The College of Music offers to aspiring performers, composers, scholars and music educators a diversity of graduate programs in all aspects of the musical arts leading to the following degrees:

- Master of Music, with majors in music education, performance, jazz studies, music theory, composition and musicology;
- Master of Music Education, with a major in music education;

- Master of Arts, with a major in music;
- Doctor of Musical Arts, with majors in performance and composition; and
- Doctor of Philosophy, with majors in music education, music theory and musicology.

It is the purpose of these programs to develop and nurture the artistry, creativity, scholarship and professional competence that will provide musical leadership and standards of excellence in the various areas of musical activity in our society: cultural, pedagogical and commercial. The variety of possible majors within these degree programs and the comprehensive program of instruction in all areas of the College of Music provide a richly textured musical environment in which the musical experience of the student will be broadened as the area of specialization is pursued.

All degree programs are accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music (11250 Roger Bacon Drive, Suite 21, Reston, VA 20190; 703-437-0700, fax: 703-437-6312).

Graduate work in the College of Music is under the guidance of the director of graduate studies and appropriate committees.

Facilities

The Music Library, one of the largest in the United States, holds more than 120,000 items of music books, periodicals, scores, parts and microforms. It also owns complete works of more than 200 composers, among them new editions of the works of Bach, Handel, Berlioz, Mozart and Schoenberg, together with well over 100 historical collections.

Other noteworthy materials in the Music Library include the manuscript collection of the letters and early compositions of Arnold Schoenberg; the library of Lloyd Hibberd, distinguished North Texas musicologist, containing about 10,000 volumes especially strong in French baroque first editions and manuscripts; the Reinhard Opiel Memorial Collection encompassing approximately 10,000 pages of musical manuscripts, rare musical editions and books on music; sets of Hofmeister's Handbuch der Musikalischen Literatur, Pazdirek's Universal-Handbuch der Musikliteratur and the Dictionary Catalog of the New York Public Library Music Division; a collection of more than 1,000 Duke Ellington discs, tapes and transcriptions, ranging from his earliest recordings in the 1920s through the 1960s; the Stan Kenton Collection of more than 1,600 original (manuscript) scores and parts used by the Stan Kenton bands and left by Kenton to the university libraries in 1962 and 1979; and an archive of scores and recordings of works composed by distinguished North Texas alumni Don Gillis and Julia Smith.

The Center for Experimental Music and Intermedia (CEMI) provides extensive instructional, research and performance facilities for composers, researchers, and presenters of computer music and intermedia compositions. CEMI presents an annual concert series featuring computer music and intermedia works created at the University of North Texas and at other computer music studios throughout the world, and hosts professional composers who work in residence in the CEMI facilities. The CEMI studios are utilized for electroacoustic composition, sound diffusion, real-time interactive system design, intermedia composition, software synthesis, digital signal processing, algorithmic composition, computer video production, and other computer media applications.

Adjacent to the Music Library is the Audio Center, containing more than 150,000 musical recordings. The Audio Center provides modern facilities for both group and individual listening.

The College of Music also houses the Texas Center for Music and Medicine, a joint program with the UNT Health Science Center at Fort Worth. It includes a research lab equipped with state-of-the-art technologies for the study of the physiology of music performance.

Research

Research in the College of Music is conducted in the areas of musicology, music theory, music education, music medicine, composition and performance practice. Independent investigation and creative problem solving also play large roles in the processes of composition and performance study, where the products of research are musical compositions and performance interpretations.

Within the College of Music, Theoria, a scholarly journal, emanates from the division of music history, theory and ethnomusicology. The Center for Schenkerian Studies publishes The Journal of Schenkerian Studies. In addition, Harmonia is edited and published by the Graduate Association of Musicologists and Theorists. Research funding is received from the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Humanities and faculty research grants.

Research projects in music education range from empirical description and experimentation to historical and philosophical inquiries. Faculty research activities include investigating musical perception and attitudes, preferences, abilities, aptitude, skill development, teacher behavior in classroom and rehearsal, and aspects of professional socialization. Music education faculty hold national and international offices in prestigious professional organizations and serve as editorial readers for leading refereed journals in the field. Ongoing research is supported by faculty research grants and sponsorship of professional organizations.

