Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Applicants may apply for a loan for any year of attendance at a postsecondary institution. The interest rate on new Stafford Loans starting July 1, 2013 is fixed at a rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 2.05 percent (capped at 8.25 percent). As of July 1, 20013, Unsubsidized Stafford loans have a fixed interest rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 3.6 percent (capped at 9.5 percent), and Direct PLUS loans have a fixed interest rate equal to the 10-year Treasury note plus 4.6 percent (capped at 10.5 percent). There are four repayment plans that are available for Direct Loan borrowers: (1) A standard repayment plan with a fixed monthly payment amount over a period of up to 10 years; (2) an extended repayment plan with a fixed monthly payment amount paid over a period of 12 to 30 years, depending on the amount owed; (3) a graduated repayment plan with a monthly payment that will increase generally every 2 years. The repayment period varies from 12 to 30 years, depending on the amount owed; and (4) except for Direct PLUS Loan borrowers, an income contingent repayment (ICR) plan with a monthly payment that is adjusted annually based on the income of the borrower and paid over a extended period of time not to exceed 25 years. Any unpaid balance remaining after 25 years in the ICR plan is forgiven by the Secretary of Education. However, under current IRS rules, the amount written off is considered taxable income to the borrower in the year it is written off. In 2007, a new income-based repayment plan was created for those borrowers meeting a standard of "partial financial hardship" based on their annual repayment amount in relation to their adjusted gross income. Generally a borrower would not have to repay on a monthly basis more than 15 percent of their discretionary income, and any outstanding balance would be forgiven after 25 years of repayment. For new borrowers on or after July 1, 2014, these limits have been lowered to 10 percent of discretionary income and forgiveness after 20 years. Beginning December 21, 2012, the Pay As You Earn plan, an income-sensitive repayment plan, also became an option for eligible borrowers: those who meet the partial financial hardship standard, were a new borrower as of October 1, 2007, and who received a Direct Loan disbursement on or after October 1, 2011. Borrowers in this plan have to repay on a monthly basis no more than 10 percent of their discretionary income, and receive forgiveness on their remaining loan balances after 20 years of repayment. Direct Loan borrowers who work in public service are eligible for forgiveness during a 10-year period while they are repaying their loans. If these borrowers, during repayment, have an outstanding loan balance after 10 years of working in public service, the Federal Government will forgive the remaining balance on behalf of the borrower. Public service may include a variety of public disciplines such as education, health, law, military service and public safety. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Electronic transfer.

In general, State educational agencies (SEAs) must give priority to LEAs with Title I-eligible schools ranked in the bottom five percent of such schools, based on student achievement and lack of progress in improving student achievement, as well as secondary schools with a graduation rate below 60 percent over a number of years. Colley, Ph.D., Professor of Microbiology and Director of the Center for Tropical and Emerging Global Diseases, University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia, was awarded the 2012 $10,000 Distinguished Life Sciences Scientist Award. Dr. Colley is a renowned scientist most notably in the area of tropical medicine and parasitology, with a main focus on the immunology of schistosomiasis, a debilitating, chronic worm disease that affects 240 million people worldwide, in order to control and eliminate it.

Camilla Walck, Ph.D., International Baccalaureate (IB) Biology Teacher, Princess Anne High School, Virginia Beach, Virginia, was awarded the 2012 $5,000 Life Sciences Educator Award.

For the past 17 years, Dr. Walck has worked for the City of Virginia Beach Public Schools. Dedicated to teaching and learning both in and out of the classroom, her passion for biology is contagious - engaging and exciting her students to learn about the scientific world. A National Board Certified teacher, an adjunct professor at Virginia Wesleyan College, and an international evaluator for International Baccalaureate biology, Dr. Walck was selected as one of six teachers to visit Cardiff, England to collaborate on the IB grading process.

Vaishnavi Rao, Junior, Canyon Crest Academy, San Diego, California, was awarded the 2012 $1,000 Life Sciences Student Award. Vaishnavi's passion and love for science, especially for neuroscience and the brain, began in elementary school. Most recently, her pioneering research on neurotransmitter plasticity at the University of California, San Diego, has been recognized as having far-reaching applicability in potential therapies targeting neurological disorders such as stroke, Alzheimer's disease, epilepsy and Parkinson's disease. Her work has received tremendous recognition at local, State as well as International (Intel ISEF) Science Fairs. Recently, she also won the San Diego Brain Bee 2012 and placed 6th overall at the USA National Brain Bee competitions held in Baltimore, Maryland.

Justin Roth, Sophomore, West Branch High School, West Branch, Iowa, was awarded the 2012 $1,000 Life Sciences Student Award. Taking accelerated math and science classes beginning in elementary school, Justin joined an extra-curricular science club in middle school. As a result of the science club projects he has been involved in, three ordinances have been introduced in the town of West Branch, three bills have been introduced to the Iowa State Legislature (with one being passed), and West Branch High School has started saving $10,000 annually on its energy costs, brought about by his eighth grade science club team's research into energy cost savings brought about by replacing high-cost, low efficiency T12 fluorescent bulbs to T8 lighting. Justin has also worked with his church to help establish a community clothes pantry to enable those in need to receive clothes and school supplies at no cost to them. He also volunteers in packaging many shipments of food to Africa and Haiti through Kids Against Hunger. In addition, Justin enjoys participating in his high school's extra-curricular activities. He plays football and wrestles and plays trombone in the marching, concert, jazz, and show choir bands. Fiscal Year 2013: This program was deferred for FY 2013. Fiscal Year 2012: In 2012, the Third Annual Agriscience Awards, sponsored by the public-private partnership of the Christopher Columbus Fellowship Foundation, a Federal government agency, and the American Farm Bureau Federation were presented on July 10, in Washington, D.C. The Awards are intended to recognize, through four monetary awards, a scientist; one high school educator; and two current high school students who are judged to exemplify excellence in the field of agriscience and to highlight the importance of agriculture in the 21st century. The 2012 Agriscience Awards recipients are:

Andrew Sharpley, Ph.D., Professor in the Department of Crop, Soil and Environmental Sciences, Division of Agriculture, University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, AR, was awarded the $10,000 Distinguished Agriscience Scientist Award. Dr. Sharpley's research investigates the fate of phosphorus in soil-plant-water systems in relation to soil productivity and the effects of agricultural management on water quality. He also evaluates the role of stream and river sediments in modifying phosphorus transport and response of receiving lakes and reservoirs. He developed decision-making tools for agricultural field staff to identify sensitive areas of the landscape and to target management alternatives and remedial measures that have reduced the risk of nutrient loss from farms. Dr. Sharpley works closely with producers, farmers and action agencies, stressing the dissemination and application of his research findings.

Matthew B. Eddy, Agriscience Educator and FFA Advisor, Southeast Polk High School, Pleasant Hill, IA, was awarded a $5,000 Agriscience Educator Award. Mr. Eddy has taught agriculture education for 13 years, teaching at Southeast Polk for the past eight years. Participating in the inaugural CASE curriculum institute in 2009, he earned the level of Master Teacher in 2012. Matthew's agriculture program emphasizes STEM concepts in agriculture, a rigorous curriculum that has been recognized on the State and national level. He was recently recognized as having the Iowa Outstanding High School Agriculture Education program and as a finalist for the National FFA Agriscience Teacher Award.

Michelle Chin, Junior, West Shore Jr./Sr. High School, Melbourne, FL, was awarded a $1,000 Agriscience Student Award. Michelle's science research concentrates on genetic engineering and biotechnology using organic and transgenic crops. Under the supervision of Dr. Sixue Chen at the University of Florida, she worked on her project that uses plants to phytoremediate selenium contaminants, an effective, inexpensive and non-intrusive means of in situ reduction and removal of environmental contaminants. She hopes her research will aid worldwide efforts to alleviate chemical run-off and environmental pollution. In 2011, Michelle won the Green Connection scholarship, sponsored by the French government. Her two week trip to France to study environmental protection fostered her passion for protecting the environment, which led her to create a website to promote sustainability. She was recently selected as one of the 2012 Yings Scholars in the Dr. Nelson Ying Science Competition, which encourages students to help humanity through science research.

Jill Dolowich, Senior, Jericho High School, Jericho, NY, was awarded a $1,000 Agriscience Student Award. Jill has developed a strong interest in environmentalism and conservation through her extensive entomology research at both Yale University and Michigan State University. She was interested in exploring honeybee populations, and ultimately her goal was to spread the word about the environmental impact of declining insect populations. Jill has been involved in many activities throughout high school. Her passion for writing about scientific and environmental news led to her role as New York Correspondent for Mother Nature Network. She also authored an article entitled, "Flight of the Honeybees," in the Johns Hopkins University national online publication (Cogito.org). In the fall, Jill will attend Yale University, where she plans to major in Biology and Environmental Studies. Fiscal Year 2013: Michael P. Doyle, Ph.D. - Regents Professor and Director, Center for Food Safety, University of Georgia, Griffin, GA, was awarded the 2013 $10,000 Distinguished Agriscience Scientist Award. Dr. Doyle's research focuses on food safety and security and works closely with the food industry, government agencies and consumer groups on issues related to the microbiological safety of foods. He has received several awards for his research accomplishments, including the Nicholas Appert Award of the Institute of Food Technologists, the Public Health Honor Award of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the Scientific Achievement Award of the American Meat Institute Foundation. He also serves on food safety committees of many scientific organizations and has served as a scientific advisor to many groups, including the World Health Organization, the Institute of Medicine, the National Academy of Science-National Research Council, the International Life Sciences Institute-North America, the Food and Drug Administration, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Defense, and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Sara Clark, Ph.D. - Agriscience Educator, Sonorville High School, Calhoun, GA, was awarded the 2013 $5,000 Agriscience Educator Award. Dr. Clark has taught agricultural education for over 20 years and motivates secondary school students to develop their personal interest from the many fields of agriscience. She provides opportunities and facilitates the learning process by providing an environment that encourages students to explore. Sonorville High Schools Agriscience student body has won many State and national FFA CDEs through the implementation of inquiry-based learning, teaching others, and self-directed learning. Sara has taught at Sonorville for six years and was recognized as Sonorvilles Teacher of the Year, Outstanding Agricultural Instructor for Georgia, National FFA Alumni Instructor for Georgia, and a finalist for the National FFA Agriscience Teacher Award. She completed the National Agriscience Teacher Ambassadors program last year and is National Board certified.

Jillian Drake, Senior, Fallbrook Union High School, Fallbrook, CA, was awarded a 2013 $1,000 Agriscience Student Award. Jillians agriscience research has concentrated on the plant pathogen Candidatus Liberibacter which causes severe diseases in citrus and solanaceous crops, such as tomato, potato and pepper. She has worked at the USDA Agricultural Research Services National Clonal Germplasm Repository for Citrus & Dates in Riverside, CA. Jillian completed multi-year projects researching new methods of disease detection and the role of bacteriophage in disease expression for this pathogen. As this bacterium is non-culturable, it requires DNA analysis for its detection, and through her research Jillian was able to validate a new method of DNA extraction of the psyllid vector which was more efficient and less costly, while maintaining sensitivity. Additionally, Jillian was able to determine that lytic bacteriophage appears to increase disease virulence within plants infected with this pathogen. Jillian plans to continue her research at the USDA-ARS laboratory on this pathogen. Jillian has received numerous awards for her agriscience research, including the California Star in Agriscience Award, the FFA California State overall best individual project multiple times, as well as the California State proficiency in both Agriscience Research Plant Division and Integrated Systems.

Kellie Einck, Junior, South O'Brien High School, Paullina, IA, was awarded a 2013 $1,000 Agriscience Student Award. Kellie's love of science inspired her to concentrate her research on alternative energy fuels. During an animal science class, she noticed a correlation between a ruminant animal's digestion process through its four stomachs and ethanol fermentation. After that, she constructed an artificial rumen and hopes to improve efficiency in ethanol production through perfecting her research using bacteria from bovine rumen. Currently, Kellie is enrolled at Northwest Iowa Community College in Diesel Technology while maintaining a 3.98 GPA at South OBrien High School. She presented her science research at the National FFA Agriscience Fair twice, earning 4th and 6th place. At the International Sustainable Worlds science fair in Houston, she received Honorable Mention, and in 2012 she won DuPont Pioneers Women of Innovation scholarship. Fiscal Year 2014: No Current Data Available

OBJECTIVES:

The Office for Civil Rights (OCR) in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) promotes and ensures that people have equal access to and the opportunity to participate in and receive services from all HHS-funded programs without facing unlawful discrimination, and that the privacy of their health information is protected. OCR protects the civil rights of all individuals who are subject to discrimination in health and human services programs, and protects the health information privacy rights of consumers, and ensures that electronic protected health information is safeguarded against unauthorized use of disclosure through investigations, voluntary dispute resolution, enforcement, technical assistance, policy development and information services.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

ADVISORY SERVICES AND COUNSELING; INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Office for Civil Rights (OCR) in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is responsible for promoting and ensuring that people have equal access to and the opportunity to participate in and receive services from all HHS-funded programs without facing unlawful discrimination, that the privacy of their health information is protected, and that electronic protected health information is safeguarded against unauthorized use or disclosure. These HHS funded programs are provided through state agencies, nursing homes, skilled nursing facilities, medical laboratories, hospitals, day care centers, social service agencies and other providers. Any person who believes that an individual has been discriminated against in the provision of these services because of race, color, national origin, disability, age, sex or religion, may file a complaint with OCR. An individual who believes that discrimination on the basis of disability has occurred in a health or social services program of a state or local government entity may file a complaint with OCR under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, regardless of whether the entity receives Federal funds. Individuals may also file complaints of denials of health care for reasons other than the need and availability of services, by recipients of Hill-Burton grants and loans. In addition, a person may file a complaint under the Multiethnic Placement Act of 1994, as amended by Section 1808 of the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996, alleging that an adoption or foster care agency or entity funded by HHS discriminatorily relied on a parents or child's race, color, or national origin in making a placement decision. OCR will investigate complaints and take steps to ensure compliance with applicable civil rights laws.

OCR also enforces the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) Privacy Rule and Security Rule as well as the HITECH Breach Notification Rule and the confidentiality provisions of the Patient Safety and Quality Improvement Act (PSQIA) of 2005. OCR's activities under the Privacy, Security and Breach Notification Rules include enforcement actions, including conducting investigations, taking compliance actions, and making penalty determinations, and conducting public education, technical assistance and other outreach activities: to health care providers, health care clearinghouses, health plans, and business associates of covered entities to ensure that they understand their responsibilities under the Rules; to other entities that may be impacted by the Rules, including Federal, State and local government agencies, and researchers; and to consumers, to inform them of their rights under the Privacy Rule. Anyone who believes that a person, agency or organization covered under the HIPAA Privacy and Security Rules ("a covered entity") has violated the Privacy and/or Security Rules may file a complaint with OCR. In addition, the Breach Notification Rule requires HIPAA covered entities to promptly notify affected individuals of a breach, as well as the HHS Secretary and the media in cases where a breach affects more than 500 individuals; OCR is required to publish a list of entities that incur large breaches. Where a breach of unsecured protected health information occurs at or by a business associate, the business associate must notify the covered entity following the discovery of the breach. Additionally, the HITECH Act now makes business associates accountable for protecting the privacy and security of protected health information and directly liable for criminal and civil penalties for violations of HIPAA and Security Rules.

OCR's activities under PSQIA include administering an enforcement program regarding the confidentiality protections, including conducting investigations, taking compliance actions, making penalty determinations, and interpreting standards for confidentiality protections and the enforcement program for guidance and technical assistance to Patient Safety Organizations (PSOs), providers and public information.

Applicant Eligibility:

Anyone who believes he or she has been discriminated against in the manner outlined, seeks information concerning civil rights, and recipients of Federal financial assistance who desire technical assistance and information for the purpose of assuring their compliance with nondiscrimination laws. Regarding the HIPAA Privacy and Security Rules, anyone who believes that the Privacy and/or Security Rules have been violated in the manner outlined or who seeks information about these Rules; consumers that need to know their rights under the Privacy Rule; and entities that need technical assistance and information for the purpose of assuring compliance with the Privacy and Security Rules.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Individuals subject to discrimination and recipients who require technical assistance and information. Regarding the HIPAA Privacy Rule, individuals subject to violation of their health information privacy, covered entities, and others needing or seeking technical assistance and information concerning the Rule.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. Complaints of discrimination and alleged violations of the HIPAA Privacy and Security Rules may be filed, and technical assistance information and public education may be requested, at the Headquarters and Regional Office locations of the Office for Civil Rights.

Award Procedure:

None.

Deadlines:

Not Applicable.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

A complaint must be filed not later than 180 days of the alleged discrimination, unless the time for filing is waived for good cause. Complaints under the Privacy and/or Security Rules must be filed within 180 days of the date when the complainant knew, or should have known, that the act or omission complained of occurred, unless the time limit is waived for good cause. Complaint processing time varies considerably based on the type of complaint, the complexity of the issues, and current OCR caseload.

Appeals:

Individuals can appeal a civil rights discrimination complaint determination in some instances by submitting, in writing, a request for reconsideration to the Director, Office for Civil Rights. OCR imposes civil money penalties (CMPs) on covered entities and their business associates found to be in violation of the HIPAA Privacy, Security and/or Breach Notification Rules. If CMPs are imposed, the covered entity, or any applicable business associates, may request a hearing in which an HHS administrative law judge (ALJ) decides if the CMPs are supported by the evidence in the case. OCR is required to present the evidence to support the imposition of CMPs to the ALJ. The covered entity and/or business associate(s) may also then appeal the ALJ's decision to the HHS Departmental Appeals Board (DAB) and ultimately to the U.S. Courts of Appeal.

93.007 PUBLIC AWARENESS CAMPAIGNS ON EMBRYO ADOPTION

(Embryo)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Office of the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized by Section 1704 of the Public Health Service Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 300u-3. , 42 U.S.C 300u-3.

OBJECTIVES:

To fund public awareness campaigns on embryo adoption. The intent is to fund at least one project in each of three distinct categories (1) training for professionals to equip them with the specific knowledge and skills to support the unique needs of embryo donors; (2) regional/local strategies for informing and educating professional audiences; and (3) the use of new media with the goal of increasing public awareness regarding embryo donation and/or adoption. Entities may apply for more than one category; however, a separate application is required for each category identified in this announcement. Applicants should demonstrate experience with embryo donation and/or adoption programs that conform to professionally recognized standards governing embryo donation and/or adoption and other applicable Federal or State requirements. For the purposes of this announcement, embryo donation and/or adoption is defined as the donation of frozen embryo(s) from one party to a recipient who wishes to bear and raise a child or children.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The increasing success of assisted reproductive technologies (ART) has resulted in a situation in which an infertile couple typically creates several embryos through in-vitro fertilization (IVF). During IVF treatments, couples may produce many embryos in an attempt to become pregnant with several being cryopreserved (frozen) for future use. If a couple becomes pregnant without using all of the stored embryos, they may choose to release the remaining unused embryos for donation and adoption allowing other infertile couples the experience of pregnancy and birth. Embryo donation and/or adoption is a relatively new process in which individuals who have extra frozen embryos agree to release the embryos for transfer to the uterus of another woman, either known or anonymous to the donor(s) for the purpose of the recipient(s) attempting to bear a child and be that child's parent.

Applicant Eligibility:

Eligible applicants include public agencies, nonprofit organizations, and for-profit organizations. Eligibility to compete for this announcement is limited to particular applicant organizations. Only agencies and organizations, not individuals, are eligible to apply. One agency must be identified as the applicant organization and will have legal responsibility for the project. Additional agencies and organizations can be included as co-participants, subgrantees, subcontractors, or collaborators if they will assist in providing expertise and in helping to meet the needs of the recipients. Faith-based and community-based organizations meeting the eligibility requirements may apply, or they may be included as co-participants, subgrantees, subcontractors, or collaborators if they will assist in providing expertise and in helping to meet the needs of recipients. Eligibility is limited to organizations that can demonstrate previous experience with embryo adoption and are knowledgeable in all elements of the process of embryo adoption.

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Intermediary organizations use the CCF funds to provide two services within their communities: 1) Training assistance to faith-based and community organizations; and 2) Financial support through sub-awards to some subset of the faith-based and community organizations in their communities. Technical assistance activities funded under CCF are to be conducted at no cost to interested faith-based and community organizations. Applicants must have demonstrated experience in the delivery of capacity-building assistance to smaller organizations in several of the following areas: strategic planning, financial management, board development, fund development, and outcome measurement. Technical assistance should be provided on a long-term, on-going basis to smaller organizations. The program goals are further accomplished through the issuance of sub-awards by the funded intermediary organizations to a diverse set of small faith-based and community organizations that seek to increase program and organizational effectiveness for a 12-month period. Sub-award recipients must adhere to the following: sub-award recipients must be chosen from fair and open competitive process; sub-award recipients must not be pre-selected; the awarding process must be fair and open competition and include outreach to both faith-based and community organizations; intermediary organizations must provide on-going technical assistance and capacity-building support to the organizations to which they issue sub-awards; and the criteria for selection must not include consideration of the religious nature of the program it offers. Priority for sub-awards is given to organizations that historically have not received grants from the Federal government. Intermediaries must not require sub-award applicants to provide matching funds even if the applicants offer matching funds in their applications. Intermediaries must not require sub-award applicants to have 501 (c) (3) status or to identify a sponsoring organization with 501 (c) (3) status; Organizations that partner with an intermediary to deliver technical assistance or provide a cost-sharing fund for the proposed project are not to be eligible for sub-awards, unless approved by the Administration for Children and Families; Sub-awards should not be used to assist organizations in differing stages of development. Sub-awards may also be provided to promising organizations to expand the reach of existing programs; Sub-awards must not be used to provide direct services, but rather improve the sub-awardee's efficiency and capacity. The Office of Community Services (OCS) will not fund any project, where the role of the applicant is primarily to serve as a conduit for funds to organizations other than the applicant. The applicant must have a substantive role in the implementation of the project for which funding is requested. This prohibition does not bar the making of sub-grants or sub-contracting for specific services or activities needed to conduct the project. CCF monies shall not be used to support inherently religious practices such as religious instruction, worship, or proselytization. Grant or sub-award recipients, therefore, may not and will not be selected based on religious criteria. Neutral, non-religious criteria that neither favor nor disfavor religion must be employed in a selection of a grantee and sub-award recipients.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Fiscal Year 2012: Activity 1: Provide Training and Marketing Assistance on the Model Law Revision The 2011 revisions to the Model State Vital Statistics Act and Regulations drafted in May 2011 were not approved for dissemination by the Department of Health and Human Services or released for public comment. Because no official release occurred, we were unable to provide training and marketing assistance to the NAPHSIS membership. Activity 2: Continue Re-engineering Technical Assistance to Jurisdictions The technical assistance program to help jurisdictions re-engineering and revise continued during Year 5 with a focus on the jurisdictions most challenged to meet the December 2013 deadline for VSCP reporting under 2003 standards. The jurisdictions that became our focus of re-engineering support in year 5 required the upgrading or full replacement of their current vital record technology in order to achieve compliance, and often were challenged by a complexity of issues, including funding, staffing and organizational obstacles. For those territorial offices still using paper processing, the complexity of issues to be addressed was even greater. Still, we made significant progress in assisting those jurisdictions that requested support:

We provided on site and remote support to North Carolina through an extensive reorganization and helped them resolve contract and performance issues with their EBRs. We supported and continue to support an extensive project re-scoping to fix a dysfunctional EBRs that was causing a significant backlog of records for special registrations. NAPHSIS served as intermediary to help North Carolina resolve outstanding contracting issues with their former EBRs vendor so that current source code could be delivered to an internal IT team tasked with repairing and upgrading the EBRs. NAPHSIS assisted North Carolina in the identification of additional funding sources to complete the EBRs re-engineering program. We also helped North Carolina assess their remaining options for acquiring EDR and EFDR systems after the cancellation of the vendor contract, including a test and evaluation of the STEVE-ER death and fetal death modules.

