The Gill Foundation provided a generous grant to the National Park Foundation to support the LGBTQ Heritage Initiative. The National Park Foundation is the official charitable partner of America's national parks. The National Park Foundation has an agreement with the National Park Service to produce the theme study and other products associated with the Heritage Initiative. If you are interested in donating funds to the LGBTQ Heritage Initiative, please do so via the National Park Foundation and make sure to earmark your donation to the Initiative.

The theme study is copyedited by Meghan Hogan. The layout is by Beth Pruitt. The index was created by J. Basiliere, Assistant Professor of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, Grand Valley State University, Michigan.

Megan Springate is the Prime Consultant for the Initiative for the National Park Foundation. Her responsibilities included overseeing the writing and peer-review of the theme study, responding to public comment, updating the map of LGBTQ places, and helping keep the project on schedule. She is a PhD candidate at the University of Maryland.

Dr. Barbara Little, Program Manager, NPS Cultural Resources Office of Interpretation and Education is the program lead at the National Park Service for the LGBTQ Heritage Initiative. The Initiative and the theme study are results of the leadership of Dr. Stephanie Toothman, Associate Director, Cultural Resources, Partnerships, and Science Directorate.