In music medicine, projects focus on the study of bio-mechanics of performance, hearing loss prevention and mental health issues, and are funded in part by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

In composition, creative projects are supported by faculty research funds and other sources, including commissions and awards from a variety of private and public agencies and foundations. The activities of the faculty and students encompass virtually every aspect of contemporary music. Grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and UNT faculty research funds provide optimal real-time computer systems in the Center for Experimental Music and Intermedia. Orchestral, wind, choral and chamber music by faculty and students is performed by UNT ensembles, as well as music involving the integration of computer music into intermedia composition.

Computer-assisted instruction (CAI) plays a major role in the research and teaching activities in music theory. Graduate students operate the CAI Lab, which provides programmed instruction and drills in music fundamentals for undergraduate theory students, and together with theory faculty develop further software applications for the program.

The Clarinet (quarterly journal of the International Clarinet Society) is edited by a faculty member in the College of Music.

Admission Requirements

Applicants for any graduate degree program must meet the requirements for the preceding degree in the same major field as listed in the Undergraduate Catalog. Applicants may be required to take specified courses to remove deficiencies as determined by the transcript evaluation. Students may enroll in courses to remove deficiencies concurrently with those graduate degree courses for which they are eligible. Deficiencies may be removed only by (1) enrolling in and passing an equivalent course at UNT or another accredited university, (2) submitting evidence of achievement, or (3) passing a proficiency examination, approved by the program area. To prepare for such examinations, students may audit courses, subject to university regulations (see Undergraduate Catalog). The auditing of a course alone may not be the basis for removing a deficiency. In addition, the College of Music may request the applicant to validate any course work or skill by examination or performance.

Graduate Placement Examination

All new College of Music graduate students must take the Graduate Placement Examination (GPE) or sign a waiver stating that they will complete the courses for each examination waived. The GPE covers theory, music history and music literature. The examination is given each semester during the week of registration and orientation. If remedial course work is assigned based on the results of the GPE, the student must enroll in these courses in the first semester the specified courses are offered. Description, schedule and information concerning the use of test results are available in the Office of Graduate Studies in Music.

New graduate students in piano also must take a placement examination in piano literature. The results are used for advisory and remedial purposes.

Transfer Credit

Use of transfer credit toward graduate degrees is subject to policies stated in the Master's Degree Requirements and Doctoral Degree Requirements sections of this catalog and must be approved by the appropriate graduate music committee and the dean of the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies.

Exceptions to Policies

Exceptions to stated policies may be made only when approved by the appropriate graduate committee, the dean of the College of Music and, where appropriate, the dean of the School of Graduate Studies.

Degree Plan

By the completion of 12 hours of study, the graduate student should select an advisory committee (at least three members) and file a degree plan. The degree plan, listing all courses to be required for the degree, must be approved by the student's major professor and submitted to the director of graduate studies in music. Forms for this purpose are available in the College of Music graduate studies office, Music Building, Room 216A.

All changes in the degree plan must be submitted in writing, approved by the major professor and the degree committee chair, and filed with the graduate studies office. Degree requirements are determined by the Graduate Catalog in force at the time the degree plan is approved by the graduate dean. Degree plans may not be filed in the term/semester a student plans to graduate.

Master of Music Degree Program

Students seeking the master's degree should consult their applied lesson teacher, thesis advisor or division chair in preparing a tentative program to meet the degree requirements and in selecting an advisory committee. By the completion of 12 semester hours, the student should file a degree plan and request an advisory committee.

Degree Requirements

Requirements for each degree program are outlined below. The Office of Graduate Studies in Music provides complete information concerning procedures, administrative details and GRE requirements for individual programs. Students applying for the MM in performance may satisfy the GRE requirement by completing an on-campus writing sample. Details are available in the Office of Graduate Studies.