With NAPHSIS assistance over many years, New Jersey finally released its long-delayed RFP for a new birth system. The project was partially funded by an MCH grant from HRSA that had been no-cost extended several times. With a representative from HRSA, we made a site visit to New Jersey and were able to secure the extension of funding with the condition that New Jersey announce an award by June 30, 2012.

We traveled to Rhode Island to assist in strategizing for a major upgrade of their EBRs to the 2003 standard, planned with HRSA funding. When some of that funding was lost, we helped Rhode Island look at alternatives and assess whether the STEVE-ER modules would meet their business process as an intermediate solution. Once additional funding sources for Rhode Island were identified, we helped them strategize and plan their proposed EBRs upgrade.

At Arizonas request, we conducted an on-site review of their new EBRs front-end being developed in-house and assessed its level of compliance with 2003 birth item standards. We attended planning and strategy sessions in person and by phone, and provided guidance on design and functional specifications. We met with testing team members to discuss how best to test 2003 standards using the NCHS test deck. We met with technical team members to discuss phase II enhancements to the system (post-January 2013) and integration points with other public health programs.

We traveled to the U.S. Virgin Islands for phase II of the planned implementation and realignment of business processes to support automation of the vital record office. We completed the local installation of STEVE and STEVE-ER but were unable to connect to the hosted central module until USVI acquired their security certification (Note: this step has not been completed).

However, using the training site for STEVE-ER, we were able to provide orientation and training at birthing facilities on St. Thomas and St. Croix. We also visited the vital record offices on both islands to train staff and discuss changes to business practices that will result from the use of automated processing. We conducted detailed planning with the territorial registrar and officials from the Department of Health for the future implementation and rollout of EVVE, STEVE and STEVE-ER.

We kept in contact with additional jurisdictions on a variety of re-engineering or standards compliance issues and provided assistance remotely as needed. This included Arkansas, Alabama, Maine, Connecticut, New York State, and Alaska.

NAPHSIS and our vendor, SMS, provided intensive remote support to CNMI as they implemented the STEVE-ER Birth module in January 2012 and death and fetal death modules during the next few months. We have continued to provide post-implementation training and support along with troubleshooting issues that arise.

We promoted and supported Guams STEVE-ER deployment process and transition to the 2003 certificates (initially on paper) which had been delayed many times due to internal issues not related to NAPHSIS. Throughout Year 5, we continued to promote compliance with the 2003 standards and re-engineering best practices at regional meetings and national teleconferences. NAPHSIS has continued to maintain national maps of re-engineering activity and has provided timely updates to NCHS as well as maintaining current maps on our website.

Activity 3: Maintain and Enhance Re-engineering Survey Data In Year 5, we continued to maintain the re-engineering survey data and associated maps after verifying the information with the jurisdictions. We reorganized the information to collect additional items requested by NCHS and have We have provided updated maps to the NCHS Project Officer and have posted them periodically on the NAPHSIS website.

Activity 4: Provide Business Process Reviews for Challenged Jurisdictions We continued throughout Year 5 to promote the availability of technical assistance through presentations by the Executive Director at regional and annual meetings and frequent mentions in the Executive Director Newsletter. Garland Land and Chuck Hardester continued to serve as project consultants throughout Year 5, with Chuck maintaining a focus on security issues. We also enlisted the services of Bill Bolton, former state registrar in New Hampshire and NAPHSIS consultant, and of Linda Caniglia, former state registrar in Pennsylvania.

The process for arranging technical assistance support was slightly modified in Year 5 to provide for greater background on issues prior to each visit. The Executive Director continued to receive and review applications for technical assistance from jurisdictions. She conducted a follow up call with each applicant to better understand what assistance they were requesting in order to assign the best team for the site visit. Prior to each visit, another call was held with the consulting team and the registrar to understand the background and issues. The actual time on site was therefore able to be reduced to a 2-3 day period, which was less of a burden to the jurisdiction. At the conclusion of each site visit, a report of findings and recommendations was drafted by the consulting team and thoroughly reviewed with NAPHSIS and with the jurisdictions. A copy of each final report was provided to the NCHS Project Officer.

In January 2012, Garland and Chuck conducted a technical assistance site visit to Arkansas and provided a report of recommendations to the newly appointed registrar, Patricia Edwards. Ms. Edwards had requested a full security assessment and assistance with imaging, reporting and staffing issues. Arkansas has also been delayed in the rollout of their EDRS and requested our advice in completing that process and moving forward with EBRs development. NAPHSIS made numerous recommendations regarding physical and data security and security training for staff. We also provided suggestions for improving the efficiency of customer service and amendments processing. However, shortly after this visit, Ms. Edwards resigned from her position and Paul Johnson was appointed acting registrar until a new search could be conducted. Arkansas was appreciative of the report but cautioned that implementation of any major recommendations would be postponed until this vacancy could be resolved.

In August, we conducted two technical assistance site visits: Garland and Chuck visited Nevada while Bill Bolton and Linda Caniglia made a visit to South Dakota. The Nevada site visit focused on operational inefficiencies in registration and issuance; VSCP reporting timeliness; and overall security concerns. Our findings focused on revisiting outstanding issues with the states vital record system that will result in improvements to operational and reporting timeliness. We also identified serious accountability issues that could result in vital record fraud. However, we noted that major progress has been made by Nevada since our previous site visits and noted the intentions of the registrar and state center director to implement this next series of steps.

Activity 5: Facilitate Adoption of Security and Best Practice Guidelines and Usage of FEWS Year 5 saw the completion of the NAPHSIS Security Guidelines Manual with the addition of the last chapter on Preservation of Vital Records. All chapters of the document have now been posted on the NAPHSIS website. The Standards Committee has adopted twenty-seven key security measures as part of the NAPHSIS Vital Statistics Standards promoted for use by jurisdictions to improve their overall data quality and timeliness. Participation in the NASPO Identity Proofing project continued until the end of the budget period, supported by NAPHSIS consultant Garland Land. A draft Identity standard was developed by the subcommittee that Garland Land serves on. The draft standard was reviewed by the full NASPO committee in January 2012. Several suggestions were made to improve the standards. The authoring committee has been working on a revised draft to incorporate the suggestions made by the full committee.

In addition to the work of the NASPO project, NAPHSIS has been developing criteria for a Birth Trust Framework based on the NAPHSIS Security Guidelines. The NAPHSIS Security Committee reviewed and approved the Trust Framework Criteria delivered in our mid-year report to NCHS. A Conformance Assessment Procedures document defining a point system to be used by jurisdictions to assess their own level of security compliance was developed and approved by the Security Committee. The final document was presented at the 2012 annual meeting.

The Fraud Early Warning System (FEWS) demonstration period was concluded during Year 5 after 12 jurisdictions completed testing of the system and moved the system into production. However, it was decided by AAMVA that the FEWS project would not be continued at this time. With the discontinuation of FEWS, the Security Committee has drafted a concept for a proposed fraud alert system that is currently under review.

Activity 6: Support Implementation of the STEVE System NAPHSIS continued throughout Year 5 to promote and support the rollout of the State and Territorial Exchange of Vital Events (STEVE) System nationally. Leesa Shem-Tov continued as the STEVE project manager and NAPHSIS consultant Bill Bolton as the STEVE Implementation Manager throughout Year 5.

The NAPHSIS Board of Directors, based on the recommendation of the IJE Committee, approved the extension of the current IJE Agreement through the end of 2013, to coincide with the deadline for all jurisdictions to report VSCP data to NCHS through STEVE. The current IJE Agreement was initially set to expire on December 31, 2012. Leesa Shem-Tov provided staff support to the IJE Committee and to the subcommittee charged with drafting a revised IJE Agreement. The draft revision will be presented to the membership at the 2013 annual meeting.

In July, the NAPHSIS Board of Directors made the STEVE subcommittee of the IJE Committee, which has served as the steering committee for STEVE since its inception, into a full committee. Paul Johnson (AR), who had served on the STEVE subcommittee since the beginning, assumed the chairmanship of the STEVE Committee. Mark Miller continued to serve as chairman of the IJE Committee and member of the STEVE Committee. The STEVE Committee provided invaluable assistance during Year 5 for the planning, organization and conduct of the process for getting trading partners certified to exchange with NCHS, and provided valuable input on issues of file naming, file size limitations, modifications to file layouts, data routing and other types of troubleshooting that needed to be addressed in order to achieve operational connectivity with NCHS. We also continued to host regular meetings of the STEVE User Group to keep trading partners up to date about issues, activities and progress nationally.

By the end of Year 5, STEVE installations had been completed in 26 states and two territories, and installations in two additional territories had been partially completed (installed on local server but not connected to the STEVE exchange network). Of these 30 jurisdictions, 21 were actively exchanging as of August 31, 2012. A map of STEVE installations showing the IJE file layouts being exchanged is found in Appendix C. These numbers were far below the levels initially expected, both in the number of implementations and extent of the exchange of all file types. Only three jurisdictions reported exchanging natality, mortality, roster and fetal death files with other jurisdictions. We attribute the slower than expected pace of implementation to three factors. The deadline set by NCHS for reporting VSCP data via STEVE, January 1, 2014, was still more than a year away. Second, establishing connectivity with NCHS was still underway during Year 5 but not completed. Third, budgetary and staffing reductions experienced nationwide in the last several years caused have jurisdictions to delay planning and preparation for STEVE.

We have only one jurisdiction (Ohio) fully using the STEVE mailbox capability for its public health programs in the way it was envisioned, although many more jurisdictions had told us in a survey last year that they planned to set up mailboxes. But this has not come to fruition, in spite of our active promotion and training on mailbox use. NAPHSIS did sponsor a webinar on the use of mailboxes in early 2012 and held a roundtable at the 2012 annual meeting that provided demonstrations and training on mailbox use. We continued to promote mailbox use and query trading partners about progress at bi-monthly meetings of the STEVE User Group.

We made significant progress establishing connectivity with NCHS during Year 5. In December 2011, a point-to-point node was re-established by the PHINMS team at CDC and a test of physical interconnectivity was successfully conducted. NCHS completed development of middleware to process IJE birth, death and fetal death files in IJE file layout that could be processed by reNVSS.

The birth translator was completed in mid-2012 and testing of the IJE natality file was conducted by Nebraska. Similar middleware for death and fetal death was completed by the end of this budget period and testing was begun. Numerous issues of medium to large significance were discovered during this process. Some of the issues were resolved by adjusting the IJE file layouts, and some workarounds needed to be developed in the middleware and in STEVE. NCHS developed and provided to STEVE users a guide to file naming and jointly with NCHS, we developed a process for completing a test and certification of each jurisdiction's ability to report VSCP data to NCHS via STEVE. A special meeting of the STEVE Committee was planned and a presentation developed to instruct users on the NCHS certification process.

Activity 7: Improve the Timeliness of Data Reporting to NCHS During new registrar orientations and when providing technical assistance, we offer feedback to the jurisdiction on the timeliness of its data reporting to the NCHS. As needed, we helped the jurisdiction identify key bottlenecks to timely submission of data, pointing out options for corrective action. We also maintain timeliness flowcharts on the NAPHSIS website and refer to them as needed. We continue to educate jurisdictions at regional and annual meetings about the timeliness requirements associated with the new Vital Statistics Cooperative Program (VSCP) contract requirements and their operational impact on jurisdictional timeliness performance.

Activity 8: Assess Jurisdictional Performance Twelve jurisdictions that piloted the 98 NAPHSIS comprehensive vital statistics performance standards were asked to present their experiences at the regional meetings in the fall of 2011. The Standards Committee revised and finalized the standards during Year 5 based upon the comments that were received from pilots and generally from the membership. These standards were approved for self-assessment purposes by the membership at the 2012 NAPHSIS Annual Meeting in Minneapolis. A chart containing the 98 standards was previously delivered to the NCHS Project Officer and is currently posted on the NAPHSIS website. The standards include targets for self-assessment across ten functional areas:

1. Registration
2. Security
3. Issuance
4. Data Collection/Quality Assurance
5. Data Transmission
6. Data Analysis and Dissemination
7. Staff Supervision and Training
8. Training of Others Associated with Vital Records
9. Data and Record Preservation
10. Policies and Procedures

We promoted the use of the standards for internal self-assessment of a jurisdictions performance through newsletters, presentations at NAPHSIS meetings and webinars. We plan to collect aggregate data from jurisdictions every 2 to 3 years going forward on some of the standards in order to assess the levels of national conformance to the standards, and allow jurisdictions to compare themselves with other jurisdictions. The use of these specific performance standards is not necessarily intended as the basis for an accreditation program, but the experience of the jurisdictions in collecting and responding to this information may be useful in the development of accreditation requirements, should the NAPHSIS Board and membership decide it wants to pursue such efforts in the future.

Activity 9: Provide Vital Records Training - NAPHSIS finalized its inventory of web-based training resources available to the vital records offices, which now includes birth clerk training materials requested from jurisdictions during Year 5. NAPHSIS continued to promote awareness of the training resources on the website through Executive Director presentations at the regional meetings, and a successful training roundtable was again held at the 2012 annual meeting.

Contents of the NAPHSIS training library currently include:

Power point presentations from training webinars and distance learning events sponsored by NAPHSIS and NCHS

Reference libraries of jurisdictional training materials for data providers of birth and death records

Complementary training language on birth and death records representing best training practices gleaned from jurisdictional materials

Sample vital record worksheets, certifications, informational notices and other documents

A complete vital record registrar orientation package containing an introduction to organizations, programs, practices and security guidelines and other helpful information for the new registrar.

Statistical standards, measures developed by NAPHSIS for adoption by jurisdictions

Sample jurisdictional statistical reports

A listing of vital and health statistics courses offered to the public health community by external sources

We also continued our support of the Vital Statistics Records and Their Administration training class offered by NCHS in Year 5 through coordination, logistical support, and the attendance of Colorado registrar and trainer Ron Hyman at the 2012 session.

Activity 10: New Registrar Training Program The orientation program for new state registrars during Year 5 was met with very little demand. We received a request for a new registrar orientation in Arkansas that was completed in early December by Executive Director Patricia Potrzebowski. There were no additional orientations conducted under this Cooperative Agreement during the reporting period.

However, to assure the wider accessibility of the materials we had been presenting during new registrar orientation, we created a complete reference library of training and orientation materials that has been enhanced and posted in the members-only section of our website (under training resources). The Vital Record Registrar Orientation library includes information on the following:

Introduction to the roles and missions of NCHS and NAPHSIS and the National Vital Statistics System (NVSS)

Important programs such as VSCP, NDI, SSA death reporting, EAB and EVVE which are sources of revenue inter-jurisdictional exchange practices, the IJE Agreement and the STEVE System

Security guidelines, confidentiality and data release

Best practice guidelines

Training for staff and data providers

Data analysis

We have promoted use of the registrar orientation library to the NAPHSIS membership through presentations, announcements and newsletters for new and existing registrars alike. We continue to be available to address any questions and issues brought to us by the registrar community.

Activity 11: Assist NCHS in the Development of HL7 Standards for Electronic Vital Record Transmission In October 2011, NAPHSIS instituted an e-Health Committee to report recommendations to the NAPHSIS Board on electronic data exchange involving vital record data and systems. Many members of the e-Health Committee have also served on the NCHS Data Standards Technical Team since its inception. Through the end of Year 5, the e-Health Committee provided a forum for reviewing and commenting on various program-based documents of the Office of the National Coordinator (ONC) and the Centers for Medicare and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). These included NAPHSIS comments on advance notice documents and approved standards for Phase II Meaningful Use as well as HL7 documentation reviewed by the NCHS Standards Committee:

ONC Advance Notice of Proposed Rule Making (ANPRM) on Metadata Standards to Support Nationwide Electronic Health Information Exchange (9/21/2011)

IHE Notification of Birth (NOB) the Early Hearing Detection and Intervention Program (EHDI) (9/29/2011)

IHE Newborn Admission Notification Interface (NANI) comments on proposed use case (10/7/2011)

Proposed Data Values 2012 IHE Connectathon for vendor interoperability testing scenarios for (11/9/2011)

User Story Narrative: Birth and Fetal Death Registration (11/17/2011)

NAPHSIS also participated in the review of additional comments by the greater public health community on the EHR-Vital Record Functional Profile (VRFP) posted last year to the HL7 documentation suite and is routinely asked to review vital record content of related documents, such as:

HL7 V2.5.1 Vital Records Birth and Fetal Death Reporting Implementation Guide (DSTU) (10/4/2011 12/31/2011)

IHE Birth and Fetal Death Reporting (BFDR) Implementers Work Group (12/2011)

At the 2012 annual meeting in Minneapolis, we sponsored a demonstration of the Interoperability Showcase originally presented by NCHS at the 2012 HIMSS meeting in Las Vegas. This demonstration of potential hospital EHR connectivity with state vital record systems, commonly referred to as the Connectathon, was attended by over 80 NAPHSIS members who were given group tours of the connection stations by representatives from NCHS. This offering was so popular that we plan to repeat the demonstration at the 2013 meeting. Invitations to participate have gone out to our vital record vendor community for the 2013 event.

Activity 12: Support Jurisdictional Response to Draft Birth Certificate Regulations There was no activity on this task because regulatory approval for the Intelligence Reform Act was never received by HHS and OMB. [Note: The Notice of Proposed Rule Making (NPRM) was scheduled by OMB to be published in the Federal Register in September 2012, but that did not occur.]

Activity 13: Support NCHS International Outreach NAPHSIS received permission to continue this activity using funding not expended during Year 4. A separate final report on the international outreach activity, and a separate accounting of funds will be provided to NCHS. Fiscal Year 2013: Activity 1: Assure Compliance with National Standards Status: Ongoing

NAPHSIS continues to support and promote the use of the 2003 standard certificates in all communications and site visits with its jurisdictional and vendor members. Patricia Potrzebowski promoted the 2003 certificates in all regional meetings in the fall of 2012 and reminded all jurisdictions that they must have implemented the 2003 revisions on or before January 1, 2014 in order to be compliant with Vital Statistics Cooperative Program (VSCP) contract requirements.

Currently, 44 jurisdictions (77%) have implemented the 2003 standard certificate of Birth and 45 (79%) have implemented the 2003 standard certificate of Death. 37 jurisdictions (65%) have implemented the 2003 standard certificate of Fetal Death.

Several jurisdictions are planning to implement 2003 standard certificates by January 1, 2014. Six jurisdictions are known not to have plans to do so for birth, four for death, and ten for fetal death. Reasons for this vary. At the 2012 NAPHSIS-NCHS Joint Annual Meeting, NCHS asked the jurisdictions who were not on the 2003 certificates to submit action plans. NAPHSIS proposes to work with NCHS to review action plans from the jurisdictions and determine what technical assistance would be useful.

Activity 2: Provide Technical Assistance to Jurisdictions

Status: Ongoing

NAPHSIS has promoted technical assistance services in its regional meetings and Executive Director newsletter. With most jurisdictions having already undertaken reengineering, the demand for this type of technical assistance has decreased. In addition, now that the NAPHSIS Security Guidelines have been completed and are available on the NAPHSIS members only website, the interest in onsite security assessments by a NAPHSIS consultant has also diminished.

It is expected that with the increased emphasis on improved timeliness and data quality in the new VSCP contract, the technical assistance services provided to jurisdictions by NAPHSIS in future will focus more on those areas, which is why the identification of a timeliness early warning system discussed in Activity 6 will become more critical going forward. It is also expected that there will be increased need for technical assistance for VIEWS implementation and planning for next generation electronic registration systems.

While available funding for technical assistance has decreased, NAPHSIS proposes to continue to provide quality technical assistance, providing remote support when applicable.

Activity 3: Disseminate Best Practices

Status: Ongoing

In the first six months of the cooperative agreement, NAPHSIS has implemented an online portal that supports the dissemination of best practices and provides real-time collaboration for resolving issues and sharing ideas. The portal allows members, staff and partners to work together on documents; access information in libraries; have discussions that can be captured and indexed; conduct surveys, consolidate data and manage group calendars. The NAPHSIS portal is integrated with the organizations website and now provides access to both members and authorized partners including NCHS staff.

