DDAR Policy: All faculty members within DDAR are eligible to advise students. It is generally best to select an advisor from your area of specialization/concentration.

The Graduate Coordinator serves as the initial contact for all applicants to the DDAR graduate program. Upon admission, a temporary academic advisor is assigned to work with each student during their first semester in the program. This assignment will be made based first on student interest and then on a rotation basis. At the completion of that first semester, students are expected to select a permanent graduate academic advisor. The student must complete and submit the "Request for Graduate Academic Advisor" form to the Graduate Coordinator.

Questions pertaining to this form or the advisor assignment process should be directed to the Graduate Coordinator.