Before the degree is granted, the candidate must pass a final comprehensive examination — either oral, written or both — covering the field of concentration and, if applicable, the thesis or research problem. The examination may be taken no more than three times.

Participation in Performance Laboratories

Participation in two terms/semesters of laboratory or ensemble is recommended for all master's degree students. Students who major in band or orchestral instruments are required to participate, with or without credit, in two terms/semesters of laboratory; one term/semester is required for voice majors. Those who major in music education are required to participate in two terms/semesters of either laboratory or ensemble, with or without credit. Laboratories are a cappella choir, chamber choir, concert choir, men's chorus, women's chorus, grand chorus, symphony orchestra, wind ensemble, symphonic band, concert band, marching band, jazz labs and accompanying. To meet this requirement, students must choose laboratories approved by the major advisors. Credit may be earned by enrolling in MULB 5171, 5172, 5173, 5174 or 5175 (1 semester hour each).

Ensembles available for graduate student participation are: opera theater, collegium musicum, chamber orchestra, wind ensemble, brass choir, trumpet choir, horn choir, trombone choir, tuba-euphonium ensemble, flute choir, percussion ensemble, steel drum band, marimba ensemble, African ensemble, Gamelan ensemble, electric and acoustic guitar ensembles, NOVA ensemble, and smaller string, woodwind, brass, harp and jazz chamber ensembles.

Lecture Attendance Requirement

Each graduate student with a declared major in musicology or music theory is expected to attend all lectures presented in the Division of Music History, Theory and Ethnomusicology Lecture Series during each long term/semester of full-time enrollment (9 hours). Each graduate student with a declared major in composition is expected to attend all Music Now events during each long term/semester of full-time enrollment.

By the completion of 12 semester hours, the student should file a degree plan in consultation with the area coordinator or major professor. The degree plan, listing all courses to be required for the degree, must be submitted to the director of graduate studies in music. Forms for this purpose are available in the College of Music graduate studies office, Music Building, Room 216A. All changes in the degree plan must be submitted in writing, approved by the major professor and filed with the graduate studies office.

Conducting students in wind studies may satisfy the residency requirements by enrolling in two summer sessions, two long terms/semesters and two more summer sessions, taken consecutively.

Acceptance into the Doctor of Musical Arts program involves the following steps:

- Apply for admission to the university through the Robert B. Toulouse School of Graduate Studies (an evaluation of student's transcripts will determine deficiencies in course work).
- Submit an acceptable score on the general test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE). Contact the College of Music or the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies for standardized admission test requirements. Students applying for the DMA in performance may satisfy the GRE requirement with an on-campus writing sample. Details are available from the Graduate Office in the College of Music.

3. Be accepted by the College of Music to do doctoral level work.
4. Attend all orientation sessions scheduled by the director of graduate studies in music.
5. Take the Graduate Placement Examinations for doctoral students given by the College of Music (courses assigned as the result of the GPE must be completed within one calendar year).
6. Be accepted to a specific degree program by audition (for performance and conducting majors) or portfolio evaluation (for composition majors).

When all of these steps are successfully completed, the student will be considered fully admitted to the degree program.

5. Applicants are expected to submit GRE scores at the time of application in order to be considered for graduate studies in composition:
 - a. In exceptional cases, students may be admitted provisionally pending successful completion of the GRE analytical writing exam by the end of the first semester of enrollment. However, all applicants accepted to the program must have at least attempted the GRE analytical writing exam prior to enrollment in graduate courses.
 - b. The Graduate Preparation Course (GPC), provided for international students by the Intensive English Language Institute, will not be accepted as a substitute for the GRE requirement.
6. International applicants in composition must be provisionally accepted to the program prior to beginning study at the Intensive English Language Institute (IELI).

Degree Requirements

In addition to course requirements (listed below), each applicant for the Doctor of Musical Arts degree must meet the following requirements.

