for an eligible fungicide
- 2) original invoices from licensed custom applicators that explicitly specify the cost of an eligible fungicide.

All supporting documentation must be completed by the participant and on file in the County Office before CCC-551 may be approved. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

CL funds can be used to implement a conservation practice approved by the Natural Resources and Conservation Service (NRCS), such as reducing soil erosion, improving water quality, promoting sustainable and organic agricultural practices. Specific conservation practices include: installation of conservation structures, establishment of forest cover, installation of water conservation measures, establishment or improvement of permanent pastures, transitioning to organic production, manure management, including manure digestion systems, adaptation of other emerging or existing conservation practices, techniques or technologies.

Applicant Eligibility:

10.200 GRANTS FOR AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH, SPECIAL RESEARCH GRANTS

Special Research Grants (SRGP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 2 (c), Public Law 89-106, 7 U.S.C. 450i(c), as amended.

OBJECTIVES:

To carry out research, to facilitate or expand promising breakthroughs in areas of the food and agricultural sciences of importance to the nation and to facilitate or expand on-going State-Federal food and agricultural research programs.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved fundamental and applied research, extension and education objectives to address food and agricultural sciences. Awards are generally limited to high priority problems of a regional or national scope. NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

Funds may not be used for any purposes other than those approved in the grant award documents.

Funds shall not be used for tuition remission.

Indirect Costs are generally not allowable for this program.

Generally, there are no matching requirements associated with Special Research Grant programs and matching resources will not be factored into the review process as evaluation criteria.

Please refer to RFA, Part IV.D. Applications Funding Restrictions for specific details.

Exceptions to the general rules, as related to Indirect Cost and matching requirements, are indicated below, as deemed appropriate and necessary.

The following programs are EXCEPTIONS to the general rules:

- (1) Critical Agricultural Materials (Pub. L. 95-592)
- (2) Federal Administration - Research
- (3) Pest Management Alternatives (aka PMAP)
- (4) Supplemental and Alternative Crops [7 U.S.C. 3319d (c)].
- (5) Policy Research Centers (Section 1419A of 7 U.S.C. 3155) and
- (6) Rangeland Research

For the above-referenced EXCEPTIONS to the general rule, [i.e. #'s (1) thru (5)], the following provisions are applicable:

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions:

Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 30 percent pursuant to FY 2012 appropriated funds, Section 720 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2012 (Division A of Pub. L. 112-55), the awardee may request 15 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 30 percent.

For the Rangeland Research program the following provisions are applicable:

Per 7 CFR 3401.5, Indirect Cost is allowable if the award is made to a Federal lab.

Pursuant to Section 1480 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 as amended [7 USC 3333(b)(1)], applicants are required to provide 50 percent matching funds from non-federal sources for all proposed Federal funds sought in the application. Non-federal matching contributions, such as cash and third party in kind, are accepted under this program as qualified by 7 USC 3015 and 7 USC 3019. Foregone indirect costs cannot be used as part of the required match. Fully discretionary.

(D) Interregional Research Project # 4 - Minor Crop Pest Management (IR-4 Program

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) approvals supported 382 potential new registrations; the Public Health Pesticide Program submitted the first regulatory package to EPA for expansion of registration for a new reduced-risk product for adult mosquitoes; continued to provide global leadership in the harmonization of Maximum Residue Levels for pesticides on specialty crops. Five proposals were submitted and 5 were funded at a total of ca. $12.5 million.

(E) Pest Management Alternatives

Two bacterial leaf diseases have threatened turnip and mustard greens in South Carolina. Yearly losses have been as much as $1.7 million. Bacterial blight caused by Pseudomonas cannabina pathovar disalensis and a Xanthomonas leaf blight caused by a unique strain of Xanthomonis campestris pathovar campestris form a bacterial disease complex on leafy brassica greens. Pseudomonas is present in the spring and late in the fall, while Xanthomonas predominates in the hot summer months. In this project, fertility, bactericides and host-plant resistance were tested to manage bacterial blights on turnip and mustard greens in field experiments on farms at the research center. Across all 12 cultivars and lines, there was a highly significant correlation between visual ratings of percentage diseased leaf area with percentage of healthy leaves harvested. This lends confidence to our evaluations of the effects of treatments by rating disease symptoms. Incremental reductions in diseased leaf area also should increase marketable yields.

Using the new Grape Berry Moth (GBM) degree day model to time border-targeted applications of new insecticides provides effective control of GBM. At all five farms in our study, the per acre cost for insecticide was lower for vineyards treated with the IPM Program compared to the Standard Program. Focusing control efforts on high-pressure areas, i.e., vineyard borders, is an effective way to manage GBM, both in terms of reducing damage and reducing insecticide costs. This approach has been adopted widely in Michigan due to the strong economic benefits for growers. SPLAT-GBM provided reduction of infestation at vineyards borders but is currently not a cost-effective means of controlling this pest in conventional vineyards. This project supported the further development of IPM programs for eastern U.S. vineyards, and the results have been shared with researchers, extension colleagues, growers and consultants. Adoption of the degree-day model and selective insecticides has increased because of this project, reducing the environmental footprint of Michigan viticulture, and contributing to the sustainability goals of National Grape Cooperative, Welchs, and the Michigan Grape and Wine Industry Council. For FY 2011, there were 63 applications with eight of them funded.

(F) Other (Potato Breeding Research in FY 2011)

For the FY 2011 award cycle, $ 1,333,752 was available for this program.

(G) Critical Agricultural Materials

The Critical Agricultural Materials competitive grants program supports product development, demonstration and validation of product performance under operational field conditions, specifically for paints, coatings, and adhesives for composites which are manufactured from domestically produced agricultural materials and are of strategic and industrial importance to benefit the economy, defense and general well-being of the Nation. Many such products replace petroleum-based products, and offer opportunities to create new businesses and new markets for agricultural materials.

Advances in polymer science have resulted in products with superior functional performance that also address environmental and human health concerns. For example, volatile organic compounds (VOCs) are considered to be a major human health issue and polymer products that can meet performance requirements with minimal or no use of VOCs are of interest to NIFA. Examples of products include: paints, protective industrial coatings, adhesives for wood-based composites, and such products that offer other human health and environmental benefits over petrochemical counterparts.

In FY 2011, the program was funded with $1M, 13 applications were received and three awards were made:

1. The Development of New Coating and Adhesive Systems Derived from Novel Plant Oil-Based Polymers.
2. Development and Demonstration of a Low VOC Polyurethane Coating System Using Biopolyols Derived from Crude Glycerol
3. UV-Curable Biobased wood Flooring Coatings

(H) Aquaculture Centers

(1) Rangeland Restoration emphasis on evaluating the optimal combination of management methodologies and technologies that result in the establishment, after drastic disturbance, of functional plant communities providing the products and services desired from rangeland ecosystems. The focus should be placed on research integrated with outreach to restore degraded rangeland, enhance overall soil quality, increase biomass productivity, retain and enlarge wildlife habitat, and improve water and air quality.

(2) Management of Rotational Grazing identification and evaluation of the role of management on the effectiveness of rotational grazing. Management decisions can be informed by an understanding of the spatial variability of rangeland pastures, grazing activity, and use of information technology and spatial monitoring in livestock systems, among other contributions to elevate pasture utilization.

(3) Management of Co-grazing - investigate whether co-grazing can result in more efficient utilization of rangeland pastures. The experimental approach should integrate effects of co-grazing on the animals (e.g., forage selectivity, animal behavior; health, average daily gain and other measures of animal performance) with impacts of co-grazing on the rangeland ecosystem (e.g., forage composition, diversity of plant species, soil quality, wildlife habitat).

(F) Other (Potato Breeding Research in FY 2011
Potato breeding and regional evaluation trials with seven states. From the trials, breeding stocks and advanced selections are shared with more than a dozen other states. Goals are developed based on stakeholder input. New cultivars and clonal selections are released or co-released with other institutions. These make up substantial and increasing portions of the regional potato acreage, important contributors to the economies of the states.

Regional potato breeding, genetics, and cultivar development , both collaborative and multidisciplinary. Multi-site evaluation conducted by teams of potato breeders and geneticists, agronomists, plant pathologists, entomologists, and biochemists from land grant universities and USDA/ARS. Focus is on market- limiting traits, e.g. in the processing sector, high specific gravity, low sugar content, long-term storability, bruise resistance, light color, tuber shape, and sugar-end resistance, combined with traits that provide durable host plant resistance to regionally important pathogens, insect pests, and environmental stresses, and provide enhanced plant physiological efficiencies resulting in improved nutritional attributes and more sustainable environmental quality, as prioritized by stakeholders. The project uses mainly traditional hybridizing techniques, but also includes marker-assisted selection and early generation screening techniques to enhance selection biotic and abiotic stresses.

(G) Critical Agricultural Materials
DEVELOPMENT AND DEMONSTRATION OF A LOW VOC POLYURETHANE COATING SYSTEM USING BIOPOLYOLS DERIVED FROM CRUDE GLYCEROL $418,965
This proposed project aims to develop and demonstrate an innovative low VOC waterborne polyurethane (WPU) coating technology using biopolyols derived from crude glycerol, a low value byproduct of the biodiesel industry. The project goals and objectives will be fulfilled by the collaborative effort among The Ohio State University, Ohio Soybean Council, Ford Motor Company,

Sherwin-Williams, Kennedy Space Center, and PolyGreen Technologies LLC. The proposed technology provides a novel and environmentally preferable alternative to petroleum-based PU coating processes. The technology also contributes to the long term sustainability of US agriculture and biodiesel industries via value-added conversion of an agriculture-based low value biodiesel byproduct, i.e., crude glycerol, to commercially important products. UV-CURABLE BIOBASED WOOD FLOORING COATINGS $300,419

This project leverages prior work in developing bio-based UV-cure coatings to demonstrate and validate a new UV-curable coating formulation for the wood flooring market having at least 30% bio-based content and 0-to-low volatile organic content (VOC). The project team will custom-formulate a novel, bio-based building block for use in wood flooring coatings and validate formulas in the lab against an industry-accepted battery of tests. At the successful completion of the program, the new bio-based, UV-curable coating will have been made to scale, applied on a commercial coating line, and validated against requirements accepted by the wood flooring industry.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW COATING AND ADHESIVE SYSTEMS DERIVED FROM NOVEL PLANT OIL-BASED POLYMERS
Plant oils are important renewable raw materials for the chemical industry. Chemicals derived from plant oils have been used to produce surfactants, components for cosmetics, lubricants, polymers, coatings, and flooring materials. The proposal team recently developed a break-through technology involving the synthesis of novel plant oil-based vinyl ether monomers and the subsequent controlled polymerization of the monomers to produce high molecular weight polymers. The primary objective of the proposed project is to utilize copolymerization to tailor properties with primary emphasis being the enhancement of mechanical and thermomechanical properties to enable the replacement of a much larger fraction of petrochemical-based polymers and oligomers than can be accomplished with current plant oil-based technology. A Life Cycle Analysis will be conducted to demonstrate the environmental advantages of the most promising copolymer composition over a commercially available petrochemical analog.

(K) Rangeland Research Program (aka Joe Skeen Institute for Rangeland Restoration)

Using new knowledge on grazing behavior to control medusahead and promote rangeland restoration

Medusahead is an invasive weed, which impacts whole ecosystems, reducing habitat and biodiversity, commercial and recreational value. Grazing represents a sustainable, efficient, and low-cost alternative for its control. However, results about its applicability are not encouraging. Grazing approaches have not considered new knowledge on foraging behavior like the importance of positive experiences early in life with the biochemical context (provided by the plant community or supplements) on preference for target feeds. Project Directors (PDs) are investigating a supplementation and fertilization program, to provide the appropriate nutritional context to enhance use of medusahead by sheep (Objective 1a), and favor soil conditions necessary to increase the competitive ability of perennials in the community (Objective 2a). Using this information, they plan to implement a supplementation and fertilization program to increase medusahead use by sheep (Objective 1b) and explore its impact on soils and on the plant community (Objective 2b). PDs are also testing the effects of an appropriate nutritional context experienced early in life with mother on use of medusahead later in life by sheep (Objective 1c). They will determine how social, cultural, economic, and/or institutional factors influence prospects for the control of medusahead infestations (Objective 3). Research is planned to be integrated with outreach (web, print, and presentations) to restore medusahead-infested rangeland (Objective 4). This research, designed with stakeholder input, is aimed at enhancing the restoration and sustainable integrity of rangelands providing stakeholders with new knowledge about medusahead. This NIFA-funded project addresses the priority area Rangeland Restoration for the FY2011 Rangeland Research Program.

A systems approach to seedling establishment on degraded rangeland: Managing ecological processes driving recruitment bottlenecks to improve rangeland restoration Altered disturbance regimes are systematically destroying healthy rangeland and directly threatening U.S. agriculture, food security, and sustainability. While every major stakeholder group in the West has recognized that restoration is critical to stem the massive and continuous loss of rangeland, establishment of functional plant communities on arid rangeland following disturbance is difficult and failure rates are high. Although ecologists and managers have been aggressively working towards improving our ability to establish plant communities, work to date has largely been pursued as a series of unlinked, site-specific studies. Researchers lack a systems framework for developing general principles, identifying key knowledge gaps and directing future research and management. The broad goal of this project is to develop, validate and deploy a systems approach for improving seedling establishment in Wyoming big sagebrush ecosystems. The core of this projects framework uses life-cycle population models to link plant population dynamics to management. To address their goal they are: 1) Conducting demographic and 2) sensitivity analysis to determine which life stage transitions most limit seedling recruitment along major ecological gradients; 3) Identifying key ecological processes limiting demographic transitions; 4) Developing tools to manage ecological processes limiting these transitions; and 5) Integrating the findings into education and economic assessment programs aimed at enhancing adoption of ecologically-based restoration. Restoring functional plant communities on arid rangeland following disturbance is a long-standing, serious and complex problem. Developing and adopting a systems approach that can organize and direct seedling establishment research is essential if rangeland professionals are to make continuous and measured advancements in management. An Integrated Multi-tactic Approach for Managing Native Weevil Pests of Multiple U.S. Fruit Crops by Cesar Rodriguez-Saona

(F) Other (Potato Breeding Research in FY 2011)
Potato breeding and variety development for specific high-value specialty areas. Collaborative multi-site selection, evaluation, and variety development work among states and with USDA-ARS. The overall goal is to develop an array of attractive, highly productive, disease- and insect-resistant potato varieties that can be employed by small and large potato producers to enhance marketing opportunities, farm sustainability and grower profits. The project focuses on classical breeding techniques, but also includes marker-assisted selection for resistance to internal defects, diseases, and insect pests. A coordinated, team approach for helping to solve current and future problems encountered by the U.S. potato industry.

Release and commercialization of new potato varieties that will directly benefit all segments of the potato industry and all US producing regions. The strategy is to identify traits, make crosses, and apply selection pressures that will increase the probability of developing varieties that can be produced and utilized more efficiently than existing varieties. Goals include high yield, improved processing quality, genetic resistance to major pests and diseases, higher levels of resistance to stresses, increased nutrient use efficiency, improved human nutritional value, and high tuber quality, and reduced use of pesticides, water, and fertilizers. This is accompanied by myriad minor objectives involving germplasm enhancement, germplasm production, selection procedures, disease and stress screening, variety trial design and conduct, seed increases, management studies, and commercial evaluations.

One Agricultural and Resource Policy Research

The design of socially responsible public policy requires a comprehensive, rigorous, and timely assessment of its economic, environmental and social impacts. This project will address this need by establishing a Partnership for Agricultural and Resource Policy Research. The mission of the Partnership will be to provide the highest quality, objective economic analysis of critical public policy issues on agriculture, natural resources, environment, food systems, nutrition, and technology. The Partnership represents an institutional innovation towards productive regional collaborations between Land Grant institutions.

The overarching goals are: to help policymakers and stakeholders understand how policies affect the economy, natural resources, the environment, and society; and to provide innovate research focusing on specialty crops, conservation and consumer issues, with an emphasis on the Western United States. The Partnership will cover the four emphasis areas specified in the NIFA request. Our primary approach will be to conduct multi-disciplinary research rooted in economic theory and quantitative methods, capitalizing on the policy experience and expertise of faculty at the two institutions. In the first year, the team will use existing modeling capability to address current policy analysis; in the second year, models will be integrated into a more unified framework for policy analysis. An innovative, comprehensive education and dissemination program complements the policy research. Building on strong institutional support, this Partnership represents a long-term commitment to policy research and education. The Partnership will provide value to society by supporting informed decision making and reducing the uncertainties associated with future policies.

The McIntire-Stennis Cooperative Forestry Research Act (M/S) grant is used to assist all states in carrying out a program of state forestry research at state forestry schools and colleges and developing a trained pool of forest scientists capable of conducting needed forestry research, which should include: (1) ecological restoration;

- (2) catastrophe management;
- (3) valuing and trading ecological services;
- (4) energy conservation, biomass energy and bio-based materials development;
- (5) forest fragmentation;
- (6) carbon sequestration and climate change; and
- (7) ways of fostering healthy forests and a globally competitive forest resources sector.

Additionally, M/S funds should be allocated to the following high priority issues:

- (1) science of integration (ecosystem or landscape approaches including interdisciplinary multi-state projects);
- (2) forest ecosystem services;
- (3) human attitudes and behaviors;
- (4) conflict, uncertainty, and decision-making;
- (5) technological advancements (biotechnology, nanotechnology and geospatial technology), productivity, and forest applications; and
- (6) urban ecosystems.

Funding is provided to the States through a formula-based allocation process which depends on several factors. First, a base amount (approximately $25,000) is allocated to each State; however, this base amount is excluded from the formula. The balance of funding to each State is determined through a ranking process and dependent upon the following three factors:

- (1) forty percent of the remaining balance is allocated based on the area of non-Federal commercial forest land;
- (2) forty percent is allocated based upon the volume of timber cut annually from stock; and
- (3) twenty percent is allocated based on the total expenditures for forestry research from non-Federal sources.

Funds are then distributed to the eligible State-certified Institutions within the State as determined by the Governors designee. Applications may be submitted by State-certified Schools of Forestry as stipulated in accordance with Section 2 of Public Law 87-788, McIntire-Stennis Act. Section 7412 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 amended Section 2 of the McIntire-Stennis Cooperative Forestry Act (16 U.S.C. 582a-1) to include the 1890 Land-grant Institutions and made this change effective October 1, 2008.

(1) Approved CSREES M/S Projects, CSREES will fund the M/S Program for authorized activities. Funds must be expended on approved M/S projects.

(2) Cost-Sharing and Matching funds are mandated in Section 4 of the McIntire-Stennis Act (16 U.S.C. 582a-3). 7 CFR 3015.50-56 prescribes the standards applicable to determining the allowability of cash and in-kind contributions for matching funds. Matching funds also must be expended on approved M/S projects. Formula grant recipients are to provide matching (as detailed in Part VIII.A.6 of the Formula Grant Opportunity (FGO)), either cash or in-kind, on a dollar-for-dollar basis (100 percent) on all Federal funds allotted. Eligible institutions located in insular areas (i.e., American Samoa, Guam, Micronesia, Northern Marianas, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands) are not required to match amounts at or below $100,000, if the allocation is below $200,000.

(3) Waiver of Indirect Costs. Only applicable to Insular Areas (i.e., American Samoa, Guam, Micronesia, Northern Marianas, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands) for amounts at or below $200,000.

(4) Indirect Costs and Tuition Remission. In accordance with Section 1473 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3319), indirect costs and tuition remission are unallowable as an M/S formula grant or matching expenditure. Fully discretionary.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: $32,934,000 was appropriated by Congress for the McIntire-Stennis Cooperative Forestry Research Program. After deducting administrative costs and other assessments, the total amount going to States was $31,110,110 with a corresponding match of $30,833,716. All these funds supported a total of more than 700 projects of which 157 are new. Accomplishments include:

1. Low nutrient availability limits growth rates on many forest plantations in the southeastern United States. North Carolina State University's nutrition research on southern pine plantations including weed control and tillage has established prescriptive fertilization rates. Over 1.5 million acres of southern pine plantations are now fertilized annually. One year of fertilization results in the production of at least an additional 30 million tons of southern pine wood. Diagnostic tools, prescriptions, and response information are now available and play a key role in the adoption of and wise use of fertilizers as a silvicultural tool.