The set of 98 Comprehensive Vital Statistics Standards that were approved by the NAPHSIS membership at the 2012 annual meeting was promoted at all NAPHSIS regional meetings. These standards are also used as a tool in technical assistance visits. Using Cooperative Agreement funds, initial efforts were made to use these standards as a tool in developing a vital records accreditation. NAPHSIS made initial contact with the Public Health Accreditation Board and will continue to work on this effort as PHAB has funding to proceed.

Activity 4: Track Jurisdictional Progress

NAPHSIS continues to maintain data on re-engineering and implementation of 2003 standard certificates. The data is maintained by surveys, structured interviews, and other communications with member jurisdictions. It is updated and provided to NCHS twice a year. A review of past NAPHSIS surveys was conducted. This review was used to identify key pieces of information that can be part of a jurisdictional template.

Activity 5: Provide Training and Skills Enhancement for Jurisdictions

Status: Ongoing

NAPHSIS has implemented an online portal that will support and host online learning tools and other on-demand training services, as well as collect and maintain relevant usage statistics and feedback results. The use by jurisdictions of the electronic Cause of Death training module was evaluated. NAPHSIS will continue to promote and support wider use of this tool. Work was begun and continues on the project of developing content for an online training curriculum for new registrars. The NAPHSIS-NCHS Joint Annual Meeting and Regional meetings continue to be the premier event for training and personal development of NAPHSIS members. Four online webinars were also held for member training. The subjects of these webinars were New York States Adoption Information Registry, Hawaii's Electronic Registration System for Marriages and Civil Unions, New York City's Cause of Death Data Project, and Florida's EDRS Challenges and Lessons Learned.

Activity 6: Enhance Data Quality and Timeliness

During Year One, NAPHSIS has worked with NCHS to develop a regular means for NAPHSIS to be informed of information on timeliness and quality of data submitted by the jurisdictions. NAPHSIS and NCHS are also working on a protocol for jurisdictions to submit corrective action plans to NAPHSIS for review and advice before jurisdictions send plans to NCHS.

NAPHSIS completed a survey of jurisdictions to identify those that have local registration of birth and/or death records. Results from the survey will be used to bring those jurisdictions together to share current and best practices in an effort to improve timeliness in jurisdictions with local registration.

Development has also begun on programs to improve data quality by providing training to hospital birth clerk specialists and improved feedback on quality of data to reporting hospitals.

NAPHSIS continues to review research proposal requests. As of February 28 of Year One, NAPHSIS had received 80 new NCHS research proposal review requests. Of these, 27 were approved and the rest were under review. NAPHSIS also approved 38 existing proposals that were under review from the period before Year One began.

During the first six months, the early warning system and review of corrective action plans had not yet begun. NAPHSIS had not yet received from NCHS information on states with timeliness or quality issues nor on states needing corrective action plans.

Activity 7: Implement a National Data Exchange Program / STEVE

As of February 28, 31 jurisdictions had installed STEVE, although two of those were having technical issues that prevented full implementation. Sixteen jurisdictions were in the planning stage. The other seven had not yet begun preparation or planning for STEVE. The STEVE map is updated monthly and posted on the NAPHSIS web site.

Reasons for jurisdictions not implementing STEVE include: not using one or more 2003 U.S. standard certificates, not having a suitable electronic registration system, and not having adequate technical support.

Our ongoing main focus in the remainder of Year One and in Year Two will be to assist as many jurisdictions as feasible as they implement STEVE, and to promote expanded use of STEVE for all data exchange with other jurisdictions, NCHS and authorized data exchange partners.

Activity 8: Support EHR/VR Interoperability

NAPHSIS staff and members participated in the Vital Records Functional Profile workgroup in completing its review of the Public Health Functional Profile of the HL7 standards.

Arrangements were made to send Richard McCoy (VT) and Larry Nielsen to the NCHS Interoperability Showcase at the HIMSS conference in March.

In January, NAPHSIS submitted comments to the Stage 3 Meaningful Use proposed rulemaking released for public comment by the Office of the National Coordinator. NAPHSIS also reviewed comments submitted by JPHIT. Fiscal Year 2014: Activity 1: Assure Compliance with National Standards

Continue to promote the use of the U.S. Standard Certificates of Birth and Death and the U.S. Standard Report of Fetal Death in each of the 57 registration jurisdictions

We will continue to help non-revised jurisdictions plan for revising to the 2003 standards for birth, death and fetal death by the January 1, 2014 deadline. This will involve providing technical assistance to help states develop strategies to acquire or develop appropriate information technology in time to meet the deadline, and providing assistance to jurisdictions in implementing these systems.

Prior to the 2012 NAPHSIS Annual Meeting, NCHS requested all jurisdictions that had not yet adopted the 2003 standard certificates of birth, death, and fetal death to bring with them an action plan to show that they were taking the necessary steps to accomplish this revision prior to the January 1, 2014 deadline. NAPHSIS will work with NCHS staff to identify a priority list of jurisdictions for NAPHSIS to work with. In this way, NAPHSIS will be able to help these jurisdictions meet deadlines for revising their certificates and will assist NCHS in assuring maximum compliance with the VSCP contract requirement that all jurisdictions are using the 2003 revised certificates prior to January 1, 2014.

NAPHSIS will contact those jurisdictions that will not be on the 2003 revised certificates by January 1, 2014, for submission of a Corrective Action Plan. For each plan:

1. NAPHSIS will review the Corrective Action Plan to ensure there is sufficient detail in how and when the state is to become 2003 compliant.
2. The jurisdiction will then submit the plan to NCHS.
3. NAPHSIS and the jurisdiction will work with NCHS in the approval of the plan.
4. NAPHSIS will determine the best strategy to support the jurisdiction and implement that strategy.
5. NAPHSIS will monitor progress on the plan through, at least, quarterly telephone reviews.

Activity 2: Provide Technical Assistance to Jurisdictions

Continue to provide technical assistance to States that are re-engineering, or planning to re-engineer, their birth, death, and fetal death IT systems and actively promote the use of national requirements, templates, edit specifications, and other standards and guidelines for use with these systems;

Continue to enhance the use of effective, standardized, business practices and procedures within the State Vital Statistics offices to assure security and responsiveness of the registration, issuance, amendment, and verification processes; and

Continue to provide technical assistance to State vital record offices to support improved security and responsiveness of vital registration practices and systems.

We propose to provide technical assistance (TA) to jurisdictions to support re-engineering activities, business process improvements and enhanced physical and data security in vital record offices. For Year Two, re-engineering activities will emphasize EDRS for improving timeliness, participation, and coverage, VIEWS implementation, and on-site technical assistance visits to improve timeliness and quality of data. However, the funding available for conducting technical assistance is more limited than in previous years. Therefore, we will provide as much remote preparation and planning for site visits as possible and will support jurisdictions remotely where feasible to minimize travel and consulting costs. Two on-site technical assistance visits will be delivered, if requested by jurisdictions.

We will maintain maps and charts of jurisdictional re-engineering and 2003 revision status and provide them to NCHS as part of scheduled deliverables, on request, and as part of the NAPHSIS website that is available to NCHS, once the website undergoes its upgrade this fall.

Larry Nielsen will oversee re-engineering, business process improvement and physical/data security site visits and the reports of findings and recommendations. Rose Trasatti will be heavily involved in technical assistance for VIEWS and EDRS implementation.

The Security Guidelines and the NAPHSIS Standards will be promoted in all technical assistance visits.

When a TA site visit is scheduled, we will inform the VSI project officer in advance so that NCHS staff can participate in the visit if they wish and provide any input they believe may be helpful prior to the visit.

At the conclusion of each technical assistance site visit, a report of findings and recommendations will be developed. A draft will be reviewed first with the jurisdiction. Once finalized, a copy of the report will be provided to the jurisdiction and to the NCHS Project Officer. A six month follow-up of site visits will be conducted and shared with NCHS to determine the status of implementation of recommendations included in the technical assistance reports.

Activity 3: Disseminate Best Practices

Continue to provide mechanisms and mutual support whereby States can identify and share best practices on vital statistics operations, statistical analysis and dissemination, IT system model laws, and security and fraud prevention.

For the purpose of disseminating the standards and best practices developed by NAPHSIS in cooperation with NCHS during the previous Cooperative Agreement, NAPHSIS has implemented a robust online portal that supports the dissemination of best practices and provides real-time collaboration for resolving issues and sharing ideas. The portal allows members, staff and partners to work together on documents; access information in libraries; have discussions that can be captured and indexed; conduct surveys, consolidate data and manage group calendars. The NAPHSIS portal is seamlessly integrated with our website and provides access to both members and authorized partners such as NCHS. In Year Two, NAPHSIS will monitor the usefulness of the portal to see where changes and improvements are needed.

During Year Two, we will continue to promote the use of 98 comprehensive vital statistics standards piloted in 12 jurisdictions and approved by the NAPHSIS membership at the 2012 annual meeting for self-assessment purposes. We will promote the use of the checklist tool developed in Year One to aid jurisdictions in conducting their self-assessments by:

1. Promoting the use of the checklist tool, with the goal of getting at least five jurisdictions using it.
2. Providing guidance and technical assistance, as requested, to the 5 jurisdictions using the self-assessment to address deficiencies identified via this process.
3. Promoting the use of the security guidelines, the NAPHSIS standards, and the checklist tool for self-assessment at the fall 2013 regional meetings.
4. Documenting the best registration practices, producing a report for dissemination to the jurisdictions and NCHS, and placing the report on the NAPHSIS web site.
5. Organizing and delivering at least one presentation on self-assessment or accreditation at the 2014 annual meeting.

Activity 4: Track Jurisdictional Progress

Continue to maintain an up-to-date database on the status and intentions of States with respect to re-engineering of their IT systems and the implementation of the 2003 U.S. Standard Certificates for Birth and Death and the Report of Fetal Death.

NAPHSIS will continue to maintain data from surveys and structured interviews on re-engineering, updated at least twice a year. Associated documents will also be kept up to date, including status maps and charts. Maps and charts provided to NCHS shall be no more than six months old.

During Year One, a survey review was conducted. The information gleaned from that review was used to help define the requirements and content for a jurisdiction database. In Year Two, NAPHSIS will build and test the database. The concept of the database will be described to the members at the fall 2013 regional meetings. The database, or at least its design and status, will be one of the session presentations at the 2014 annual meeting.

Activity 5: Provide Training and Skills Enhancement for Jurisdictions

Continue to improve the registration, IT, statistical, data quality, and management skills of State personnel and others involved in the collection, coding, processing, analysis, and dissemination of vital statistics records/data at the State and/or local levels.

Continue to increase the training and education programs/courses/opportunities available to State and territorial vital registration officials on the collection, processing, analysis, dissemination, and sharing of vital statistics records/data (i.e., beyond those programs available through NCHS).

Support the e-learning training project and help to effectively roll out the revised Facility Guidebook.

The NAPHSIS-NCHS Joint Annual Meeting is the premier venue for providing training and skills enhancement for personnel from the states and territories.

The regional meetings are an important supplement to the annual meeting and provide professional development opportunities that may be of key importance to NAPHSIS regions. We plan to continue providing presentations and programs at the annual and regional meetings to update skills and knowledge among our members and other attendees. Will Whitman and Shawna Webster are responsible for coordinating and managing the production and content of these meetings.

We will continue to support travel for Ron Hyman to co-teach the basic vital statistics course offered by NCHS.

Given the current limited jurisdiction resources and limitations on travel, we recognize the importance of online training and education capabilities in order to reach the widest possible audiences and broadest range of topics. In Year Two, NAPHSIS will review and evaluate utilization of the web-based training for vital records and vital statistics currently available on the NAPHSIS website and determine the best approaches to future training to improve the registration, IT, data quality, statistical, and management skills of jurisdiction personnel working in vital records/statistics offices. We will involve NCHS staff in this effort so that they can provide their advice and assistance. A report on the results of this evaluation will be produced in Year Two.

NAPHSIS will continue to support the use of the Cause of Death training module in the jurisdictions.

By the end of Year 1, NAPHSIS will have developed a fundamental training course that provides the critical information needed by a brand new state registrar for the successful management of a vital record office. The goal of this online training is to have basic information available to a new state registrar immediately upon his or her appointment. While the NCHS training course is offered only one time a year, a new state registrar may be appointed shortly after the course is offered and have to wait for an entire year until they can attend again, or the registrar may be denied out of state travel to attend the NCHS course. The NAPHSIS online training will be available at any time. During Year Two, NAPHSIS will demonstrate the course in its initial version to members and NCHS, and will obtain feedback through selected structured interviews with a sample of jurisdiction representatives with a varied number of years in their present positions. Based on the feedback, NAPHSIS will determine the best approach to meeting training needs for new registrars. The efforts will focus around the set of core competencies, developed in Year One, for State Registrars.

Activity 6: Enhance Data Quality and Timeliness

Continue to enhance the quality and timeliness of the birth, death, and fetal death data for public health surveillance and medical research.

The 2012 Vital Statistics Cooperative Program (VSCP) contract imposes new timeliness and data quality requirements that will be a challenge for some to meet. To be proactive about helping jurisdictions avoid trouble with their contractual obligations, we propose to continue to refine an early warning notification system to identify states that show specific timeliness and data quality markers indicating the potential for problems. This EWS was proposed in Year One. Under this approach, NCHS will be responsible for running routine analyses of data received from the jurisdictions and notifying NAPHSIS of the results at least monthly. In addition, NCHS staff will report relevant qualitative information on underlying reasons for these problems of which they may be aware. Jointly with NCHS, we will regularly monitor timeliness and data quality statistics generated by NCHS and will assist NCHS in developing a continuous quality improvement feedback loop to jurisdictions. Patricia Potrzebowski has the lead in working with NCHS on the early warning notification system. NAPHSIS will also encourage jurisdictions to let us know when they are in trouble so that, when appropriate, technical assistance can be provided to assist in resolving problems before they become too great, resulting in deliverables not being met and the need for action plans. This will also help us strategize the provision of TA site visits in the next year.

Under the terms of the 2012 VSCP contract, jurisdictions not meeting specific contract requirements will be required to develop and submit to NCHS a corrective action plan stating how they plan to remedy identified deficiencies. NCHS has requested that NAPHSIS participate in the review of each plan prior to its submission by the jurisdiction to NCHS. We propose to continue the process, developed with NCHS in the second half of Year One, for states to request a NAPHSIS review of its corrective action plan and for NAPHSIS to provide timely comments to the jurisdictions. Most corrective actions will be directed to improving timeliness. Our involvement in the review of corrective action plans will allow us to provide more targeted and timely technical assistance to jurisdictions challenged to comply with VSCP requirements, as described in Activity 2.

We will continue to explore lessons learned and identify paths to improvement from communications that occurred during Year One with jurisdictions that have local registration. Together with those jurisdictions, we will continue to explore opportunities for improvement. We will also continue to promote the use of STEVE as a way for jurisdictions to improve the timeliness of reporting to NCHS once full connectivity has been established (see Activity 7).

We will also work with the NAPHSIS/NCHS joint Data Quality Workgroup to promote improvements in vital statistics data that will make these data more useful for public health surveillance and research. We plan in Year Two to support the workgroup as it documents best practices for evaluating and providing feedback to facilities on the quality of birth reporting, document best practices for engaging hospitals in improving data quality and assess the quality of birth data items and recommend items to be dropped from the national birth file as it develops content for e-learning training for hospital staff. Sukhjeet Ahuja will take responsibility for supporting the workgroups efforts as needed. In Year Two, NAPHSIS staff and the Data Quality Workgroup, including NAPHSIS, NCHS, and other partners (e.g. ACOG), will develop content for a tutorial to educate hospital birthing staff on the importance and uses of birth data and how to accurately and completely report the birth certificate medical and health information. The content of the tutorial will be the responsibility of this workgroup, supported by Sukhjeet Ahuja. Sukhjeet will be responsible for supporting the subgroup efforts and products as needed. We will provide to the NCHS Project Officer for review the final draft curriculum for the tutorial when available.

We will also work with NCHS to promote the distribution and use of the revised Facility Guide for Completion of the U.S. Standard Certificate of Live Birth and Report of Fetal Death. The guidebook will be revised upon availability of the official ACOG revised obstetric definitions expected late summer 2013. NAPHSIS will assist with official notification on its web site, newsletter, and notices to each jurisdiction and with presentations at regional meetings.

NAPHSIS will also continue to support the joint NAPHSIS-NCHS review of research proposals requesting access to national mortality, natality, and linked birth/infant death files.

The monthly teleconference for VSCP project directors to discuss contract issues will continue during Year Two. In addition, we will expand use of the online portal for the VSCP project directors and NCHS to facilitate communication and collaboration in real-time. Will Whitman will continue to coordinate this meeting series and its online workspace.

Activity 7: Implement a National Data Exchange Program / STEVE

Continue to facilitate the national implementation of a State-owned and operated electronic interstate exchange system for the matching of birth and death records.

The State and Territorial Exchange of Vital Events (STEVE) is a NAPHSIS-owned software product installed in jurisdictions and connected to NCHS and (future) other authorized data exchange partners. There are currently 35 jurisdictions installed and approximately 16 jurisdictions in active planning and preparation for deployment. STEVE Years One and Two will be the critical period for completing the national roll out of STEVE, which will become the mandatory vehicle for transmitting VSCP data to NCHS on January 1, 2014. Some jurisdictions will not make that date. Some will miss the date because they will not have one or more electronic registration systems and/or will not have one or more 2003 U.S. Standard certificate systems in place in time to implement STEVE and get certified for sending data to NCHS via STEVE. NAPHSIS will work with the jurisdictions to get STEVE running and certified in as many jurisdictions as possible by January 1, 2014 and as many more as possible during the remainder of Year One. This will require a lot of time from the STEVE Implementation Manager. For those jurisdictions unable to meet the 2014 date, NAPHSIS will work with those jurisdictions to develop and submit a corrective action plan, enabling that jurisdiction to continue providing VSCP data through the old mechanism.

Once a jurisdiction has installed STEVE and paid a use fee for the first year of service, NAPHSIS will provide for routine maintenance and ongoing management of the system at no additional cost to the jurisdiction using the subsidy provided in this Cooperative Agreement.

Activity 8: Support EHR/VR Interoperability

Continue to provide support to states and NCHS in researching, developing, testing/piloting and, if shown to be effective, implementing interoperable systems for the electronic exchange vital events data between electronic medical records and vital records systems.

We will support NCHS standardization activities and participate with individual jurisdictions in NCHS workgroups developing HL7 standards for EHR-VR exchange. We will collaborate with NCHS in planning for the 2014 Interoperability Showcase activities. We plan to send a representative to the NCHS Interoperability Showcase at the Health Information Management Systems Symposium (HIMSS) in early 2014.

In addition, we will participate in and support all activities of the e-Health Workgroup. NAPHSIS will encourage the broadening of knowledge of interoperability among our members and educating the jurisdictions on EHR/VR interoperability. These will be high priority topics for future NAPHSIS webinars, annual meetings, regional meetings, and other educational efforts.

NAPHSIS will continue to support the two EHR special projects funded under the VSCP that will be evaluating the draft health data standards for the exchange of information from an EHR into a vital registration system. We will participate in conference calls with the pilot jurisdictions and NCHS as these projects go forward. We will also assist in identifying the desired outcomes and deliverables for the projects. We will provide program content expertise to both the jurisdiction and NCHS during discussions on implementation of the evaluations. We will also consult and make recommendations on the evaluation criteria that will be used to determine the success of the evaluation projects. We will address pilot participants concerns about accuracy, timeliness, and completeness and will travel to two jurisdictions to observe interoperability connectivity that has been established in an operational setting. We will report progress on the pilots to the NAPHSIS e-Health Workgroup.

93.069 PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS (PHEP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act , Section 319C-1, Public Law 112-10; Public Health Services Act, Section 317(d); Public Health Services Act, Section 317(a).

OBJECTIVES:

The PHEP program is a critical source of funding, guidance, and technical assistance for state, territorial, and local public health departments. Preparedness activities funded by the PHEP program are targeted specifically for the development of emergency-ready public health departments that are flexible and adaptable. These efforts support the National Response Framework (NRF), which guides how the nation responds to all types of hazards including infectious disease outbreaks; natural disasters; biological, chemical, and radiological incidents; and explosions.

To help public health departments with their strategic planning, CDC identified 15 public health preparedness capabilities to serve as national public health preparedness standards. State and local jurisdictions can use CDC's Public Health Preparedness Capabilities: National Standards for State and Local Planning to better organize their work and identify the capabilities they have the resources to build or sustain. These standards help ensure that federal preparedness funds are directed to priority areas within individual jurisdictions.

The 2012 PHEP program is currently funded via a joint cooperative agreement award and aligned with the Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP). PHEP program guidance assists the 62 PHEP awardees in demonstrating measurable and sustainable progress toward achieving the 15 public health preparedness capabilities and other activities that promote safer and more resilient communities.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula. Matching Requirements: Percent: 10.%. This program has a statutory formula. This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. Maintenance of Funding (MOF)

PHEP awardees must maintain expenditures for healthcare preparedness and public health security at a level that is not less than the average level of such expenditures maintained by the awardee for the preceding two-year period. This represents an awardee's historical level of contributions or expenditures (money spent) related to federal programmatic activities that have been made prior to the receipt of federal funds. The MOF is used as an indicator of nonfederal support for public health security and healthcare preparedness before the infusion of federal funds. These expenditures are calculated by the awardee without reference to any federal funding that also may have contributed to such programmatic activities in the past. The definition of eligible state expenditures for public health security and healthcare preparedness includes: Appropriations specifically designed to support healthcare or public health emergency preparedness as expended by the entity receiving the award; and Funds not specifically appropriated for healthcare or public health emergency preparedness activities but which support healthcare or public health emergency preparedness activities, such as personnel assigned to healthcare or public health emergency preparedness responsibilities or supplies or equipment purchased for healthcare or public health emergency preparedness from general funds or other lines within the operating budget of the entity receiving the award.

Please see Agency Funding Opportunity Number CDC-RFA-TP12-1201 for further details on the maintenance of funding requirements.

As a result of the limited response to the OFA FOA, OMB determined the best use of those funds would be reallocation to the State Systems Interoperability and Integration Projects grant. This reallocation resulted in the award of three additional grants due to the amount of the funding ($3,500,000) being made available, which when added to the total of $4,500,000 in available interoperability grant funds brings the total of all grant funding to $8,000,000. The grants were awarded to the top seven highest evaluated proposals from the states of Colorado, New York, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana, California, and Maryland.