Language or Tool-Subject Requirement

It is recommended that the requirements be met within the first three semesters of doctoral work in order to facilitate research and that they be completed before the student takes the qualifying examination. Hours earned do not count toward the degree. The following categories of courses may be used to satisfy the DMA language or tool-subject requirement:

1. Languages (One language, other than the native language or English, chosen to fulfill this requirement will be selected in consultation with the major professor and the student's advisory committee.)
2. Quantitative methods
3. Specialized research/writing
4. Other by petition

These stipulations will be in effect for students electing to take tool-subject courses (from categories 2–4 above) in lieu of the language requirement:

- Courses selected must have direct relation to the acquisition of a particular skill that is necessary for the dissertation project.
- Students must obtain the written approval of the major professor.
- The course selections must then be reviewed by the director of graduate studies, who will either approve the choices or forward them to the Graduate Performance Committee for further consideration.
- To satisfy all or part of a tool-subject requirement, individual doctoral degree programs may use undergraduate courses as long as those courses are not part of, or equivalent to, the UNT core curriculum. In addition, the courses may not be chosen from College of Music offerings.
- A grade of B or better is required in all cases, including the tool-subject course, to satisfy DMA requirements.

Introduction to Research

It is assumed that an entering DMA student will have had an introduction to research course at the master's level (please see the graduate catalog for course description). If not, the student will be required to take Introduction to Research in Music (MUMH 5010), no later than the second term/semester of graduate work to facilitate research. Hours earned do not count toward the degree.

The Advisory Committee

The student's advisory committee will include a member who has written a dissertation or similar doctoral document (other than the DMA chairperson) and is made up of:

1. Major professor;
2. Minor professor (related field representative); and
3. Committee member.

The advisory committee should be selected and approved by the time the student has completed 12 hours of course work.

Placement Examinations

Following the DMA placement examinations in musicology and music theory (administered during orientation week), the student will be counseled by the major professor or major area designate. In conjunction with the faculties administering the examinations, the major advisor will develop a plan, if needed, to satisfy deficiencies (not to exceed 6 credits of musicology and 6 credits of music theory). Graduate music history courses taken as a result of the placement examinations may be counted toward the degree as electives, but not in the musicology component. Music theory courses taken as a result of the placement examinations may not be counted toward the degree.

Related Field

All DMA degree candidates must include on their degree plan a related field of not fewer than 12 hours selected from the options listed below.

Written Qualifying Examinations, Research Project and Oral Qualifying Examination

General Information

Each student is required to pass written examinations in his or her major field (6 hours) and chosen related field (3 hours). These examinations are evaluated by the professors submitting questions, as well as others who may be designated by the major advisor. The qualifying examinations measure a broad knowledge of musical study. They are designed to establish the student's ability to engage both in scholarly research and in professional work in the major area supported by a complete musical comprehension and a broad perspective.

The student may take the qualifying examinations when the following conditions have been met: (a) all deficiencies have been removed, (b) 30 hours of course work beyond the master's degree have been completed, (c) at least two degree recitals have been completed (performance majors only), (d) the language or tool-subject requirement has been fulfilled and (e) an approved degree plan has been filed with the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies.

Performance majors

Following successful completion of the written qualifying examinations, the student is required to complete a research project and pass a two-hour oral examination that includes questioning on the research project and on other areas appropriate to the degree. It is understood that the student may consult the major professor and the library, and that no other form of assistance is acceptable. The student's Examination Committee (the Advisory Committee plus one member of the music history faculty and one member of the music theory faculty) administers this combined oral examination, although either the history or theory representative may be absent if necessary.

When all three parts of the examination have been completed successfully, the student is recommended for admission to candidacy for the degree. The examination may be taken no more than three times. All components of the examinations must be completed within 14 months.

Before enrolling for MUGC 6951, the dissertation credits, the candidate must first (a) be accepted into the program by audition and (b) file a degree plan. The language requirement must be met before enrolling in the lecture recital (or one of the other options).

After passing the qualifying examinations and having been admitted to candidacy, the student must maintain continuous dissertation enrollment (MUGC 6951-6954) each long term and at least one summer semester each year until the dissertation has been completed and accepted by the graduate dean.

Composition majors

At the beginning of the final semester of required course work, each doctoral student in composition must inform the composition division chair and the graduate advisory committee of his or her intention to take the doctoral qualifying examinations during the following semester.

