Facility Snapshot/Description

The Bergen County Jail is located in an industrial area in Hackensack, New Jersey. The facility is owned by the County of Bergen and operated by the Bergen County Sheriff's Department. The two-story facility was built in 1965 and remodeled/upgraded in 2000. The [REDACTED] facility houses adult male and female detainees of all classification levels for ICE, U.S. Marshals Service, New Jersey Department of Corrections, and local jurisdictions. Officers are stationed in each of the six dedicated ICE housing units providing direct supervision of detainees in dormitories and celled housing. [REDACTED]

Housing areas provide adequate open space that is well lit with both natural and artificial light. The common areas of the housing unit are equipped with tables and chairs for detainees to participate in leisure time activities and socializing. Detainees were observed playing board games, reading, visiting, using computers, watching television, and viewing the kiosks. An outside recreation yard is attached to each housing unit and/or available at scheduled times each day for detainee use. ICE detainees are not commingled with other jurisdictions. The facility is climate controlled. The inspection team observed the housing and work environments to be free from obvious stress indicators. Detainees freely approached inspectors, ICE officials, and facility personnel. Sanitation throughout the facility was observed to be above average.

No less than 25 confidential interviews were conducted. Additionally, no less than fifty detainees were informally interviewed on the housing units, in administrative segregation, law library, indoor recreation, outdoor recreation, and in the kitchen. Detainees with limited English proficiency revealed that they have access to medical services, law library, telephone services, visitation, and recreational activities. They expressed appreciation for how they are treated by staff and "felt safe". Interviews with detainees revealed an overall acceptance of the meals. One detainee complained that he did not receive dental care. A review of his medical record confirmed that he had been seen by the dentist in a timely manner.

All officers were well-versed in facility guidelines and operating procedures as well as the National Detention Standards. Officers and staff were professional when dealing with detainees and the inspection team.

Medical services are provided by Bergen County employees. The facility does not charge co-pays for medical, mental health, or dental care. Food service operations are contracted with Aramark.