2. Currently used wood adhesives are predominately derived from non-renewable petrochemicals and may contain hazardous formaldehyde. Oregon State University has successfully developed an environmentally friendly wood adhesive from soybean flour. The adhesive is currently used in the commercial production of interiorly used plywood panels. One of the adhesives has been successfully commercialized for production of plywood and particleboard in a number of plants.

The emission of volatile organic compounds and hazardous air pollutants in each plant has been reduced by 90% by replacing the urea-formaldehyde resin with this new alternative adhesive. It is estimated that plywood plants adopting this technology consumed about 26,000,000 lbs of soy flour in one year and that particleboard plants will consume additional 15,000,000 lbs of soy flour per year after its full conversion.

3. Accidental or diffuse release of pollutants from urban and industrial areas, including those resulting from widespread application of agrochemicals, clearly impinges on the quality of surface and ground water. Thus, it is important to develop cost-effective methods to cleanup contaminated water. The University of Massachusetts develops a novel and value-added avenue for forest thinnings and other wood wastes through basic understanding of their chemical and physical properties that promote the attenuation of pollutants (both organic and inorganic contaminants) from contaminated water. The results of this project suggest aromatic moieties and polarity of Aspen wood fibers play significant roles in polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) sorption and desorption. Aspen wood fibers are a potential sorbent for organic contaminants from waste water. Chemical modifications of the wood matrix can effectively increase its sorption and cleanup efficiency.

4. As systemic problems of declining environmental quality due to impacts of modern intensive row-crop agriculture continue to escalate from local to regional scales in the Midwestern U.S., there is a need to integrate more holistic, integrated and ecologically-based approaches to producing food, fiber, and fuel while sustaining communities and economies. Iowa State University research is demonstrating that diverse perennial vegetation (native prairie plantings, encroached and restored oak savannas) provide important ecological functions related to the uptake and cycling of water, nutrients, and carbon, and that their incorporation into annual cropping systems can reduce losses of key resources and enhance overall sustainability of agricultural landscapes.

These results are providing a scientific basis for strategically incorporating perennial plants into agricultural systems to achieve multiple environmental and societal benefits, thereby serving as a guideline for developing more effective agricultural policies that take into account the ecosystem services afforded by diverse, perennial-based agroecosystems.

5. Increasing dependency on fossil power is true in the forest products industry both in the field (harvest) and in the mill (product conversion). The University of Georgia, using Langdale Industries Inc. as the experimental site, examined the efficacy of economically chipping unmerchantable forest understorey and logging slash for biomass conversion to fuel for co-generation facilities. Chipping unmerchantable understorey and logging slash did not negatively impact round wood production, but provided a source of chips to the mill below average market prices for fuel chips. The energy balance for these chips had a ratio of 44:1 delivered to the mill, one of the best ratios for any feedstock. Using mill residues and these fuel chips, Langdale's OSB mill is now fossil-fuel independent. Fiscal Year 2012: $32,934,000 was appropriated by Congress for the Program for FY 2012. The net amount awarded to support the different programs was $31,077,985. Each recipient of the grant is expected to match the grant amount 100%. For this year the actual amount is not yet available.

Accomplishments have not yet been reported. Fiscal Year 2013: 2013 Appropriations have not been approved but it is expected to be similar to 2012 appropriations based on Appropriations Committee deliberations.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: Quantifying Forest Ecosystem Structure and Functioning Related To Changes In Air Quality In The Southern United States: Ecosystem productivity is affected by many environmental factors. Stresses induced by changes in both the physical and chemical climate of the Earth may have a dramatic effect on the growth and function of southern forested ecosystems. The overall goal of this project is to determine the effects of changes in air quality on forested and associated ecosystems structure and function. Results will provide critically needed data on physiological and growth responses of mature trees and associated herbaceous species in the field under a range of ambient air pollution exposure regimes. To meet the overall goal three major objectives have been formulated:

1. Delineate the exposure-response relationship between selected air pollutants and growth of mature forest trees in the eastern United States.
2. Determine the effects of air pollutants on the structure and function of select native plant communities.
3. Estimation of carbon storage and air pollution removal by the urban forest and comparison among forest types in a small, expanding southern metropolis.

Improving Profitability of Forest Operations in The Southern United States Through Incorporation of Ecosystem Services:

This project focuses on examining the feasibility of providing ecosystem services by two Southern U.S. forestry stakeholder groups: non-industrial private forest landowners (NIPF) and primary forest products manufacturers. The study will examine willingness of NIPF landowners to provide ecosystem services such as game and non-game wildlife habitat, recreational leasing, wetland banking, and carbon sequestration. Also, it will determine capacity of primary forest products manufacturers to participate in biomass and carbon markets by utilizing logging residues for bioenergy production and reduction of carbon dioxide (CO₂) emissions. Two mail surveys will be conducted at the beginning of the study to determine landowner willingness to provide ecosystem services and capacity of Southern mills to utilize logging residues and reduce CO₂ emissions. An additional mail survey will be conducted in the study mid-term to examine feasibility of incorporating utilization of woody residues into bioenergy clusters.

New Systems For Controlling Transportation Costs in The Pacific Northwest's Bioenergy Supply Chain

Forest residues, agricultural residues and urban waste have been identified as three of the large sources of raw material available for bioenergy conversion in the USA. Perlack et al. (2005) note that over a billion dry tons per year would be available from forest and agricultural sources and from recycled wood from urban waste. OREAP notes that, although investment in forest and other biomass conversion to energy will lead to multiple environmental, economic and social benefits, "the high cost of gathering and transporting [this raw material] to an energy conversion facility continues to be [a] barrier to economic biomass development." Oregon is not alone in having such concerns. The Roadmap identified "reducing the cost of harvesting, transportation, and storage" as a major barrier to overcome in biomass feedstock systems. The long-term goal of this project is to remove one of the barriers to economic biomass development by reducing biomass transportation costs. This will be achieved by adopting a systems. Fiscal Year 2012: Synthesis of Novel Biomass-Based Polymeric Materials For Composite Application: Abundant and renewable biomass provides a great potential for the discovery and development of novel materials and polymers. These sustainable materials can serve as important substitutes to replace petroleum-based chemicals and products. Chemical synthesis of carbohydrates-based biomaterials has attracted substantial amount of attention associated with energy production. Furan resin can be produced by polymerization of furans with phenol or urea. However, the production of furan through hydrolysis and dehydration of biomass is limited by low yield and lack of selectivity. We propose a "Synthesis of novel biomass-based polymeric materials for composite application" through one-pot innovative polymerization system with urea and hemicellulose stream, will overcome this bottleneck and efficiently synthesize new polymer for potential composite application. The long term goal of this research is to discover and develop value added biomaterials and polymers from biomass that can be used as green adhesive and resin with non-emission of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) in composite application. The specific objective in this proposal is to investigate the condensation reaction among urea, furfural and xylose and to identify the mechanism of their polymerization. Our central hypothesis is that hemiacetal group on xylose and aldehyde group on furfural can act as functional groups to replace formaldehyde and react with urea for polymerization. One-pot polymerization of urea and hemicellulose stream is an innovative approach to advance the furan polymer synthesis that traditionally requires conversion of sugars to furfural. At the completion of this project, we expect new hemicellulose based polymeric materials will be developed with low VOCs emissions, and could replace the petroleum-based urea-formaldehyde polymer.

Factors Affecting the Durability of Engineered Wood Composites:
Increasing the durability of EWC offers real challenges and impacts not only companies which manufacture such products, but also the consumer who desires a long-lived product, especially in housing. Increasing the durability and better understanding the impacts of moisture, temperature, and biotic organisms on composite material will help us to create better demand for Mississippi's most economically important industrial feedstock, wood. The relationship between decay rate and strength loss in wood is a complex one hindered by our ability to accurately assess decay rate, especially using non-destructive evaluation (NDE) techniques. This proposal examines the factors affecting the durability of basic requirements and impact of environmental factors will be used in developing a model for composite durability.

Evaluation of Silvicultural Practices and Development of Growth and Yield Models To Enhance Value of Southern Pine Plantation Management:
Georgia had 24.2 million acres of timberland available for commercial use, which was 65% of the total land area of the state. Georgia's forest resources had a total economic annual impact of $26 billion with an annual direct economic impact of $16.1 billion. Forestry directly created over 67,000 jobs statewide and supported in excess of 150,000 total jobs Pine plantations constitute 27% or 6.5 million acres of the state's commercial forest land and will become increasingly important as a source or raw materials for the forest products industry and for other uses such as wildlife habitat, bio-energy production, recreation, and carbon sequestration. Knowledge of how pine plantations respond to different silvicultural treatments and regimes in regards to productivity, product distribution, and quality over a rotation period will aid in developing effective and efficient silvicultural prescriptions. This project will improve knowledge of silvicultural and genetic treatments impacts on loblolly and slash pine plantation performance by analysis of unique, large regional studies that test numerous combinations of silvicultural and genetic treatments over a range of sites. Fiscal Year 2013: To be provided by Program at a future date.

Section 3(d)(1) of the Hatch Act of 1887 (7 U.S.C. 361c(d)(1)) states, with regard to institutions in the 50 states, no allotment shall be made to a State under subsection (b) or (c), and no payments from the allotment shall be made to a State, in excess of the amount that the State makes available out of non-Federal funds for agricultural research and for the establishment and maintenance of facilities for the performance of the research. However, section 3(d)(4) of the Hatch Act of 1887 (7 U.S.C. 361c(d)(4)) provides that Effective beginning for fiscal year (FY) 2003, in lieu of the matching funds requirement of paragraph (1), the insular areas of American Samoa, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, Micronesia, Northern Mariana Islands, and the Virgin Islands of the United States shall provide matching funds from non-Federal sources in an amount equal to not less than fifty percent (50%) of the formula funds distributed by the Secretary to each of the insular areas, respectively, under this section. ... The Secretary may waive the matching fund requirement [of fifty percent (50%)] for any fiscal year (FY) if the Secretary determines that the government of the insular area will be unlikely to meet the matching requirement for the fiscal year (FY).

Section 7403 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 amended section 3(d)(4) of the Hatch Act to subject the District of Columbia to the same matching requirements as the insular 1862 Land-Grant Institutions upon enactment (May 22, 2008).

NIFA may consider and approve matching waivers submitted by State Agricultural Experiment Stations in the Insular Areas and the District of Columbia.

(3) Indirect Costs and Tuition Remission

In accordance with section 1473 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3319), indirect costs and tuition remission are unallowable as Hatch MRF formula grant expenditures.

Section 3(d)(1) of the Hatch Act of 1887 (7 U.S.C. 361c(d)(1))states, with regard to institutions in the 50 states, no allotment shall be made to a State under subsection (b) or (c), and no payments from the allotment shall be made to a State, in excess of the amount that the State makes available out of non-Federal funds for agricultural research and for the establishment and maintenance of facilities for the performance of the research. However, section 3(d)(4) of the Hatch Act of 1887 (7 U.S.C. 361c(d)(4)) provides that Effective beginning for fiscal year (FY) 2003, in lieu of the matching funds requirement of paragraph (1), the insular areas of American Samoa, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, Micronesia, Northern Mariana Islands, and the Virgin Islands of the United States shall provide matching funds from non-Federal sources in an amount equal to not less than fifty percent (50%) of the formula funds distributed by the Secretary to each of the insular areas, respectively, under this section. ... The Secretary may waive the matching fund requirement [of fifty percent (50%)] for any fiscal year (FY) if the Secretary determines that the government of the insular area will be unlikely to meet the matching requirement for the fiscal year (FY).

Section 7403 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 amended section 3(d)(4) of the Hatch Act to subject the District of Columbia to the same matching requirements as the insular 1862 Land-Grant Institutions upon enactment (May 22, 2008).

Applicant Eligibility:

(A) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Regular Research)

Hatch Act funds are provided for agricultural research on an annual basis to the State Agricultural Experiment Stations (SAESs) which were established under the direction of the college or university or agricultural departments of the college or university in each State in accordance with the act approved July 2, 1862 (7 U.S.C. 301 et seq.); or such other substantially equivalent arrangements as any State shall determine.

Award recipients may subcontract to organizations not eligible to apply for funding provided that such arrangements are necessary to complete the project.

(B) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Multistate Research)

Hatch Act funds are provided for agricultural research on an annual basis to the State Agricultural Experiment Stations (SAESs) which were established under the direction of the college or university or agricultural departments of the college or university in each State in accordance with the act approved July 2, 1862 (7 U.S.C. 301 et seq.); or such other substantially equivalent arrangements as any State shall determine.

Award recipients may subcontract to organizations not eligible to apply for funding provided that such arrangements are necessary to complete the project.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Funds under the Hatch Act are allocated in accordance with the statutory formula stated in the Act to the State agricultural experiment stations of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Micronesia, and Northern Mariana Islands. These institutions have been identified and declared eligible by their respective State legislatures.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

All Formula Grant Opportunities (FGOs) are published on the Agencies website and Grants.gov. Applicants must complete the Grants.gov registration process. Please see the following Grants.gov link for more information: http://www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Pre-award form submissions must be submitted to the Hatch as a new application on the www.grants.gov website. As noted previously, these application packages complement, rather than duplicate, the information collected via the Plan of Work (POW) system and the Current Research Information System (CRIS), and together satisfy all legislative and regulatory pre-award requirements.

Section 202 of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (AREERA) amended the Smith-Lever Act and the Hatch Act to require approved plans of work for agricultural extension and research activities at 1862 Land-Grant Institutions in order to receive Federal funding. Therefore, each 1862 Land-Grant Institution must submit both a 5-Year Plan of Work Update (i.e., submitted each year as an update) and an Annual Report of Accomplishments and Results. Both reports were due by April 1.

Specific project details and pertinent information should be entered in the Current Research Information System (CRIS) as in prior years. CRIS is the U.S. Department of Agriculture's documentation and reporting system for ongoing agricultural, food and nutrition, and forestry research and education. CRIS contains over 30,000 descriptions of current, publicly-supported research and education activities. This work is sponsored or conducted by the USDA research agencies, the State agricultural experiment stations, the State Land-Grant Institutions and universities, State schools of forestry, cooperating schools of veterinary medicine, and USDA grant recipients. See Part VI.C. of the Formula Grant Opportunity (FGO) for specific CRIS requirements. An environmental impact statement is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. State Five (5) year plans of work must be submitted to and approved by NIFA before funds are released. Applications should be submitted as outlined in the FGO. Applications must follow the instructions provided per Grants.Gov. Applicants are required to submit applications in response to both an interim FGO and a final FGO. The final FGO reflects the final formula allocations for the current fiscal year (FY).

Award Procedure:

The Office of Planning and Accountability and CRIS Office will notify the OEP Financial Operations Branch regarding each institutions compliance with the Plan of Work reporting requirements [i.e., Five (5) Year Plan of Work Update and an Annual Report of Accomplishments and Results]. If all current program and administrative requirements have been met by the eligible institution, funding will continue to be released on a quarterly basis. The OEP Financial Operations Branch will notify the institutions when all requirements have been met or approved.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 30 to 60 days. Section :094 - Deadlines:

Dates for specific deadlines are announced in the FGO each fiscal year (FY).

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Not applicable, each year of funding is awarded as a new grant.

These funds are designated as the Multistate Research Fund, State Agricultural Experiment Stations. Funds are allocated on a prorata basis and allocations are adjusted to support national and regional projects. These projects and their associated budgets are reviewed and approved annually. A matching fund requirement exists for this Formula Grant Opportunity.

For the FY 2011 Formula Grant Opportunity, $ 53,473,757 was available for project grant awards.

NIFA received a total of 57 applications requesting a total of $53,473,757 in FY 2011.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: (A) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Regular Research)

Example 1. Enhancing dairy food safety by addressing bovine mastitis

Objectives:

- 1) Characterize host mechanisms associated with mastitis susceptibility and resistance.
- 2) Characterize and manipulate virulence factors of mastitis pathogens for enhancing host defense.
- 3) Assess and apply new technologies to advance mastitis control, milk quality and dairy food safety to improve animal well-being.

Staphylococcus aureus is a major cause of hospital-borne infections, food poisoning, skin abscesses and clinical mastitis. Increased antibiotic resistance has driven interest in new mechanisms to contain the pathogen. Studies have generated an in-vitro model for the study of immune evasion by intracellular S. aureus and that the immune response of the cow is different if the pathogen is outside the cell as opposed to intracellular infection.

A previously unidentified vulnerability for immunotherapy during S. aureus infections was identified. The researchers found that bacterial antigens in bovine dendritic cells regulates immune memory response and can improve protection by vaccines.

NSAID treatment during clinical mastitis may help improve animal well-being through pain mitigation and this is not currently a widely adopted protocol.

Example 2. Diversity of soilborne micro-organisms.

Objectives:

- 1) Examine various biocontrol agents as seed treatments, in-furrow treatments or potting mix amendments.
- 2) Examine cultural practices effect on soilborne pathogens and plant growth.
- 3) Examine genetic diversity in Rhizoctonia solani in natural and agricultural ecosystems.

Rhizoctonia solani is a common soilborne pathogen of seedling vegetables and other plant species. Biological control agents can be effective in suppressing R. solani, but the specific conditions for efficacy have been elusive. Annual plant losses, especially transplants, due to soilborne plant pathogens such as Rhizoctonia, can be as high as 10%. Rhizoctonia has a wide host range and can survive in soil for long periods on organic matter without crop plants, and plant genetic resistance is lacking.

This project is part of a multistate Hatch project that led to an invited book chapter.

Various cover crops residues incorporated into soil significantly impacted plant growth, Rhizoctonia disease rating of broccoli, and population R. solani in soil. Fallow soil with no crop residue had the lowest pathogen levels, followed by hairy vetch. Crimson clover was a better treatment than mustards which are often considered to be biofumigants.

Example 3: Organic and conventional pest control in western orchards

Objectives:

- 1) Enhance pheromones for mating disruption of key pests.
- 2) Improve the efficacy of artificial chemical signals delivery systems for orchard pests.
- 3) Speed the adoption and integration of new pesticides into comprehensive insect management programs for conventional and organic systems.
- 4) Optimizing natural enemies in and near orchards.
- 5) Development new monitoring methods and predictive models to reduce pesticide inputs in orchard systems.
- 6) Coordinate efforts with colleagues in the eastern U.S.
- 7) Develop educational programs to increase adoption of research discoveries.

Studies addressed Plum Curculio, Obliquebanded Leafroller, internal Lepidopterans, and Apple Maggot. Insect damage levels at harvest were up to similar in the treatment with mating disruption as opposed to the standard grower treatments, but less the cost of one fewer full block sprays for Plum Curculio management as a result of the "trap tree" method in the Advanced IPM blocks, saving a substantial cost for pesticide.

Example 4: Food safety compliance for retail self-service food bars

Training grocery store employees in hot/cold self-serve bars for food safety is extremely important since no training is currently available except SuperSafeMark and ServeSafe. These training standards do not address hot/cold self-serve bars. These bars are popular with consumers and the trend is growing. Online training will be developed for the need.

Objectives:

- 1) Assess the current state of food safety compliance and practices in self-serve hot/cold bars in grocery stores.
- 2) Develop training modules to improve food handling behavior and conduct onsite training for retail food managers.
- 3) Re-assess compliance following training and revise the training modules based on the assessment.
- 4) Develop online educational training materials specific for hot/cold self-serve bars and make this training available for all grocery stores and develop information for consumers, in the form of signs and pamphlets, which describe best practices for reducing risks at self-serve bars in grocery stores

Researchers conducted a third-party audit of the prepared foods area for cleanliness of the facility, equipment and food storage, incoming product handling, employees knowledge

Managers had a median score of 83.4% pre-training and 93.8% post training. Employees had a median score of 70.6% pre-training and 76.3% post-training. Scores of 74% or lower are not high enough to pass the SaveMark certification. Several questions were screened out as low performing. Despite improved knowledge, behavior did not improve. Behavioral changes were more closely related to the manager's knowledge and behavior. It also suggests that even though the knowledge was not being transferred, the managers' behaviors were being imitated.