1. Students must select an examination committee, which creates and grades the major field portion of the written qualifying examination. This committee consists of:

- a. the major professor,
- b. a composition faculty representative (either another member of the student's advisory committee or the composition division chair),
- c. a music theory faculty representative (may be an advisory committee member), and
- d. a music history faculty representative (may be an advisory committee member).

It is expected that students will consult with all members of the examination committee while preparing for the qualifying examinations.

2. In preparation for the qualifying examinations, the student will study 12 works from a repertoire list that must be approved by the examination committee by the beginning of the semester in which the qualifying examinations are administered.

3. The qualifying examination consists of both written and oral components. The written qualifying examination is administered during two consecutive days and includes the major field (9 hours) and minor/related field (3 hours) examinations.

4. Once the student has successfully completed all portions of the written qualifying examination, he or she may schedule the oral qualifying examination with the combined advisory and examination committees. This two-hour examination is intended to be a synthesis of all areas of the written qualifying examinations, including a discussion of works from the repertoire list, as well as a comprehensive examination over material covered during graduate course work and general knowledge commensurate with the degree. It is expected that any weaknesses evident in the written qualifying examination will be more thoroughly explored during the oral examination.

Further information pertaining to the doctoral qualifying examinations is included in the Composition Student Handbook, which may be downloaded from the composition division web site: www.music.unt.edu/comp.

Final Comprehensive Oral Examination and Dissertation Defense

Upon completion of the dissertation credits and the qualifying examinations, the student is required to pass a two-hour final comprehensive oral examination and dissertation defense of his/her project before the advisory committee.

Grades

A grade of B or better is required in courses used to satisfy DMA degree requirements.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy degree with a major in musicology or theory requires a minimum of 90 semester hours beyond the bachelor's degree. Of these 90 hours, at least 60 must be taken at UNT. Thirty hours may be transferred from other institutions at the discretion of the PhD committee of the College of Music. A master's degree from an accredited institution usually is accepted for the first 30 hours. The minimum residence requirement consists of two consecutive long terms/semesters (fall and the following spring, or spring and the following fall) with a minimum load of 9 hours each term/semester.

It should be understood that the Doctor of Philosophy degree cannot be earned by routine work alone, regardless of accuracy or amount. The degree will be conferred, rather, on the basis of mastery of the field of music as a whole and of proven ability either to plan and carry out an original investigation (in musicology or theory) or to do creative work (in composition) with distinction.

Degree Requirements

In addition to course requirements (see below), each applicant for the Doctor of Philosophy degree must meet the following requirements.

Music History and Theory Lecture Series Attendance

Each graduate student with a declared major in musicology or music theory is expected to attend all lectures presented in the Division of Music History and Theory Lecture Series during each long term/semester of full-time enrollment (9 hours).

Evidence of Satisfactory Progress

Students must maintain a minimum overall B average and must have no grade lower than B in courses in the major field. Students not meeting this standard will be placed on probation. Students not fulfilling the conditions of probation may be dismissed from the program.

Dissertation

The culmination of the doctoral work is a dissertation of appropriate scope, quality and originality. The student forms his or her dissertation committee in consultation with the major professor. The dissertation proposal will be submitted to the Graduate Academic Degrees Committee (GADCom) of the College of Music after successful completion of the qualifying examination. At this time, upon being admitted to candidacy, the student must maintain continuous dissertation enrollment (MUGC 6950) each long term/semester until the dissertation has been completed and accepted by the graduate dean. Registration in at least one summer session is required if the student is using university facilities and/or faculty time during that summer session. The final copies of the dissertation must be placed in the hands of the major professor at least two weeks before the scheduled oral examination in any given term/semester.

Minor Field/Related Field

The related field (within the College of Music) or minor field (a course of study outside the College of Music) must comprise at least 9 credit hours of study. The course of study and method of evaluation for the related or minor field will be determined by the faculty in that area. If degree credit is to be given for applied music, the student must pass the master's-level entrance audition in performance prior to enrollment for these credit hours. The student who does not pass or take the audition may study applied music, but this credit will not count toward the 60 hours required for the degree.