93.077 FAMILY SMOKING PREVENTION AND TOBACCO CONTROL ACT REGULATORY RESEARCH

NIH-FDA Tobacco Control Regulatory Research

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

The Public Health Service Act and the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, Public Law 111-31, 42 U.S.C 300u-3.

OBJECTIVES:

The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act (TCA) provides the authority to regulate tobacco product manufacturing, distribution and marketing. Regulatory research will provide the scientific evidence to guide the implementation of this authority. Research areas include (1) understanding the diversity of tobacco products, (2) reducing addiction to tobacco products, (3) reducing toxicity and carcinogenicity of tobacco products and smoke, (4) understanding the adverse health consequences of tobacco use, (5) understanding communications about tobacco products, (6) understanding tobacco product marketing, and (7) understanding how economics and policies affect tobacco product use. This regulatory research will help understand tobacco and its ingredients and constituents, tobacco addiction, tobacco marketing and labeling, and childhood tobacco use. The strategic priorities for these research areas can be found at <http://www.fda.gov/downloads/TobaccoProducts/NewsEvents/UCM293998.pdf>

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements; Project Grants; Project Grants (Contracts); Training

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

(1) Research project grants provide support for clearly defined projects or a small group of related research activities, and when appropriate, support of research conferences; (2) program project and center grants support large-scale, broad-based programs of research, usually interdisciplinary, consisting of several projects with a common focus; (3) exploratory/development and clinical exploratory/developmental grants encourage the development of new research activities in categorical program areas; (4) cooperative agreements support single or a group of related research activities with significant involvement of federal staff; (5) small grants support newer, less experienced investigators; investigators at institutions without a well developed research tradition and resources; the testing of new methods or techniques; small-scale exploratory and pilot studies, or exploration of an unusual research opportunity; small grants provide research support of up to $50,000 direct costs per year for a period of up to 2 years; (6) research training grants including fellowships and institutional training grants, career development grants and loan repayment contracts; and (7) SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of proposed research or research and development efforts to determine the quality of performance of the small business grantees. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercially viable products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support; STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application and the quality of performance of the small business concerns. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the Phase II application. Research must directly support the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act and the Center for Tobacco Products, Food and Drug Administration Research Priorities found at <http://www.fda.gov/downloads/TobaccoProducts/NewsEvents/UCM293998.pdf>

Applicant Eligibility:

Applicants should review the eligibility information in the individual funding opportunity announcements issued under this CFDA.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

This Tobacco Control Regulatory Research Program will support research aimed at providing guidance and evidence to develop regulation for tobacco product manufacturing, distribution and marketing. The general public will ultimately benefit.

Credentials/Documentation:

No Credentials or documentation are required. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-87.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is generally not applicable, though applicants requesting direct costs of $500,000 or more for any one year must contact the appropriate NIH Institute or Center no later than 6 weeks before the anticipated submission date. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Most applications must be prepared and submitted electronically. Most applicants use the SF 424 (Research & Related) for electronic submission. Information about the SF 424 form may be found on <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/funding/424/index.htm>, but application packages should be accessed through the appropriate funding opportunity announcement, found either on the NIH Guide to Grants and Contracts (<http://grants1.nih.gov/grants/guide/index.html>) or through the Grants.gov website (<http://www.grants.gov/>). Some institutions may submit the grant data directly (using what is called a system-to-system transfer). For further details, see grants.gov or eRA Commons. Application forms for SBIR and STTR grants may be obtained through the SBIR/STTR funding announcements posted on the NIH Guide to Grants and Contracts and the Grants.gov sites (see URLs listed above). 93.079 COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS TO PROMOTE ADOLESCENT HEALTH THROUGH SCHOOL-BASED HIV/STD PREVENTION AND SCHOOL-BASED SURVEILLANCE

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title III, Part B, Section 317(b)(k)(2), 42 U.S.C 247(b)(k)(2).

OBJECTIVES:

Funding will build the capacity of state, territorial, and local (STL) agencies and support the efforts of national, non-governmental organizations (NGO) to help school districts and schools develop and implement sustainable program activities to:

- 1) Reduce HIV infection and other STD among adolescents; and
- 2) Reduce disparities in HIV infection and other STD experienced by specific adolescent sub-populations.

It is also expected that applicants activities will reinforce efforts to reduce teen pregnancy rates.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Throughout the 5-year cooperative agreement, awardees will conduct the Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS) and the School Health Profiles (Profiles) and will aim to improve the sexual health of middle school and high school students within their jurisdiction by delaying the onset of sexual activity; reducing the number of sexual partners; promoting the dual use of condoms and a highly effective contraceptive method among adolescents who are sexually active; increasing STD and HIV testing, counseling, and treatment; and addressing key social determinants of health to ensure we are reaching youth at most disproportionate risk for HIV infection and other STD.

Separate funding pools are available for State and Territorial Education Agencies (SEA/TEA); Local Education Agencies (LEA); and National Non-Governmental Organizations. In addition, state, territorial, and local health agencies may be eligible for School-Based Surveillance funding if the education agency in their jurisdiction does not apply for it.

Funding will be for agencies and organizations to implement four key strategies:

Strategy 1: School-Based Surveillance

Strategy 2: School-Based HIV/STD Prevention

Strategy 3: Capacity Building Assistance for School-Based HIV/STD Prevention

Strategy 4: School-Centered HIV/STD Prevention for Young Men Who Have Sex with Men

Cooperative agreement funds may be used to support personnel, purchase equipment, supplies, services, and travel directly related to program activities and consistent with the scope of this program. Cooperative agreement funds are used to help schools prevent sexual risk behaviors that result in HIV and STD infection, especially among youth who are at highest risk.

CDC believes that the specific scope and content of HIV education programs in schools should be locally determined and should be consistent with parental and community values. CDC supports local decision making by providing sound scientific information to grantees who work directly with schools, communities, and parents. Funds may be expended for written materials, pictorials, audiovisuals, questionnaires, or survey instruments, and educational group sessions related to HIV education youth, school, and college populations if approved in accordance with the document Content of AIDS-Related Written Materials, Pictorials, Audiovisuals, Questionnaires, Survey Instruments, and Educational Sessions in Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Assistance Programs.

Cooperative agreement funds are also used to build state education and state health agency partnership and capacity to implement and coordinate school health programs across agencies and within schools. For example, cooperative agreement recipients implement and integrate effective policies, environmental changes, and educational strategies to reduce risky behaviors; leverage resources to avoid duplication at the state and local levels; and evaluate school health capacity-building efforts while implementing effective strategies to reduce priority health risks. Funds may not be used to conduct research projects, provide direct delivery of patient care or treatment services, or purchase or disseminate condoms. Although public health may have an assurance role in clinical testing and screening, funds are not to be used to provide clinical testing or screening services. Funds may not be used for purchasing computer equipment, office equipment, or furnishing, renting, or leasing office space, or to support constructions or renovation unless specifically approved.

Applicant Eligibility:

All 50 state education agencies, plus the District of Columbia, and the territorial education agencies in Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Northern Mariana Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, Guam, Republic of the Marshall Islands, and Republic of Palau are eligible to apply for Strategies 1 and 2. SEA and TEA are not eligible for Strategy 3.

If a state or territorial education agency declines to apply for Strategy 1, the health agency in the same jurisdiction or the health agency's Bona Fide Agent may apply on their behalf. Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Funding is provided on an open-ended basis in accordance with sec. 474(a) of the Social Security Act.

Formula Grant Funding Level: Federal financial participation (FFP) is equal to the applicable Federal Medical Assistance Percentage (FMAP) rate (as defined by sec.1905(b) (sec. 479B(d) for Tribes) of the Social Security Act (i.e. from 50% to 83%, depending on the State or Tribe and the fiscal year) and as temporarily enhanced through Section 5001 of Public Law 111-5, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA)) for the total expended for kinship guardianship assistance payments; 75% of staff training costs; and 50% of other administrative costs. Short term training provided to kinship guardians is subject to a special FFP rate that varies by fiscal year (60% FFP in FY 2010; 65% for FY 2011, 70% for FY 2012 and 75% for FY 2013 and thereafter).

Matching Requirements: The non-Federal share of program costs (difference between total cost and FFP) in each funding category constitutes the required match to be met by the title IV-E agency. Matching funds from State agencies must be appropriated monies raised from non-Federal revenue sources. Matching funds from Tribal agencies must also be appropriated monies, but may at the option of the Tribe include Federal funds specifically authorized by Federal statutes to be used as match for other Federal programs and, in accordance with 45 CFR 1356.68 for administration and training costs only, in-kind expenditures (or contributions) from allowable third party sources. Matching Requirements: The non-Federal share of program costs (difference between total cost and FFP) in each funding category constitutes the required match to be met by this title IV-E agency. Matching funds from State agencies must be the appropriate monies raised from non-Federal revenue sources. Matching funds from Tribal agencies must also be appropriated monies, but may at the option of the Tribe include Federal funds specifically authorized by Federal statutes to be used as match for other Federal programs and, in accordance with 45 CFR 1356.68, for administration and training cost only, and in-kind expenditures (or contributions) from allowable third party sources. This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Federal financial participation is available to a State or Tribe operating under an approved title IV-E plan. The title IV-E agency may implement and claim allowable guardianship assistance program costs beginning on the first day of the quarter in which an approvable title IV-E plan amendment is submitted to the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) to implement the guardianship assistance program. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Method of awarding/releasing assistance: Quarterly, through a letter of credit.

Reports:

Report on the children assisted. A report of estimates and expenditures and number of children assisted (form CB-496) must be submitted. No progress reports are required. Use form CB-496 to report estimates and expenditures and the number of children assisted; the expenditures report is required 30 days after the end of the quarter; other reports as required by the Secretary. No performance monitoring is required.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. Audits are conducted in accordance with the requirements in 45 CFR 92.

Records:

States and Tribes must maintain all financial and programmatic records necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the program, including records of applications, determinations of eligibility, utilization of awarded grants and other funds for the provision of financial assistance and allocated indirect and direct administrative and training costs in accordance with requirements in Health and Human Services regulations at 45 CFR 92.42, and written guidance from the Administration for Children and Families.

The program became available as an option for States as of October 7, 2008, and for Tribes as of October 1, 2009. Title IV-E agencies began separate financial reporting of program costs for quarters commencing in FY 2011. A number of States also initiated title IV-E guardianship assistance payments during FY 2011 and may still be in the process of submitting title IV-E claims for these costs. Therefore, meaningful data on the range and average of financial assistance is not yet available.

93.092 AFFORDABLE CARE ACT (ACA) PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY EDUCATION PROGRAM (PREP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, Title II Role Of Public Programs, Subtitle L, Maternal and Child Health Services , Title V, Section 2953, Public Law 111-148, 42 U.S.C 713(c)(1).

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of this program is to educate adolescents and young adults on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, including HIV/AIDS. The Affordable Care Act was established and provided funding for this program through FY 2014.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Formula Grants; Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

To carry out personal responsibility education programs designed to educate adolescents on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections, including HIV/AIDS. The State program component must fund teen pregnancy prevention and personal responsibility education programs that have been proven on the basis of rigorous scientific research, to change behavior, which means delaying sexual activity, increasing condom or contraceptive use for sexually active youth, or reducing pregnancy among youth. State programs must teach adulthood preparation subjects including healthy relationships, adolescent development, financial literacy, parent-child communication, educational and career success, and healthy life skills. Applicants for innovative program funding should describe the research base for proposed projects, such as the rationale for substantial modifications to evidence-based models and/or developmental research that suggests an innovative model is likely to be effective with a vulnerable or underserved population. The list of evidence-based models developed by the HHS Office of the Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation (ASPE). Additionally, the innovative practices component must implement programs to target high-risk, vulnerable, and culturally under-represented youth populations. Such programs must be either significant modifications of the above list of evidence-based models or are based upon other promising approaches with a strong research basis. All programs must agree to participate in a rigorous Federal evaluation of their project. Innovative programs must conduct their own rigorous, independent evaluations unless they are selected for the Federal evaluation. From the $75,000,000 appropriation, $10,000,000 (13.3%) is designated for PREIS, which are demonstration grants for innovative teen pregnancy prevention and personal responsibility education programs (PREIS); $3,250,000 (5% of the appropriation after the $10,000,000 is removed) is set aside for Tribes and Tribal organizations; $6,500,000 (10% of the appropriation after the $10,000,000 is removed) is designated for program support and evaluation. The remaining $55,250,000 (73.7% of the appropriation) is for States to implement evidence-based demonstration projects and is allotted by formula. However, beginning in 2012, funds from States that did not apply for FY10 or FY11 funding was distributed on a discretionary basis to community-based organizations within those States.

Applicant Eligibility:

There is $55,250,000 appropriated annually to fund 59 States and Territories to enable them to carry out personal responsibility education programs. Eligible applicants include the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, Northern Mariana Islands, Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau.

If any States or Territories did not apply for funding in FY 2010 or 2011, they are no longer eligible to apply for this program and their allotments were made available as Competitive PREP grants to community-based organizations for the same State or territory. The annual award for Competitive PREP is $18,856,405.

Funds ($10,000,000) shall be reserved to award PREIS grants to entities to implement innovative youth pregnancy prevention strategies and target services to high-risk, vulnerable, and culturally under-represented youth populations. Funds ($3,250,000) shall be reserved for Tribal PREP grants to Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

Funds ($6,500,000) shall be reserved for program support that may be provided directly or through a competitive award process. Program support includes research, training and technical assistance, providing consultation and resources on a broad array of teen pregnancy prevention strategies, and developing materials to support grant activities. Funds shall also be reserved to evaluate programs and activities.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Personal responsibility education programs shall provide services to adolescents and young adults. Applicants are encouraged to serve youth populations that are the most high-risk or vulnerable for pregnancies or otherwise have special circumstances, including youth in and aging of out foster care, homeless youth, youth with HIV/AIDS, pregnant youth who are under 21 years of age, mothers who are under 21 years of age, and youth residing in areas with high birth rates for youth. Applicants must include the most recent pregnancy data for the State for youth ages 10 to 14 and youth ages 15-19, and the most recent birth rates among the same age groups, and trends in those rates for the most recently preceding 5-year period for which data are available.

Credentials/Documentation:

A signed letter from the authorized representative must accompany each application; it should include documentation establishing the authorized representatives authority to apply for and administer the Personal Responsibility Education grant program funds on behalf of the State or Territory.

For other funding available under this CFDA number, non-profit organizations applying for funding are required to submit proof of their non-profit status. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. The PREP program includes formula and competitive grant awards to a range of entities. The OMB circulars that are relevant vary according to the funding opportunity and the kind of organization that will be implementing the grant award.

Award Procedure:

For FY 2010 and FY 2011 funds allotted to States and Territories (States), the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) advised States and Territories of the funding opportunity through a Federal Register notice and/or by a Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA). Applications were rated Approved, Approved with Conditions, or Approval Pending by Program administrators. Applicants that received an Approved rating received grant awards and did not need to send further information. States that submitted applications that were Approved with Conditions" received grant awards with descriptions of weaknesses and subsequent conditions that were to be met in order to receive Approved status. The States were given a set period to send to a response to ACF that addressed the identified weaknesses. States that submitted applications that were rated Approval Pending received a list of weaknesses cited by the reviewer and directions for submitting an amended application that addressed the weaknesses. States and Territories that were awarded FY 2010 and/or FY 2011 funds were to submit a letter of intent in order to receive awards in FY 2012, FY 2013 and FY 2014. There are 48 State PREP grantees.

A FOA was published to award funds to community based organizations in the States and Territories that did not receive FY 2010 and FY 2011 PREP funding. Applications were reviewed by an Objective Review Committee which applied the criteria given in the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA) in order to derive priority scores. The review panels consisted of expert peer reviewers who reviewed each application that met the responsiveness and screening criteria. Federal staff provided oversight to the review process. Thirty-seven applicants were awarded Competitive PREP funding in FY2012.

For funds reserved for PREP Innovative Strategy (PREIS) grants, applications were reviewed on a nationwide basis and in competition with other submitted applications. Eligible applications were reviewed by an Objective Review Committee which applied the criteria given in the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA) in order to derive priority scores. The applications were reviewed by expert peer reviewers who reviewed each application that met the responsiveness and screening criteria. Federal staff provided administrative oversight to the grant review process. The review results formed the basis for development of the programmatic terms and conditions of the cooperative agreement. Funding decision recommendations were provided to the Director of the Office of Adolescent Health and the Commissioner for the Administration on Children, Youth and Families (ACYF) in order by score and rank determined by the review panel. Final award decisions were made collaboratively by the Director of OAH and the Commissioner of ACYF. In making the award decision, the Director and the Commissioner took into account the score and rank order given by the Objective Review Committee, and other considerations given in the FOA. Thirteen applicants were awarded cooperative agreements in FY2010 and one grantee relinquished funding in FY2012. There are 12 funded PREIS projects.

Funds reserved for grants to Indian tribes and tribal organizations were made available in a manner determined by the Secretary, in consultation with Indian tribes and tribal organizations, to be appropriate. In FY 2011, a funding opportunity announcement was issued for the award of the grants. Sixteen applicants were awarded Tribal PREP funding through the discretionary grant review process.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title V.

Matching Requirements: Cost sharing or matching of non-Federal funds is not required. However, funded programs should build on but not duplicate or replace current Federal programs as well as state, local or community programs, and programs should coordinate with existing programs and resources in the community.

This program has MOE requirements, see funding agency for further details. This program has an MOE (Maintenance of Effort) requirement for states and local entities to require that expenditure of non-federal funds for activities, programs or initiatives allowed in this program be no less than such expenditures in FY 09. The intent is to supplement and not supplant the funds expended in FY 09 or the year prior to new awards.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Funds allotted to States and Territories for a fiscal year shall remain available for expenditure by the State through the end of the second succeeding fiscal year. If a State or territory did not submit an application for fiscal year 2010 or 2011, they are no longer be eligible to submit an application to receive funds from the amounts allotted to the State for each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014.

Those funds were used for awarding three year discretionary grants to local organizations and entities for the same purpose and in the same geographic regions in FY2012. The Competitive PREP funding is available over a 36 month project period. Annual funding is to be expended within 12 months of award.

The PREIS grantees were awarded funding through cooperative agreements over a five year project period. The annual funding is to be expended at the end of each 12 month budget period.

Tribal PREP grantees are discretionary awards with a four year project period. Annual awards are to be expended at the end of each 12 month budget period.

Additional information about the availability of funding is provided in the funding opportunity announcements. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Periodic draw downs are based upon need and project progress.

Reports:

Each award recipient will submit semi-annual performance progress, fiscal and performance measure data. Grantees must submit all required reports in a timely manner and in the recommended format provided. The grantees shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these in a timely manner could affect future funding. The report is an accounting of expenditures for each budget year of the project. There is a requirement for performance measurement data collection and performance progress reporting (e.g., monitoring requirements) for the State PREP, PREIS, Tribal PREP and Competitive PREP grantees. Tribal consults were conducted prior to the finalization of the Tribal PREP funding opportunity announcement, to include discussion on the reporting requirements. The recipient shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (SF-425) due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period. The report is an accounting of expenditures for each year of the project. More specific information on this reporting requirement was included in the Notice of Grant Award. No performance monitoring is required.

Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. Grantees must comply with the relevant sections of the Code of Federal Regulations and OMB circulars to perform required audits.

RELATED PROGRAMS:

93.060 Competitive Abstinence Education (CAE); 93.235 Abstinence Education Program

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Not Applicable.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Funded State programs must replicate evidence-based, effective programs or strategies that substantially incorporate elements of effective programs that have been proven on the basis of rigorous scientific research to change behavior, which means delaying sexual activity, increasing condom or contraceptive use for sexually active youth, or reducing pregnancy among youth. The programs must include activities to educate youth who are sexually active regarding responsible sexual behavior with respect to both abstinence and the use of contraception. Such activities should teach adulthood preparation subjects including healthy relationships, adolescent development, financial literacy, parent-child communication, educational and career success, and healthy life skills. The programs must: be medically-accurate and complete; include activities to educate youth who are sexually active regarding responsible sexual behavior with respect to both abstinence and the use of contraception; place substantial emphasis on both abstinence and contraception for the prevention of pregnancy among youth and sexually transmitted infections; and must provide age-appropriate information and activities. The information and activities carried out under the program must be provided in the cultural context that is most appropriate for individuals in the particular population group to which they are directed.

REQUIREMENTS OF INNOVATIVE STRATEGIES PROJECTS: Proposals were funded based on how effectively they can develop, replicate, refine, and test innovative strategies for preventing teenage pregnancy. Programs must be medically accurate, age appropriate, and target services to identified vulnerable and at-risk populations. Funded projects are expected to generate lessons learned so others can benefit from these strategies and innovative approaches and increase the capacity of communities to develop, implement, and evaluate interventions for dissemination and replication by others. Funded projects must show that the proposed intervention is: (a) based on some preliminary evidence of effectiveness; (b) a significant adaptation of an evidence-based program; or (c) is a new and innovative approach to teenage pregnancy prevention with a sound basis in research.

REQUIREMENTS OF TRIBAL PROJECTS: Criteria for Tribal projects were developed by the Secretary, in consultation with Indian Tribes and Tribal Organizations, that were deemed appropriate. Tribal PREP funding is directed toward the development of culturally appropriate comprehensive teen pregnancy prevention programs that incorporate medically accurate approaches replicating effective programs or elements of programs that have been demonstrated to change behavior. Tribal PREP focuses on the same fundamental requirements as the State PREP projects—the education of youth on both abstinence and contraception and on other adulthood preparation subjects with the goal of preventing teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs) including HIV/AIDS. Funds support PREP efforts that are dedicated to the development of comprehensive, high quality interventions and services that rely on the best available research evidence to inform and guide practice. Since there are few studies of teen pregnancy prevention programs targeting youth in Tribal communities, adaptation and innovation are important. Further, programs that currently serve Native youth have not been rigorously evaluated and may not offer strong models for replication. Tribes and tribal organizations are encouraged, therefore, to adapt evidence-based (EB) models (or elements of EB models) that address the unique cultural needs of their communities. Adaptation must retain core elements of proven effective programs.