(B) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Multistate Research Fund):

1) This project will integrate basic and applied strategies to develop and implement methods for control, elimination, and prevention of Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Syndrome Virus (PRRS) at the local, regional, and national level. Results on mechanisms of airborne transmission of respiratory pathogens, especially PRRS virus, resulted in a change in knowledge regarding methods and approaches for prevention of PRRS disease in susceptible pigs, and impact or probable impact of various meteorological variables on the likelihood of transmission. Because of the knowledge that was generated, end users, namely veterinarians and producers, have change behaviors and actions to implement new measures of biosecurity that include air filtration that are demonstrated to help prevent disease transmission. The demonstration that PRRS disease can be prevented without use of vaccines provides new hope to the swine industry for control of this dreaded disease.

2) This project characterized insect-soybean interactions and their impact on plant growth, grain quality, and yield. The project also developed and validated tactics for management of key soybean insects. The introduction of resistant varieties will reduce grower inputs by protecting yield and reducing outputs for insecticides. As a further result of reducing insecticide use, resistant varieties will lessen human exposure and non-target impacts, and eliminate or slow the formation of insecticide resistance. Management of soybean aphid through the use of aphid-resistant varieties may also manage plant viruses through changes in aphid behavior. Further, host plant resistance is highly compatible with biological, cultural and chemical control of pests, and as such is a key component of soybean integrated pest management (IPM) programs.

3) This project: develops and evaluates blight resistant chestnut trees for food and fiber through traditional and molecular techniques that incorporate knowledge of the chestnut genome; evaluates biological approaches for controlling chestnut blight from the ecological to the molecular level by utilizing knowledge of the fungal and hypovirus genomes to investigate the mechanisms that regulate virulence and hypovirulence in C. parasitica; and investigates chestnut reestablishment in orchard and forest settings with special consideration of the current and historical knowledge of the species and its interaction with other pests and pathogens. Expected program outcomes include new chestnut cultivars that may increase regional production and development of marketable chestnut products.

4) This project is to improve the sustainability of livestock and poultry production in the U.S. This project: develops preliminary models of each animal industry that describe its cumulative ecological risk, energy flows or ecological footprint as a dynamic, nonlinear function of the stocks, flows and transformations of matter and energy comprising confined animal feeding operation (CAFO) systems; continues the development and performance evaluation of process-level strategies and tactics to reduce environmental pollution at the process level from confined animal feeding operations. This work will include

- 1) management tools, strategies and systems for land application of animal manures and effluents that optimize efficient, environmentally friendly utilization of nutrients and are compatible with sustained land and water quality;
- 2) physical, chemical and biological treatment processes in engineered and natural systems for management of manures and other wastes;
- 3) methodology, technology, and management practices to reduce odors, gases, airborne microflora, particulate matter, and other airborne emissions from animal production systems; and 4) feeding systems for their potential to alter the excretion of environmentally-sensitive nutrients by livestock.

5) This project addresses the ecology and management of European Corn Borer and other lepidopteran pests of corn. The project investigates the relationship between transgenic maize and the agricultural environment; adapts integrated pest management (IPM) systems for the changing pest complexes in maize; and investigates ecology, evolution, genetics, and behavior of pest Lepidoptera. Fiscal Year 2012: (A) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Regular Research): Information is not yet available. The reporting period ends December 2012 reports are due within 90 days.

(B) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Multistate Research Fund):

1) This project will: assess the extent and nature of injury caused brown marmorated stink bug; develop monitoring methods for brown marmorated stink bug; determine the potential for biological control of the brown marmorated stink bug; determine the toxicity and field efficacy of selected insecticides for brown marmorated stink bug control in field crops, fruit, nursery and vegetable; develop best management practices for the brown marmorated stink bug; and deliver research based IPM recommendations to growers.

The project addresses the general goals of improving biological control through: conservation of existing natural enemies; augmentation programs involving repeated rearing and release; introduction of new natural enemies against invasive pests (Classical Biological Control); and evaluation and education.

3) This project addresses animal genome research. The project works to create shared genomic tools and reagents and sequence information to enhance the understanding and discovery of genetic mechanisms affecting traits of interest; facilitate the development and sharing of animal populations and the collection and analysis of new, unique and interesting phenotypes; and develop, integrate and implement bioinformatics resources to support the discovery of genetic mechanisms that underlie traits of interest. The project investigates the ecology and management of European Corn Borer and other lepidopteran pests of corn; investigates the relationship between transgenic maize and the agricultural environment; adapts IPM systems for the changing pest complexes in maize; investigates ecology, evolution, genetics, and behavior of pest Lepidoptera; and employs electronic delivery methods to disseminate information related to sustainable management of Lepidopteran pests.

The project is: developing and recommending to beekeepers "best practices" for varroa mite control based on currently available methods and strategies for mite management; evaluating the role and causative mechanisms of parasitic mites and pathogens such as viruses, protozoa and bacteria in honey bee colony deaths; determining the effects of pesticides and other environmental chemicals on honey bee colony health; determining how environmental factors, including nutrition and management practices affect honey bee colony health; determining the effects of interactions among various factors affecting honey bee colony health; coordinating research and extension efforts related to bee colony health; facilitating, through research and extension activities, the development of industry-based honey bee stock selection, maintenance and production programs that demonstrably incorporate traits that confer resistance to pests, parasites and pathogens; and focusing on non-Apis bees, their conservation, pathology, susceptibility to pesticides, and their contribution to crop pollination including economic value. Fiscal Year 2013: (A) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Regular Research) Specific details will be provided by Program Unit at a future date.

(B) The Hatch Act of 1887 (Multistate Research Fund):

1) This project will research flies impacting livestock, poultry, and food safety. The research will: characterize dispersal and population biology of stable flies and house flies, and develop monitoring methods for use in indoor and outdoor environments; establish extent of fly-borne dispersal of human and animal pathogens; and improve management tactics for stable flies and house flies.

2) This project addresses the adaptation, quality, and management of sustainable cellulosic biofuel. The research will: compare cropping systems such as annual, perennial, cool-season, and warm-season cellulosic crops and combinations with oil seed crops for biofuel potential in representative environments of the western region; measure biomass feedstock production, energy conservation, and economics with various management treatments at diverse locations in the region; determine production and economic sustainability and carbon sequestration of dedicated biofuel feedstocks; develop regional based bioenergy and transitional grants to expand resources; and explore regional private-public partnerships with the emerging biorefinery industry.

3) This project focuses on integrated management of Russian wheat aphid and other cereal arthropod pests. The project will: develop integrated management strategies for cereal aphid and other arthropod pests in small grains to improve economic viability of small-grain cropping systems while maintaining environmental quality and facilitate research into improved integrated pest management approaches at the field and landscape level to manage cereal arthropod pests.

4) This project researches reproductive performance in domestic ruminants. The project will discover and translate molecular, metabolic, genomic, endocrine, and immunologic mechanisms that influence testicular and ovarian function, reproductive behavior, conception rate, embryo and fetal development, attainment of puberty, and effects of climate/season on reproductive patterns of domestic ruminants.

5) This project addresses the assessment of the carbon sequestration potential of common agricultural systems on benchmark soils. The project will: evaluate the effects of land use, crop rotation, tillage practice, soil texture, and ecosystem age/rotation duration on soil carbon concentration, content, and sequestration and related soil physical and chemical properties; quantify and understand the physical and chemical processes that relate to and control soil carbon sequestration; and investigate spatial variability issues associated with soil carbon content and sequestration.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: Evaluation Of The Nutritional And Medicinal Value Of Moringa Oleifera For Performance And Disease Control In Cows, Goats And Pigs -- Moringa oleifera is a tropical plant that contains a variety of phyto-chemicals that may have great potential as a source for non- antibiotic treatments for diseases like mastitis and as a growth and as a performance enhancing feed supplement for ruminants and other farm animals. The overall aim of this project is to further understand and characterize the nutritional and health benefits of Moringa -- specifically, inflammation/oxidant stress, immune modulation, and infectious disease.

Funds will support the study of structural, evolutionary and comparative genomics of reniform nematode (RN) and its interaction with plants by developing methodology to explore the nature of rDNA and any variation inherent in its structure of reniform nematode as well as genomic and transcriptome level composition of this devastating pest of cotton.

The funding for this project is intended to enhance a well-organized and research-based shellfish aquaculture program and outreach effort. The proposed project uses shellfish aquaculture techniques appropriate for prevailing conditions, establishes more organized oyster restoration efforts through aquaculture tools and determines water bodies suitable for continuous spawning grounds for oysters.

The research aim is to develop new processes that will contribute to providing a cheap source of nutritious foods and thus address the risks of food insecurity amongst the low income populace. Enzymatic hydrolysis is complex but cost effective methods of improving food nutritional quality. Therefore, the objective of this project is to use enzymatic hydrolysis to breakdown and converting some of the anti-nutritional factors in dry red kidney beans into valuable nutrients with health benefits when consumed. Fiscal Year 2012: The project will decode and profile the whole active genome of the whole plant of individual cultivated peanut groups, for the first time. Genes will be used for comparisons among peanut groups to identify absolute differences and similarities. Resulting genes common to all four peanut groups will be used to compare it to soybean and medicago genes, respectively, to determine and profile genes that are common to all these species and potentially to all or most of the legume species.

This project addresses program priority areas in Global Food Security and Hunger, and Climate Change. The specific knowledge areas include:

- (1) appraisal of soil resources,
- (2) soil, plant, water, nutrient relationships,
- (3) processes and transformation in soil, water and air,
- (4) weather and climate,
- (5) nutrient utilization,
- (6) economics of agricultural production and farm management,
- (7) management and agricultural sustainability,
- (8) pollution prevention and mitigation,
- (9) waste disposal, recycling and use,
- (10) communication, education and information delivery, and
- (11) domestic policy analysis.

Our overall goal is to assess soil microbial community dynamics in relation to nitrogen compositions, sequestration and biochemical processes in organic agriculture practices. This information will aid in the selection of organic agricultural systems/practices with enhanced or sustained biogeochemical process achieved when land is subsequently converted to organic agriculture practices.

It is proposed to develop and evaluate two systems of sustainable aquaculture to determine feasibility and merits for use by small farmers and limited-resource families to supplement their diets with home-grown animal protein and fresh vegetables. These systems will operate at two spatial/social scales: household, and small farm/community. The overriding goals for the research component of this project are to develop and evaluate several aquaculture/gardening systems. Fiscal Year 2013: Pending appropriations, pertinent details will be provided at a future date.

NATIONAL RESEARCH INITIATIVE COMPETITIVE GRANTS PROGRAM (NRI)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Competitive, Special and Facilities Research Grant Act, Section 2(2)(b), [7 U.S.C. 450i] , 7 U.S.C 450i.

OBJECTIVES:

To support research, education and extension grants that address key problems of national, regional and multistate importance in sustaining all components of agriculture (farming, ranching, forestry, aquaculture, rural communities, human nutrition and obesity, food and fiber processing, etc.) Providing this support to US agriculture requires that the NRI advance fundamental. Building on these discoveries will necessitate new efforts in education and extension that deliver science-based knowledge to people, allowing them to make informed practical decisions. All grants were awarded on a competitive basis.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

NIFA Competitive Programs Unit administers the NRI. The purpose of the NRI Competitive Grants Program was to support research grants and integrated research, extension, and education grants that address key problems of National, regional, and multi-state importance in sustaining all components of agriculture (farming, ranching, forestry including urban and agroforestry, aquaculture, rural communities, human nutrition, processing, etc.). Providing this support requires that NRI advances fundamental sciences in support of agriculture and coordinates opportunities to build on these discoveries. Building on these discoveries will necessitate new efforts in education and extension that deliver science-based knowledge to people, allowing them to make informed practical decisions. Hence, the NRI accepted applications for fundamental research, mission-linked research, and integrated research, extension, and education projects. However, applicants should know that the NRI utilized no more than twenty-two percent (22%) of available funds to support integrated projects and that these funds were not distributed uniformly, but targeted to specific priorities. Targeted priorities for integrated projects were clearly identified within the detailed descriptions of program offerings [see Part II, E of the Fiscal Year (FY) 08 Request for Applications (RFAs)]. Funds may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research spaces (including energy retrofitting); purchase or installations of fixed equipment in such spaces; or planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

For research projects, the eligibility requirements for the NRI were as follows: except where otherwise prohibited by law, State agricultural experiment stations, all colleges and universities, other research institutions and organizations, Federal agencies, national laboratories, private organizations or corporations, and individuals were eligible to apply for and to receive a competitive grant. The Agricultural Research Enhancement Awards (AREA) have some notable differences from these requirements. See Part II C, 2. of Fiscal Year (FY) 08 Requests for Applications (RFAs).

For integrated projects, the eligibility requirements for the NRI were as follows: except where otherwise prohibited by law, State agricultural experiment stations, all colleges and universities, research foundations maintained by colleges or universities, private research organizations with established and demonstrated capacities to perform research or technology transfer, Federal research agencies, and national laboratories were eligible to apply for and receive a competitive grant. The bridge grants have some notable differences from these requirements. See Part II, C, 3(b) of Fiscal Year (FY) 08 RFAs for details.

Unsolicited applications were not considered and applications from scientists at non-United States organizations were not accepted. Award recipients may subcontract to organizations not eligible to apply provided such organizations were necessary for the conduct of the project.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

For research grants eligibility includes State Agricultural Experiment Stations, U.S. colleges/universities, other U.S. research institutions and organizations, Federal agencies, national laboratories, private organizations or corporations, and individuals. For integrated research, education and extension grants eligibility includes State Agricultural Experiment Stations, U.S. colleges/universities, research foundations maintained by colleges or universities, private research organizations with established and demonstrated capacities to perform research or technology transfer, Federal research agencies and national laboratories. Proposals from scientists at non-U.S. organizations will not be considered for support.

Credentials/Documentation:

A Data Universal Number System (DUNS) number must be obtained - A DUNS number is a unique number that identifies an organization. It has been adopted by the Federal government to help track how Federal grant money is distributed. If your organization does not have a DUNS number, call the special Dun & Bradstreet hotline at 1-866-705-5711 to receive one free of charge. You will receive a DUNS number within several days of your request. Please note, individual proprietorships (i.e. farmers, ranchers) can request and receive a DUNS number, but must register with Grants.gov as an organization, not as an individual.

Registration with Central Contractor Registry (CCR) is required - The CCR is the central government repository for organizations working with the Federal government. If your organization is not already registered, identify the primary contact who should register your organization. When your organization registers with CCR, it will be required to designate an e-Business Point of Contact (e-Business POC). The e-Business POC authorizes individuals to submit grant applications on behalf of the organization and creates a special password called a Marketing Partner ID Number (M-PIN) to verify individuals authorized to submit grant applications for the organization. Visit the CCR Web site at <http://www.ccr.gov> to begin this process. It may take several days to collect the information needed for your organizations registration. The CCR Assistance Center can be reached at 888-227-2423. This information collection is approved under OMB Control No. 0524-0039, NIFA Application Kit for Research and Extension Programs.

Applicants must furnish the information required in the RFAs. Successful applicants recommended for funding must furnish the information and assurances requested during the award documentation process. These include, but were not limited to the following:

Organizational Management Information - Specific management information relating to an applicant shall be submitted on a one (1) time basis, with updates on an as needed basis, as part of the responsibility determination prior to the award of a grant identified under this RFA, if such information has not been provided previously under this or another NIFA program. NIFA will provide copies of forms recommended for use in fulfilling these requirements as part of the preaward process. Although an applicant may be eligible based on its status as one of these entities, there were factors which may exclude an applicant from receiving Federal financial and nonfinancial assistance and benefits under this program (e.g., debarment or suspension of an individual involved or a determination that an applicant is not responsible based on submitted organizational management information). This information collection is approved under OMB Circular Control No. 0524-0026, Assurance of Compliance with the Department of Agriculture Regulations Assuring Civil Rights, Compliance and Organization Information.. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

All RFAs were published on the Agency's website and Grants.gov. Applicants must complete the Grants.gov registration process. Please see the following Grants.gov link for more information: http://www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. An environmental impact statement is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Applications should be submitted as outlined in the RFA. Applications must follow the instructions provided per Grants.gov and in the Agency guide to submitting applications via Grants.gov. This information collection is approved under OMB Control No. 0524-0039, NIFA Application Kit for Research and Extension Programs.

Award Procedure:

Applications were subjected to a system of peer and merit review in accordance with Section 103 of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7613) by a panel of qualified scientists and other appropriate persons who were specialists in the field covered by the proposal. Within the limit of funds available for such purpose, the NIFA Authorized Departmental Officer (ADO) shall make grants to those responsible, eligible applicants whose applications were judged most meritorious under the procedures set forth in the RFA. This information collection is approved under OMB Control No. 0524-0039, NIFA Application Kit for Research and Extension Programs. Reviewers were selected based upon training and experience in relevant scientific, extension, or education fields, taking into account the following factors: (a) The level of relevant formal scientific, technical education, or extension experience of the individual, as well as the extent to which an individual is engaged in relevant research, education, or extension activities; (b) the need to include as reviewers experts from various areas of specialization within relevant scientific, education, or extension fields; (c) the need to include as reviewers other experts (e.g., producers, range or forest managers/operators, and consumers) who can assess relevance of the applications to targeted audiences and to program needs; (d) the need to include as reviewers experts from a variety of organizational types (e.g., colleges, universities, industry, state and Federal agencies, private profit and non-profit organizations) and geographic locations; (e) the need to maintain a balanced composition of reviewers with regard to minority and female representation and an equitable age distribution; and (f) the need to include reviewers who can judge the effective usefulness to producers and the general public of each application.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this funding is to increase animal health and disease research activities at accredited State veterinary schools or colleges or agricultural experiment stations that conduct animal health and disease research.

To support animal health and disease research at eligible Schools and Colleges of Veterinary Medicine, and State Agricultural Experiment Stations whose purpose is to improve the health and productivity of food animals and horses through effective prevention, control or treatment of disease, reduction of losses from transportation and other hazards, and protect human health through control of animal diseases transmissible to people.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) requests applications for the FY 2009 formula grants authorized under authorized under section 1433 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) for the Animal Health and Disease Research (AHDR) Program. These grants are used to assist all states in carrying out a program of research activities designed to:

- (1) to meet expenses of conducting animal health and disease research, publishing and disseminating the results of such research, and contributing to the retirement of employees subject to the provisions of the Act of March 4, 1940 (54 Stat. 3940, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 331);
- (2) for administrative planning and direction; and
- (3) to purchase equipment and supplies necessary for conducting such research.

States are eligible for funds appropriated under this Act according to the following formula: One half of the State allotment will be distributed among the States in the proportion that the value of and income to producers from domestic livestock, poultry, and commercial aquaculture species in each State bears to the total value of and income to producers from domestic livestock, poultry, and commercial aquaculture species in all the States, based on the most current inventory of all cattle, sheep, swine, horses, poultry, and commercial aquaculture species published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The remainder of the State allotment will be distributed among the States in the proportion that the animal health and disease research capacity of the eligible institutions in each State bears to the total animal health and disease research capacity in all the States, as determined by NIFA.

Research on animal health and disease of food animals and horses conducted in eligible institutions under the following categories:

- (1) Infectious diseases;
- (2) internal and external parasites;
- (3) noninfectious diseases, toxins, poisons, transportation losses, predators and other hazards;
- (4) diseases and parasites of wildlife transmissible to food animals and horses; and
- (5) diseases and parasites of animals transmissible to people. (1) Approved NIFA AHDR Projects
AHDR Federal funding must be used on AHDR approved projects.