Major in Musicology

Admission to the degree program occurs in two steps: (1) acceptance into the doctoral program in musicology and permission to enroll in course work; and (2) admission to doctoral candidacy.

Acceptance and Permission to Enroll

To obtain permission to enroll in course work, the student must:

- a. Apply for admission to UNT through the graduate school (an evaluation of the student's transcripts will determine deficiencies in course work);
- b. Submit an acceptable score on the general test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE);
- c. Attend all orientation sessions scheduled by the director of graduate studies in music;
- d. Take the Graduate Placement Examination (GPE) given by the College of Music; and
- e. Complete the appropriate deficiency courses the first term/semester they are offered.

Application for acceptance into the doctoral program is made by a letter submitted to the coordinator of musicology. The following supplementary materials should accompany this letter:

- a. an academic resume;
- b. three letters of recommendation by persons who know the applicant personally, professionally or academically;
- c. one or more samples of the student's writing on musical topics; and

d. a completed College of Music application that includes a statement of personal interest indicating reasons for interest in pursuing graduate study in the chosen field.

Please note that the music history area considers this statement and the writing samples to be critical; applicants should put a great deal of thought into writing the statement and choosing the writing samples.

Degree Plan

The Area Coordinator will assign a mentor to each student admitted to the PhD degree with a major in musicology. The mentor will assist the student in choosing courses and, after the student has finished 12 hours of course work that counts toward the degree, in completing the degree plan.

Language Requirements

Proficiency in two languages, German and a second language subject to the approval of the music history area in consultation with GADCom, is required. Professors in the music history area will administer the exams, which will require students to translate short texts that have to do with music. One text will be an older document, possibly from a musical treatise, dictionary or encyclopedia, whereas the other will be recent and will most likely be an article.

Admission to Doctoral Candidacy

As a preliminary step toward obtaining admission to doctoral candidacy in musicology, the student must pass qualifying exams after two years of course work. These examinations seek to confirm that the student has a broad knowledge in and about the field of musicology and detailed knowledge in and about selected areas within those fields. The student will then demonstrate proficiencies stipulated by the music history area and by the related or minor field chosen by the student. For more detailed information about the qualifying exams and about the proficiencies that must be demonstrated, please see the Handbook for Students in the Musicology Area posted on the College of Music web site. The College of Music Graduate Academic Degrees Committee, in consultation with the Graduate Studies Office, provides oversight for policies and procedures related to the pre-dissertation stages in the student's development.

Dissertation Proposal, Defense and Oral Examination

After passing the qualifying exams and demonstrating the required proficiencies, students will start working on their dissertation proposals while finishing course work. Once they have finished course work, students will be admitted to candidacy. The student will request a Category III faculty member from the music history area to serve as advisor and register for one semester of dissertation hours with that professor.

In communication with the advisor, the student will select an area of study roughly equivalent in size and scope to 100 years of mainstream music history, choose a topic within this area, compile a bibliography and write a dissertation proposal.

After finishing the proposal, the student will put together an advisory committee for the proposal defense and oral examinations. This committee will include three to five faculty members (including one representative of the student's minor/related field) and will be the basis for the student's dissertation committee.

At this stage, students will formally submit the complete proposal with the bibliography to the Office of Graduate Studies and GADCom, together with a form indicating the advisor, the composition of the advisory committee and the area of study.

When the proposal is approved, the student will proceed to a two-hour oral proposal defense, which the student's advisory committee will oversee. During the first hour, the student will answer questions on current literature in the area of his or her dissertation, as represented by the student's bibliography. During the second hour, the student will answer questions regarding the dissertation proposal. Both the student's proposal and the examination will be open to all area faculty members.

Major in Theory

This curriculum provides opportunities for students to engage in study that will prepare them for professional careers in theoretical research and in teaching. Students are required to engage in considerable research activity in the seminar environment, as well as to develop the pedagogical skills necessary to communicate results of that research.