REQUIREMENTS OF COMPETITIVE PREP PROJECTS: Competitive PREP funds support projects that educate youth between the ages of 10 and 19, and pregnant and parenting youth, under age 21, on abstinence and contraception for teen prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs), including HIV/AIDS. Applicants must also provide programming on at least three of six adulthood preparation subjects that are discussed in the published funding opportunity announcement. This program has no matching requirements. None.

This program does not have MOE requirements. None.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

The HPOG program uses the project period system of funding. Projects are programmatically approved for support in their entirety, but are funded in annual increments called budget periods. Through a competitive process HPOG projects were approved for five year project periods. Each new budget period begins September 30. In general, funding for each budget period must be obligated within the budget period. Recipients are required to submit a non-competing continuation application and semi-annual performance progress reports as a prerequisite to approval and funding of each subsequent budget period within the approved project period. Funding for each budget period is contingent on satisfactory progress, the availability of funds, and the continued best interests of the Federal government. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Funds are drawn down by grantees on a periodic basis, typically each month.

Reports:

Grantees must submit semi-annual performance progress reports. Each semi-annual progress report is due no later than 30 days after the end of the reporting period. Grantees must submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these timely could affect future funding. The SF 425 FFR will be used to report Financial Status and Cash Transactions. The report is an accounting of expenditures under the project that year. Grantees must submit semi-annual performance progress reports. Each semi-annual progress report is due no later than 30 days after the end of the reporting period. The grantees shall submit an annual Financial Status Report (FSR). An FSR is due no later than 90 days after the end of the applicable 12 month period and failure to submit these timely could affect future funding. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. This Circular is issued pursuant to the Single Audit Act of 1984, Public Law 98-502, and the Single Audit Act Amendments of 1996, Public Law 104-156. It sets forth standards for obtaining consistency and uniformity among Federal agencies for the audit of States, local governments, and non-profit organizations expending Federal awards

93.097 STRENGTHENING THE NATION'S PUBLIC HEALTH SYSTEM THROUGH A NATIONAL VOLUNTARY ACCREDITATION PROGRAMFOR STATE, TRIBAL, LOCAL AND TERRITORIAL HEALTH DEPARTMENTS

A National Voluntary Accreditation Program for State, Tribal, Local and Territorial Health Departments

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

This program is authorized under section 317(k) (2) of the Public Health Service Act [42 U.S.C. 247(b)(k)(2)].

OBJECTIVES:

This project will support the operations and continuous improvement of a national accreditation program for state, tribal, local and territorial public health departments. This program will result in increased visibility for accreditation, a stronger public health accreditation program, increased demonstration of accountability of public health programs to decision makers and to the public, increased adoption of evidence based practices, increased use of quality improvement, improved capacity for state, tribal, local and territorial health departments to meet nationally established accreditation standards, and increased recognition of public health roles and value by leaders and the public.

Specific objectives may/will include but are not limited to:

1. Support communications and education regarding the accreditation program.
2. Establish a process of continuous improvement of the accreditation standards, tools, and processes to ensure a relevant, current and smoothly functioning program (all elements of the current program can be found at www.phaboard.org).
3. Strengthen strategic partnerships to support accreditation.
4. Strengthen the evidence base for accreditation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

Per CDC-RFA-OT13-1301, Part II Section D.15 Funding Restrictions, page 27. Detailed budget restrictions will be specified in corresponding most recent Notice of Award. Public Health assigns these funds for this Budget Activity.

Applicant Eligibility:

PHAB was found to be uniquely qualified, as it is the organization that has been established as the national accrediting body for state, tribal, local and territorial health departments. PHAB was determined to have the experience and program infrastructure, which includes field-driven and tested standards, measures and accreditation assessment process. PHAB is also widely accepted as the national accrediting body for state, local tribal and territorial health departments by the constituency organizations for these agencies and as evidenced by the visible mention of PHAB within national policy documents (e.g., Institute of Medicine reports, Healthy People 2020).

Beneficiary Eligibility:

93.099 COLLABORATION WITH THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION AND ITS REGIONAL OFFICES FOR GLOBAL HEALTH SECURITY AND THE INTERNATIONAL HEALTH REGULATIONS (IHR 2005)FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 307 as amended [42 U.S.C. 241 and 2421].

OBJECTIVES:

On September 19, 2011, the Government of the United States of America and the World Health Organization (WHO) signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) to help WHO Member States strengthen their capabilities to support the International Health Regulations (IHR), an international agreement that requires Member States to prevent and respond to acute public health risks that have the potential to cross borders. The MOU includes specific statements that authorize WHO and its regional offices to pursue activities that improve the ability of all nations to detect, report, and respond to infectious diseases quickly and accurately. The purpose is to assist WHO in implementing the MOU regarding the International Health Regulations, including the development and implementation of coordinated plans and networks that enable national governments and regional authorities globally to better address infectious diseases, particularly emerging infections. Specific activities will focus on improving infectious disease surveillance and response; enhancing knowledge generation, innovation, and tools for improved management that build public health infrastructure and strengthen regional health leadership and collaboration; sharing knowledge, tools and other resources in support of applied epidemiology; and developing improved infectious disease surveillance, prevention and control strategies.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Support implementation of the IHR by analyzing regional, national, and local resources devoted to infectious diseases and identifying areas for implementation of infectious disease activities consistent with the purpose of this cooperative agreement. Develop, implement, and conduct projects to enhance infectious disease surveillance, response, prevention, and control. Strengthen regional and national public health networks and inter-sectorial co-operation and collaborate with other health organizations, academic institutions, and community groups as appropriate to accomplish program activities. Strengthen regional and national public health leadership and collaboration. Monitor and evaluate overall program performance and the progress of individual projects or activities. Publish and disseminate findings, program evaluations, and lessons learned. Recipients may not use funds for research.

Recipients may not use funds for clinical care.

Recipients may only expend funds for reasonable program purposes, including personnel, travel, supplies, and services, such as contractual.

Awardees may not generally use HHS/CDC/ATSDR funding for the purchase of furniture or equipment. Any such proposed spending must be identified in the budget.

The direct and primary recipient in a cooperative agreement program must perform a substantial role in carrying out project objectives and not merely serve as a conduit for an award to another party or provider who is ineligible.

Reimbursement of pre-award costs is not allowed.

Applicant Eligibility:

Only the World Health Organization and its regional offices are eligible to apply. For purposes of this document, the term WHO includes its regional offices (e.g., PAHO, EMRO, AFRO, SEARO, etc). WHO is the only international and intergovernmental agency qualified to conduct activities under this cooperative agreement because:

WHO is an international public health agency that works to improve health and living standards globally. WHO is part of the United Nations system. As such, WHO has a unique position among the worlds health agencies as the lead technical agency for health globally. For additional information, please see <http://www.who.org>

WHO and its Regional Offices are at the apex of global public health organizations and thus have an exclusive status as the United States governments key partners for global public health.

On September 19, 2011, the Government of the United States of America and the World Health Organization signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) to help developing nations strengthen their capabilities to support the International Health Regulations (IHR). The IHR (2005) is an international agreement that requires WHO Member States to prevent and respond to acute public health risks that have the potential to cross borders and threaten people worldwide. The U.S. Government and WHO share a commitment to strengthen cooperation in the area of global health security to ensure that the international community effectively manages public health risks. Improving the ability of all nations to detect, report, and respond to infectious diseases quickly and accurately lies at the heart of the global communitys ability to address all infectious disease threats, as reflected in the IHR. The MOU establishes a framework for collaboration in line with the provisions set forth in the IHR, which provides a construct for coordinating the management of actions in the event of a public health emergency of international concern. The MOU was signed by Secretary Kathleen Sebelius, Department of Health and Human Services, and Director-General Margaret Chan, World Health Organization, and subsequently by Ambassador Betty E. King, United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations in Geneva. The full text of the MOU can be accessed at:

<http://www.globalhealth.gov/global-health-topics/health-diplomacy/agreements-and-regulations/20110922-mem.html>.

The MOU includes the following specific statements that support sole-source consideration of WHO and its regional offices (including PAHO) for funding activities that fall under the scope of the MOU: Section 8.a.: The United States Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) continues to serve as the primary substantive interface with WHO on global health and health security. DHHS plans to ensure coordination with other U.S. Government departments, agencies, and entities that collaborate on health matters within the scope of this Memorandum to enhance the effectiveness of such activities. The U.S. Government agencies intend to develop programs and provide funds through mechanisms that may be determined jointly by the U.S. Government agency and WHO. Section 8.b.: Specific funding mechanisms are intended to be developed and U.S. Government agencies intend to collaborate with WHO to define specific work to be undertaken by the Participants and the division of responsibilities..

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Social Security Act, Title V, Section 502(a)(1) and (b)(1), as amended; 42 U.S.C. 702.; Section 399BB of the Public Health Service Act; Section 1109, 1111 and 1112 of the Public Health Service Act and Section 399T of the Public Health Service Act.

OBJECTIVES:

To carry out special maternal and child health (MCH) projects of regional and national significance; to conduct training and research; to conduct genetic disease testing, counseling, and information development and dissemination programs; for grants relating to hemophilia without regard to age; and for the screening of newborns for sickle cell anemia, and other genetic disorders. and to support comprehensive hemophilia diagnostic and treatment centers. These grants are funded with a set-aside from the MCH Block grant program. SPRANS grants are funded with 15 percent of the Block Grant appropriation of up to $600 million. When the appropriation exceeds $600 million, 12.75 percent of the amount over $600 million is set aside for the Community Integrated Service Systems grants. 15 percent of the balance remaining over $600 million is also for SPRANS. The CISS program is to develop and expand the following: (1) Home visitation; (2) increased participation of obstetricians and pediatricians; (3) integrated service delivery systems; (4) maternal and child health centers for women and infants, under the direction of a not-for-profit hospital; (5) services for rural populations; and (6) community-based services for children with special health care needs in order to enhance or develop an integrated services system. In FY 2008 Congress first funded the Combating Autism Act program, which is for early detection, education and intervention activities on autism and other developmental disorders.

First funded in 2004, the Heritable Disorders Program is established to improve the ability of States to provide newborn and child screening for heritable disorders and affect the lives of all of the nations infants and children. Newborn and child screening occur at intervals across the life span of every child. Newborn screening universally provides early identification and follow-up for treatment of infants affected by certain genetic, metabolic, hormonal and/or functional conditions. It is expected that newborn and child screening will expand as the capacity to screen for genetic and congenital conditions expands.

First funded in 2009, the Congenital Conditions program is established to provide information and support services to women and their families that have received a diagnosis for Down Syndrome, Spina Bifida, Dwarfism and other prenatally or postnatally diagnosed conditions.

93.113 ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Sections 301, 401, 437, 463 and 487, Public Laws 78-410 and 99-158, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 241, and 42 U.S.C. 288, as amended, SBIR and STTR Reauthorization Act of 2011, Public Law 113-6.

OBJECTIVES:

To foster understanding of human health effects of exposure to environmental agents in the hope that these studies will lead to: the identification of agents that pose a hazard and threat of disease, disorders and defects in humans; the development of effective public health or disease prevention strategies; the overall improvement of human health effects due to environmental agents; the development of products and technologies designed to better study or ameliorate the effects of environmental agents; and the successful training of research scientists in all areas of environmental health research. Supported grant programs focus on the following areas: (1) Understanding biological responses to environmental agents by determining how chemical and physical agents cause pathological changes in molecules, cells, tissues, and organs, and become manifested as respiratory disease, neurological, behavioral and developmental abnormalities, cancer, and other disorders; (2) Determining the mechanisms of toxicity of ubiquitous agents like metals, natural and synthetic chemicals, pesticides, and materials such as nanoparticles, and natural toxic substances, and their effects of on various human organ systems, on metabolism, on the endocrine and immune systems, and on other biological functions; (3) Developing and integrating scientific knowledge about potentially toxic and hazardous chemicals by concentrating on toxicological research, testing, test development, validation and risk estimation; (4) Identifying interactions between environmental stressors and genetic susceptibility and understanding biologic mechanisms underlying these interactions, including the study of environmental influences on epigenomics and transcriptional regulation; (5) Conducting environmental public health research, including in areas of environmental justice and health disparities, that requires communities as active participants in all stages of research, dissemination, and evaluation to advance both the science and the development of practical materials for use in communities, with a focus on translating research findings into tools, materials, and resources that can be used to prevent, reduce, or eliminate adverse health outcomes caused by environmental exposures; (6) Expanding and improving the SBIR program; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation; (7) Expanding and improving the STTR program to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation; (8) Providing support for broadly based multi-disciplinary research and training programs in environmental health. These programs include the Environmental Health Sciences Core Centers, which serve as national focal points and resources for research and manpower development. The Centers for Neurodegenerative Science addresses the need for integrated research efforts involving basic and clinical scientists in a quest to discover the causes of and possible treatments for neurodegenerative diseases. The Breast Cancer and the Environment Research Program (co-funded with NCI) studies the impact of prenatal-to-adult environmental exposures that may predispose a woman to breast cancer. A special emphasis is on the impact of environmental factors on a girl's pubertal development, a known risk factor for breast cancer. Through these programs, NIEHS expects to achieve the long range goal of developing new clinical and public health applications to improve disease prevention, diagnosis, and therapy. Additional Centers programs developed in recent years, include the Centers for Oceans and Human Health (co-funded with NSF), Children's Environmental Health Centers (co-funded with US EPA) and the Autism Centers of Excellence (co-funded with other NIH Institutes) and the ; (9) Supporting research training programs which serve to increase the pool of trained research manpower with needed expertise in the Environmental Health Sciences through support of Individual and Institutional National Research Service Awards (NRSA's); (10) The Outstanding New Environmental Scientist Program which provides first time research grant funding to outstanding junior scientists in the formative stages of their career who are proposing to make a long term commitment to environmental health sciences research and to address the adverse effects on environmental exposures on human biology, human pathophysiology and human disease.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants and Cooperative Agreements are intended to support the direct costs of a project, in accordance with an approved budget, plus an appropriate amount for indirect costs. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I, scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of the Phase II application. A number of Career Development awards are supported. The Independent Scientist Award provides up to five years of salary support for newly independent scientists who have recently obtained independent research funding, generally an R01 research grant from NIEHS. The award is intended to allow the candidate protected time to focus on the further development of the independent research career and does not include additional research support. The Mentored Clinical Research Career Development Award provides three to five years of salary support for investigators with clinical degrees (e.g., M.D., D.V.M.). The Transition to Independent Environmental Health Research (TIEHR) Career Development Award provides three years of support for candidates who are within three years of their first independent faculty appointment and who have not yet obtained significant research grant funding (an R01 or equivalent). The award includes salary support and pilot funding. The Mentored Patient-Oriented Research Career Development Award provides up to five years of support for clinically trained investigators who make a commitment to focus on patient-oriented research. The MidCareer Investigator Award in Patient-Oriented Research provides up to five years of support to outstanding clinical scientists who are actively engaged in patient-oriented research and who are within 15 years of their specialty training. The Mentored Quantitative Research Development Award provides up to five years of support for junior faculty with quantitative scientific and engineering backgrounds outside of biology or medicine that are transitioning to behavioral or biomedical research. The NIH Pathway to Independence Award is divided into two phases. The initial award (K99) provides up to two years of mentored, postdoctoral support. The second phase (R00) provides up to three years of independent research support, when the awardee accepts a full-time tenure track, or equivalent, faculty position. All of these Career Development awards provide salary consistent with the level of effort devoted to the research career development activities, plus fringe benefits, an allowance for career development activities and 8 percent fiscal and administrative costs. All Career Development Awards, with the exception of the NIH Pathway to Independence Award, have a US citizenship requirement. Details of specific restrictions for the Career Development Awards can be found at <http://www.niehs.nih.gov/careers/research/trainingfrom/career/index.cfm>. NIEHS Core Center grants (P30) are primarily intended to provide infrastructure support and the support of core research facilities. In addition, an appropriate facilities and administrative cost is provided as determined by negotiated agreement with the grantee's cognizant government organization. National Research Service Awards (NRSA's): Individual predoctoral and postdoctoral training awards are made for the support of fellows who engage in research training in environmental toxicology, environmental pathology, environmental mutagenesis, or environmental epidemiology/biostatistics. In addition to individual training awards, institutional training grants (T32) are made to institutions to enable institutions to make awards to individuals selected by them, for both predoctoral and postdoctoral research training in the aforementioned areas. Each individual who receives a postdoctoral NRSA, either through an institutional or individual training award mechanism, is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Grants, Cooperative Agreements, Science Education Grants, SBIR Grants, Independent Scientist Awards, Mentored Research Scientist Development Award, Mentored Clinical Scientist Development Award, and the Academic Career Awards: A university, college, hospital, State, local or tribal governments, nonprofit research institution, or for-profit organization may submit an application and receive a grant for support of research by a named principal investigator. Candidates for Academic Career Awards and Midcareer Investigator Awards in Patient Oriented Research must have a doctoral degree and peer-reviewed, independent, research support at the time the award is made. Candidates for Mentored Clinical Scientist Development Awards and Mentored Patient Oriented Research Career Development Awards must have a clinical degree or its equivalent and must have initiated post graduate clinical training. Candidates holding a Ph.D. degree are ineligible. Candidates who have served as principal investigators on PHS-supported research projects are ineligible. A candidate for Academic Career Awards must have a clinical or research doctorate degree. Those eligible for the Development Award must be able to devote at least 75 percent effort. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. Centers: A university-based, nonprofit research institution, or for-profit organization proposing an integrated research program established to accomplish a stated mission, covering activities ranging from very basic research to the actual application of research results in the prevention and control of environmental health problems, may submit an application under the direction of a named Center Director. 93.121 ORAL DISEASES AND DISORDERS RESEARCH

Dental and Craniofacial Research.

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Section 301; 2012 Defense Authorization Act.

OBJECTIVES:

To improve oral, dental and craniofacial health through research, research training, and the dissemination of health information. The research portfolio supports basic, clinical and translational research from molecular biology to patient-oriented and community-based clinical investigations. The Developmental Biology and Genetics Program supports research on etiology, pathogenesis, epidemiology, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of inherited craniofacial-oral-dental diseases and disorders (e.g., ectodermal dysplasia, cleft lip and palate, amelogenesis imperfecta, dentinogenesis imperfecta, osteogenesis imperfecta, and other inherited diseases that have craniofacial-oral-dental manifestations) as well as on normal craniofacial-oral-dental development, and genome-wide association studies. 2. The Translational Genetics and Genomics program supports genetic/genomic research using epidemiologic and family-based methods, gene discovery using high throughput technologies, and gene-environment interactions. 3. The Microbiology Program supports basic and translational research on the role of oral microbes in health and disease including the etiology, pathogenesis, diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of oral infectious diseases. Areas of interest include biofilms and microbial ecology, microbial genomics and metagenomics, microbial virulence and disease pathogenesis, prevention and treatment. 4. The AIDS and Immunosuppression Program supports basic, translational and clinical research on HIV infection and AIDS to advance understanding of the underlying molecular, cellular, and genetic mechanisms that enable or prevent HIV infection and development of oral complications associated with AIDS and AIDS malignancies. 5. The Immunology and Immunotherapy Program supports basic and translational research on the immune aspects of oral diseases such as caries and periodontal diseases. The program includes host responses to microbes, immunology of biofilms, oral inflammation, systemic diseases, immunotherapy, immunopathologies, and host susceptibility to infection. 6. The Epithelial Cell Regulation and Transformation Program supports basic and translational research on the molecular mechanisms of oral epithelial cell regulation as they relate to the development and progression of diseases of the oral mucosa, including head and neck cancer. The program also supports and encourages the application of genomic, proteomic, and imaging technologies through research on the early diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of head and neck cancers. 7. The Mineralized Tissue and Salivary

Gland Physiology Program supports basic and translational research on craniofacial skeletal biology and pathobiology including the physiology of tooth, bone and cartilage, and associated disorders and diseases, saliva and salivary glands, and pharmacogenetics. The goal of the program is to promote interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approaches to advance the understanding of normal and abnormal processes underlying oral, dental and craniofacial diseases and disorders. 8. The Molecular and Cellular Neuroscience Program supports basic and translational research on orofacial pain and neuropathies, temporomandibular joint and muscle disorders, development of biomarkers for diagnostics and prognostics and development of therapeutics. 9. The Tissue Engineering and Dental and Craniofacial Regenerative Medicine Program supports basic and translational research on the reconstruction, remodeling and repair of the oral and craniofacial tissues damaged as a result of disease or injury. The goal of this scientific program is to promote interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approaches to engineering of biocompatible oral and craniofacial tissue constructs and their functional integration into the host tissue microenvironment. The program also supports efforts that employ bioengineering approaches for restoration, remodeling and regeneration of diseased and injured native host tissues. 10. The Dental and Biomaterials Program supports basic and translational extramural research on dental materials and devices, dental implants, biocompatibility of dental restorative materials, and biomaterials for craniofacial reconstruction. 11. The Behavioral and Social Sciences Research Program supports basic and applied BSS research to promote oral health, to prevent oral diseases and related disabilities, and to improve management of craniofacial conditions, disorders and injury. 12. The Center for Clinical Research supports clinical trials, dental practice based research networks, epidemiology research, and health disparities research. The Research Training and Career Development Program insures the future of dental and craniofacial research by developing an outstanding and diverse scientific work force through training and fellowship programs designed primarily for graduate, and post-doctoral stages of education, including dual degree (DDS, PhD) programs, as well as for continued career development of scientists and retraining of mid-career scientists. Diversity fellowships serve to expand the diversity of the scientific work force by supporting the training of predoctoral students from underrepresented groups. The Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program seeks to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. The Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program seeks to stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation and foster technology transfer through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation.