(2) Matching

The Secretary is authorized to make such payments in excess of $100,000 on the certificate of the appropriate official of the eligible institution having charge of the animal health and disease research for which such payments are to be made. If any eligible institution certified for receipt of matching funds fails to make available and budget for expenditure for animal health and disease research in any fiscal year sums at least equal to the amount for which it is certified, the difference between the Federal matching funds available and the funds made available to and budgeted for expenditure by the eligible institution shall be reapportioned by the Secretary among other eligible institutions of the same State, if there are any which qualify therefor, and, if there are none, the Secretary shall reapportion such difference among the other States.

(3) Indirect Costs and Tuition Remission

Fiscal Year 2013: As occurs each year under this program, it is anticipated that several dozen smaller ($1,000 to $30,000 each) projects will be funded during FY-2013. Because so many smaller studies are supported annually some aspect of each of the topic areas listed below are generally represented in one or more projects each program year. In accordance with the legal authority for this program, all of the following project topic areas relate directly to health and/or disease in agriculturally relevant animals: infectious disease, metabolic disease, genetic disease, infertility, toxicoses, host-pathogen interactions, Ecology and epidemiology of disease, pathophysiology/pathogenesis of disease, prevention, diagnosis, treatment and control of disease, genetic/genomic/proteomic mechanisms of disease, strategies and resources to enhance US animal agrosecurity capacities and capabilities against high consequence foreign and endemic animal disease.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Within guidelines established for the program as described in the Formula Grant Opportunity (FGO).

10.210 FOOD AND AGRICULTURAL SCIENCES NATIONAL NEEDS GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP GRANTS

National Needs Fellowship (NFF)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 7106 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act (FCEA) of 2008 (Public Law 110-246) amends the legislative authority for this program contained in Section 1417 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) (99 Stat. 1548; 7 U.S.C. 3152) to include the University of the District of Columbia as an eligible applicant. , 7 U.S.C 3152.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the NNF Grants Program is to train students for Masters and/or doctoral degrees and provide additional postdoctoral training for Fellows who have completed their doctoral degrees at colleges and universities that have demonstrable teaching and research competencies in the food and agricultural sciences. Fellowships and IRTA awards are specifically intended to support traineeship programs that encourage outstanding students to pursue and complete their degrees or obtain postdoctoral training in areas where there is a national need for the development of scientific and professional expertise in the food and agricultural sciences. Fellowships and IRTA awards invest in graduate training and relevant international experiential learning for a cadre of diverse individuals who demonstrate their potential to successfully complete graduate degree programs in disciplines relevant to the mission of the USDA.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Competitive annual grants providing for a limited number of graduate stipends are awarded to selected U.S. institutions of higher education so as to distribute support for graduate study to promising food and agricultural scientists and professionals. Individuals selected initially by the institution must enroll in a program leading to a graduate, master's or doctoral degree in one of the targeted national needs areas of the food and agricultural sciences. Such persons may not have been enrolled previously in the program at the same degree level. Current fellows are eligible to receive supplemental grants of $3,000 to cover travel and living expenses for special international study or thesis/dissertation research experiences. Funding for the supplemental grants will be awarded on a competitive basis using no-year funds drawn from expired fellowship grants with unspent funds remaining as set forth in the annual program guidelines. No indirect cost allowed. Institutional allowance in lieu of indirect cost.

NNF stipend funds for fellowship must be used to:

- (1) support the same Fellow at the Masters degree level who maintains satisfactory progress and is eligible to receive grant support for a maximum of twenty-four (24) months during a thirty-month period, and/or
- (2) support the same Fellow at the doctoral degree level who maintains satisfactory progress and is eligible to receive grant support for a maximum of thirty-six (36) months within a forty-two-month period. Institutions must use a minimum stipend of $18,500 per year for Masters Fellows and $24,500 per year for Doctoral Fellows.

If funds remain as a result of USDA Fellows completing their studies early (less than twenty-four months for a Masters degree or less than thirty-six months for a doctoral degree) or Fellowships being terminated prematurely, such funds may be used, within the time remaining on the award, to support:

- (1) pursuit of a doctoral degree in a TESA in the food and agricultural sciences by a Masters degree level Fellow at the grantee institution, or
- (2) a Replacement Fellow.

The tenure of such a Replacement Fellow is limited to whatever time is remaining on the grant before it expires; however, an institution may not appoint a Replacement Fellow unless there is time for the student to complete at least one semester/quarter of study before the expiration date of the grant.

Replacement Fellows must meet all of the eligibility criteria and other requirements established for Fellow selection and are subject to the same provisions as other Fellows during their tenure in the program. Replacement

Fellows are entitled, during their tenure, to the same benefits that other Fellows receive from the grant award and National Needs Graduate and Postdoctoral Fellowship Grants Program. Institutions may, but are not required to, continue a Replacement Fellow's tuition and other benefits beyond the expiration date of the grant using institutional or other funds. A Fellow may not be simultaneously supported under multiple National Needs Graduate and Postdoctoral Fellowship Grants Program awards.

Remaining funds cannot be used to increase annual Fellowship stipends provided to existing Fellows. If less than one semester/quarter remains on the award, the grantee must refund unexpended monies to NIFA. Such funds cannot be used to increase the annual stipend amounts for current USDA Graduate Fellows.

Should a USDA Fellow require additional time beyond the grant period to complete his or her degree, it is expected that the grantee will consider alternatives to continue supporting the Fellow through other means.

Tuition and fees are the responsibility of the Fellow unless an institution elects to use its cost-of-education institutional allowance for this purpose or elects to pay such costs out of non-USDA monies. No dependency allowances are provided to any USDA Graduate Fellows.

Stipend payments and special international study or thesis/dissertation research travel allowances may be made to Fellows by the institution, in accordance with standard institutional procedures for graduate fellowships and assistantships.

When grants are for IRTAs that will be used by To-Be-Recruited Fellows: The IRTA funds for To-Be-Recruited fellows will be withheld until the Project Director has submitted, to the NNF Program Office, all of the required documentation for eligibility of the Graduate Fellow for the IRTA as well as the required specifics outlined in the RFA for the IRTA. The information must be submitted for approval, no less than 150 days prior to the use of the IRTA funds (see PART IV, B, 3, b, Section 1). This requirement will become a condition of the award. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

10.212 SMALL BUSINESS INNOVATION RESEARCH

(SBIR Program - Phase I and II)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

This program solicitation is issued pursuant to the Small Business Innovation Development Act of 1982, Public Law 97-219, as amended (15 U.S.C. 638) and Section 630 of the Act making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development and Related Agencies programs for fiscal year ending September 30, 1987, and for other purposes, as made applicable by Section 101(a) of Public Law 99-591, 100 Stat. 3341.

OBJECTIVES:

To stimulate technological innovation in the private sector, strengthen the role of small businesses in meeting Federal research and development needs, increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from USDA-supported research and development efforts, and foster and encourage participation, by women-owned and socially disadvantaged small business firms in technological innovation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The selected areas for research are Forests and Related Resources; Plant Production and Protection-Biology; Animal Production and Protection; Air, Water and Soils; Food Science and Nutrition; Rural and Community Development; Aquaculture; Biofuels and Biobased Products; Small and Mid-Size Farms, Plant Production and Protection-Engineering. The Small Business Innovation Research Program is carried out in three separate phases: Phase I projects are supported to determine the scientific or technical feasibility of ideas submitted by small business applicants on the selected research areas;

Phase II awards are made to firms with approaches that appear sufficiently promising as a result of Phase I studies. Only those small businesses previously receiving Phase I awards in either of the two preceding fiscal years are eligible to submit Phase II proposals.

Phase II projects are limited to $450,000 for a period normally not to exceed 24 months; Phase III is to be conducted by the small business concern (including joint ventures and limited partnerships), and will be non-SBIR funded through the exercising of a follow-on funding commitment. The purpose of Phase III is to stimulate technological innovation and the national return on investment from research through the pursuit of commercialization objectives resulting from the USDA-supported work carried out in Phases I and II. Grant funds must be used for allowable costs necessary to conduct approved fundamental and applied research, extension and education objectives to address food and agricultural sciences.

Fee:

A reasonable fee, not to exceed seven percent of total Federal funds awarded is permitted under this program, but applicants are encouraged to minimize fee requests due to the small amount of funds available. All fees are subject to negotiation with USDA.

Indirect Costs:

If available, the current rate negotiated with the cognizant Federal negotiating agency should be used. Indirect costs may not exceed the negotiated rate.

If no rate has been negotiated, a reasonable dollar amount in lieu of indirect costs may be requested, which will be subject to approval by USDA. In the latter case, if an application is recommended for funding, an indirect cost rate application must be submitted to support the amount of indirect costs requested. NIFA will request an indirect cost rate application and provide instructions, as necessary.

An applicant may elect not to charge indirect costs and, instead, use all grant funds for direct costs.

Further detailed instructions are provided in the SBIR RFA (solicitation). Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applicant Eligibility (1) is organized for profit, with a place of business located in the United States, which operates primarily within the United States, or which makes a significant contribution to the United States economy through the payment of taxes or use of American products, materials or labor; (2) is in the legal form of an individual proprietorship, partnership, limited liability company, corporation, joint venture, association, trust or cooperative, except that where the form is a joint venture, there can be no more than 49 percent participation by foreign business entities in the joint venture; (3) is at least 51 percent owned and controlled by one or more individuals who are citizens of, or permanent resident aliens in, the United States, except in the case of a joint venture, where each entity in the venture must be 51 percent owned and controlled by one or more individuals who are citizens of, or permanent resident aliens in the United States; and (4) has, including its affiliates, not more than 500 employees. RELATED PROGRAMS:

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: SBIR Phase I:

Hydroponic and LED technologies will be used to determine the feasibility of producing high nutrient, high quality greens in small, urban high density, indoor farms. Test marketing will be done to verify the potential market in urban areas for premium priced, high nutrient greens.

Test the feasibility of Y-branched timbers as structural elements for new building construction. Procedures are being developed to use non-destructive evaluation methods to determine the strength of the Y-branched timbers and to develop methods to grade the timbers.

Determine the feasibility of developing a distributed optical fiber sensor cable for monitoring levels of NH₃, CO₂ and H₂S in animal confinement structures. The air quality monitoring sensor will be coupled with intelligent signal processing technology to control ventilation in order to maintain a safe environment for both animals and people.

Develop an educational program with the aim of improving nutritional health and reducing childhood obesity. A digital and video streaming nutrition education curriculum, KickinKitchen.TV will be developed and will consist of two digital webisodes that will be used to teach nutrition concepts and food preparation skills to pre-teens.

Chemical grafting of poly(butylene succinate) (PBS) onto reinforced cellulose nanowhiskers (CNW) will create PBS-g-CNW. Polylactic acid (PLA) is a commercially available bioplastic that is biodegradable but too brittle. Incorporation of PBS-g-CNW into PLA is expected to dramatically improve the impact properties of the PLA without compromising other desirable properties.

SBIR Phase II:

Phosphate is an essential nutrient for plant productivity but also a major pollutant when it accumulates in surface waters. Affordable and practical phosphate test kits are being developed to permit on-the-spot testing for phosphate so that appropriate decisions can be made as to the proper level of phosphate fertilizer to apply to provide optimal plant growth without causing surface water pollution.

Surface contamination of eggs is an important food safety problem. Optical inspection of white eggs is well developed but not for brown and brown speckled eggs. A non-contact multispectral sensing and machine vision technology is being developed that reliable can inspect brown and brown speckled eggs for various contaminants at speeds up to 10,000 eggs/hour.

Interleukin-12 (IL-12) is a potent adjuvant of cell-mediated immunity that has been shown to enhance protection from influenza pathogens and enhance vaccine effectiveness in swine against swine flu. In an effort to develop a lower cost procedure for production of porcine IL-12, a plant system has been developed that can produce fully functional porcine IL-12 adjuvant in a transient tobacco expression system.

Red alder is an important hardwood species of the Pacific Northwest but it currently is in short supply. Efforts are underway to develop an alder genetic improvement program involving both red alder and white alder that will lead to the development of elite, well-adapted planting stock. A hybridization program involving red and white alder will also be undertaken for long range stock enhancement.

An effort is being made to develop a 10kW horizontal axis wind turbine that can produce significant energy even in areas with only Class 1 or Class 2 wind speeds and would be of an appropriate size for many small farms. Fiscal Year 2012: SBIR Phase I:

Control of the mountain pine beetle (MPB) is a critical problem. The SPLAT (Specialized Pheromone & Lure Application Technology) approach involves the incorporation of the MPB anti-aggregation semiochemical verbenone into a flowable substrate so that verbenone is released over a sustained period of time to control MPB attacks on pine trees.

Development of robotic selective harvesting technology will help to make the Florida citrus industry more productive. Modern citrus groves use high density semi-dwarf trees and open hydroponics with optimized nutrient and water availability to accelerate plant growth. To maximize the productivity of these new grove improved harvesting technology is needed.

Walleye is a highly valued foodfish and sportfish and efforts will be made to determine the feasibility of using hybridization together with intensive, in-tank fry-fingerling culture to produce food size walleye in one growing season in recirculating aquaculture systems .

Production of green diesel or biodiesel from biomass has many environmental benefits. Many different types of biomass can be converted to pyrolysis oil and then catalytically ungraded to green diesel. The process does not produce sulfur-containing compounds or any other environmentally harmful by-products.

Rural student math and science solving skills is a priority in many rural elementary and middle schools where distance and lack of resources pose special problems. A web-based distance learning software product will be developed that is designed to train students in all of the problem types required by the Common Core Math Standards

SBIR Phase II:

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education Program (SARE) program is to encourage research designed to increase our knowledge concerning agricultural production systems that:

- (1) maintain and enhance the quality and productivity of the soil;
- (2) conserve soil, water, energy, natural resources, and fish and wildlife habitat;
- (3) maintain and enhance the quality of surface and ground water;
- (4) protect the health and safety of persons involved in the food and farm system;

- (6) increase employment opportunities in agriculture (section 1619-1624 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 (FACTA), Public Law 101-624 (7 U.S.C. 5801).

The request for applications (RFA) is for the regional SARE host institutions to apply for funds to carry out the regional SARE programs under the direction of the SARE Regional Administrative Councils (section 1622 of FACTA (7 U.S.C. 5812)), and for selected national projects.

Most SARE competitive grants are made by the SARE regions as subawards. Typically, approximately 85% of the award to a SARE regional host institution is used for subawards. Individuals and organizations interested in applying for SARE competitive grants should NOT respond to this funding opportunity; rather they should apply to the appropriate SARE regional program. PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: For FY 2011, $18,170,550 was available for grant awards. A total of 18 institutions representing 17 states submitted 187 applications (59 teaching, 97 research, and 31 extension) requesting a combined $64,208,718.

In May 2011, three peer review panels were conducted. The panels included a total of 49 experts in various disciplines within the food and agricultural sciences and comprehensive knowledge of the 1890 university system. Panelists consisted of faculty and administrators from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities as well as research scientists from government and private industry.

A total of 61 applications were funded, including 19 teaching awards, 29 research awards and 13 Extension awards.

Funded projects should build capacity at the host institution in the areas of research, education, and/or extension. The grants are intended to address key problems of national, regional, and multi-institutional importance in sustaining all components of agriculture, including farm efficiency and profitability, ranching, renewable energy, forestry (both urban and agroforestry), aquaculture, rural communities and entrepreneurship, human nutrition, food safety, family and consumer sciences, biotechnology, and conventional breeding. Also in 2011, all projects had to address one of five Priority Areas: Global Food Security and Hunger, Climate Change, Sustainable Energy, Childhood Obesity, and Food Safety. Fiscal Year 2012: For FY 2012, $18,170,550 was available for grant awards. A total of 18 institutions representing 17 states submitted 188 applications (52 teaching, 92 research, and 44 extension).

In May and June 2012, two peer review panels were conducted. The panels included approximately 60 experts in various disciplines within the food and agricultural sciences and comprehensive knowledge of the 1890 university system. Panelists consisted of faculty and administrators from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities as well as research scientists from government and private industry.

It is anticipated that approximately 60 applications will be funded in FY 2012. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent details to be provided by Program at a future date.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: This research project that will improve understanding of the hydrologic controls on nutrient and herbicide transport in a claypan watershed. The project will build the university's capacity to develop water quality programs at watershed scales and strengthen collaborations with other research institutions. The proposed project will also improve the quality of teaching programs at the university by providing better class materials, experimental sites for field research experience, and excellent data for class projects.

This project is concerned with the development of a sustainable and biologically based strategy to control major invasive pests of honey bees, a critical issue in commercial beekeeping and agriculture. The project will develop an environmentally friendly control strategy for the major pests (Varroa and SHB). This project will transfer technology to stakeholders through extension programs and provide experiential learning for students in research and outreach.

A baccalaureate degree program in Agriculture, Food, and Environment (AFE) will be developed with options in Agricultural, Food, Environmental, and Aquaculture Systems using an interdisciplinary approach toward understanding relationships between agricultural systems and the environment. The key objectives include:

- 1) offer an undergraduate degree in AFE by developing 15 courses (including 8 online-courses);
- 2) develop recruiting tools including a website and printed materials; and
- 3) involve undergraduate students in research determining effects of different fertigation regimes and row cover use on yield, safety and nutritional quality of fresh fruits and vegetables grown organically in high tunnels.

A multidisciplinary team of faculty, including a biologist, three chemists, a mechanical and an electrical engineer, a microbiologist, a molecular biologist, an electron microscopist, and an information technologist, will collaborate in a nanotechnology-related project that uses food safety concepts and applications in a number of ASTEM educational settings. The targets include undergraduate major and non-major chemistry courses, two upper level undergraduate chemistry and biochemistry laboratory courses and outreach activities for K-12 students. The goal is to inspire and encourage majors and non-majors to consider future career opportunities in the emerging multibillion dollar field of nanotechnology

The objectives of this Extension project are:

- 1) To develop and operationalize a 4-H Youth Development Project afterschool mentoring program to serve 100 at-risk youth ages 8-15 in grades 3 through 10;
- 2) To assist the families of program youth in maintaining and/or increasing parenting skills, autonomy, and integrity in meeting their child's needs;
- 3) To promote classroom service learning experiences for college students in family and consumer sciences and in food and agricultural sciences;
- 4) To plan for collaboration and networking; and
- 5) To coordinate a process and outcome evaluation of the project. The Project will serve as an extension enhancement by linking this extension program to teaching via development of a delivery system to enhance the needs of underserved at-risk youth on a 1890 college campus. Fiscal Year 2012: Pertinent details to be provided by Program at a future date. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent details to be provided by Program at a future date.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: Create a model curriculum focused on urban agriculture with two parallel tracts of study: Environmental SciencesUrban Agriculture option, and an Environmental JusticeUrban Agriculture option. The two tracts will share a set of core courses oriented specifically around urban and global food systems.

Improve student understanding of complex agricultural systems by integrating the use of a systems modeling platform to adapt a modeling platform for teaching basic concepts in crops, soils, and agricultural meteorology, and through this process of introduction and refinement, develop the ability of students to apply modeling approaches for understanding complexity in agroecosystems. This project will improve the quality of food and agricultural skills by using modeling tools to improve student understanding and ability to solve complex problems related to agroecosystem management.

Present classroom instruction and material in a contextual manner that promotes experiential learning by students, and develops the ability of students to learn in team/group formats. Case-study teaching provides multiple approaches for effective teaching through real life examples. Specific products include:

- 1) collaborating with a nationally recognized expert in case study teaching in the development of 8 different cases,
- 2) implement these case studies in six different Universities/programs, and
- 3) assess the impact of this approach on student learning outcomes. Outcomes: These cases will be made available to teachers of food safety and microbiology nationally through hardcopy and electronic means. The outcome of this effort will be students that are better prepared to apply fundamental principles for assuring a safe food supply.

Address the urgent issue of global food security and hunger through development of a new masters degree-level curriculum in International Agriculture and Development which will allow students to combine their technical degree with an internationally focused program of study. This project includes restructuring existing courses, developing new courses in global knowledge, and providing a core overseas experience in key partner countries.