Admission to the degree program occurs in three steps: (1) permission to enroll in course work; (2) acceptance into the doctoral program in music theory; and (3) admission to doctoral candidacy.

Permission to Enroll in Course Work

To obtain permission to enroll in course work, the student must:

1. apply for admission to UNT through the graduate school (an evaluation of the student's transcript will determine deficiencies in course work);
2. submit an acceptable score on the general test (verbal and quantitative) of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE);
3. attend all orientation sessions scheduled by the director of graduate studies in music;

1. an academic resume;
2. three letters of recommendation by persons who know the applicant personally, professionally and academically; and
3. a portfolio that provides evidence of professional activity. The portfolio consists of two major analytical papers or compositional projects.

Upon acceptance into the doctoral program in music theory, the student will select a major professor under whose counsel a degree plan is devised and submitted to the graduate school.

Pre-Qualifying Examinations

A keyboard examination and a contrapuntal problem examination must be taken and passed by the applicant before taking the qualifying examination.

1. The keyboard examination includes reading from open score (e.g., string quartet). It must be taken at the time of the first registration and may be retaken no more than two times. In lieu of taking the examination, the applicant may take the course MUTH 5110 (Score Reading at the Keyboard) with a grade of B or better.
2. The contrapuntal problem examination must be taken and passed before taking the qualifying examination. It may be taken no more than three times. In lieu of taking the examination, the applicant may take the counterpoint course, MUTH 5400, with a grade of B or better.

Language Requirements

Proficiency in two languages, German and French, is required, but a substitution can be made, subject to the approval of the Graduate Academic Degrees Committee. These requirements may be satisfied in one of the following ways.

1. Passing the UNT Reading Proficiency Examination (a two-semester accelerated course to prepare students for this examination is offered by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures).
2. Two years of a foreign language with at least a B average for all four terms/semesters. Those opting to satisfy the language requirement in this way must complete the course work no earlier than three years prior to enrollment in the program and no later than the term/semester prior to attempting the qualifying examinations.

Qualifying Examination

The qualifying examination is a general review covering all fields of music study, with particular emphasis on the student's major field. The examination may not be taken until the language and pre-qualifying examination requirements are satisfied, or before all course deficiencies have been removed. Qualifying examinations are administered once each long semester.

Candidates should be prepared to spend three full days on the written examinations. An oral examination might be required for responses the faculty deems borderline in quality.

Admission to Doctoral Candidacy

To obtain admission to doctoral candidacy in music theory, the student must pass qualifying examinations. These examinations seek to confirm that the student has a broad knowledge in and about the fields of music theory and musicology, and in-depth knowledge in and about selected areas within those fields. Specific policies and procedures related to the qualifying examinations are the responsibility of the College of Music Graduate Academic Degrees Committee.

Last 60 Hours of Study

- MUTH 6660-6670, History of Music Theory, 6 hours
- MUTH 6680, Proseminar in Music Theory, 12 hours, four 3-hour seminars
- MUTH 6700-6710, Analytical Systems I and II, 6 hours
- 3 hours selected from MUCP 6200, and MUMH 6000, 6020, 6030, 6740, 6750, 6760 and 6770
- Electives, 18 hours (see below)
- MUGC 6950, Dissertation, 12 hours

Elective credits may be used to establish a minor or related field if the student so desires. Nine credit hours of electives must have a direct bearing on the dissertation topic. If degree credit is to be given for applied music, the student must pass the master's-level entrance audition in performance prior to enrollment for these credit hours. The student who does not pass, or take, the audition may study applied music, but this credit will not count toward the 60 hours required for the degree.

The Dissertation Defense

The dissertation defense is a hearing during which the candidate will summarize and defend the completed dissertation before the doctoral committee and any other interested faculty, students and members of the academic community. The successful defense is indicated by the signatures of all members of the doctoral committee.

Special Program Requirements

Acceptance into the Degree Program

Acceptance into the degree program occurs in three steps: (1) permission to enroll in course work; (2) acceptance into the doctoral program in music education; and (3) admission to doctoral candidacy at UNT.