Research Grants: Research Grants and cooperative agreements provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation in the oral health sciences. They are awarded to universities, colleges, medical and dental schools, hospitals, and other nonprofit and for-profit institutions. Awards include investigator-initiated project grants, exploratory and developmental grants, small grants, program project grants, center grants, and career development awards. Individual and institutional Dentist Scientist Awards provide support for research career development in both clinical and basic science. National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) provide support directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical areas, and can be made to institutions to enable them to accept individuals for research training. Individuals who receive NRSAs may be obligated upon termination of the award to comply with service and payback provisions. SBIR Phase I grants (duration of approximately 6 months) provide support to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants support the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I to further develop the commercial products or process initiated in Phase I. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (duration of typically 1 year) support cooperative efforts between small businesses and research institutes to determine the scientific and technical merit, and commercial feasibility of a product or process with potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on the results of the research initiated in Phase I and the scientific and technical merit, and commercial potential of the Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Grants: Scientists at universities, medical and dental schools, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit and for-profit institutions. NRSA and career development awards: (1) Nonprofit domestic organizations may apply for institutional awards. (2) Individual candidates or applicants must arrange sponsorship by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. Award Procedure:

Grants: All accepted applications competing for research project grants, career development awards, and NSRA awards are reviewed by two advisory groups. Primary review is conducted by an initial review group composed of extramural peer scientists, and secondary review by the National Advisory Dental and Craniofacial Research Council (NADCRC). Secondary review of NRSA fellowship applications is conducted by NIDCR staff rather than by the NADCRC. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate initial review group and by the NADCRC. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

Donation and Transplantation Community of Practice (DTCP) Initiatives to Increase Organ Donation
Fiscal Year 2012:

The Organ Donation and Transplantation Alliance (the Alliance) improved team building and collaboration through the DSA Action Team Meeting. Focused learning was provided through an Executive Leadership Summit and Performance Improvement Summit. Three task forces were conducted to address issues in donor management, quality improvement, and transplant center engagement. Web-based efforts provided approximately 5500 educational experiences. Foundation for improved multicultural training the following year was laid with key leaders in the community. The process of national DTCP strategic planning was strengthened by engaging key organizations in a planning network. Collaborative conversion rate at end of the fiscal year was 76.8%, continuing to show incremental improvement, remaining above the targeted level of 75%. Proportion of Donation after Circulatory Death at end of the fiscal year was 13.6%, continuing to show incremental improvement, remaining above the targeted level of 10%. Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Organ Donation Grant Program

Since launching this program in FY 1999, HRSA/DoT has supported 96 research projects totaling $77 million to test strategies for increasing organ and tissue donation or to replicate successful donation interventions. A broad spectrum of interventions to increase donation have been implemented at the national, State, and local levels by a variety of public and private organizations, ranging from large-scale national media and public education programs and statewide donor registries to community-based activities to raise awareness among various population groups. These projects have contributed to the knowledge base about important factors associated with the donation decision-making process and methods for motivating people to make the commitment to become organ donors.

Public Education Efforts to Increase Organ Donation
Since FY 2007, 21 projects totaling $12 million have been supported under this grant program. Projects have implemented projects to increase organ donation registration and knowledge about living donation. These projects also have contributed to the knowledge base about important factors associated with the donation decision-making process and methods for motivating people to make the commitment to become organ donors.

Donation and Transplantation Community of Practice (DTCP) Initiatives to Increase Organ Donation
Fiscal Year 2013:
(first ten months) The Alliance engaged the community in a National Learning Congress with more than 1200 participants. Three task forces were conducted to address issues in donor management, quality improvement, and transplant center engagement, producing products including brain death declaration education, clinical practice and management toolboxes, comprehensive quality process report, and meaningful performance goals. Focused education initiatives scheduled for last two months include Pediatrics Summit, Performance Improvement and Executive leadership Summits, Donor Management Summit, and multicultural training. Four webinar series continue, with educational experiences expected to reach 7000. A multi-organizational network is expected to produce and refine the national DTCP strategic plan.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2012: Fiscal Year 2012: In 2012 two Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Solid Organ Donation grants were awarded. Both grants seek to increase knowledge of living donation, one among Native Americans through story-telling and the second among kidney transplant candidates. In 2012 three Public Education Efforts to Increase Solid Organ Donation grants were awarded. The goal of all three grants is to increase organ donor registration among their target audience, one through targeted messaging at department of motor vehicle offices, one through targeted messaging to 50-64 year olds, and the third through an electronic health information system.
Fiscal Year 2013: Reimbursement of Travel and Subsistence Expenses toward Living Organ Donation Program (FY 2010 through FY 2013): HRSA awards a cooperative agreement to the Regents of the University of Michigan to continue the operations of the National Living Donor Assistance Center to provide reimbursement of travel and subsistence expenses to living organ donors who meet the program eligibility guidelines. Transplant centers screen prospective donors for program eligibility requirements and submit applications and supporting documents to the program on behalf of their prospective donors.

Donation and Transplantation Community of Practice Initiatives to Increase Organ Donation FY2011 through FY 2013): This program engages one recipient, the Organ Donation and Transplantation Alliance, in the strategic development and implementation of a comprehensive group of programs and professional experiences to increase organ donation and transplantation in the United States. In the first six months of the project, the Alliance conducted meetings and webinars to improve organ donor management; quality improvement; action team processes; transplant program effectiveness; and support and advocacy for donors, donor families, and staff involved in these cases, Clinical Interventions to Increase Organ Procurement Grant Program: HRSA funded two projects in FY 2011 to support for the implementation of highly promising research into improvements in clinical management of deceased organ donors.

Fiscal Year 2013: In 2013 four Social and Behavioral Interventions to Increase Solid Organ Donation grants were awarded. Two of the grants will support organ procurement organization staff by testing new training on communication improvement strategies to improve consent rates. One grant project seeks to educate hospital staff on the donation process to create an environment more positively disposed to donation and thus increase consent rates. The fourth grant builds upon previous grants educating dialysis patients about transplantation, including living donation. In 2013 no grants were funded under the Public Education Efforts to Increase Solid Organ Donation program. Fiscal Year 2014: No Current Data Available

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2012: During FY 2012 WETP developed and implemented services to Spanish-speaking workers - meeting their needs for training they can understand and implement. The WETP prepared for disasters that are certain to occur; for example, curricula and trainers are being prepared for the requirements of a long-term response to a major, chemical disaster. And the WETP continued to maintain a gold standard of safety and health training - real hands-on and classroom training that our evaluations show reduces occupational death, disease, and injury. Fiscal Year 2013: WETP will continue to provide occupational safety and health education in developing and delivering high quality training to workers who are involved in handling hazardous waste or in responding to emergency releases of hazardous materials. Funded awardee information is available at the following website: http://www.niehs.nih.gov/careers/hazmat/programs/hwwt/hwwt_awardees/index.cfm. EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Fiscal Year 2012: In Fiscal Year 2012, NIEHS Superfund Research Program renewed three multi-project center grants (<http://tools.niehs.nih.gov/srp/programs/index267.cfm>). One grant provides $13.2 million over a period of five years to study the health effects and geochemistry of arsenic and manganese. Included in its investigations area longitudinal epidemiologic study to evaluate the effects of arsenic exposure in a population in Bangladesh; consequences of As and Mn exposure on children's health; and impact of nutrition on arsenic-induced epigenetic dysregulation. This research endeavor is intimately intertwined with other research projects that will look at arsenic, iron, sulfur and organic carbon speciation, and their impact on groundwater arsenic; application of enhanced mitigation methods for groundwater As at US Superfund Sites; and defining the sustainable uses of low-As aquifers in Bangladesh.

Another previously funded multi-project grant was awarded $14.5 million over a period of five years. Under this grant, investigators are gaining new perspectives on the molecular and genetic basis of the biological effects of toxicant exposure leading to new methodologies for gauging health risks and assessing health effects; innovative detection and monitoring systems for toxicity; and novel models for bioremediation. Using the prior observation that chemical exposure leads to alterations in patterns of gene expression, which are controlled and regulated by underlying signal transduction pathways, the researchers will test the hypothesis that alterations in biological response by Superfund site chemicals can be exploited to develop models for the detection and bioremediation of chemical toxicants. The investigators have also formed partnerships with local industry and community groups to develop biological tools for assessment of exposure levels arising from waterborne pollutants in order to predict health risk.

In the third grant renewal, $11.6 million was awarded over five years to identify receptor-based toxic effects of superfund chemicals on development and reproduction in humans and wildlife. The chemicals under study are organic compounds of special interest to the SRP mandate that initiate their toxic actions by interacting with specific molecules inside cells called receptors that can lead to cell development alterations. A special feature of this research center is a coordinated set of parallel projects examining molecular and population effects of developmental toxins in the standard laboratory zebra fish model and a widespread environmental sentinel, the killifish. Epidemiological studies of developmental and reproductive outcomes from exposure to the high-prevalence Superfund chemicals perchloroethylene (PCE, tetrachloroethene), PCBs, the pesticide methoxychlor, phthalate, organotins and metals target knowledge gaps identified as special research needs by EPA/ATSDR. A major feature is the development of novel methods to address some of the most difficult problems associated with the typical hazardous waste epidemiological and toxicological datasets, temporal spatial distribution and interaction in mixtures.

In 2011, NIEHS Superfund Research Program released an Request for Applications (RFA), Innovative Bioavailability Assays to Assess the Effectiveness of Contaminated Sediment Remediation for individual investigator project grants. In response to this RFA, in 2012 five grants were awarded for a period of three years. These grants were directed to the development of innovative assays of bioavailability that may be used to determine the effectiveness of sediment remediation in reducing risks to humans. The ultimate goals of funding grants under this solicitation are two-fold: first, to develop and introduce new tools to assess whether remediation efforts are protective of human health; and second, to increase use of bioavailability in risk assessment through providing scientifically-valid, practical, and cost-effective tools. Additional information for these awards can be found at (<http://tools.niehs.nih.gov/srp/programs/r01current.cfm>).

Also in Fiscal Year 2012, the NIEHS Superfund Research Program, funded a new Small Business Innovative Research grant (<http://tools.niehs.nih.gov/srp/programs/index269.cfm>) for a total of $141,000. The grant will be for detection of hazardous substances. Fiscal Year 2013: No current data are available for Fiscal Year 2013. Fiscal Year 2014: No current data are available for Fiscal Year 2014.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Major factors considered in the evaluation of responsive applications include: (1) Scientific merit of each proposed project, including the novelty, originality, and feasibility of the approach and the adequacy of the experimental design; (2) technical merit and justification of each core unit; (3) competence of the investigators to accomplish the proposed research goals, their commitments, and the amount of time they will devote to the program; (4) scope of the overall effort in relation to the objective of the program to create unique interdisciplinary programs to eventually include, not only biomedical components, but also engineering, ecological and/or hydrogenological components; (5) adequacy of the facilities to perform the proposed research; (6) integration of the various projects and core units into an effective program and plans for interactions among investigators; (7) adequacy and commitment of institutional resources to administer an integrated, collaborative program; (8) appropriateness of the budget for the proposed program; (9) relevance of proposed research to problems associated with hazardous waste substances; and (10) progress of program to date for completing renewal applications.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Procedures for assessing the technical merit of grant applications have been instituted to provide an objective review of applications and to assist the applicant in understanding the standards against which each application will be judged. Critical indicators have been developed for each review criterion to assist the applicant in presenting pertinent information related to that criterion and to provide the reviewer with a standard for evaluation. Competing applications are reviewed by nonfederal reviewers for technical merit recommendations in the following areas:

The Centers of Excellence has 7 criteria:

(1) NEED - The extent to which the application provides a description of a) the problem, and the associated contributing factors. b) the need with respect to students, faculty development, and URMs in the health professions, and c) geographic factors, such as the size of the area that will be served, and any regional issues.

(2) RESPONSE The extent to which project responds to the Purpose included in the program description. This includes the clarity of the proposed goals and objectives and their relationship to the identified project and achieving the seven legislative requirements. The extent to which the activities (scientific or other) described in the application are capable of addressing the problem and attaining the project objectives.

(3) EVALUATIVE MEASURES - The effectiveness of the method proposed to monitor and evaluate the project results. Evaluative measures must be able to assess to what extent the program objectives have been met and to what extent these can be attributed to the project.

(4) IMPACT - The extent and effectiveness of the dissemination plans for the project results, the degree to which the project results may be national in scope, the degree to which the project activities are replicable, the sustainability of the program beyond the Federal funding and established linkages/collaboration with key stakeholders. It may include the extent to which COE project outcomes and results are disseminated to the Health Professions Education community regionally or nationally.

(5) RESOURCES /CAPABILITIES The extent to which project personnel are qualified by training and/or experience to implement and carry out projects. This includes the capabilities of the applicant organization, and the quality and availability of facilities and personnel to fulfill the needs and requirements of the proposed project. This may include whether the health professions school has a significant number of URM individuals enrolled in the school, including individuals accepted for enrollment and successful completion in the school and the extent to which the applicants activities influence the recruitment, training and retention of URM faculty.

(6) SUPPORT REQUESTED - The extent to which the overall budget, including non-trainee expenses, is a) cost effective, reasonable, and consistent with the stated objectives and proposed activities, b) expenditures are well justified, and c) in-kind contributions are documented.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The research project grant is awarded to an eligible institution in the name of a principal investigator for a discrete project or group of related projects representing the investigator's interest and competence. Funds may be used for salaries and wages, equipment, supplies, travel and other costs required to carry out the research project. National Research Service Awards are made directly to individuals for research training in disciplines supporting the research areas. In addition, grants may be made to institutions to enable them to select individuals for National Research Service Awards. Each individual who receives a National Research Service Award is responsible for certain service and payback provisions. Responsibilities of grantees and restrictions on use of funds are set forth in the Public Health Service policy statement on grants for research projects, which is available on request from the Division of Extramural Outreach and Information Resources, Office of Extramural Research, National Institutes of Health (NIH), 6701 Rockledge Drive, Room 6207, MSC 7910, Bethesda, MD 20892-7910. Telephone: (301) 435-0714. Fax (301) 480- 0525. E-mail: asknih.od.nih.gov. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Program: SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6 months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Research Projects: Awards can be made to any public or private, for-profit or nonprofit university, college, hospital, laboratory, or other institution, including State and local units of government, qualifying small businesses (through the Small Business Innovation Research/STTR Programs, and to individuals. To be eligible for funding, a proposal must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review committee and a national advisory council. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed, and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. The grantee institution is obliged to expend grant funds prudently for the purposes as stated in the application and award document. Some National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical and behavioral research areas. Other training grants are made to institutions to enable them to make NRSAs to individuals selected by them. Each postdoctoral individual who receives an NRSA may be obligated, upon termination of the award, to comply with certain service and paycheck provisions. Mentored and unmentored career development awards are made to enhance the independent research capability of highly promising individuals during the formative stages of their careers. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Program: Phase I grants, typically 6 months in duration, are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. SBIR Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research efforts initiated in Phase I and that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. STTR Phase I grant, normally of 1-year duration, are to determine the scientific, technical, and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort. Phase II funding is based on scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the application. Grant funds may be expended only for the purpose stated in the application and award document.

Applicant Eligibility:

Project Grants and Centers Grants: Any public, private, nonprofit, or for-profit institution is eligible to apply. For-profit institutions are not eligible for institutional National Research Service Awards. All proposals are reviewed for scientific merit, for evaluation of the qualifications of the investigators, for adequacy of the research and/or research training environment and for significance of the problem. Approved proposals compete for available funds. Awardees of almost all Research Career Development Programs must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. Title VIII, Section 821 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 296m), as amended by Section 5404 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (P.L. 111-148).

OBJECTIVES:

To support projects that assist underrepresented students throughout the educational pipeline to become registered nurses, facilitate diploma or associate degree registered nurses becoming baccalaureate-prepared registered nurses, and prepare practicing registered nurses for advanced nursing education. 93.197 CHILDHOOD LEAD POISONING PREVENTION PROJECTS STATE AND LOCAL CHILDHOOD LEAD POISONING PREVENTION AND SURVEILLANCE OF BLOOD LEAD LEVELS IN

CHILDREN

(Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program (CLPPP))

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Executive Order Section 317 (k)(2) and 3171 of the Public Health Service Act, [42 U.S.C. Sections 247b and 247b-10], as amended. , Title 42, Part 247b, Section 247b-10.

OBJECTIVES:

To (1) Develop and/or enhance a surveillance system that monitors all blood lead levels; (2) assure that children who are potentially exposed to lead receive follow up care; (3) assure awareness and action among the general public and affected professionals in relation to preventing childhood lead poisoning in high risk areas in collaboration with other government and community based organizations.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Awards are to be used by State and local government agencies to develop, improve, and expand their capacity to address the problem of childhood lead poisoning in communities with demonstrated high-risk populations. Recipients of awards are expected to: (a) write, implement and evaluate a jurisdiction-wide childhood lead poisoning elimination plan; (b) write, implement and evaluate screening plans to target resources to children at the highest risk for lead poisoning; (c) maintain a jurisdiction-wide childhood lead surveillance program, with an analysis plan for collected data, (d) conduct primary prevention activities for pregnant women and/or families with children at high risk for lead poisoning, (e) develop an assurance plan for timely and appropriate case management of children with elevated blood lead levels, (f) demonstrate strategic partnering with community organizations and with other state/local agencies involved in environmental and child health activities, (g) coordinate with organizations and agencies involved in lead-based paint hazard reduction activities and development of protective policy; and (h) evaluate programmatic impact on childhood lead poisoning within the applicant's jurisdiction. Awards cannot supplant existing funding for childhood lead poisoning prevention programs or activities. Grant awards may not be expended for medical care and treatment, or for environmental remediation of lead sources, however, there must be an acceptable plan to ensure that these program activities are appropriately carried out. The surveillance component of this grant is intended to assist State health departments in implementing or enhancing a complete surveillance system to track all PbB levels in children. This is essential for grant recipients to target interventions to high-risk populations and to track progress toward eliminating childhood lead poisoning.

Applicant Eligibility:

Assistance will be provided to State health departments or their bonafide agents and the health departments of the following five local jurisdictions (or their bonafide agents) that have the highest estimated number of children with elevated blood lead levels : New York, NY; Chicago, IL; Detroit, MI; Los Angeles County, CA, and Philadelphia, PA, or their bona fide agents. Also eligible are health departments or other official organizational authorities of the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Republic of Palau, and federally recognized Indian tribal governments. Competition is limited by authorizing legislation.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

In addition to the eligible applicants, others who receive benefits from the program include infants and children from six months to six years of age who are screened for lead poisoning and family members who care for lead-poisoned children. Lead poisoning potentially affects all children, but disproportionately affects minority children and children of low-income families. Since the effects of lead poisoning can be long lasting, benefits of the program can also affect youth and adults, persons at all educational and income levels, and urban, suburban, and rural populations.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicants should document the need for assistance, state the objectives of the project, present their approach to meeting the objectives, and outline the methods of operation. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

This program is subject to the provisions set forth in 45 CFR 92 for State and local governments.

Award Procedure:

Approved grants are funded based on a priority score ranking from an objective review process coordinated by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. CDC will give funding preference to state programs with significant estimated numbers of children with elevated blood lead levels that direct federal funds to localities with high concentrations of children at risk for childhood lead poisoning. CDC will also give funding preference to the five local jurisdictions with the highest estimated number of children with elevated blood lead levels. Awards are made based on availability of funds and other significant factors as deemed necessary and appropriate by the agency. Funds are awarded for a one-year (12 month period). A Notice of Grant Award (Form PHS 5161-1) is provided which indicates the current award as well as support recommendations for the remainder of the project period (up to three years). 93.211 TELEHEALTH PROGRAMS

There are three separate telehealth programs as follows:

Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP)

Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP)

Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP)

FEDERAL AGENCY:

Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

The Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) Sec. 330I(d)(1) of Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 254c-14(d)(1), as amended. ; The Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP) is authorized by: Sec. 330I(d)(2) of Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 254c-14(d)(2), as amended by the Health Care Safety Net Amendments of 2002 (P.L. 107-251); The Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) is authorized by Section 330L of Public Health Service Act as amended, (42 USC 254c-18).

OBJECTIVES:

The purpose of the Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) is to fund grants to demonstrate how telehealth networks improve healthcare services in rural communities.

The Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP) is designed to expand the availability of technical assistance in the development of telehealth services, leveraging the experience of mature programs with expertise in providing and implementing telehealth services.

The Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) supports State professional licensing boards to carry out programs under which licensing boards of various States cooperate to develop and implement State policies that will reduce statutory and regulatory barriers to telemedicine.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) - Funds support the use of telehealth networks (electronic information and telecommunications technologies to support and promote long-distance health care and ancillary services) for improving access to health care services; provide a baseline of information for a systematic evaluation of telehealth systems; purchase or lease and install equipment; and to operate and evaluate the telehealth system.

Overall, not more than 40 percent of grant funds may be expended for equipment. Not more than 15 percent of grant funds may be expended for indirect costs. Grant funds may not be used for purchasing and installing telecommunications transmission equipment (e.g., microwave towers, satellite dishes, amplifiers, digital switching equipment or laying cable or telephone lines) or to acquire real property. Construction costs are allowable only for minor renovations related to the installation of equipment.

Important: The Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) seeks to fund non-profit or public organizations with a network of partners in place and committed to the project as of the date of application. Projects with prospective network partners not committed to the project will not be competitive. Applicants failing to submit verifiable information with respect to the commitment of network partners will not be funded. Projects selected for funding must provide clinical services for which performance measures can be developed. In addition, an applicant must provide evidence to show that it will be ready to begin to implement the project upon grant award.

Applicants must provide an evaluation design to measure quantitative outcomes, which should be measured in the following areas: impact on quality of care; appropriateness of use of the technology; whether access was improved; whether clinical outcomes were improved; and, how the cost of service delivery was affected in terms of efficiency and effectiveness of care. Of particular interest will be programs that can clearly measure the costs of their telehealth services and measure the impact of the telehealth program on :

- 1) improving access to health care services for residents of communities that did not have such services locally before the program;
- 2) hospitalization rates and emergency room visit rates per year for patients receiving disease management services for diabetes, congestive heart failure, stroke and other chronic diseases, as well as for patients receiving home care/home monitoring services;
- 3) controlling blood glucose levels in diabetic patients;
- 4) improving the efficiency of health care;
- 5) reducing medical errors; and,
- 6) other clear outcome measures.

Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP) - Funds support the establishment and development of Telehealth Resource Centers (TRCs), which serve as a focus for the provision of telehealth technical assistance across the country. Funds support both Regional Telehealth Resource Centers and two national Telehealth Resource Centers. One National TRC will focus on providing specialized technical assistance in telehealth technology. Technical assistance will be provided in the following areas: requirements for specific technologies to be used for specific clinical applications; advances in m-health including software and hardware; assessing organizations need for telehealth technology including specific cost effective solutions; multiple software systems and their application in EHRs (not specific product lines); provider and patient medical information and education; direct patient care and remote patient monitoring; and current data delivery mechanisms. The other National TRC will focus on policy issues such as state and national policies and initiatives regarding telehealth; legal and regulatory issues regarding e-Prescribing; National telecommunications implications for telehealth and the policies of the Federal Communication Commissions (FCC) National Broadband Plan; Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, and private insurance payment policies. Grant funds are used for salaries, equipment, operating, travel expenses, or other costs for: providing technical assistance, training and support; disseminating information and research findings related to telehealth services; promoting effective collaboration among telehealth resource centers and HRSA; conducting evaluations to determine the best utilization of telehealth technologies to meet health care needs; promoting the integration of the technologies used in clinical information systems with other telehealth technologies; fostering the use of telehealth technologies to effectively provide healthcare information and education for health care providers and consumers; and, implementing special projects that involve collaboration among TRCs to advance the field of telehealth. Grant funds are not used for: acquiring real property; equipment costs of more than 40 percent of total grant funds; for equipment or transmission costs not directly related to the grant purposes; to purchase or install general purpose voice telephone systems; construction costs; and indirect costs exceeding 15 percent of total grant funds.

Per Section 330I(g)(5) of the Public Health Service Act (42 USC 254c-14), applicants must provide information on the source and amount of non-Federal funds that the entity will provide for the project.

Important for both Regional and National TRCs:

The grantee and their partners must have experience in providing technical assistance related to the provision of telehealth services. The grantee must establish a baseline level of activity and then measure performance. Specific areas to measure/address are: Satisfaction, Efficiency, Effectiveness and Sustainability. In addition consortiums must be established and able to demonstrate a history of working together. A signed consortium agreement that outlines tasks must be provided.

The Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) - Grant funds are used for salaries, equipment, software development, operating, or other costs associated with developing legislative, administrative, and technical projects to address licensure barriers that hinder the practice of telemedicine across state lines. Grant funds may also be used for activities involving significant expansion of existing state agreements for cross-state recognition of professional licenses to other states.

Applicant Eligibility:

Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) - A grantee must be a nonprofit or public entity that will provide services through a Telehealth Network (TNGP) to rural communities. Proof of non-profit status is required. Each entity participating in the network may be a nonprofit or for-profit entity. Faith-based and community based organizations are eligible under the Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP).

Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP) - A grantee must be a public or private nonprofit organization. Faith-based, tribal and community based organizations are eligible to apply. Services may be provided to rural or urban communities.

Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) - A grantee must be a State professional licensing board, or a national organization of professional licensing boards that provides services to state licensing boards. Note: American Indian and/or Alaska Native Tribal Organizations are eligible provided those organizations meet the eligibility requirements above.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Telehealth Network Grant Program (TNGP) - Health care providers in rural areas, in medically underserved areas, in frontier communities, and for medically underserved populations. TNGP grantees include in the network at least two (2) of the following entities (at least one (1) of which shall be a community-based health care provider: (a) community or migrant health centers or other federally qualified health centers; (b) health care providers, including pharmacists, in private practice; (c) entities operating clinics, including rural health clinics; (d) local health departments; (e) nonprofit hospitals, including community (critical) access hospitals; (f) other publicly funded health or social service agencies; (g) long-term care providers; (h) providers of health care services in the home; (i) providers of outpatient mental health services and entities operating outpatient mental health facilities; (j) local or regional emergency health care providers; (k) institutions of higher education; or (l) entities operating dental clinics.

Telehealth Resource Center Grant Program (TRCGP) - Health care providers in rural areas, in medically underserved areas, in frontier communities, and medically underserved populations. The regional telehealth resource centers must support the activities of existing or developing telehealth networks in their regions to meet the health care needs of rural or other populations to be served, including the improvement of access to services and the quality of the services received by those populations. Regional TRCs should have expertise in at least seven (7) of the following areas: A wide Range of Clinical Telemedicine Services; Telecommunications Technologies; Critical or Emergency Care; Residential telehealth (home care)/chronic disease management; Nursing Home/Inpatient Care; Distance Education and Training; Telehealth Technologies both Interactive and Store-and-Forward. A Regional TRC collaborates with other TRCs or organizations to address any of the seven areas where the TRC may not be expert. The National Policy TRC exhibits expertise in the following areas: Reimbursement (Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance); Licensure (legislative and regulatory issues); Privacy, security, and confidentiality legislation at federal and state levels; Food and Drug Administration regulation; Telecommunications legal and regulatory issues; and, private credentialing and accreditation organizations and issues (e.g., Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations). The National Technology TRC exhibits expertise in the following areas: software/hardware for clinical applications; evaluating national technology innovations, multiple software systems and their applications in EHRs (not specific product lines); requirements for specific technologies to be used for specific clinical applications; advances in m-health including software and hardware; assessing organizations need for telehealth technology including specific cost effective solutions; provider and patient medical information and education; direct patient care and remote patient monitoring; and current data delivery mechanisms. Note: American Indian and/or Alaska Native Tribal Organizations are eligible beneficiaries provided those organizations meet the beneficiary requirements above.

Licensure Portability Grant Program (LPGP) - State professional licensing boards to carry out programs under which licensing boards of various States cooperate to develop and implement State policies that will reduce statutory and regulatory barriers to telemedicine. Non Competing Continuation grants will continue to focus on licensure issues for physicians and nurses. The funded projects are to build on the first year of efforts to develop national models for implementing model agreements to expedite the licensure process and eliminate redundancies associated with applying for physician licenses in multiple jurisdictions.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

2 months.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

Renewals have not been determined.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula. Matching requirements are not applicable to this program. MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Competitions are conducted every three years, with up to a four year project period. For projects awarded under a competition, grants are made annually each year for up to four years. For example, the TNGP and TRCGP projects awarded in FY 2012 have a 4-year project period commencing September 1, 2012 and ending August 31, 2016. However, the TRCGP and TNGP grants awarded in FY 2013 each have a three year project period. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Grantees drawdown funds, as necessary, from the Payment Management System (PMS). PMS is the centralized web based payment system for HHS awards.

Reports:

No program reports are required. No cash reports are required. Six-month Progress Reports are required. An electronic quarterly Federal Financial Report (FFR) is due to the Division of Payment Management within 30 days of the end of each quarter. A final FFR must be submitted to HRSA via the Electronic HandBooks (EHB) within 90 days of the end of each budget period. Annual progress and reports are required 90 days from the end of the budget period and the final performance report is due 90 days from the end of the project period.

As required by the Government Performance and Review Act (1993), all federal agencies must develop strategic plans, describing their overall goals and objectives. These "GPRA Plans" must provide annual performance reports containing quantifiable measures of each program's progress in meeting the stated goals and objectives. The performance assessment instruments developed by the Office for the Advancement of Telehealth (OAT) with its grantees fulfill GPRA requirements to report to Congress on the impact of OAT's telehealth network grants and telehealth resource center grant programs. Moreover, OAT hopes to use the information derived from these instruments to demonstrate the "value-added" that telehealth services contribute to improving health care. OAT has incorporated these performance assessment tools into the routine reporting required as part of the "mid-year or mid-cycle" and annual reports required under each grant. Each of the programs will also get reports comparing themselves to the entire set of grantees, on these same measures. There are two data reporting periods each year; during these biannual reporting periods, data is reported for the previous six months of activity. Grantees have approximately six weeks to enter their data during each biannual reporting period. No expenditure reports are required. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133.

Records:

Grantees are required to maintain grant accounting records 3 years after the date they submit the Federal Financial Review (FFR). If any litigation, claim, negotiation, audit or other action involving the award has been started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records shall be retained until completion of the action and resolution of all issues which arise from it, or until the end of the regular 3-year period, whichever is later.

The awardee must submit a quarterly electronic Federal Financial Report (FFR) Cash Transaction Report via the Payment Management System within 30 days of the end of each calendar quarter. A Federal Financial Report (SF-425) is required within 90 days of the end of each budget period. A final report is due within 90 days after the project period ends. If applicable, the awardee must submit a Tangible Personal Property Report (SF-428) and any related forms within 90 days after the project period ends. New awards (Type 1) issued under this funding opportunity announcement are subject to the reporting requirements of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA) of 2006 (Pub. L. 109282), as amended by section 6202 of Public Law 110252, and implemented by 2 CFR Part 170. Grant and cooperative agreement recipients must report information for each first-tier subaward of $25,000 or more in federal funds and executive total compensation for the recipients and subrecipients five most highly compensated executives as outlined in Appendix A to 2 CFR Part 170 (FFATA details are available online at <http://www.hrsa.gov/grants/ffata.html>). Competing continuation awardees, etc. may be subject to this requirement and will be so notified in the Notice of Award. No expenditure reports are required. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133.

Records:

Grantees are required to maintain grant accounting records three years after the date they submit the Federal Financial Report (FFR). If any litigation, claim, negotiation, audit or other action involving the award has been started before the expiration of the three year period, the records shall be retained until completion of the action and resolution of all issues which arise from it, or until the end of the regular three year period, whichever is later.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Procedures for assessing the technical merit of grant applications have been instituted to provide an objective review of applications and to assist the applicant in understanding the standards against which each application will be judged. Critical indicators have been developed for each review criterion to assist the applicant in presenting pertinent information related to that criterion and to provide the reviewer with a standard for evaluation. Competing applications are reviewed by nonfederal reviewers for technical merit recommendations. All applications will be evaluated by an Objective Review Committee to determine the extent to which the applicant documents the following criteria: (1) Need; (2) Response; (3) Evaluative Measures; (4) Impact; (5) Resources/Capabilities; and (6) Support Requested.

93.213 RESEARCH AND TRAINING IN COMPLEMENTARY AND ALTERNATIVE MEDICINE

National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine

FEDERAL AGENCY:

National Institutes of Health, Department of Health and Human Services

AUTHORIZATION:

Public Health Service Act, Section 485D, Title VI, Section 601, Public Law 105-277, 112 Stat. 2681-387, 42 U.S.C 281 as amended.

OBJECTIVES:

To evaluate complementary health approaches. The following objectives support this goal: (1) coordinate and facilitate the investigation of complementary health approaches through peer-reviewed grant solicitations; (2) interface with the Center's National Advisory Council; (3) conduct technology assessment conferences for the purpose of establishing areas of Clinical and Pre-clinical research that need to be further developed within complementary health approaches; and (4) maintain a comprehensive bibliographic data base in conjunction with the National Library of Medicine.

The National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine (NCCAM) regularly examines and redefines its research priorities. In setting research priorities, NCCAM considers its existing research portfolio, its 5-year strategic plan, the recommendations of the National Advisory Council for Complementary and Alternative Medicine, current scientific advances, the plans of other NIH institutes and centers, and input from expert panels and stakeholders. Research constituting a rigorous evidence base for complementary health approaches will be developed through a range of research strategies including basic and translational research, and clinical investigation.

Current research priorities are shaped by the following considerations regarding Research Approaches, Areas of Special Interest, and Areas of Lower Program Priority.

Research Approaches

Basic, translational, efficacy and effectiveness research
Complementary health approaches need to be studied across the continuum of basic, translational, efficacy, and effectiveness research. NCCAM continues to emphasize basic research that defines biological effects and mechanisms of action; clarifies scientific hypotheses; supports development of translational tools to understand biological effects and mechanisms of action. NCCAM continues to encourage efficacy studies to determine specific clinical effects of complementary health approaches under carefully controlled conditions that minimize nonspecific and contextual effects. There is also the need to strengthen translational and preliminary clinical research required to design and implement definitive clinical research and "real world" outcomes and effectiveness research that capitalizes on the reality that many complementary health approaches are in widespread public use.

NCCAM's support of translational research addresses the need for valid, reliable and relevant research tools, outcome measures, and innovative methodology to enhance the rigor of CAM clinical studies and to ensure that they are maximally informative. NCCAM emphasizes studies that inform the design of future trials such as those that will: develop and validate outcome measures; standardize treatment protocols or algorithms; validate treatment algorithms and/or; develop measures of quality control or treatment fidelity; assess effects of various doses or intervention durations; develop preliminary clinical evidence regarding efficacy and safety to support estimates of sample size; or establish feasibility of interventions or study designs in specific populations for future studies.

NCCAM's clinical research portfolio utilizes clinical trial, case-control, observational, cohort, qualitative, and other experimental methodologies to determine safety and estimate the efficacy of complementary health approaches. The clinical research portfolio includes effectiveness studies of the contribution to improved health and wellness made by complementary health approaches as they are practiced in "real-world" settings.

In general phase III clinical trials will be supported under the cooperative agreement mechanism after careful consideration by NCCAM Staff. Investigators interested in proposing phase III studies are strongly encouraged to contact a relevant NCCAM Program Officer (<http://nccam.nih.gov/grants/contact?nav=gsa>).

Areas of Special Interest

Although a wide range of research topics are of interest to NCCAM, studies focusing on complementary health approaches used frequently by the American public (including the context(s) in which these interventions are used), and that are amenable to rigorous scientific inquiry are particularly encouraged. These areas include, but are not limited to, investigations of the effects of complementary health approaches on chronic pain syndromes and inflammatory processes, and in disease prevention and improving health and wellness. Among all types of studies, attention to a range of endpoints meaningful to improved health, well-being, and quality of life, as well as a biological signature that provides mechanistic information, is strongly encouraged.

In addition to their use to promote health and wellness, complementary health approaches are most often used to manage symptoms that may be idiopathic or associated with underlying diseases and conditions, including back pain, neck pain, arthritis, and other musculoskeletal pain. Research to understand more clearly whether and how such interventions add value to existing approaches and to identify the biological and/or behavioral mechanisms by which they exert beneficial effects will advance the science and practice of symptom management.

Newly emerging evidence suggests that complementary health approaches may be associated with greater degrees of positive health behaviors. While causal relationships between complementary health approaches and healthy behavior have not been established, the claims and preliminary data deserve investigation given the formidable public health challenges in motivating behavior change. Research is needed to explore, clarify, and examine the hypothesis that certain complementary health approaches, are in fact, useful in encouraging better self-care, an improved personal sense of well-being, and a greater commitment to a healthy lifestyle.

Areas of Scientific Promise

The expanding evidence base includes a large body of intriguing albeit preliminary evidence that points towards specific opportunities to improve health care and health promotion using complementary health approaches that have been divided into two groups- mind and body and natural products. Mind and Body interventions, practices and disciplines are based in mental or physical procedures or techniques administered or taught to others by a trained practitioner or teacher. Natural products include a large and diverse group of orally or topically administered substances such as herbal medicines, botanicals, dietary supplements and probiotics.

Examples of important clinical research opportunities and needs in the mind and body portfolio include but are not limited to the development of better, comprehensive strategies for management of chronic back pain and defining the roles of acupuncture, spinal manipulation, and massage in those strategies; exploration of the role of specific promising complementary health approaches or disciplines (e.g., meditation, yoga, or acupuncture) in developing better strategies for alleviating symptoms (e.g., chronic pain, stress) or in promoting healthier lifestyles; exploration of the association between well-characterized pathways of pain processing and acupuncture analgesia or the placebo response; exploration of the associations of major pathways of cognitive processing and emotional regulation by meditative practices; and studying the influence of the provider-patient/client interaction, context effects, and the placebo response on outcomes of complementary health approaches

Examples of important clinical research opportunities and needs in the natural products area include but are not limited to studying the molecular targets and biological effects of potentially beneficial small molecules that are constituents of natural products or diet; defining the anti-inflammatory actions of omega-3 fatty acids and other natural products; employing state-of-the-art tools and technologies to study the effects of probiotics on the human microbiome; and developing evidence regarding the safety profile of certain widely used natural products, including interactions with drugs and other herbals or dietary supplements.

Early Stage and New Investigators

NCCAM is strongly committed to assisting new and early stage investigators in establishing a research career. Early stage investigators are those within 10 years of completing their terminal research degree, or their medical residency, or its equivalent. New investigators are those who have yet to compete successfully for a substantial (e.g., R01) NIH research grant. Each Advisory Council round, based on available funds, NCCAM: 1) will consider early stage or new investigator status as one of the criteria for designating grant applications as being of high program priority and 2) may make additional R01 grant awards to new and early stage investigators with percentiles or scores out of payline order..

NCCAM continues to accept applications in areas not listed as a specific priority area via the investigator initiated funding opportunities. All investigators are urged to discuss potential applications with the relevant NCCAM Program Officer.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS; TRAINING

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research Grants provide funds for salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and other expenses associated with scientific investigation relevant to program objectives. Individual National Research Service Awards (NRSA) are made to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. In addition, grants may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSA to individuals selected by them. Each individual who receives a NRSA is obligated upon termination of the award to comply with certain service and payback provisions. Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I that are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application.

Applicant Eligibility:

Universities, colleges, hospitals, laboratories, and other public or private nonprofit domestic institutions, including State and local units of government, and individuals are eligible to make application for grant support of research by a named principal investigator or a research career development candidate. For-profit organizations are also eligible, with the exception of NRSA. Individual NRSA awardees must be nominated and sponsored by a public or nonprofit private institution having staff and facilities appropriate to the proposed research training program. All NRSA awardees must be citizens or have been admitted to the United States for permanent residence. To be eligible, predoctoral candidates must have completed the baccalaureate degree, and postdoctoral awardees must have a professional or scientific degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., ND, DC, D.V.M., Sc.D., D.Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree). SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is being proposed and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. or its possessions. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which researches proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company, or institution engaged in biomedical research.

Credentials/Documentation:

Each applicant for research projects must present a research plan and furnish evidence that scientific competence, facilities, equipment, and supplies are appropriate to carry out the plan. For SBIR and STTR grants, the applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. Individual NRSA applications for postdoctoral training must include the candidate's academic record, research experience, citizenship, institutional sponsorship, and the proposed area and plan of training. Institutional Training grant applications for predoctoral and postdoctoral training must show the objectives, methodology and resources for the research training program; the qualifications and experience of directing staff; the criteria to be used in selecting individuals for stipend support; and a detailed budget and justification for the amount of grant funds requested. For-profit organizations' costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. Grant form PHS 398 is used to apply for SBIR and STTR Phase I Phase II and Phase I/Phase II Fast Track. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Award Procedure:

Award Procedure: All accepted applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score ranging from the best (10) to worst (90) compete for available funds based on scientific merit, program relevance, and program balance and are made annually. Initial award provides funds for the first budget period (usually 12 months) and Notice of Grant Award (Form PHS 1533) indicates support recommended for remainder of project period, allocation of Federal funds by budget categories, and special conditions, if any. All accepted SBIR/STTR applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel and by a national advisory council or board. All applications receiving a priority score compete for available SBIR/STTR set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

Overall from 120 to 300 days. Research Grants and Cooperative Agreements: Approximately 6-10 months; National Service Research Awards: 6-9 months; SBIR/STTR awards 6-7 months.

A Program Director/Principal Investigator (PD/PI) may question the substantive or procedural aspects of the review of his/her application by submitting an appeal. An appeal is a written communication from a PD/PI and/or applicant institution that meets the following four criteria: 1) is received after issuance of the summary statement and up to 30 calendar days after the second level of peer review, 2) describes a flaw or perceived flaw in the review process for a particular application, 3) is based on one or more of four allowable issues (described below), and 4) displays concurrence from the Authorized Organization Representative (AOR). The four allowable issues are (1) evidence of bias on the part of one or more peer reviewers; (2) conflict of interest, as specified in regulation at 42 CFR 52h.5.Scientific Peer Review of Research Grant Applications and Research and Development Contract Projects, on the part of one or more peer reviewers; (3) lack of appropriate expertise within the SRG; and (4) factual error(s) made by one or more reviewers that could have altered the outcome of review substantially. A description of the NIH Peer Review Policy and Procedures is available at <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-11-064.html>.

Renewals:

Research grants: renewals by competitive application and review. Extension by request and administrative action. National Research Service Awards: individual awards may be made for 1, 2, or 3 years. No individual may receive NIH fellowship support at the postdoctoral level for more than 3 years.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

This program has no statutory formula.

Matching requirements are not applicable to this program.
MOE requirements are not applicable to this program.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Project Grants: Awards are usually made for a 12-month period with recommendation of up to 4 years of additional support. SBIR: Normally, Phase I awards are for 6 months; normally, Phase II awards are for 2 years. STTR: Normally, Phase I awards are for 1 year; normally, Phase II awards are for 2 years. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: The Notice of Award (NoA) is the legal document issued to notify the grantee that an award has been made and that funds may be requested from the designated HHS payment system or office. An NoA is issued for the initial budget period. If subsequent budget periods are also approved, the NoA will include a reference to those budgetary commitments. Funding for subsequent budget periods are generally provided in annual increments following the annual assessment of progress. This funding is also contingent on the availability of funds. The NoA includes all applicable terms of award either by reference or specific statements. It provides contact information for the assigned program officer and grants management specialist. The grantee accepts an NIH award and its associated terms and conditions by drawing or requesting funds from the Payment Management System, or upon the endorsement of a check from the US Treasury for foreign awardees. Method of awarding/releasing assistance: lump sum.