Assist students in understanding science and math concepts that frequently deter many from continuing within food and agricultural science-based majors. Based on a successful design model established with NSF funding, the team will create educational multimedia tools, including animations and mini-games, to supplement instruction and enhance science and math conceptual understanding. Multimedia products will be integrated into coursework, with empirical measures of test results compared to previous semesters and instructors recommendations on future use. Students exposed to the educational materials should have greater success with key STEM test items, feel greater confidence in their skills at the end of the semester, and feel more confident about the likelihood of entering science-intensive agricultural careers. 10.220 HIGHER EDUCATION MULTICULTURAL SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Minority Scholars Program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Legislative authority for this program is contained in section 1417 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) (99 Stat. 1548; 7 U.S.C. 3152). USDA/NIFA administers this federal assistance grant program to support food and agricultural sciences baccalaureate and Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (D.V.M.) degree training of the next generation of scientists, policy makers, and educators in the Food and Agricultural Sciences. USDA initiated the Higher Education Multicultural Scholars Program in FY 1994. This program, functioning collaboratively with eligible higher education institutions, is developing intellectual capital to secure the preeminence of U.S. food and agricultural systems., 7 U.S.C 3152.

OBJECTIVES:

To increase the ethnic and cultural diversity of the food and agricultural scientific and professional work force, and to advance the educational achievement of minority Americans, by providing grants to colleges and universities that have a demonstrable capacity to attract, educate, and graduate minority students for careers as agriscience and agribusiness professionals, and have unique capabilities for achieving the objective of full representation of minority groups in the fields of agriculture, natural resources, forestry, veterinary medicine, home economics, and disciplines closely allied to the food and agricultural system.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Competitive annual grants to selected U.S. institutions of higher education provide for a limited number of four-year undergraduate scholarships to support minority students pursuing baccalaureate degrees in the food and agricultural sciences. Institutions also receive an annual cost-of-education allowance for each scholar supported by a grant. The scholars are selected by the institutions and students must apply for the scholarships through procedures established by the individual institutions.

No scholarship grants are made directly to students and students cannot apply directly to USDA for scholarships. Scholarship monies may be used for tuition, fees, room, board, and other educational expenses as announced in a Federal Register notice inviting applications for new awards.

The institutional cost-of-education allowance may be used by the selected institutions to defray program expenses including, but not limited to, travel and publications costs incurred for student recruitment, and salaries of project personnel. Indirect cost is not allowable. Pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 3152(b), no indirect costs may be recovered under the MSP Program. Funds are restricted to the clearly designated uses found within the RFA.

For Award Category No. 2 Proposals, the budget sharing criteria are: (i) no single institution may receive more than forty percent (40%) and (ii) any institution may not receive less than fifteen percent (15%) of the requested funding for the baccalaureate and/or D.V.M. degree level training project (see Part II, C of the RFA).

When grant is for SEL that will be used by To-Be-Recruited Scholars: The SEL funds for To-Be-Recruited Scholars will be withheld until the Project Director has submitted, to the MSP Grants Program Office, all of the required documentation for eligibility of the MSP/SEL Scholar(s) for the SEL as well as the required specifics outlined in the RFA for the SEL. The information must be submitted for approval, no less than 150 days prior to the use of the SEL funds (see Part IV, B., 3, b, Section 1 of the RFA). Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Proposals may be submitted by all U.S. colleges and universities with baccalaureate or higher degree programs in agriculture, natural resources, forestry, veterinary medicine, home economics, and disciplines closely allied to the food and agricultural system, including land-grant colleges and universities, colleges and universities having significant minority enrollments and a demonstrable capacity to carry out the teaching of food and agricultural sciences, and other colleges and universities having a demonstrable capacity to carry out the teaching of food and agricultural sciences.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Funds awarded under this program are used to support full-time undergraduate students pursuing a baccalaureate degree in an area of the food and agricultural sciences or a closely allied field. Persons eligible to receive scholarships under this program are students who either are enrolled or have been accepted as full-time baccalaureate or DVM degree candidates, and who are members of groups traditionally under-represented in food and agricultural scientific and professional fields.

10.221 TRIBAL COLLEGES EDUCATION EQUITY GRANTS

Higher Education Native American Formula and/or Higher Education Native American Institutions

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Authority for the Tribal Colleges Education Equity Grants (TCEG) program is contained in the Equity in Educational Land-Grant Status Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. 301 note) as amended by the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7601 note). Appropriated funds are to be awarded to the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions (hereinafter referred to as 1994 Institutions) for Education capacity building and funds are to be distributed equally among institutions that meet eligibility requirements., 7 U.S.C 301 note.

OBJECTIVES:

This grants program is designed to promote and strengthen higher education instruction in the food and agricultural sciences at the 33 Tribal Colleges designated as 1994 Land-Grant Institutions in the Equity in Educational Land-Grant Status Act of 1994, as amended. Plans of Work should focus on undergraduate and/or graduate studies in the food and agricultural sciences in one or more of the following areas: Curricula Design and Materials Development, Faculty Development and Preparation for Teaching, Instruction Delivery Systems, Student Experiential Learning, Equipment and Instrumentation for Teaching, or Student Recruitment and Retention.

The purpose of the TCEG Program is to provide funding to enhance educational opportunities for Native Americans in the food and agricultural sciences. The TCEG program is intended to strengthen institutional capacity to deliver relevant formal education opportunities. The TCEG is intended to be a component of the applicant 1994 institutions land grant roadmap or strategic planning process. To the extent practicable, priorities should reflect the following national critical needs areas:

1. Sustainable energy
2. Global food security and hunger
3. Climate change
4. Nutrition and preventing childhood obesity
5. Food safety
6. Sustainable rural economies

Awards are made upon approval of each institutions application for a grant that relate to an institutions long-range goals. As indicated in Part 1, C. of the RFA, an application may address one (1) or more of the following program areas:

Curricula Design and Materials Development
Faculty Development and Preparation for Teaching
Instruction Delivery Systems
Student Experiential Learning
Equipment and Instrumentation for Teaching
Student Recruitment and Retention

Recognizing that strengthening instructional programs is a long-term ongoing process, the TCEG program is interested in funding subsequent phases of previously funded projects in order to strengthen institutional capacity, and institutions are encouraged to build on a theme over several grant awards to reach institutional long-range goals.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Tribal College Equity Program (TCEG) provides funds to enhance educational opportunities for Native Americans by strengthening instructional programs in the food and agricultural sciences at the thirty four (34) tribal colleges designated as the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions (hereinafter referred to as 1994 Institutions).

Under this authority, appropriated funds are to be awarded to the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions (hereinafter referred to as 1994 Institutions) for Education capacity building and funds are to be distributed equally among institutions that meet eligibility requirements. Funding Restrictions:

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Indirect costs for the Equity program are not required and a 1994 institution may take less than the allowable amount or forego indirect costs altogether - adjust budgets accordingly.

Neither research nor extension projects are supported under the TCEG Program.

The use of grant funds to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility is not allowed under this program. With prior approval, and in accordance with the cost principles set forth in OMB Circular No. A-21, some grant funds may be used for minor alterations, renovations, or repairs deemed necessary to retrofit existing teaching or research spaces in order to carry out a funded project. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that the alterations, renovations, or repairs are essential to achieving the major purpose of the project.

Grant funds may not be used for endowment investing.

Special Notices:

1. NIFA will withhold all funds for a TCEG award to an applicant requesting indirect costs if the applicant has not negotiated an indirect cost rate with its cognizant federal agency.
2. If a grantee is in the process of negotiating an indirect cost rate with its federal agency, NIFA will withhold all funds from that grantee until the indirect cost rate has been established.
3. If an institutions indirect cost rate has expired or will expire in the near future, a clear statement on renegotiation efforts must be included in the application. (See Part IV, B.5. of the RFA - Budget Justification.)
4. It is incumbent on all applicants to have a current indirect cost rate or begin negotiations to establish an indirect cost rate prior to the TCEG submission deadline. Because it may take several months to obtain an indirect cost rate, applicants needing an indirect cost rate are encouraged to start work on establishing these rates well in advance of submitting a TCEG application.
5. In lieu of requesting indirect costs (if the applicant does not have a negotiated rate), an applicant may prepare a budget in which all charges in the budget are included as direct costs.

NIFA does not require matching support for this program. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applications may be submitted by any of the Tribal colleges and universities designated as 1994 Land-Grant Institutions under the Educational Land-Grant Status Act of 1994, as amended. This Act, as amended in Section 533(a), requires that each 1994 Land-Grant Institution be accredited or making progress towards accreditation and be recognized as a legal entity. If accreditation is being sought, a college must demonstrate its progress towards accreditation by a letter from a nationally recognized accreditation agency affirming receipt of application for an accreditation site visit or other such documentation. An applicants failure to meet an eligibility criterion by the time of an application deadline will result in NIFA returning the application without review or, even though an application may be reviewed, will preclude NIFA from making an award.

Award recipients may subcontract to organizations not eligible to apply provided such organizations are necessary for the conduct of project goals and objectives.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

The 1994 Institutions--Bay Mills Community College, Black feet Community College, Cankdeska Cikana Community College, Cheyenne River Community

All new applications will be reviewed by a review panel using the process and criteria described in Part V of the RFA Application Review Requirements.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: For the FY 2011 award cycle, $ 3,335,000 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

A total of 31 applications requesting a total $2,906,250 were received. The Equity grant program is in continuation, so no competition was held. Award funds are distributed equally among participating schools, per legislation. In 2011, one 1994 Land Grant did not participate in Equity funding. The remaining money was distributed among the participating schools. Thus each school received $107,590.

Funds were available to support many types of projects. Often, the funding will cover many areas of study in combination to provide more students an opportunity for experiential learning. The most common subject areas were: Agricultural Social Sciences: 15 percent, Environmental Science Management: 12 percent; and conservation, human nutrition, and Family and Consumer Science at slightly over 10 percent.

The funding ratio for this program in FY11 was 100 percent of requests received in accordance with legislation.

Funded projects should address one or more of the following educational strategies: Curricula Design and Materials Development
Faculty Development and Teacher Preparation
Student Experiential Learning
Equipment and Instrumentation for Teaching
Student Recruitment and Retention.

Fiscal Year 2012: This grant program is under a four-year continuation cycle. Therefore, the programs and the funding distribution will be similar to that of FY 2011. Fiscal Year 2013: This grant program will be in its final year of a four-year continuation cycle. Therefore, the programs and the funding distribution will be similar to that of FY 2011.

10.222 Tribal Colleges Endowment Program; 10.500 Cooperative Extension Service

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: The project director used Equity funding to move to a 4-year degree program in agricultural science. For the first time the Tribal College was able to offer its students chemistry and trigonometry classes. Currently, college is transferring 3-5 students to a four-year program annually.

In 2011, there were two interns, funded through Equity, who worked on wild rice research.

In 2012 there will be upgrades to the classroom laboratory, such as instruments and tools for student and faculty research.

This is the third year of a four-year grant. The project director used her Equity funding to support recruitment and retention efforts, providing outreach to K-12 students, and a GED program. Through Equity funding the college offered physics for the first time in 2011. In addition, a teaching laboratory has been set up; this means the college no longer has to borrow research facilities to teach science classes. A full-time science instructor has been hired, who will be co-Project Director.

This equity program combines mathematics with agriculture and environmental sciences to engage students in learning. A new class, Environmental Measurements, drew students with its opportunities to use GIS and GPS technology while learning math. Students were given scholarships to make attending college possible. The project director took several of his students to the American Indian Science and Engineering Society where they learned about career opportunities and degree options at 4-year programs.

The project director used Equity money primarily for recruitment and retention. The college learning center services students and helps them succeed in the 10 classes in math and science offered by the college. Two camps were held summer science and science, technology, math and engineering.

The project director met with North Dakota State University faculty to create courses in plant sciences and natural resource management. The new courses will be included in the 2012 class schedule, and add more classes will be added annually to form degree and certification programs.

The project director used Equity money in an innovative fashion, expanding environmental science education across a student body of a school that is primarily arts-based. Students from every major were given the opportunity to participate in community gardens, recycling efforts and other conservation projects throughout the campus. This increased scientific literacy among the liberal art students and provided the science students innovative ideas on how to express scientific concepts to a lay audience. Fiscal Year 2012: This is an continuation, so the projects will not change significantly until 2014. Fiscal Year 2013: This is an continuation, so the projects will not change significantly until 2014.

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is administered under the provisions of section 1455 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977, as amended (NARETPA)

(7 U.S.C. 3241) pursuant to section 815 of Public Law 104-127 and Public Law 110-246. Section 1455 of NARETPA, as reauthorized by section 7128 of Public Law 110-246, provides the Secretary of Agriculture with the authority to make competitive grants (or grants without regard to any requirement for competition) to Hispanic-Serving Institutions for the purpose of promoting and strengthening the ability of Hispanic-Serving Institutions to carry out education, applied research, and related community development programs., 7 U.S.C 3241.

OBJECTIVES:

The objective of this program is to promote and strengthen the ability of Hispanic-Serving Institutions to carry out higher education programs in the food and agricultural sciences. These programs aim to attract outstanding students and produce graduates capable of enhancing the Nation's food and agricultural scientific and professional work force. Grants under this program will be awarded to:

- (1) support the activities of consortia of Hispanic-Serving Institutions to enhance educational equity for underrepresented students;
- (2) strengthen institutional educational capacities including libraries, curriculum, faculty, scientific instrumentation, instruction delivery systems, and student recruitment and retention, in order to respond to identified State, regional, national, or international educational needs in the food and agricultural sciences;
- (3) attract and support undergraduate and graduate students from underrepresented groups in order to prepare them for careers related to the food, agricultural, and natural resource systems of the United States, beginning with the mentoring of students at the high school level and continuing with the provision of financial support for students through their attainment of a doctoral degree; and

(4) facilitate cooperative initiatives between two or more Hispanic-Serving Institutions, or between Hispanic-Serving Institutions and units of State government or the private sector, to maximize the development and use of resources, such as faculty, facilities, and equipment, to improve food and agricultural sciences teaching programs.

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds may be used to support one or more of the following target areas or additional target areas as identified in the annual program announcement: Curricula design; materials development; library resources; faculty preparation and enhancement for teaching; instruction delivery systems; scientific instrumentation for teaching; student experiential learning; and student recruitment and retention. 1. Award Limitations

For FY 2009, a lead institution may receive up to two awards. Institutions could serve as collaborators in many applications and awards.

For FY 2009, there is no limitation on the amount of funding a single awardee may receive either as a lead institution, a cooperating institution, a subawardee or any combination thereof. The lead institution on a Collaboration Project must retain at least 25 percent and no more than 75 percent of the funds awarded.

3. Use of Funds for Facilities

Under the Hispanic-Serving Institutions Education Grants Program, the use of grant funds to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility is not allowed. With prior approval, in accordance with the cost principles set forth in OMB Circular No. A-21, some grant funds may be used for minor alterations, renovations, or repairs deemed necessary to retrofit existing teaching spaces in order to carry out a funded project. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that the alterations, renovations, or repairs are incidental to the major purpose for which a grant is issued.

4. Indirect Costs

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: The Hispanic-Serving Institutions Education Grants Program promotes and strengthens the ability of Hispanic-serving institutions (HSIs) to carry out education programs that attract outstanding students and produce graduates capable of enhancing the nation's food and agricultural scientific and professional work force. Projects may involve individual institutions, consortia of HSIs, or cooperative initiatives between two or more HSIs or with other colleges and universities, units of government, or the private sector.

20 projects were awarded in 2011, representing 7 states and Puerto Rico

HSI led four webinars to HSI grantees to inform about opportunities for Hispanic and underrepresented students on internships and potential jobs within USDA. One webinar was conducted for HSIs to provide information about 2012 RFA and grant application process

The HSI Peer Review Panel was comprised of 28 individuals (2 Black males, 3 Asian Pacific Islander males, 8 Hispanic males, 3 Hispanic females, and 2 white females). Fiscal Year 2012: In Fiscal Year (FY) 2012, a total of $ 9.2 million was available to support projects in the following areas of emphasis:

- (1) Faculty Preparation and Enhancement for Teaching;
- (2) Curricula Design, Materials Development, and Library Resources;
- (3) Instruction Delivery Systems;
- (4) Scientific Instrumentation for Teaching;
- (5) Student Experiential Learning; and
- (6) Student Recruitment and Retention (including financial assistance).

In April 2012, a twenty-one member peer review panel reviewed 83 proposals.

A total of 19 representing five (5) states and Puerto Rico (7 Continuation and 11 Regular) projects are in the process to be awarded the amount of $8,804,505.

About 5 webinars have been conducted to provide HSIs with information about grants, jobs, and internship opportunities in NIFA and other USDA agencies. Four other webinars have been conducted specifically to help students apply for internships and summer opportunities in USDA.

Seven Conference calls have been conducted for HSI existing awardees and Collaboration-continuation projects.

Three more webinars are scheduled for the rest of the year to provide information to HSIs about the 2013 RFA, projects technical and financial reports and continuation project activities. Fiscal Year 2013: According to the NIFA FY13 budget, $9.2 million will be available to support the HSI grants.

The FY13 HSIs RFA will be published in October 2012.

Funds for seven Collaboration-continuation awards will be provided.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: (1) One project is preparing students for career paths with the USDA Forest Service by linking student success with experiential learning opportunities. This proposal is a collaboration among 11 institutions. Our objectives center on mentoring cohorts of students to prepare them for careers in Natural Resource Management. Students will be provided experiential learning opportunities appropriate for their academic level that engage them in resource management. Projects highlights include FS and other internships, faculty mentorships, local and international field courses, a semester exchange program, high school field trips, and advising and tutoring. The project will result in improved recruitment, retention, academic performance and graduation rates, and more Hispanic American students moving directly to careers with USDA. Fifty (50) students (26 females and 24 males) are currently enrolled in our NM_PR Career Tracks Program as follows: 43 BS, six MS and one Ph.D.

(2) Another project has established a Consortium for Agriculture Education and Hispanic Workforce Development (FCCA_gE). More than 70 students (both grant-funded and unfunded), 60 percent of which are Hispanic Americans took advantage of the agroecology courses, internships, workshops, and travel opportunities offered by the FCCA_gE. At least 100 more, including some high school students and teachers, attended the annual agroecology symposium. These scholarly activities, along with teaching resources such as the Campus Organic Garden, student Garden Club, and effective collaborations with area government and non-governmental agricultural institutions, including area organic farmers, have expanded the university's faculty expertise in offering training and advice to college and high students and teachers on issues related to local and national agriculture and environmental management. The project has created partnership with seven USDA agencies providing 33 internships. The total number of students served through this initiative where 50% female, 83% Hispanic, 12% Black, and 5% White.

(3) Another project is aimed at preparing underrepresented students for careers in the agricultural sciences. The two-year project will be conducted as a collaboration, focusing on biological suppression of exotic, invasive giant reed. Students will conduct independent research under supervision of ARS and other scientists while receiving intensive training in scientific methods and communication, through delivery of presentations and preparation of scientific manuscripts.

(4) A consortium has established an educational network that will increase the number of Hispanic students being employed by federal agencies such as USDA in areas related to Sustainable Energy. The goal of the consortium is to create a collaborative network of researchers, educators, USDA agencies, and non-profit organizations to coordinate efforts, share resources, and increase educational, training and post-graduation opportunities for Hispanic students pursuing careers in the Sustainable Energy area.

Across the consortium, 92 students applied for USDA internships (75% Hispanic and 42.4% female students); 53 of those students are currently being supported under the project. A total of 18 students will be interns in the summer of 2012; 14 of those at USDA agencies and 4 of them at other agencies. Fifteen (15) student presentations have already been given at regional or national conferences. The consortium is also supporting through this award a total of 53 students (nine PhD, eight MS, and 36 undergraduates).

One HSI National Program Leader participated in various events and made four trips to participate in conference to promote and offer information on the HSI Grants program.