To obtain permission to enroll in course work, the student must:

1. apply for admission to UNT through the School of Graduate Studies (an evaluation of the student's transcript will determine deficiencies in course work); and
2. submit an acceptable score on the general test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE); contact the College of Music or the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies for standardized admission test requirements.
3. submit an example of scholarly writing (a research paper).

After arriving on campus for the first semester's work, the student must:

1. attend all orientation sessions scheduled by the director of graduate studies in music;
2. take the Graduate Placement Examination (GPE) given by the College of Music; and
3. enroll in at least 4 hours of courses in music education.

To be accepted into the doctoral program in music education, the student must have taken a minimum of 12 hours of music education courses. The application for acceptance is directed to the coordinator of the music education PhD program and should contain:

1. a cover letter, and
2. an academic resume.

In making the acceptance decision, the music education graduate committee will take all available information about the student under advisement. Success in course work alone does not guarantee acceptance to the program.

Upon acceptance to the doctoral program in music education, the student will choose a doctoral (dissertation) committee under whose counsel a degree plan is devised and submitted to the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies. The qualifying examinations cannot be taken unless the approved degree plan is on file in the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies.

Residence

A doctoral student is officially in residence when carrying at least 9 hours of course work in each of two consecutive long terms/semesters.

Students who acquire residency toward another doctorate in the College of Music may, with the approval of the music education graduate committee, receive favorable consideration for residency in music education. Each case will be considered on an individual basis.

Teaching Experience

A record of three years of successful teaching experience is required before the doctoral degree can be conferred. It is highly recommended that this experience be gained at the public school level before the student has completed all course work.

Demonstration of Professional Activity

Either prior to or shortly after the qualifying examinations, the student must demonstrate specific professional skills within a chosen area of specialization. This demonstration may consist of a workshop/clinic on a given subject, presented at a conference or in a pre-approved UNT College of Music course, or completion and submission of an article to a refereed journal.

Qualifying Examinations

To obtain admission to doctoral candidacy at UNT, the student will take the qualifying examinations upon the completion of most of the course work. The examinations seek to confirm that the student has:

1. a broad knowledge in and about the field of music education as defined in the Bulletin for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in Music Education, and
2. in-depth knowledge in and about selected areas within that field.

All examinations seek to assess the prospective candidate's ability (a) to organize facts and content knowledge into meaningful information; (b) to generalize from, draw conclusions about and interpret that information; and (c) to speak and write in the exacting style of the scholar.

The examinations are usually given in November, March and June. The student must pass at least 50 percent of the examinations (B minus or better). If less than 50 percent is passed, all portions of the examination must be retaken; if more than 50 percent is passed, only those portions must be repeated in which the student scored below B minus. No more than two repeats are allowed. Oral examinations may be requested by the music education graduate committee in cases for which a repeat of the written examinations is not feasible.

Dissertation

After the successful completion of all portions of the qualifying examinations and upon being admitted to candidacy by the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies, the student must maintain continuous enrollment in MUGC 6950 each long term/semester until the dissertation has been completed, defended and accepted by the graduate dean.

The dissertation process is divided into two steps:

1. preparing and defending the dissertation proposal; and
2. writing and defending the dissertation.

The Proposal and Its Defense

The proposal is a public hearing during which the candidate presents to the doctoral committee in writing the purpose, research questions and proposed methodology of the dissertation. The proposal serves as a structural model for the dissertation itself and usually will be from 30 to 50 pages in length.

The Dissertation Defense and Final Steps in Completing All Requirements

The dissertation defense is a public hearing during which the candidate will defend the completed dissertation before the doctoral committee and any other interested students, faculty and members of the community. The dissertation must follow the UNT rules for preparing theses and dissertations.

The successful defense is indicated by the signatures of all members of the doctoral committee. The approved dissertation must be in the office of the dean of the College of Music at least a week before the deadline for filing theses and dissertations in the graduate office of the university. An abstract of the dissertation must be prepared and submitted with one original and two copies of the complete work to the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies for final reading and approval.