Reports:

No program reports are required. No cash reports are required. Project Grants: Expenditures and other financial records, including documents supporting accounting records and substantive charges to each grant, must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period. NRSAs: Documentation of expenditures and other fiscal records must be kept readily available for examination by authorized Government personnel and must be retained for 3 years from the day on which the grantee submits the last expenditure report for the report period. Reports are required after termination of NRSAs to ascertain compliance with service and payback provisions. Expenditure reports on a quarterly basis are sent to the data warehouse. Performance monitoring is not applicable.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. Records must be available for review or audit by appropriate officials of the Federal agency, pass-through entity, and Government Accountability Office (GAO). In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.26, for-profit (commercial) organizations are subject to audit requirements for a non-Federal audit if, during its fiscal year, it expended $500,000 or more under HHS awards and at least one award is a HHS grant or subgrant. The regulation incorporates the thresholds and deadlines of OMB Circular No. A-133, but provides for profit organizations with two options for the type of audit that will satisfy the audit requirement: 1. a financial related audit of the HHS awards in accordance with Government Auditing Standards, or 2. an audit that meets the requirements of OMB Circular No. A-133. In accordance with NIH grants policy, Foreign grantees are subject to the same audit requirements as for-profit (commercial) organizations

Records:

Grantees generally must retain financial and programmatic records, supporting documents, statistical records, and all other records that are required by the terms of a grant, or may reasonably be considered pertinent to a grant, for a period of 3 years from the date the annual financial status reports (FSR) is submitted. For awards under the Streamlined Non-competing Award Process (SNAP) (other than those to foreign organizations and Federal institutions), the 3-year retention period will be calculated from the date the FSR for the entire competitive segment is submitted. Those grantees must retain the records pertinent to the entire competitive segment for 3 years from the date the FSR is submitted to NIH. Foreign organizations and Federal institutions must retain records for 3 years from the date of submission of the annual FSR to NIH. See 45 CFR 74.53 and 92.42 for exceptions and qualifications to the 3-year retention requirement (e.g., if any litigation, claim, financial management review, or audit is started before the expiration of the 3-year period, the records must be retained until all litigation, claims, or audit findings involving the records have been resolved and final action taken). Those sections also specify the retention period for other types of grant-related records, including F&A cost proposals and property records. See 45 CFR 74.48 and 92.36 for record retention and access requirements for contracts under grants. In accordance with 45 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 74.53(e), the HHS Inspector General, the U.S. Comptroller General, or any of their duly authorized representatives have the right of timely and unrestricted access to any books, documents, papers, or other records of recipients that are pertinent to awards in order to make audits, examinations, excerpts, transcripts, and copies of such documents. This right also includes timely and reasonable access to a recipients personnel for the purpose of interview and discussion related to such documents. The rights of access are not limited to the required retention period, but shall last as long as records are retained.

OBJECTIVES:

The National Center on Sleep Disorders Research (NCSDR) supports research and research training related to sleep disordered breathing, and the fundamental functions of sleep and circadian rhythms. The center also stewards several forums that facilitate the coordination of sleep research across NIH, other federal agencies and outside organizations, including the Sleep Disorders Research Advisory Board and a Trans-NIH Sleep Research Coordinating Committee. Small Business innovation Research (SBIR) program: to stimulate technological innovation; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; to increase small business participation in Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation. Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) program: To stimulate and foster scientific and technological innovation through cooperative research and development carried out between small business concerns and research institutions; to foster technology transfer between small business concerns and research institutions; to increase private sector commercialization of innovations derived from Federal research and development; and to foster and encourage participation of socially and economically disadvantaged small business concerns and women-owned small business concerns in technological innovation.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

PROJECT GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Grants may support salaries, equipment, supplies, travel, and patient hospitalization as required to perform the research effort. Restrictions or limitations are imposed against the use of funds for entertainment, foreign travel, general-purpose equipment, alterations and renovations, and other items not regularly required for the performance of research. National Research Service Awards (NRSAs) are made directly to individuals for research training in specified biomedical shortage areas. Grants may be made to institutions to enable them to make NRSAs to individuals selected by them. Certain service and payback provisions apply to individuals upon termination of the award. SBIR Phase I grants (of approximately 6-months' duration) are to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research effort that may lead to a commercial product or process. Phase II grants are for the continuation of the research initiated in Phase I and which are likely to result in commercial products or processes. Only Phase I awardees are eligible to apply for Phase II support. STTR Phase I grants (normally of 1-year duration) are to determine the scientific, technical, and commercial merit and feasibility of the proposed cooperative effort that has potential for commercial application. Phase II funding is based on results of research initiated in Phase I and scientific and technical merit and commercial potential on Phase II application. . Fast-Track is an option whereby Phase I and Phase II SBIR or STTR projects are submitted and reviewed concurrently with the aim of reducing or eliminating the funding gap between Phase I and Phase II. While the intent of the STIR/STTR programs is commercialization (Phase III), no SBIR/STTR funds are allowed for commercialization activities such as patents; market and sales; market research; business development/product development/market plans; legal fees, travel and other costs including labor relating to license agreements and partnerships.

Applicant Eligibility:

Any nonprofit organization engaged in biomedical research, as well as institutions or companies organized for profit, may apply for grants with the exception of NRSAs. An individual may apply for a NRSA or, in some cases, may qualify for a research grant if adequate facilities in which to perform the research are available. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees). Primary employment (more than one-half time) of the principal investigator must be with the small business at the time of award and during the conduct of the proposed project. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council. SBIR projects must be performed at least 67% by the applicant small business in Phase I and at least 50% of the Project in Phase II. STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small business concerns (entities that are independently owned and operated for profit, are not dominant in the field in which research is proposed and have no more than 500 employees) which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development. At least 40 percent of the project is to be performed by the small business concern and at least 30 percent by the research institution. In both Phase I and Phase II, the research must be performed in the U.S. and its possessions. To be eligible for funding, a grant application must be approved for scientific merit and program relevance by a scientific review group and a national advisory council.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Any nonprofit or for-profit organization, company or institution engaged in biomedical research.

Credentials/Documentation:

Applicants for individual National Research Service Awards must be citizens of the United States or have been admitted for permanent residency; must hold a doctoral degree (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D. Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree); and must designate a desire for training in one of the health or health-related areas specified by the National Institutes of Health. Each applicant must be sponsored by an accredited public or private nonprofit institution engaged in such training. For-profit organizations' costs are determined in accordance with Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. SBIR and STTR applicants must use the SF424 Research and Related (R&R) application for electronic submission through grants.gov. Abstinence Education Program

FEDERAL AGENCY:

The Affordable Health Care Act (ACA) appropriated funding for this program through FY 2014.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

FORMULA GRANTS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The purpose of an allotment under subsection (a) to a State is to enable the State to provide abstinence education, and at the option of the State, where appropriate, mentoring, counseling, and adult supervision to promote abstinence from sexual activity, with a focus on those groups which are most likely to bear children out-of-wedlock.

Pursuant to Section 510(b)(2) of Title V of the Social Security Act, the term "abstinence education," for purposes of this program means an educational or motivational program that:

- (A) Has as its exclusive purpose, teaching the social, psychological, and health gains to be realized by abstaining from sexual activity;
- (B) Teaches abstinence from sexual activity outside marriage as the expected standard for all school age children;
- (C) Teaches that abstinence from sexual activity is the only certain way to avoid out-of-wedlock pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, and other associated health problems;
- (D) Teaches that a mutually faithful monogamous relationship in the context of marriage is the expected standard of human sexual activity;
- (E) Teaches that sexual activity outside of the context of marriage is likely to have harmful psychological and physical effects;
- (F) Teaches that bearing children out-of-wedlock is likely to have harmful consequences for the child, the child's parents, and society;
- (G) Teaches young people how to reject sexual advances and how alcohol and drug use increases vulnerability to sexual advances; and
- (H) Teaches the importance of attaining self-sufficiency before engaging in sexual activity.

Applicant Eligibility:

Funds are allotted to 59 States and Territories to enable them to carry out abstinence education programs. Eligible applicants include the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, Northern Mariana Islands, Micronesia, the republic of the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Credentials/Documentation:

A signed letter from the authorized representative must accompany each application; it should include documentation establishing the authorized representative's authority to apply for and administer the Abstinence Education grant program funds on behalf of the State or Territory. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

OMB Circular No. A-102 applies to this program. This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-110. Application procedures will be given in the Funding Opportunity Announcement (FOA).

Award Procedure:

ACF recruits and trains Federal staff and contractors to review applications. Program administrators review, observe, and edit comments of reviewers to ensure they are in compliance with guidelines and Federal law. Applications are rated Approved, Approved with Conditions, or Approval Pending. States that submit applications that are Approved receive grant awards and do not need to send further information. States that submit applications that are Approved with Conditions" receive grant awards with descriptions of weaknesses and subsequent conditions that must be met in order to receive Approved status. The applicants are given a set time period to send to ACF a response that addresses the conditions. States that submit applications that are rated Approval Pending receive a list of weaknesses cited by the reviewer and directions for submitting an amended application that addresses the weaknesses. The State will not receive a grant award until the State submits a satisfactory application. The applicants are notified of a final due date for submission of a satisfactory application.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

From 30 to 60 days.

Appeals:

Not Applicable.

Renewals:

From 90 to 120 days.

Formula and Matching Requirements:

Statutory Formula: Title V.

Matching Requirements: The statutory formula for this program is based upon census data. Grants awarded to each State are determined by a formula using the State's proportion of low-income children compared to the total number of low-income children in the U.S. based on the most recent Census data for children in poverty. For each fiscal year, the estimated allotment for each State or Territory will be updated based on the most current available census data and will be communicated to States by August 15 of the preceding fiscal year. Census data are unavailable for the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau. Thus, the allocations for these three entities are based on the amounts allocated to them by HHS in prior fiscal years. There is a required match of 43 nonfederal dollars for every 100 federal dollars. For example, if a states federal award is $100,000, the State must provide a match of $75,250, which would represent 43% of the total project cost of $175,000 (counting both federal grant and state match). The match can be reached by use of state dollars, local government dollars, and private dollars including foundation dollars, in-kind support, or any combination thereof.

This program does not have MOE requirements.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

In accordance with Section 503 of the Social Security Act, Any amount payable to a State under this title from allotments for a fiscal year which remains unobligated at the end of such year shall remain available to such State for obligation during the next fiscal year. For example, funds appropriated and allocated to the States in FY 2010 (starting October 1, 2009) are available for obligation and expenditures through September 30, 2011. Two-year budget periods are contingent upon Congressional re-authorization or the continued extension of the authorization and funding of the program. See the following for information on how assistance is awarded/released: Draw downs are based upon need and project progress.

Reports:

Progress reports and financial expenditure reports are required. The SF-425 is required semi-annually. Specific guidance regarding data to be reported will given in the program announcement. Program guidelines allow States to expend abstinence education funds over a two-year period. An interim Financial Status Report (SF-425) is due semi-annually, and a final fiscal report is due 90 days after the end of the project period. Performance monitoring occurs by reviewing program progress reports, conducting monitoring phone calls and conducting monitoring site visits.

Audits:

In accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-133 (Revised, June 27, 2003), "Audits of States, Local Governments, and Non-Profit Organizations," nonfederal entities that expend financial assistance of $500,000 or more in Federal awards will have a single or a program-specific audit conducted for that year. Nonfederal entities that expend less than $500,000 a year in Federal awards are exempt from Federal audit requirements for that year, except as noted in Circular No. A-133. As described in Title V, Section 506(b)(1) of the Social Security Act, each state shall, not less often than once every 2 years, audit its expenditures from amounts received under this title.

Records:

Records of the recipient shall be made available to the Secretary to secure an accurate description of the activities for which funds were spent in achieving the purposes of this section. OBJECTIVES:

To support research and research training to understand the biological, psychological, and functional changes that are involved in the causes and course of mental illness; to hasten the translation of science advances into innovations in clinical care; to conduct studies of the risk factors for major psychiatric disorders; to conduct clinical neuroscience studies to elucidate causes and functional effects of these disorders; to conduct research on psychosocial, pharmacological, and somatic treatment development; to support research and research training with the ultimate goal of preventing and curing mental disorders that originate in childhood and adolescence; to conduct research across basic behavioral/psychological processes, environmental processes, brain development, genetics, developmental psychopathology, and therapeutic interventions; to translate knowledge from basic science to discover the developmental origins of mental disorders and effect their prevention and cure. To provide support for integration of research on neurobehavioral mechanisms of psychopathology; understanding of the trajectories of risk/illness; and the design and testing of innovative and personalized treatments. To support research in the areas of basic neuroscience, genetics, basic behavioral science, research training, resource development, technology development, drug discovery, and research dissemination; to support studies that will generate relevant basic science knowledge which can then be utilized to improve diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of mental and behavioral disorders; to support research to evaluate the effectiveness of pharmacologic, psychosocial, rehabilitative, and combination interventions on mental and behavior disorders; to evaluate interventions for children, adolescents, and adults, focusing on acute and long-term therapeutic effects; to conduct mental health services research, including studies of services organization and delivery; interventions to improve the quality and outcomes of care; and research on the dissemination and implementation of evidence-based interventions into service settings; to develop and disseminate behavioral interventions that prevent HIV/AIDS transmission; to clarify the biological, psychological, and functional mental health effects of HIV/AIDS infection and alleviate the associated consequences.

Research supported by the National Institute of Mental Health may employ theoretical, laboratory, clinical, epidemiological, and field studies. Studies may involve individuals with a mental disorder diagnosis, individuals with symptom levels that do not meet diagnostic thresholds, and healthy individuals of all ages. Research also may involve animal, computational, and mathematical models appropriate to the system being investigated and the state of the field. Areas eligible for research support are: basic and clinical neuroscience; genetics; geriatrics research; adult psychopathology; experimental therapeutics; developmental, behavioral, clinical, and epidemiological research relevant to mental disorders, behavioral disorders, and HIV/AIDS, in terms of the causes, prevention, treatment, and service delivery; basic (brain and behavior), clinical, and services research on the mental health problems of women, minorities, and rural populations; and research designed to reduce and eliminate mental health disparities both within and outside the United States.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Cooperative Agreements; Project Grants; Training

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Research project grants provide support for clearly defined projects by a named investigator in an area representing his/her specific interests and competencies. Exploratory/Development and Clinical Exploratory/Developmental Grants encourage the development of new research activities in categorical program areas. Small Research Grants provide research support specifically limited in time and amount for studies in categorical program areas. Collaborative Clinical Research Grants support evaluations of various methods of therapy and/or prevention. Program Project and Center grants support large-scale, broad-based programs of research, usually interdisciplinary, consisting of several projects with a common focus. Cooperative Agreements support single or a group of related research activities with greater involvement of federal staff.

SBIR and STTR grants are awarded in two stages: Phase I grants are awarded to establish the technical merit and feasibility of a proposed research and development effort; only Phase I awardees are eligible to receive Phase II support.

Mentored Research Scientist Development Award (K01, MRSDA), Mentored Clinical Scientist Development Award (K08, MCSDA), and Mentored Quantitative Research Career Development Award (K25) provide support for individuals with research potential who need additional mentored development and/or experience in a productive research environment. Awards are available for up to 5 years of salary support (up to $90,000 per year) for the individual candidate, fringe benefits, and 8 percent F&A costs. Specialized training costs and limited research costs are allowable under justified circumstances. Mentored Patient-Oriented Research Career Development Award (K23) supports the career development of individuals who have made commitment to focus their research endeavors on patient-oriented research. Awards are available for three to five years up to $90,000 per year to help offset the full time salary requirement of the candidate. The NIH Pathway to Independence (PI) Award (K99/R00) provides up to 2 years of mentored support (K99) for a postdoctoral individual followed by up to 3 years of support after the awardee transitions to research independence (R00). K99/R00 awards are awards for up to 5 years of support. During the K99 phase, awards typically provide up to $50,000 per year for the salary of the individual candidate as well as fringe benefits, and 8 percent F&A costs. Specialized training costs and limited research costs are allowable under justified circumstances. Salary support for all mentored awards may be supplemented by the sponsoring institution from nonfederal funds. The Independent Scientist Award (K02, ISA) is for independent scientists whose careers are developing rapidly; the Mid-career Investigator Award in Patient-Oriented Research (K24) is for outstanding clinical scientists engaged in patient-oriented research. No specialized training costs are available; limited research costs for K24s and K02s in theoretical areas are available.

Individual fellowships are made to students seeking predoctoral or postdoctoral support for full-time research training or who are enrolled in an formal Ph.D. or M.D./Ph.D. program. An institutional allowance will be provided to the sponsoring institution for each awardee. In addition, any domestic public or nonprofit institution may apply for an institutional research training grant in a specified area of research from which a number of stipend awards will be made to individuals selected by the training program director at the institution. Support is available for both predoctoral and postdoctoral trainees and will include an amount for institutional expenses. Indirect costs may be requested at 8 percent of total direct costs, exclusive of tuition and related fees and expenditures for equipment, or actual indirect costs, whichever is less. Postdoctoral students receiving fellowships or stipend support under either individual or institutional grants for 12 months or less are obligated to pay back this support through an equivalent period of continued postdoctoral training or a period of health related research and/or teaching activities after the completion of their training. Postdoctoral individuals in their thirteenth and subsequent months of support will incur no further obligation, and such support will be considered acceptable postdoctoral payback service. Research training support may not be used for internships or other clinical training.

Applicant Eligibility:

Public, private, -profit, or nonprofit agencies (including State and local government agencies), eligible Federal agencies, universities, colleges, hospitals, and academic or research institutions may apply for research grants. SBIR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses, and STTR grants can be awarded only to domestic small businesses which "partner" with a research institution in cooperative research and development.

An applicant for individual predoctoral fellowship support must be enrolled in a research doctoral degree program by the proposed activation date of the fellowship. A postdoctoral applicant must have received a Ph.D., Psy.D., M.D.,

D.D.S., Sc.D., D.N.S., D.O., D.S.W., or equivalent degree from an accredited institution to be eligible for an individual postdoctoral fellowship.

All research training awards are made to appropriate domestic research centers, medical schools, departments of psychiatry, non-medical academic departments, psychiatric hospitals or hospitals with psychiatric services, community mental health centers, and biomedical research institutes on behalf of individuals who need the opportunity to realize research potential. Except for the NIH Pathway to Independence (PI) Award (K99/R00), the individuals must be citizens or nationals of the United States or have been lawfully admitted for permanent residence. The NIH Pathway to Independence (PI) Award (K99/R00) is open to both U.S. citizens and non-U.S. citizens. Individuals must qualify by scholastic degree and previous training and/or experience.

Beneficiary Eligibility:

Individuals and public, private, profit, or nonprofit organizations.

Credentials/Documentation:

For-profit organizations' costs will be determined in accordance with 48 CFR, Subpart 31.2 of the Federal Acquisition Regulations. For all other grantees, costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulations 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. For SBIR and STTR grants, applicant organization (small business concern) must present in a research plan an idea that has potential for commercialization and furnish evidence that scientific competence, experimental methods, facilities, equipment, and funds requested are appropriate to carry out the plan. Instructions for electronic submission may be found with the federal SF424 (R&R) form packages that are found in the SBIR/STTR funding opportunity announcements. Instructions are provided for SBIR Phase I and Phase II awards, respectively; as well as for STTR Phase I and Phase II awards, respectively. OMB Circular No. A-87 applies to this program.

Preapplication Coordination:

Preapplication coordination is not applicable. Environmental impact information is not required for this program. This program is excluded from coverage under E.O. 12372.

Application Procedures:

This program is excluded from coverage under OMB Circular No. A-102. OMB Circular No. A-110 applies to this program. Most applications must be prepared and submitted electronically. Most applicants use the SF 424 (Research & Related) for electronic submission. Information about the SF 424 form may be found on <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/funding/424/index.htm>, but application packages should be accessed through the appropriate funding opportunity announcement, found either on the NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts (<http://grants1.nih.gov/grants/guide/index.html>) or through the Grants.gov website (<http://www.grants.gov/>). Some institutions may submit the grant data directly (using what is called a system-to-system transfer). For further details, see grants.gov or eRA Commons. Application forms for SBIR and STTR grants may be obtained through the SBIR/STTR funding announcements posted on the NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts and the Grants.gov sites (see URLs listed above). All SBIR and STTR applications must be submitted electronically. The timeline for transition to electronic applications and the new forms may be found at: <http://era.nih.gov/ElectronicReceipt/>. For further assistance contact GrantsInfo, Telephone (301) 435-0714, Email: GrantsInfo@nih.gov.

Consultation on a proposed project may be obtained from the NIMH branch or office responsible for the research area of interest. Applications are reviewed by principally nonfederal consultants recruited nationwide from the mental health field. The amounts of the award and period of support are determined on the basis of merit of the project and the nature of the grant mechanism. Electronic applications are submitted through the Grants.gov website.

Award Procedure:

All applications are evaluated for scientific and technical merit by an appropriate scientific peer review panel. Applications other than fellowships must also be reviewed by the National Advisory Mental Health Council. All competitive applications compete for available funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit, program relevance, and program balance. All SBIR and STTR applications receiving a priority score compete for set-aside funds on the basis of scientific and technical merit and commercial potential of the proposed research, program relevance, and program balance among the areas of research.

Deadlines:

Contact the headquarters or regional office, as appropriate, for application deadlines.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time:

> 180 Days. > 180 Days. Applications: From 180 to 270 days from submission of application.

SBIR/STTR applications: About 7- 1/2 months;

AIDS-related research is expedited and a determination is made within 180 days.

Appeals:

A principal investigator may question the substantive or procedural aspects of the review of his/her application by communicating with the staff of the Institute. A description of the NIH Peer Review Appeal procedures is available on the NIH homepage <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-11-064.html>.

Renewals:

Support is recommended for a specified project period, not in excess of 5 years. Prior to termination of a project period, the grantee may apply for renewal of support for a new project period. An application for renewal is processed as a new competing request. Small grants, exploratory, and dissertation grants are for 1-3 years (depending on program) and are not renewable. By law an individual may receive no more than 6 years of support in the aggregate at the predoctoral level and no more than 3 years of support in the aggregate at the postdoctoral level under the NRSA program (through an individual and/or institutional award). Any exception to these limitations requires a waiver from the Director of the awarding Institute based on review of justification from the awardee and the program director for the institutional grant. K01, K08, K23, K25 awards are made for up to 5-year periods with no renewal. K02 and K24 awards are made for a 5-year period, renewable once (unless holder has held a previous K02 or K24 award). K99 awards are made for up to 2-year periods with no renewal.