Another HSI National Program Leader engaged in activities to promote diversity in the HSI program and create professional networks. Fiscal Year 2012: (1) One project The Pima Innovative Nutrition Track (PINT) will address the problem of career opportunities for underrepresented populations by resolving a gap in available Nutrition classes for Hispanic students. The project will target 145 Hispanic students through a Nutrition Science curriculum, encouraging enrollment in a new transfer certificate in Nutrition. The program will include guest speakers, field trips, and other opportunities to open up career options to targeted students. The project will develop a new nutrition-based curriculum and negotiate an articulation agreement to create a transfer pipeline for students to achieve baccalaureate degrees in nutritional science.

(2) Another project currently enrolls more than 60 Natural Resources Management (NRM) majors; 75% are underrepresented minority (UM) students. We project 50% enrollment increases over the next 3 years. We plan focused advising, early academic intervention, and a Geographic Information System (GIS)-enhanced curriculum to increase the number of UM students graduating with NRM B.S. degrees and GIS skills. Graduates will have the competencies to collect, manage, manipulate, and share geospatial agricultural data as well as to contribute to the sustainment of rural agriculture and management of natural resources impacted by climatic changes.

(3) Another project is an interdisciplinary and collaborative effort between 5 Hispanic serving institutions, which will provide students from agriculture and related disciplines with graduate research assistantships, undergraduate research stipends and educational and training experiences. The scope also involves outreach activities and hands-on research experiences for talented K-12 students. All of education training activities are aimed at providing innovative, high impact research training and education experiences to students and faculty from underrepresented Hispanics groups. The project will establish and consolidate a pipeline attracting, recruiting, retaining and graduating talented individuals while supporting their actual placement in Agriculture-related positions.

(4) Another project brings added value to Latinos pursuing graduate education and employment in USDA occupations. It will identify, select, and cultivate Masters degree level students in food and agricultural sciences disciplines through an outstanding thesis award competition focused on USDA priority areas of Food Safety, Climate Change, Sustainable Energy and Childhood Obesity. Fifty fellows, including the award winners, will participate in a Career Preparation Institute networking with senior faculty researchers and USDA agency representatives and create a leadership plan focused on developing human capital relevant to meeting the USDA labor force needs. Fiscal Year 2013: 9.2 million for HSI program

HSI 2013 RFA will be published by October 2012

Seven Collaboration-Continuation projects will be funded

Three information webinars for HSIs are scheduled for 2013 in addition to four webinars about student internship opportunities through the USDA portal.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Within guidelines established for the program as described in the Request for Application (RFA).

10.225 COMMUNITY FOOD PROJECTS

Community Food Project Program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

The Community Food Projects Competitive Grants Program (CFPCGP) legislative authority is located in Section 25 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2034), as amended by the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008 and Section 4402 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act (FCEA) of 2008 (Pub. L. 110-246), which authorizes a program of federal grants to establish and carry out Community Food Projects., 7 U.S.C 2034.

OBJECTIVES:

To support the development of community food projects designed to meet the food needs of low-income people; increase the self-reliance of communities in providing for their own needs; and promote comprehensive responses to local food, farm, and nutrition issues.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Community food projects are intended to take a comprehensive approach to developing long-term solutions that help to ensure food security in communities by linking the food sector to community development, economic opportunity, and environmental enhancement. Comprehensive solutions may include elements such as:

- (1) Improved access to high quality, affordable food among low-income households;
- (2) support for local food systems, from urban gardening to local farms that provide high quality fresh food, ideally with minimal adverse environmental impact; and
- (3) expanded economic opportunities for community residents through local business or other economic development, improved employment opportunities, job training, youth apprenticeship, school-to-work transition, and the like.

Any solution proposed must tie into community food needs.

Successful applicants must provide matching funds, either in cash or in-kind amounting to at least 50 percent of the total cost of the project during the term of the grant award. 1. Construction and Renovation:

With prior approval, and in accordance with applicable Federal cost principles, grant funds may be used to plan, acquire, or construct a building or facility, or to acquire land; and for improvements, alterations, renovations, or repairs to land or buildings, necessary to carry out a funded project under this program. However, requests to use grant funds for such purposes must demonstrate that such expenditures are essential to achieving the major purpose for which the grant request is made.

2. Indirect Costs:

Full Negotiated Rate.

Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions:

Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 30 percent pursuant to FY 2012 appropriated funds,

Section 720 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2012 (Division A of Pub. L. 112-55), the awardee may request 15 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 30 percent.

Applicant Eligibility:

Proposals may be submitted by private nonprofit entities. Because projects must promote comprehensive responses to local food, farm, and nutrition issues, applicants are encouraged to seek and create partnership among public, private nonprofit and private for-profit organizations or firms. To be further eligible for a grant, a private nonprofit applicant must meet three mandatory requirements: 1. Have experience in the area of: (a) community food work, particularly concerning small and medium-sized farms, including the provision of food to people in low-income communities and the development of new markets in low-income communities for agricultural producers; or (b) job training and business development activities in low-income communities; 2. demonstrate competency to implement a project, provide fiscal accountability and oversight, collect data, and prepare reports and other appropriate documentation; and 3. demonstrate a willingness to share information with researchers, practitioners, and other interested parties.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Low income people.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

All RFAs are published on the Agencies website and Grants.gov. Applicants must complete the Grants.gov registration process. Please see the following Grants.gov link for more information: http://www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. An environmental impact statement is required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. Applications should be submitted as outlined in the RFA. Applications must follow the instructions provided per Grants.gov and in the Agency guide to submitting applications via Grants.gov.

OMB Circular No. A-122 applies to this program.

Award Procedure:

Applications are subjected to a system of peer and merit review in accordance with section 103 of the Agricultural Research, Extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 1613) by a panel of qualified scientists and other appropriate persons who are specialists in the field covered by the proposal. Within the limit of funds available for such purpose, the NIFA Authorized Departmental Officer (ADO) shall make grants to those responsible, eligible applicants whose applications are judged most meritorious under the procedures set forth in the RFA.

Reviewers will be selected based upon training and experience in relevant scientific, extension, or education fields, taking into account the following factors: (a) The level of relevant formal scientific, technical education, or extension experience of the individual, as well as the extent to which an individual is engaged in relevant research, education, or extension activities; (b) the need to include as reviewers experts from various areas of specialization within relevant scientific, education, or extension fields; (c) the need to include as reviewers other experts (e.g., producers, range or forest managers/operators, and consumers) who can assess relevance of the applications to targeted audiences and to program needs; (d) the need to include as reviewers experts from a variety of organizational types (e.g., colleges, universities, industry, state and Federal agencies, private profit and non-profit organizations) and geographic locations; (e) the need to maintain a balanced composition of reviewers with regard to minority and female representation and an equitable age distribution; and (f) the need to include reviewers who can judge the effective usefulness to producers and the general public of each application.

Evaluation Criteria will be delineated in the RFA.

Section :095 - Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 30 to 180 days.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Specific details are provided in the Request for Applications (RFA) each fiscal year.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula.

Matching Requirements: Percent: 100%. Successful CFP applicants and PP award applicants MUST provide matching on a dollar-for-dollar basis (100%) for all federal funds awarded.

Matching funds are not required for T & TA grants.

The legislation establishing the FSLC requires that as a condition to receiving a grant from NIFA, the NGO must contribute in-kind resources toward implementing the grant. To comply with this provision, NIFA has determined that applicants must provide at least 25 percent of total project resources on an in-kind basis during the term of the grant award. The Federal share of FSLC costs can be no more than 75 percent of total project costs.

CFP, PP and FSCL grantees may provide matching funds through cash and/or in-kind contributions, including third-party in-kind contributions fairly evaluated, including facilities. The non-federal share of the funding may come from state government, local government, other non-profit entities, or private sources. Examples of qualifying matching contributions may include direct costs such as: rent for office space used exclusively for the funded project; duplication or postage costs; and staff time from an entity other than the applicant for job training or nutrition education.

*SPECIAL NOTES:

(1) Use of Indirect Costs as In-Kind Matching Contributions. Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 22 percent pursuant to section 1462(a) of NARETPA (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), the awardee may request 11 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 22 percent.

(2) MATCHING FUNDS ARE NOT REQUIRED FOR TRAINING AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE (T & TA) GRANTS.

MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

The term of competitive project grants and/or cooperative agreements under this program may not exceed three (3) years. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: by letter of credit.

Reports:

Grantees are to submit initial project information and annual summary reports to NIFAs electronic, Web-based inventory system that facilitates both grantee submissions of project outcomes and public access to information on Federally-funded projects. Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. Audits will be conducted in accordance with guidelines established in the revised OMB Circular No. A-133 and implemented in 7 CFR 3052. PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: In a nation simultaneously challenged by both hunger and obesity, the importance of healthy food for all is evident. In FY2011, the active CFPs are estimated to have generated and handled 1.5 million pounds of food including fruits and vegetables, meats, dairy items, eggs and honey. The number of people and organizations involved in and affected by these Community Food Projects during FY 2011 was significant. Nearly 181,000 Americans were provided food as a result of the programs and about 54,000 were K-12 students or youth attending summer programs. Customers and food recipients varied in age, race and ethnicity and most resided in low-income areas. Nearly 9 in 10 CFP participants reported that they were healthier, provided healthier food for their families, and had increased their consumption of fruits and vegetables as a result of participating in the project. Significant increases in participant knowledge and attitudes related to healthful eating and local food systems were also found. 10.572 WIC Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (FMNP)

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: See the Food Security Learning Centers CFP Database hosted by WhyHunger at <http://www.whyhunger.org/cfp>. Fiscal Year 2012: Projects scheduled to be funded: Harvesting Wellbeing is a Community Food Project with four public and private partners—a health center, and economic development corporation, a local farm and a regional fresh food network. The partners will implement the initiative on the U.S. Mexico border in a rural, low-income community that is 95% Hispanic/Latino. The vision is to renew food traditions in the community so locally-grown food is enjoyed by all for better health.

In another project in the Hudson Valley, the project will improve access to affordable healthy food in what is a challenging food system in downtown Yonkers. The project includes major enhancements to its existing CSA, Farmers Market, and Community Garden Network, as well as entrepreneurial initiatives called the Youth Farm Team and a new 10,000 square ft. rooftop farm that will be operated as a social enterprise. The partnership involves a host of local farmers, a private developer, the City of Yonkers, local clergy, and community garden members. The cross-cutting nature of the program connects multiple sectors of the food system, involves social enterprise and job training, builds stronger relationships between the profit and non-profit food sectors, and develops our long-term capacity to improve community outcomes around healthy food access and health.

Community FoodWorks was initiated by Earth Learning to comprehensively address community food security in low-income communities, local food infrastructure, farm production capacity, farmer development, and nutrition issues. Earth Learning, and its partners propose several key components for a community food project:

- 1) The Farm at Verde Gardens, a 22-acre organic urban polyculture farm/farm market, with a commercial kitchen being operated in tandem with a housing community of 145 formerly-homeless households;
- 2) A beginning farmer apprenticeship program centered around the farm enterprise; and
- 3) A Local Food Hub, in its pilot phase, which extends out into the food shed. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent details to be provided by Program at a future date.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Within guidelines established for the program as described in the Request for Application (RFA).

1. The applicability and merit of the proposed project in regard to its ability to: Meet the food needs of low-income people in the proposed community for providing for its own food needs; and promote comprehensive responses to local food, farm, and nutrition needs;
2. the capacity to become self-sustaining once Federal funding ends; and
3. organizational and staff qualifications and experience; and 4. additional criteria will be considered relative to the extent the proposed project contributes to:
 - (a) developing linkages between two or more sectors of the food system;
 - (b) supporting the development of entrepreneurial projects;
 - (c) developing innovative linkages between the for-profit and nonprofit food sectors;
 - (d) encouraging long-term planning activities and multi-system, interagency approaches; and (e) incorporating linkages to one or more ongoing USDA themes or initiatives referred to in the program guidelines and/or annual proposal solicitation.

In accordance with the statutory authority, subject to the availability of funds, the Secretary of Agriculture (USDA), who has delegated the authority to the Director of the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA), will award grants to: (a) promote and strengthen secondary and 2-year postsecondary agriscience and agribusiness education, and Agriculture in the K-12 Classroom, in order to help ensure the existence in the United States of a qualified workforce to serve the food and agricultural sciences system; and (b) promote complementary and synergistic linkages among secondary, 2-year postsecondary, and higher education programs in the food and agricultural sciences in order to attain excellence in education and to encourage more young Americans to pursue and complete a baccalaureate or higher degree in the food and agricultural sciences., 7 U.S.C 3121.

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the Secondary Education, Two-Year Postsecondary Education, and Agriculture in the K-12 Classroom Challenge (SPECA) Grants Program is to: enhance curricula in agricultural education; increase faculty teaching competencies; interest young people in pursuing higher education in order to prepare for scientific and professional careers in the food and agricultural sciences; promote the incorporation of agriscience and agribusiness subject matter into other instructional programs, particularly classes in science, business, and consumer education; facilitate joint initiatives by the grant recipient with other secondary schools, institutions of higher education that award an associate's degree, institutions of higher education that award a bachelor's degree, and nonprofit organizations supporting agriscience and agribusiness education, to maximize the development and use of resources, such as faculty, facilities, and equipment, to improve agriscience and agribusiness education; support other initiatives designed to meet local, State, regional, or national needs related to promoting excellence in agriscience and agribusiness education; and support current Agriculture in the Classroom programs for grades K-12.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds may be used only in targeted areas, e.g., curricula design and materials development, promotion of teaching competencies, promotion of agriscience and agribusiness career information, instruction delivery systems, student experiential learning, and educational activities that increase the diversity of students pursuing degrees in agriscience and agribusiness. NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

Tuition remission not allowed.

Section 720 of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act, 2012 (Pub.L. No. 112-55) limits indirect costs to 30 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 30 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

*Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions:

Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 30 percent pursuant to FY 2012 appropriated funds, Section 720 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2012 (Division A of Pub. L. 112-55), the awardee may request 15 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 30 percent. Fully discretionary.

RELATED PROGRAMS:

10.210 Food and Agricultural Sciences National Needs Graduate Fellowship Grants; 10.216 1890 Institution Capacity Building Grants; 10.217 Higher Education Challenge Grants

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: Develop a comprehensive, agriculture-themed, 6-8 grade focused curriculum unit on food safety for distribution to teachers nationwide, and specifically targeted to educators who lack STEM training. Modules will provide tools teachers need to begin incorporating STEM education into their state-mandated curriculum, ultimately resulting in more students exploring agriculture and food safety careers.

Create a professional development curriculum and certified training program for K-8 teachers to ensure teachers have access to high quality materials, curricula, and training to implement hands-on, field-based K-8 STEM education. Professional training will increase teacher competency and confidence in teaching the sciences through experiential learning modalities. Students will have access to educational programs that will increase their knowledge of food and agriculture education and of how to create sustainable community food systems and educators will be able to train other K-8 classroom teachers using a Train the Trainer model.

Produce a mobile lab to provide precision agriculture hands-on activities and demonstrations. The mobile lab will include an ATV modified with precision agriculture technology to simulate commercial-scale systems, and a trailer with related technology and instructional equipment, to deliver course content to four regional high schools.

Curriculum materials will be developed and made available to secondary agriculture teachers throughout the U.S. focusing on food safety and security content and topics. The curriculum materials will be based upon content standards adopted at state and national levels. A food systems approach will provide the context for the content included in the curriculum materials to increase student awareness and knowledge of food safety and security that extend beyond the producer level. In addition, STEM content and concepts along with career opportunities in the food and agricultural sciences will be integrated into the curriculum. Fiscal Year 2012: Enhance teacher professional development activities through high-quality structured training in The Curriculum for Agricultural Science Education (CASE) and Delta training. The project will encourage high school teachers to work closely with university faculty to align curricula and to introduce new depth to sustainable energy and phytotechnology lesson plans. Anticipated results are for an increased number of students to be exposed to and develop knowledge of opportunities in agriculture, and for those students to be more adequately prepared to move seamlessly to a postsecondary institution and careers in agriculture-related industries.

Enable high school students to operate and manage a small-scale oyster nursery. This nursery will employ, on a smaller scale, the same equipment and techniques used by commercial aquaculturists, and will be the first of its kind in New York Harbor. Students will directly manage and operate the nursery and produce oysters for use in restoration projects.

Develop a sustainable agriculture certificate and associates degree program to allow students to further their education in agriculture and/or other STEM disciplines and create a pathway to the attainment of advanced degrees through transfer articulation agreements.

Increase faculty teaching competencies and develop curriculum and instructional delivery services for grade 10-14 high school and community college students and educators across the nation by developing a set of research-based instructional webinars. Content will include emerging technologies in sustainable and renewable agriculture, a web-based Introduction to Agriculture-based Sustainable and Renewable Energy course, and instructional activities available in a modular format that includes emerging research-based information and science and inquiry-based activities. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent data to be provided by Program at a future date.

This program represents no year funds.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance:

If minimum or maximum amounts of funding per competitive project grant or cooperative agreement are established, these will be announced in the annual program announcement or Request for Application (RFA).

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: For the FY 2011 award cycle, $ 1,684,270 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

A total of 11 applications requesting a total of $2,161,984 were received in this years competition. In March 2011, a 9-member peer review panel evaluated these applications via an on-line conference. The peer panel included faculty and administrators from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities and practitioners from the food and agricultural sciences community.

Of the 11 applications, 7 were selected as high priority projects for full funding. These received $1,400,000 in grants. The remaining $284,270 was divided among the remaining applicants for much smaller micro-grants to develop demonstration projects or feasibility studies. This was done in to fulfill the programs mission of building capacity at 1994 Land Grant Institutions. The applicants who received these smaller grants were able to explore their ideas and plan improvements or try an entirely new project based on their findings.

The funding ratio for this program in FY '11 was 100 percent.

Funded projects should address one or more of the following research areas: Agricultural Social Sciences (Includes Agricultural Education, Agricultural Communications, and Rural Sociology)

Human Nutrition Dietetics

Environmental Sciences Management

Conservation and Renewable Natural Resources (includes Forestry)

Family and Consumer Sciences (includes Textiles and excludes Human Nutrition). Fiscal Year 2012: For the FY 2012 award cycle, $1,681,948 was available for project grant awards after subtracting administrative costs.

For the first time in the programs history applicants had the option of applying for student-led or community-driven research projects. These projects were for smaller amounts of money, but let schools focus on building scientific capacity at their institutions rather than conduct research investigations that they didnt have the facilities to perform. The 1994 Land Grants that did have advanced research capacity maintained the option of applying for traditional grant funding.

The new RFA drew a record response of 24 applications requesting a total of $3,167,261. In May, a 9-member peer review panel met via distance conferencing and evaluated these applications. The peer panel included faculty and administrators from land grant and non-land grant colleges and universities and practitioners from the food and agricultural sciences community.

Funds were available to support a total of 14 awards for a total of $1,856,801. The additional $174,853 was obtained from 2004 and 2005 money as these are no-year funds and do not return to Treasury.

4 - Student Projects - $231,819

3 - Community Projects - $255,000 and 7 - Research Projects - $1,369,982.

The funding ratio for this program in FY '12 was 58 percent.

A majority Funded projects address one or more of the following research topics:

Agricultural Social Sciences - 23 %

Animal Sciences - 21%

Conservation - 17%

Environmental Sciences Management - 13% and

Human Nutrition Dietetics - 7%

Other prominent subject areas included agribusiness, bio-fuels, consumer science, food science technology, pest management, plant sciences and water sciences. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent data will be provided by Program at a future date.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: For one project, two institutions are leading investigations of the aquatic invasive macrophyte flowering rush (Butomus umbellatus). The goal of this research is to gather basic information to assess how flowering rush expansion will impact native fish recovery. One lake has experienced non-native fish and macroinvertebrate introductions that alter food webs resulting in a fishery dominated by 80% non-natives, and culturally and ecologically important native westslope cutthroat and bull trout natives have declined to 15% of the fish assemblage.

One Tribe has maintained a Bison herd since the 1930s. In recent years the calving rate of the 800 head herd has been below 50 percent. One collaboration proposes to study the nutrition, behavior, and genetic integrity of the herd in order to better manage the herd's reproduction. The proposed study builds on a current research characterizing reproductive diseases in the herd and expands the Tribe's holistic approach to maintaining the herd's reproductive success. Fiscal Year 2012: One college proposes to develop BATS (Broadening Achievements Together in STEM) which will enrich STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) research capacity, and allow us to recruit and retain Native American students, and produce high-quality graduates with a comprehensive understanding of research methodologies and experience working with a team of scientist.

New regional energy drilling has local residence worried about the water quality in the region and how intensive energy exploration will affect water for from a human health and ecological perspective. Students will gather baseline Total Petroleum Hydrocarbon (TPH) fingerprint data. TPH fingerprinting will be established on the Reservation during petroleum related activities (drilling and transport). The timing of this research is very important for the Reservation as petroleum development is in the initial year. The data collected using biological, chemical and physical parameters is crucial in establishing baseline data in pristine waterways on the Reservation.

Reports show the highest percent of students fail because of poor attendance, which is informally found to be related to many different reasons most often related to lack of planning and not having a clear goal. United Tribes Technical college researchers will explore how to assist students with adjusting to life on campus, setting career goals and planning for college and career success.

Succulent plants, such as Agave, Opuntia, and Yucca species, which were important for generations, but whose use has declined over the years, offer opportunities to adapt food and energy needs in the face of a increasingly warmer and drier climate. Researchers hypothesize that certain Agave, Opuntia, and Yucca species will be suitable food and bio-energy crops for production in the extreme environmental conditions of the high desert. Students will evaluate several species in these genera to determine their survival and productivity under field conditions. Fiscal Year 2013: Pertinent data will be provided by Program at a future date.

Training Alaskans to work successfully in fisheries management and salmon hatchery settings or to continue on to another college degree in fisheries or biology. Many industry and agency sectors in Alaskan fisheries are projecting significant retirement and are concerned about being able to recruit Alaskans trained to enter these careers. This project will help ensure there are trained workers to assist in fisheries management and salmon production. Outcomes include new salmon culture training including 2-3 new classes and workshops and new delivery methods.

To increase retention and completion of four year science and technical degree program for students from coastal communities. Three programs are proposed for grades 7 to 14 in three programs. First, undergraduates will experience Alaska-specific foundational coursework as a group of peers in distance-delivered courses and workshops based upon a central unifying theme connecting marine and terrestrial pathways in the North Pacific. Second, advanced Alaska native high school students will learn to use molecular techniques to answer ecological questions on how changing climate impacts terrestrial and marine systems. Third, UAS will develop a partnership with Native Alaskan culture camps and the US Forest Service (USFS) for high and middle school students to visit USFS field sites to experience career pathways. OBJECTIVES:

GENERAL:

NIFA Integrated Programs provide support for integrated research, education, and extension activities. Integrated, multi-functional projects are particularly effective in addressing important agricultural issues through the conduct of problem-focused research that is combined with education and extension of knowledge to those in need of solutions. These activities address critical national, regional, and multi-state agricultural issues, priorities, or problems. Integrated Programs hold the greatest potential to produce and disseminate knowledge and technology directly to end users while providing for educational opportunities to assure agricultural expertise in future generations. See individual program Requests for Applications for additional information about the topics.

SEVERAL PROGRAMS ARE FUNDED UNDER CFDA 10.303. SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(1) Integrated Research, Education, and Extension Competitive Grants Program: National Integrated Water Quality Program

The goal of the National Integrated Water Quality Program is to improve the quality of our Nation's surface water and groundwater resources through research, education, and extension activities. Projects funded through this program will facilitate achieving this goal by advancing and disseminating the knowledge base available to agricultural and rural communities. Funded projects should lead to science-based decision-making and management practices that improve the quality of the Nation's surface water and groundwater resources in agricultural and rural watersheds. See RFA for priority areas.

(2) Integrated Research, Education, and Extension Competitive Grants Program: National Integrated Food Safety Initiative

The purpose of the National Integrated Food Safety Initiative is to support food safety projects that demonstrate an integrated approach to solving problems in applied food safety research, education, or extension. Various models for integration of applied research, education, and extension will be considered for funding. Applications describing multi-state, multi-institutional, multidisciplinary, and multifunctional activities (and combinations thereof) are encouraged. Applicants are strongly encouraged to address at least two of the three functional areas of research, education, and extension (i.e., research and extension, research and education, or extension and education).

(3) Integrated Research, Education, And Extension Competitive Grants Program: Regional Integrated Pest Management Centers

The goal of the Regional Integrated Pest Management Centers (IPM Centers) is to promote the development and implementation of IPM by facilitating collaboration across states, disciplines, and purposes. IPM Centers will establish and maintain information networks, build partnerships to address pest management challenges and opportunities, evaluate the impact of IPM implementation, communicate positive outcomes to key stakeholders, and manage funding resources effectively. Successful applicants to this program will demonstrate the capacity and commitment necessary to advance the goals of the National Roadmap for Integrated Pest Management (www.ipmcenters.org/IPMRoadMap.pdf), and evaluate the progress of this advancement. The IPM Roadmap addresses pest management needs for production agriculture, natural resources and recreational environments, and residential and public areas.

(4) Integrated Pest Management: Crops at Risk Program

The goal of the CAR program is to enhance the development and implementation of innovative, ecologically based sustainable IPM system(s). Preferably, this should involve a diversity of tactics and approaches for a single or specific food or fiber commodity in commercial production for pre- and/or post-harvest system(s). The program addresses either a major acreage or high value crop commodity such as key fruits and vegetables. The primary emphasis is on crop productivity and profitability, while addressing critical environmental quality and human health issues. The CAR program will fund integrated multifunctional/multidisciplinary research, education, and extension projects for crops with high priority IPM needs as identified by stakeholders.

(5) Integrated Pest Management: Risk Avoidance and Mitigation Program

The goal of the Risk Avoidance and Mitigation (RAMP) program is to enhance the development and implementation of innovative, ecologically based sustainable IPM strategies and system(s) for (a) multi-crop food and fiber production systems; (b) an area-wide or a landscape scale agroecosystem; or (c) a documented pesticide impact on water, human or environmental health. RAMP applications may address major acreage agricultural production systems, high value crops such as key fruit and vegetable systems, or other agroecosystems. The primary emphasis of the application should be on productivity and profitability while addressing critical environmental quality and human health issues. The intent of RAMP is to fund medium-term projects that emphasize systems approaches.

(6) Integrated Research, Education, and Extension Competitive Grants Program: Integrated Pest Management: Methyl Bromide Transitions Program

The goal of the Methyl Bromide Transitions (MBT) program is to support the discovery and implementation of practical pest management alternatives to methyl bromide uses or minimize methyl bromide emissions for which the United States is requesting critical use exemptions. The program is focused on integrated commercial or field scale research that targets short- to medium-term solutions.

(7) Integrated Organic Program

The purpose of the Integrated Organic Program is to solve critical organic agriculture issues, priorities, or problems through the integration of research, education, and extension activities. The Organic Transitions Program (ORG) funds the development and implementation of research, extension, and higher education programs to improve the competitiveness of organic producers and producers who are adopting organic practices. Funding opportunities for the ORG Program is included in the same Request for Applications (RFA) as the Organic Research and Extension Initiative (OREI).

PLEASE NOTE: THIS PROGRAM DOES NOT FUND START UP BUSINESSES.

(8) Regional Rural Development Centers (RRDCs):

The RRDCs play a unique role in USDA's service to rural America. They link the research and educational outreach capacity of the nation's public universities with communities, local decision makers, entrepreneurs, families, and farmers and ranchers to help address a wide range of development issues. They collaborate on national issues that span regions-like e-commerce, the changing interface between rural, suburban, and urban places, and workforce quality and jobs creation. Each tailors programs to address particular needs in its region.

All projects integrate research, education and extension activities.

(H) Regional Rural Development Centers

The Regional Rural Development Centers collaborate on national issues that span regions like e-commerce, regional food systems, the changing interface between rural, suburban, and urban places, diversifying rural economies, and workforce quality and jobs creation. Each tailors programs to address particular needs in its region.

Partnering with USDA-Rural Development and a core group of land-grant institutions to advance new strategies for regional innovation and economic development, the Centers have spread the Stronger Economies Together (SET) program to 19 states and 39 regions which are ready to implement long-term plans and strategically build on the economic and social assets of these locations. The Centers received $1.7 million from USDA Rural-Development for fiscal year 2011 to expand the SET program.

The Centers are also paving the way toward the educational backbone needed for broadband technology to be adopted and used effectively across the nation as a complement to President Obamas broadband infrastructure investments. The National e-Commerce Extension Initiative has produced 15 comprehensive web-based educational programs that promote broadband and e-commerce adoption by local governments, small businesses, farmers, entrepreneurs, artisans, and others. Many of these educational materials are being employed by land-grant Cooperative Extension Services.

Examples of other activities include the Consortium for Renewable Energy in the West (CREW); the Northeast's $5 million AFRI grant to study the food security of underserved populations and how food supply can be enhanced through sustainable regional food systems; the South's partnership with the Kettering Foundation, Everyday Democracy, and the Farm Foundation to address persistent poverty via the nationally recognized Turning the Tide on Poverty program; and Triumph Over Tragedy and Ready Community Guide, two initiatives focused on disaster preparedness and support. Fiscal Year 2012:

Centers collaborated on a successful application to NIFAs Policy Research Centers Grant Program.

Solo and partner initiatives of the individual centers are reported below, with particular emphasis given to service to underserved populations.

North Center Regional Center for Rural Development (NCRCRD)

While most rural areas in the North Central Region are experiencing population decline, the number of Hispanics is increasing. Hispanics in the Upper Midwest is a work group supported by the North Central Center that studies this rapidly expanding demographic to determine the best ways to incorporate the newcomers into communities.

Cambio de Colores (Change of Colors) is an annual conference that, since 2002, brings together researchers, practitioners, decision-makers, and community members to discuss the issues that the Heartland states face as a result of the demographic changes reflected since the 2000 Census, which clearly showed large numbers of immigrants most of them Latino or Hispanic, but including significant numbers of migrants and refugees from Asia, Africa, and Europe settling in rural and urban areas of every state in the region. Cambio de Colores is a collaborative effort of the University of Missouri and Extension, other educational institutions in the North Central region, as well as government and private organizations.

The NCRCRD offered a number of webinars to benefit rural poor, inority, and/or underserved populations:

Banking Issues Among Entrepreneurs from Underserved Populations
Great Lakes Land Grant Institutions Tribal Water Resources Summit

The NCRCRD partnered with NIFA to organize a two day small farm and rural development research conference prior to the Regional Science Association International meetings, attracting 61 researchers.

North East Regional Center for Rural Development (NERCRD)

The NERCRD has created an online resource on the Center website titled: Demographic Dimensions of Diversity Relevant for Extension Educators: What To Look For, Why, and Where To Find the Data on The Web. The site includes a briefing room on Race and Ethnicity in Rural America; Resources for Dealing with Hate Groups; and, Mapping Census 2000 the Geography of U.S. Diversity.

NERCRD Director Stephan Goetz was invited to speak at the Federal Reserve System Board of Governors conference in Washington, DC on the Role of Small Business and Entrepreneurship during an Economic. He also served on the Panel Strengthening Entrepreneurship Opportunities in Urban and Rural Communities.

Southern Regional Rural Development Center (SRRDC)

SERA-37 is a Southern Extension Research Activity on The New Hispanic South. As its name implies, its goal is strengthening the capacity to land grant institutions to respond to the New Hispanic South. Core activities focus on mobilizing land-grant faculty to work collaboratively to better understand the challenges and opportunities associated with the current and future growth of Hispanics in the rural South; strengthen the research and Extension outreach work being undertaken by our region's land-grant university system that addresses the growth of Hispanics in the South; and advance the capacity of the land-grant system to lend support to those rural communities that seek to respond to the needs of their growing Hispanic population in a positive and strategic manner.

Members of SERA-37, New Hispanic South, completed a domestic immersion Latino cultural competency program consisting of three phases: distance education, eight-day immersion experience in the North Carolina Latino community and an applied project in the home state. SERA-37 secretary Roberto Gallardo, SRDC research associate, reported individuals from 10 southern states, as well as 22 community partners, participated in this domestic immersion project. As a result of the immersion, preliminary project plans developed:

Mississippi Extension agents will conduct a needs assessment of farm workers and farmers.

Alabama Extension agents will offer a work readiness and health fair with Latino audiences.

Georgia Extension agents are establishing community gardens with Latino families through connections with a local faith community.

North Carolina Extension agents are involving Latino youth in 4-H, as well as engaging the Latino community as vendors and customers in the local farmers market through a multi-cultural day. They are also providing energy savings/personal budgeting classes for Latino families and are developing a safety and health promotion program.

The SRDCs Turning the Tide on Poverty initiative engages residents to improve their communities. Thanks to this SRDC initiative, rural counties across the South have opened the lines of communication, engaged residents who had not previously been involved, and achieved community and economic development goals. The Initiative was recognized by the National Association of Community Development Extension Professions for success in tackling poverty issues for economically-distressed rural communities and was honored with the Diversity Certificate by the National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: (A) Water Quality

Fresh water supply shortages are increasingly common in the Southeast US. The growing population in this region has been suggested as a key component contributing to this water stress as well as climate variability and change. A 2010 report indicated that by 2050 much of Florida is projected to be at high to extreme risk of water shortage while water shortage in Georgia is projected to range from moderate to extreme (Spencer and Altman, 2010). Irrigation has been shown to be a substantial user of fresh water supplies in the Southeast - both for agriculture and urban applications. Thus, irrigation provides one source of potential water savings if irrigation practices can be improved. With the growing price of fuel and potential restrictions on irrigation water, these apps will also be useful for increased sustainability by providing at-your-fingertips knowledge for improved irrigation (and water conservation) and potential financial savings through lower fuel costs (less pump time). We will develop models that require minimum input using real-time weather data to improve irrigation practices in citrus, cotton, strawberry, and urban lawn environments. These simple models will be converted into Smartphone apps to be used quickly and efficiently by stakeholders. The apps will include both real-time and forecasting components. Stakeholders will test the apps and further modifications will be made as needed to improve their performance before public release. We will also conduct train-the-trainer and train-the-stakeholder workshops to further disseminate these products. Our initial goal is to reach Florida and Georgia irrigators with future efforts expanding further into the Southeast region. All efforts will be coordinated through the Southeast Climate Consortium and linked with AgroClimate and the Florida Automated Weather

Network.

The "Water Equals National Education Campaign" builds on the "Mapping the Future" project in its strategy to implement and disseminate the Water Equals framework. The project is distinctive in its fundamental goal to shift young people's relationship with, and consciousness of, water. This goes beyond a focus on instruction to include engaging the hearts, minds, and bodies of youth in multidimensional ways. The project seeks to do this through a campaign, i.e., a connected series of operations designed to bring about a desired result. The first strategy is to attract young people's attention through means that are relevant and engaging to them, and to catalyze their thinking about water in creative, emotive, analytic, systemic, and interdisciplinary ways. The second is to provide fun and challenging educational experiences and resources for them to learn and engage in new ways related to water. The third strategy is to provide easy to use, high-quality activity guides and other resources to a range of adults engaged in youth water education—from parents to museum directors. The fourth is to bring those interested in youth water education together around a shared message and to disseminate the Water Equals framework in ways that are relevant to multiple stakeholders. Lastly, to employ continuous, robust evaluation to measure and understand the impact of this approach, as well as inform employment of the Water Equals framework. The proposed approach involves the creation and implementation of a multi-faceted educational campaign that seeks to reach young people in the real and virtual places they inhabit. These places, as best identified by the youth participants in "Mapping the Future," include their homes, their communities, and popular culture (including social media). The desired outcome of greater knowing, caring, and engagement is greater stewardship, which includes conservation and protection behaviors. Success will be measured in part by the degree to which young people demonstrate new or improved water stewardship. (B) National Integrated Food Safety

Cost-Effective Pathogen Reduction Strategies and Food Safety Training for Small and Very Small Meat Processors ; Foodborne Pathogens Detection and Education to Support Sustainable Agriculture for Small Scale Producers

(C) Integrated Pest Management Centers (Regional)

Example 1.

Objectives: 1) Establish new and maintain existing information networks; 2) continue to build partnerships to address IPM challenges and opportunities; 3) develop signature global food security programs and foster their sustainability; 4) review and evaluate impacts of IPM implementation and communicate successes; and 5) manage funding resources effectively.

The IPM Center will serve as a catalyst for promoting and reporting IPM accomplishments achieved by our broad-based clientele to increase accountability. Our Center will actively respond to the goals of the National Roadmap for IPM the Global Food Security priority to ensure coordination of efforts and resources to enhance IPM development and adoption for production agriculture, natural resources and recreational environments, and residential and public areas in cooperation with the Federal IPM Coordinating Committee comprised of agency representatives from the Department of Agriculture (ARS, NIFA, NRCS, NASS, ERS, APHIS and the U.S. Forest Service), Department of Interior (National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management and Fish and Wildlife Service), Department of State (Agency for International Development), Department of Health and Human Services (CDC), Department of Housing and Urban Development (Office of Health Homes), Department of Defense, Environmental Protection Agency and the General Services Administration.

Signature programs include Tribal IPM programs, IPM education and outreach, IPM impact assessment, IPM issue-focused working groups and pest management strategic plans. These programs will engage broad representation of our regions stakeholders including our 1994 and 1890 sister institutions, as well as other underserved audiences.

Example 2.

To foster IPM development and adoption, the IPM Center will build on successes and launch new projects. With broad-based stakeholder participation, we will prioritize issues, create a strategic plan, facilitate collaboration across states, disciplines, and regions, and continue our information networks (including a state-of-the-art website, robust listservs, and a grants database). We will build capacity with eXtension and share Pest Alerts and success stories. Our IPM Partnership Grants Program will focus on working groups and critical pests, encouraging project directors to address underserved audiences, food availability, and food accessibility. We will foster sustainability of regional food supplies by strengthening support for small farms and by joining with federal and private partners to sponsor a conference on "IPM, Organic, and Sustainable Ag to Bolster Food Security." We will lead outreach to the region on the invasive brown marmorated stink bug, working with scientists to share new knowledge via the StopBMSB website, curricula, and displays. We will strengthen underserved communities by leading and participating in IPM trainings and workshops for public housing authorities and tribal housing, enhancing the StopPests website, and offering our new "Guide to IPM in Public Housing" in print and online. We will network internationally by attending the OECD workshop and the International IPM Symposium. Overall, our Center will increase coordination of IPM research, education, and extension, and will enhance responsiveness to global food security challenges.

Example 3.

Our mission is to foster development and adoption of IPM, a science-based approach to managing pests in ways that generate economic, environmental and human health benefits. The Advisory Council (AC) comprising diverse stakeholders from across the region will provide guidance and the Steering Committee (SC) will set policy. We will utilize the strategic plan developed in the previous funding cycle. We will maintain a revised version of the Regulatory Information Network to proactively address regulatory issues, respond to queries from EPA and other regulatory agencies, and update at least 12 high-priority Crop Profiles. Stakeholders and partner institutions will be engaged to identify needs and establish priorities through the AC and SC structure, collaboration with regional technical committees, the Small Farms IPM Working Group to engage previously underserved groups, and support of existing working groups including the School IPM Working Group. Global Food Security Programs include the Regulatory Information Network, the Critical and Emerging Issues Grant Program; the Small Farms Working Group; continued financial management and support of ipmPIPE projects; collaboration with eXtension; and our IPM Impacts evaluation Initiative. The Impacts Evaluation Initiative will evaluate IPM projects from across the region to develop and distribute success stories that resonate with the general public. Our communications and outreach will continue the successful methods we have used to date including social networking techniques. We will also continue the Friends of IPM Program to highlight successful IPM professionals and promote IPM.

Example 4.

The Center will advance the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) Global Food Security priority area. Center activities and programs will advance Global Food Security by leading and supporting programs that implement IPM solutions to enhance sustainable food systems and boost U.S. agricultural production. Roadmap goals will be advanced by Center activities that lead to improved economic benefits of IPM adoption and reduced potential risks to human health and the environment caused by pests and the use of pest management practices. The Centers work will address five objectives:

- 1) to develop signature Global Food Security programs and foster their sustainability,
- 2) to establish and maintain multistate information networks,
- 3) to build partnerships and address challenges and opportunities,
- 4) to review and evaluate outcomes and impacts of IPM implementation and communicate the successes and the value added by IPM programs, and
- 5) to manage funding resources effectively. All of these objectives will be carried out in the context of two overarching goals: 1) to improve the cost benefit analyses of adopting IPM practices and 2) to reduce the environmental and human health risks associated with managing pests. In carrying out these objectives and advancing these goals, the Center will provide regional leadership and coordination to facilitate integration of sustainable IPM activities across states, purposes, programs, and pest disciplines and among individuals, institutions, and regions. By offering competitive grants, supporting communication networks, obtaining ongoing stakeholder input about IPM needs, and fostering collaborations and partnerships, the Center will provide a centralized regional platform for addressing critical IPM needs and integrating IPM research, extension, and education in the West. This approach also ensures the Center will be responding to food security challenges on a global scale. The leadership and funding opportunities provided by the Center will bring together the institutional and individual expertise needed to successfully address high-priority pest management issues confronting farmers, pest managers, the non-agricultural public, and others in the West

(E) FQPA Risk Mitigation Program

(F) Methyl bromide Transition Program

Phosphine fumigation will be conducted to determine the parameters that are effective at controlling mite infestations in simulated ham aging houses and implemented at individual, dry cured pork processing plants within the Southeastern United States. In addition, integrated pest management programs will be developed using Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HAACP) Principles applied to mite, insect and environmental monitoring, and it will be determined if food grade ingredients such as oils and propylene glycol can be used to prevent mite and beetle infestations without affecting the sensory quality of the hams. In addition, economic analyses will be conducted to determine if phosphine, integrated pest management, and other potential alternatives are economically feasible and cost effective when compared to methyl bromide and in light of the ban on methyl bromide.

Over the years we have assembled an inter-disciplinary and inter-state response and vision team of key private and public sector stakeholders that seeks to implement chemical and biological-based alternatives to methyl bromide. Significant progress has been achieved in vegetable and strawberry production issues. This proposal focuses on advancing strawberry production systems by developing and extending readily adaptable and biologically-based approaches. Three strategic levels of research and extension are identified to address critical use nominations for the strawberry fruit industry in the Southeast USA: 1) Tactic substitution - addressing short term needs of growers who seek non-ozone depleting fumigant alternatives. The primary component includes fine-tuning the use of novel mulches and technologies to enhance efficacy and/or mitigate emerging regulatory issues; 2) Tactic Diversification - focuses on advancing current research efforts to incorporate novel and registered fungicides, nematicides and herbicides using pest-driven combinations for targeted and efficacious management of these soilborne pests; 3) Tactic Development - focuses on readily adaptable and biologically-based systems including use of best management systems with cover crops and compost, anaerobic soil disinfestation, mustard seed meal applications and biased soil profiles that favor beneficial microbial communities. Finally, we will focus on extending outcomes through multi-tactic mechanisms including participatory on-farm-research, web-based information, extension agent training, field days, presentations at most fruit and vegetable meetings in the SE and along the eastern seaboard, scientific presentations at professional meetings, peer reviewed publications, and writings in extension articles and industry driven newsletters. Combined efforts are expected to result in technically and economical feasible assessments and implementation of alternatives, exploration of viable diversification and development of integrated pest management tactics, and a region-wide advanced understanding of the biology, ecology and management of key soilborne pests.

(G) Organic Transition - Risk Assessment

Profitable and environmentally sustainable re-integration of livestock into diversified organic dryland farming systems. An interdisciplinary team is developing a holistic sheep/organic crop production system that uses targeted sheep grazing to reduce tillage intensity, nitrogen leaching, greenhouse gas emission and improve soil fertility and soil carbon sequestration, while taking advantage of weeds, cover crops and crop residues for fiber and meat production. It also assess the production, environmental, social, and economic challenges facing both transitioning as well as certified organic producers.

Reduced greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and improved soil quality in long-term integrated and transitional reduced tillage organic systems. This work is generating information on the potential for diverse organic systems to improve soil quality and manage carbon and nitrogen. This will allow farmers to reduce GHGs and manage nutrient cycling to enhance soil fertility while providing ecosystem services.

Emissions data, coupled with carbon and nitrogen inputs, fossil fuel use, and emissions estimates from livestock will enhance GHG models for farming systems.

Identification of factors affecting carbon sequestration and nitrous oxide emission in three organic cropping systems. This project is improving the competitiveness of organic crop producers by evaluating cropping systems for effectiveness in increasing grain productivity, suppressing weeds and providing fertility while reducing negative impacts on water, air and soil quality. The work is documenting nitrous oxide emissions in grain crop rotations using conventional tillage vs. no-till with integration of cover crops. Project results will expand the expertise of Extension and NRCS personnel in the area of organic farming practices and create outreach programs for organic producers. An outcome of this research will be a recommendation for organic farmers on best management practices to simultaneously increase carbon sequestration and reduce nitrous oxide emissions.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: The purpose of one project is to further integrate and expand Extension's educational role before, during and after a disaster, using the all-hazards approach adopted by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. Furthermore, this project helped EDEN strategically provide guidance and support to NIFA, USDA, and member institutions in disaster education. Specifically, with this project, EDEN had continued use of its network and communication tools to distribute educational materials and information aimed at reducing the impacts of disasters. This project made Extension a more effective partner in food and agricultural defense education by continuing maintenance and promotion and use of previously developed EDEN materials and the development of new materials.

One project addressed the coordination and collection of diagnostic information from land grant universities and state departments of agriculture in a standardized manner insuring the quality of information. The purpose of this project was to enable complex pattern analysis of diagnostic information collected in order to detect anomalies, thus allowing recognition of new outbreaks earlier than is currently possible.

Five different projects enabled regionally disparate institutions to host regional diagnostic centers for the National Plant Diagnostics Network (NPDN). The NPDN, working together with various federal and state agencies, has the overall goal of enhancing national agricultural security from bioterrorist attack through the protection of health and productivity of plants in agricultural and natural ecosystems in the U.S. The specific purpose of this network is to provide a functional nationwide network of public agricultural institutions with a cohesive, distributed system to quickly detect high consequence pests (here defined as arthropods and weeds) and biological pathogens (here defined as plant microbial disease agents and nematodes) that have been introduced intentionally or accidentally into agricultural and natural ecosystems, identify them, and immediately report them to appropriate responders and decision makers.

Twenty eight projects supported National Animal Health Laboratory Network (NAHLN) laboratories. The NAHLN has implemented national surveillance systems for highly pathogenic avian influenza, classical swine fever, bovine spongiform encephalopathy, and other important animal diseases. These surveillance programs have been used, among other things, to demonstrate freedom from disease in support of international trade, resulting in increased trade income. Fiscal Year 2012: Not all awards have been finalized. Pertinent data will be provided by Program at a future date. Fiscal Year 2013: Not all awards have been finalized. Pertinent data will be provided by Program at a future date.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

In Fiscal Year (FY) 2002, a panel of USDA scientists knowledgeable in the Nation's plant and animal disease diagnostic capability, recommended to the Secretary a plan of initiating a comprehensive national network of laboratories for the rapid detection and diagnosis of plant and animal diseases. The institutions selected by the panel for initial inclusion in the network were recommended using the following criteria:

- (1) Existing scientific capacity;
- (2) Existing laboratory capacity which could be modified to meet Biosafety Level 3 requirements;
- (3) Both animal and plant diagnostic capabilities;
- (4) Geographical location meeting one or more of the following requirements: located in an area with a high risk of disease/pest incursions; located in an area with high concentration of vulnerable agricultural activity; complements or supplements regional Federal laboratory activity or is in an area not effectively served by an existing Federal facility;
- (5) State-of-the-art communication and information technology systems. Must be capable of managing secure communications with other laboratories and central reporting unit; and
- (6) An effective outreach/extension system.

These recommendations were utilized to select the original cooperative agreement recipients and are annually evaluated by USDA/NIFA in network planning.

10.305 INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE AND EDUCATION GRANTS
(INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE AND EDUCATION (ISE) COMPETITIVE GRANTS PROGRAM)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 229 of the Agricultural Research, Extension and Education Reform Act of 1998 (AREERA) amended Section 1459 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (NARETPA) (7 U.S.C. Section 3292b) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to make competitive grants to colleges and universities in order to strengthen United States economic competitiveness and to promote international market development.

Section 7141 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (7 U.S.C. 8701 note) authorized the International Science and Education Competitive Grants Program (ISE).

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of ISE is to support the internationalization of food, agriculture and related programs at U.S. universities and colleges. It is intended that ISE will improve the ability of American students, business people, and community members to compete more effectively in the global world of agriculture. ISE projects are to strengthen the global competence and competitiveness of American colleges, universities and businesses in the food, agriculture, and related sectors. In addition, ISE projects must be directed to agricultural research, extension, and/or teaching activities that enhance the capabilities of American colleges and universities to conduct international collaborative research, extension and teaching. Our success in the global arena will increasingly require U.S. colleges and universities to produce graduates who can operate competently in domestic and international settings. Through their outreach efforts, universities and colleges also play a critical role in helping U.S. producers successfully operate in foreign markets.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funded projects will respond to specific needs and strengths of the university or college that will enable it to strengthen the global competence of students, faculty and staff in agriculture and related areas and enhance business performance in international agriculture and related sectors through extension, research and/or teaching programs. Each institution may submit no more than two proposals as the lead institution. No institution acting as the principal or lead institution will receive more than one grant during the current competition.

Therefore, institutions are encouraged to establish on-campus quality control mechanisms to ensure that only the highest quality proposals are submitted for consideration.

Program funds may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities (i.e., greenhouses, laboratories, or other structures).

Section 7132 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, amended the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), limiting indirect costs to 22 percent of the total Federal funds provided under each award. Therefore, when preparing budgets, applicants should limit their requests for recovery of indirect costs to the lesser of their institutions official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 22 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions. Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardees' indirect costs are capped at 22 percent pursuant to section 1462(a) of NARETPA (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), the awardee may request 11 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 22 percent. Fully discretionary.

Applicant Eligibility:

Applications may be submitted by colleges and universities and defined in section 1404 of NARETPA. The terms college and university mean an educational institution in any State which (1) admits as regular students only persons having a certificate of graduation from a school providing secondary education, or the recognized equivalent of such a certificate; (2) is legally authorized within such State to provide a program of education beyond secondary education; (3) provides an education program for which a bachelor's degree or any other higher degree is awarded; (4) is a public or other nonprofit institution; and (5) is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association.

The project aims to attain the following objectives: Education - Fortify the international content of existing Forestry undergraduate and graduate curriculum to incorporate complex dimensions of forest management, multifunctionality and opportunities for entrepreneurship based on forest resources into existing and new courses. Research - Solidify existing institutional cooperation to establish continuous collaborative research projects in NIFA's focus areas with scientists at CATIE and incorporate international experiences into formal Doctorial research experiences for underrepresented groups. Extension - Adopt lessons from outreach programs at EARTH University into existing University of Missouri and Lincoln University extension models to maximize benefits to forest-dependent communities, underserved groups and the forest industry by developing new courses and extension models.

The Global IQ Project will establish a trilateral collaboration between universities, non-profits and food processing industry in the US, Mozambique and South Africa with the overarching goal of enhancing the global intelligence quotient of U.S. students, and building the capacity of the U.S. universities and industry to participate in the growth potential that exists in the Southern African region. Project Objectives:

- 1) create awareness of challenges to food security and agricultural value-addition;
- 2) develop and transfer of appropriate technologies to small and medium scale enterprises; and
- 3) increase the competitiveness of U.S. agribusiness exports. Fiscal Year 2012: Effective Fiscal Year 2012, this program is no longer being funded. Fiscal Year 2013: N/A program is not in the Presidents FY 2013 budget.

10.306 BIODIESEL

(Biodiesel Fuel Education Program)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 9006 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-246), amended the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8101 et seq.) to re-establish the Biodiesel Fuel Education Program which requires that the Secretary make competitive grants to eligible entities to educate governmental and private entities that operate vehicle fleets, other interested entities (as determined by the Secretary), and the public about the benefits of biodiesel fuel use. The Secretary delegated this authority to the Chief Economist, who in turn delegated this authority to the Director of the Office of Energy Policy and New Uses (OEPNU). OEPNU has joined with NIFA for assistance in administering Biodiesel Education under the authorities found in the Economy Act (31 U.S.C. 1535) and Section 1472 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3318). Specific Biodiesel Education administrative provisions are found in 7 CFR 2903., 7 U.S.C 3318.

OBJECTIVES:

The goals of the Biodiesel Fuel Education Program as originally established in Section 9004 of the Farm Security Investment Act of 2002 (7 U.S.C. 8104) were to stimulate biodiesel consumption and to stimulate the development of a biodiesel infrastructure. The information and outreach activities to raise awareness of the benefits of biodiesel fuel use complemented the incentives provided by the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (EPAct) (Public Law 109-58), and the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 (Public Law 110-140). As a result of increased awareness and consumption of biodiesel over the past 5 years, the FY 2008 Biodiesel Education program will focus on educational programs which will support advances in infrastructure, technology transfer, fuel quality, fuel safety and increasing feedstock production.

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE RESEARCH AND EXTENSION INITIATIVE (OREI)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institute of Food and Agriculture, Department of Agriculture

AUTHORIZATION:

Section 7206 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (FCEA) amended section 1672B of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade (FACT) Act of 1990 (7 U.S.C. 5925b) amending and re-authorizing the Organic Agriculture Research and Extension Initiative (OREI). The FACT Act, as amended, authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture, in consultation with the National Agricultural Research, Extension, Education, and Economics Advisory Board (NAREEEAB), to make competitive grants to support research and extension activities regarding organically grown and processed agricultural commodities for eight legislatively-defined goals. See RFA Part I.B. for further general information and specific details. , 7 U.S.C 5925b.

OBJECTIVES:

Facilitate the development of organic agriculture production, breeding, and processing methods. Functionally identify soil microbial communities and ways to manage microbial dynamics to enhance nutrient cycling and disease suppression; Develop systemic approaches to weed, insect and disease management; Prevent, control, and treat internal and external parasites in various livestock species; and Breed crops for disease and insect resistance, good yield in a biologically diverse system, compatibility with intercrops, good response to organic fertility sources, horizontal resistance (traits determined by multiple genes). Evaluate the potential economic benefits to producers and processors who use organic methods. Analyze potential economic costs, returns and risks of organic production systems; Use environmental valuation tools to quantify externalities of producing food, and compare externalities of producing organic and conventional food; - Analyze price and market structures, including ability of small, medium-, and large-scale growers to access different markets, in order to frame policies that minimize concentration within the industry; and Analyze marketing channels to document how organic food is distributed, what share of the organic food dollar is returned to the farmer, and the implications of large-scale manufacturers entering the organic market. Explore international trade opportunities for organically grown and processed agricultural commodities. Compare compatibility of certification standards used in different parts of the world, with the ultimate goal of harmonization and reciprocity; Undertake marketing studies of international consumer demand for U.S. produced organic goods; and Perform Welfare analyses (quantified gains and losses for producers and consumers) of trade policies affecting international competitiveness, including implementation of the National Organic Program, domestic support programs such as the Conservation Security Act, country of origin labeling, GMO labeling, etc. Determine desirable traits for organic commodities. Examine relationships between nutrients in the soil and nutrients in the food grown on that soil, including long-term soil nutrient and crop nutrient profiles under conventional and organic management; Perform comparisons of nutrient levels between organic and conventional crops and relationship, if any, between taste and nutrient profile; Investigate the role of post-harvest handling and treatment in the maintenance of quality in fresh market organic products; and Determine the reasons for consumer preferences for organic goods. Identify marketing and policy constraints on the expansion of organic agriculture. Analyze opportunities and constraints to organic agriculture resulting from provisions of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002; Investigate specific barriers to markets, such as scale-based regulations that restrict family farm access to processors and/or markets; Study negative lender perception of organic farming and ways to change this; and Analyze regulatory barriers, such as lack of access to Federal farm programs, and developing solutions to these challenges. Conduct advanced on-farm research and development that emphasizes observation of, experimentation with, and innovation for working organic farms, including research relating to production and marketing and to socioeconomic conditions. (Note: Many topics from other goal areas can be conducted on working farms.) Develop rigorous on-farm systems research designs; and Conduct long-term, interdisciplinary systems research.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Integrated Organic Program is particularly interested in proposed projects that emphasize research and outreach that assist farmers and ranchers with whole farm planning and ecosystem integration. Projects should plan to deliver applied production information to producers. Fieldwork for both program areas must be done on certified organic land or on land in transition to organic certification, as appropriate to project goals and objectives. Refer to the USDA National Organic Program (<http://www.ams.usda.gov/nop>) for organic production standards. NIFA has determined that grant funds awarded under this authority may not be used for the renovation or refurbishment of research, education, or extension space; the purchase or installation of fixed equipment in such space; or the planning, repair, rehabilitation, acquisition, or construction of buildings or facilities.

Section 7132 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act amended section 1462 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3310), increasing the limit on recovery of indirect costs from 19 percent to 22 percent of total Federal funds provided under the award. Therefore, the recovery of indirect costs on awards made by NIFA under this program area may not exceed the lesser of the institution's official negotiated indirect cost rate or the equivalent of 22 percent of total Federal funds awarded.

*Special Note on Indirect Costs as in-kind matching contributions. Indirect costs may be claimed under the Federal portion of the award budget or, alternatively, indirect costs may be claimed as a matching contribution (if no indirect costs are requested under the Federal portion of the award budget). However, unless explicitly authorized in the RFA, indirect costs may not be claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution, unless the total claimed on both the Federal portion of the award budget and as a matching contribution does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. An awardee may split the allocation between the Federal and non-Federal portions of the budget only if the total amount of indirect costs charged to the project does not exceed the maximum allowed indirect costs or the institutions negotiated indirect cost rate, whichever is less. For example, if an awardee's indirect costs are capped at 22 percent pursuant to section 1462(a) of NARETPA (7 U.S.C. 3310(a)), the awardee may request 11 percent of the indirect costs on both the Federal portion of the award and as a matching contribution. Or, the awardee may request any similar percentage that, when combined, does not exceed the maximum indirect cost rate of 22 percent.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2011: On-farm research to assist organic producers to meet the demands of new and emerging milk markets, through partnership with 20 organic dairy producers across the Northeast. Investigate the utility of advanced pasture production strategies and flaxseed supplementation to enhance the grazing season while simultaneously enriching milk composition. With guidance provided by a Research and Extension Advisory Board, this project will enhance learning opportunities among other organic dairy producers, researchers, and educators via workshops, field days, fact-sheets, newsletters, and eOrganic webinars.

Carrot improvement for organic agriculture with added grower and consumer value, including development and release of carrot germplasm with improved disease and nematode resistance, weed competitiveness, marketable yield, nutritional value, flavor, and storage quality; improved understanding of cultivar responses to organic production systems and identification of additional desirable traits; informing growers and consumers about the positive environmental impact of organic production systems, and about carrot nutritional quality and flavor; demonstration of techniques and challenges associated with organic carrot seed production; and training undergraduate and graduate students and postdoctoral investigators in critical organic agricultural issues.

Adding value to organic wheat and specialty grain crops, substantially increasing their production and enhancing the diversity and sustainability of organic farms. A team of researchers from several states; the farmer organizations NOFANY, PASA, and NPSAS; the Greenmarket, and farmers, millers, bakers, and chefs are evaluating germplasm, crop management, grain handling methods, milling techniques, and strategies for accessing local and regional markets to improve the adaptability of wheat and specialty grain crops for organic systems and establish desirable grain and baking characteristics, including flavor and nutritional quality.
